Coir Goods.—The public sales of Yarn went off flatly, although the supply was moderate, and a larger portion than usual was bought in; prices of low and common qualities were 10s. to 20s. lower, but good sold steadily. Of 102 tons Ceylon 65 tons sold, very low red at £17 5s., low coarse to very common at £23 5s. to £25 15s., fair common to medium at £26 5s. to £29, good medium to good at £32 5s. to £37 5s., fine at £38 to £43 15s., superior at £50 to £53. 1,499 ballotts (8 tons) Ceylon Fibre sold at £17 10s.

Cocoanut Oil continues steady; fine Cochin £42, Ceylon £34 15s. to £35.

Camphor.—China has been firm, and closes fully 2s. 6d. per cwt. higher; last week in auction 54 boxes realised 75s. to 75s. 6d., and within the past few days about 150 cases have been sold up to 77s. 6d. re-weights.

Essential Oils.—Aniseed has been firm, and there have been about 35 cases sold on the spot at 8s. 6d., afloat further lots offering; at auction 5 cases were quitted at 8s. 5d. Cassia quiet, but firmly held; small sales at 4s. 8d., but 4 cases sold under the hammer at 4s. 6d. to 4s. 7d. Nutmeg quiet; 7 cases retired. Cinnamon scarce; of 20 cases offered, a few sold at 2½d. per oz. for common leaf; fine sold last at 7s. to 8s. Citronelle quieter; of 94 cases few only sold at 1⅝d. per oz., being easier; the bulk held for 1¾d. Lemon Grass very firm, sales at 2¾d., and no sellers.

Gums.—Benjamin: Sumatra steady; of 92 cases, a few sold; middling to fine seconds £7 7s. 6d. to £10; Siam steady; of 9 cases offered 5 sold at £22 5s. to £24 per cwt. for fine partly run. Copal quiet; private sales at previous value; 81 cases at auction retired. Damar easier; of 335 cases, about half sold at 46s. to 50s. for good part specky to fine. Gamboge quiet; of 32 cases, half sold at £9 15s. to £12 for middling coarse mixed to good clean pipe.

Gambier has been firmly held on the spot, in which position very little is to be had. Afloat 100 tons sold near at hand at 25s. 6d. to 25s. 9d.

Galls show a further advance; 50 cases China sold on the spot at 53s., and 300 cases afloat at 52s. per cwt.

Galangal Root is firm at the previous value.

Hemp.—There has been rather more inquiry for Manila, but owing to the firmness of holders sales are confined to about 1,100 bales, chiefly good roping, at £38. A good supply of Manila was offered at the auctions, but except Quilot, which sold with competition at rather dearer rates, there was little demand, and the whole was bought in. Of 2,767 bales, only 250 bales white Quilot sold, commencing at £47 10s., and rising to £49 15s.

Isinglass.—At the periodical auctions on the 18th inst. East India descriptions were generally difficult of sale, and a large portion was bought in or withdrawn, prices of tongue being 2d. to 3d. lower for Bombay and 3d. to 4d. lower for Penang, leaf selling rather cheaper, but cake brought firmer rates. Of 82 cases Penang 65 cases sold, good to fine bold and clean tongue at 3s. 11d. to 4s. 3d., mixed 3s. 7d., ordinary 2s. 9d. to 3s. 3d., very low 1s. 7d., good to fine pale thin leaf at 4s. 2d. to 4s. 6d., thick 3s. 11d. to 4s., inferior at 2s. 10d. to 3s. 1d., cake at 1s 5d. to 1s. 7d.

Japan Wax.—The market has been steady, and about 300 cases have been sold, fine at 58s., fair at 56s., common at 52s. 6d. per cwt.

Pepper.—Black has been very quiet, and about 1,500 bags have changed hands on the spot at 7⅛d. for Singapore, and 6 9-16d. to 6½d. Penang, and at auction of 2,179 bags about one-fourth sold at 6⅞d. for Penang. Afloat, about 100 tons Singapore at 6¾d. for close at hand, and 6 9-16d. to 6½d. distant. White has also been very dull, and of 1,229 bags at auction about 400 sold at 9d. to 8¾d. for fair, and more recently 9d. fine, being cheaper at each transaction. Privately, very little business has been done.

Rhubarb.—Market for China steady; of 212 cases offered two-thirds sold, selected pale fracture large at 4s. 5d., medium slightly wormy fair and good 2s. 1d. to 4s., middling dull 1s. 4d. to 1s. 10d., wormy medium and small 11d. to 1s., high dried rather rough dull colour 1s. 5d. to 1s. 6d., do. small common damp 9d. to 9½d.

Spices.—Cassia Lignea: The extensive supply of 5,240 boxes unworked, chiefly per Lennox Castle, was offered by auction, but the whole was withdrawn with the exception of 70 cases good fair, which sold at 1s. decline at 57s. Since the sale a large portion of the above has been sold at 55s. Cinnamon: Of 23 bales Ceylon 8 bales sold, second at 1s. 6d., third sort at 1s. 3d. to 1s. 4½d., fourth at 1s. 1½d. 197 boxes broken China bought in at 10d. Chips: 51 bags chiefly sold at 3½d. to 4½d. Cloves: There is less demand, and of 15 cases good Penang 4 cases sold at 2s. to 2s. 1d. Nutmegs: Of 25 cases Penang of old import about one-half sold at previous rates, 78's at 3s. 7d., 85's at 3s. 6d., 95's at 3s. 5d., 110's at 3s. 4d. 3 casks Java 106's sold at 3s. 3d., 10 casks limed bought in at 2s. Mace: 3 cases Penang sold, middling at 3s. 3d., pickings at 1s. 8d., and 1 case low Java at 1s. 8d.

Sticklac.—The stock of Siam, which is extensive, is being firmly held, and the demand is improving; a few cases have been sold at £5 10s. to £5 15s. for good quality.

Sapanwood continues scarce and in request; 26 tons Ceylon sold at £12 15s. to £12 17s. 6d.; of 19 tons Manila 14 tons sold at £11 per ton.

Sago.—Prices of small pearl declined about 6d. per cwt. early in the fortnight, about 1,000 bags being sold at 16s. 6d. to 17s., but the demand has subsequently improved, and the above decline has not only been recovered, but a further advance of 6d. established. Privately about 1,000 bags have been sold, closing at 17s. 6d. for fair to 18s. for fine small. In auction 1,589 bags were nearly all sold, the bulk small pearl at 17s., good medium at 17s. 3d. to 18s. Flour remains dull of sale at 15s. to 15s. 6d.

Tapioca.—There has been a good demand for old, and prices have advanced fully ¼d. per lb., business having been done in both Penang and Singapore up to 2d. per lb. In auction 721 bags old Penang were bought in above the value at 2½d.—Pearl: 258 bags were all bought in, good small and medium at 23s. 6d.

Tin has been quiet, but prices have remained steady at the advance noted in our last report. Quotations are—Straits on the spot £93 10s. to £94 10s., afloat £94; Banca £99 10s. to £100; Billiton £95 per ton.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Advices from New York, August 8, state that the wreck of the John Tucker, Taylor, from Ilo Ilo to the Channel, which was lost in Macassar Straits, had been sold for 1,000 guilders.

LISBON.—(By telegraph.) A large quantity of tea still on board the Gordon Castle (str.); smells well, although wet.

The steamer Ly-ee-Moon, well and favourably known to most of our readers for her speed, the hospitality of her commander, and the uninterrupted success which attended her while running on the coast of China, arrived home from Yokohama last September, and has been converted from a paddle into a screw vessel by Messrs. W. Walker and Co., on the Thames, undergoing at the same time various alterations and improvements. These alterations are now nearly completed, and in the course of a few days the vessel will be ready for her trial trip. It is expected by her present owners that the Ly-ee-Moon will maintain her reputation for speed, notwithstanding the reduction effected in the consumption of coal from ninety to sixteen tons per day. With a consumption of sixteen tons of coal a day it is believed the vessel will attain a speed of fourteen knots, with 1,300 tons of cargo and 180 tons of coal in her bunkers. The accommodation for all classes of passengers is admirable; the saloon, ladies', and first-class cabins are elegant, and, different from what is usually the case, are placed forward instead of aft, thereby avoiding the nuisance of smoke, noise of the screw, and the unpleasant odours arising from the engine-room. All the arrangements are designed for the convenience and comfort of passengers in the East, while at the same time good tonnage capacity is obtained. The whole of the plans and arrangements have been designed and superintended by Captain Geo. R. Stevens, who brought the vessel home, and who in a few weeks will take her out (unless sold) to China and Japan.

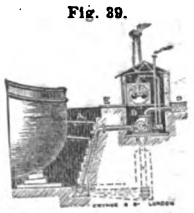
GWYNNE and Co., Hydraulic and Mechanical Engineers,

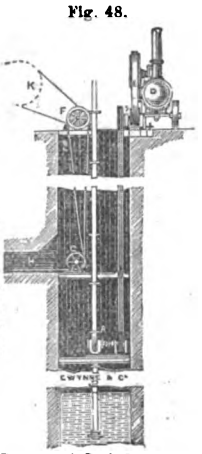
ESSEX STREET WORKS, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

Fig. 39.



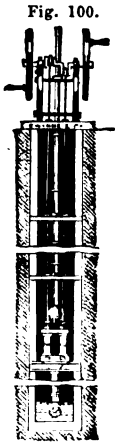
GWYNNE & Co.'s PATENT PUMPING MACHINERY, S APPLIED TO EMPTYING DOCKS.
The whole arrangement very compact and self-contained. References to many applications combining unparalleled efficiency with moderate first cost will be given.

Fig. 48.



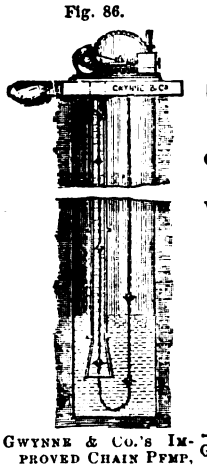
GWYNNE & Co.'s IMPROVED PATENT CENTRIFUGAL PUMP.
Fixed in a deep well, mine, or coal-pit, and driven by a portable or fixed engine fixed on the surface of the ground. Can be had of all sizes, and capable of raising any quantity of Water.

Fig. 100.



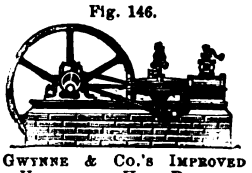
GWYNNE & Co.'s IMPROVED DOUBLE BARREL DEEP-WELL PUMP,
For Hand-power, adapted for ordinary wells of any depth, of most careful construction, and on the most approved system.

Fig. 86.



GWYNNE & Co.'s IMPROVED CHAIN PUMP, WORKED DIRECT BY STEAM ENGINE.
These Pumps work without valves or packing, and raise a considerable quantity of water. They will lift sand, mud, or grit without choking, and require only very inexpensive repairs.

Fig. 146.



GWYNNE & Co.'s IMPROVED HORIZONTAL HIGH-PRESSURE STEAM ENGINE.
With or without Expansion Gear, for economical working.
From 4 to 100-horse power.

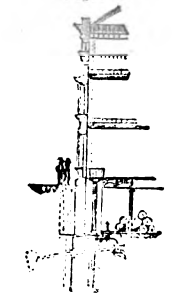
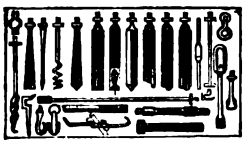
GWYNNE & Co.'s IMPROVED CORNISH BOILERS WITH DOUBLE FLUES.
These boilers are simple and compact. They are proved by hydraulic power to double the working pressure, are got up with the greatest care, and none but first-class materials are used in their construction. Estimates given for any size or shape of boiler.

Fig. 193.



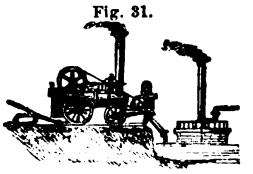
GWYNNE & Co.'s IMPROVED HYDRAULIC LIFTS.
Worked by the supply from tank at the top of the building, or from main pipe any water company's supply. Well adapted for lowering wine, or other produce, into or up from cellars, or may be modified for lowering bankers' and jewellers' safes into the strong rooms. The waste water runs into the sewer.
Prices on application.

Fig. 121.



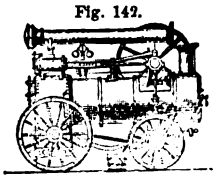
GWYNNE & Co.'s BORING TOOLS.
Of greatly improved construction. The figure represents those most frequently used, but the form and number vary much with the nature of the soil, and size of the bore hole.
G. & Co. can confidently recommend these as the best in the market.

Fig. 31.



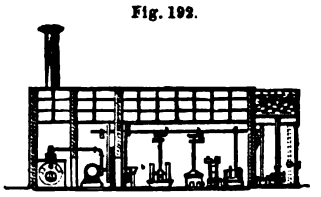
GWYNNE & Co.'s PATENT PORTABLE PUMPING ENGINE AND FLOATING IRRIGATOR.
In which the Pumps are furnished with hose for distributing the water over the adjoining plantations. Made in all sizes.

Fig. 142.



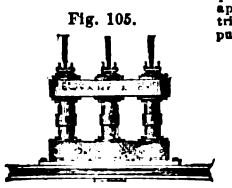
GWYNNE & Co.'s IMPROVED PORTABLE STEAM ENGINE.
Light, simple in construction, durable, and economical, and very superior to "Agricultural" Engines.
From 2½ to 30-horse power.

Fig. 192.



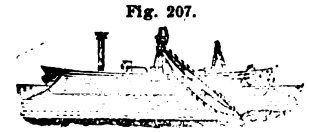
GWYNNE & Co.'s IMPROVED MACHINERY FOR PRESSING OIL FROM SEED, OLIVES, FAT, &C., &C.
The above shows an arrangement for a seed oil mill, and comprises, besides the requisite motive power, a crushing mill, pair of runners, heating apparatus, hydraulic press, and pumps. A Centrifugal Pump is added to lift water or any purpose required.

Fig. 105.



GWYNNE & Co.'s IMPROVED TREBLE BARREL LIFT AND FORCE PUMP.
These are made with gun metal barrels, copper piston rods, and brass valves. The workmanship and materials throughout are of the very best class, and comparison with those of other makers is challenged. Gwynne & Co. make single and double-barrelled pumps upon the same principles.

Fig. 207.



GWYNNE & Co.'s IMPROVED DREDGING MACHINERY.
The boat can be constructed so as to draw only 18 inches of water, if required. The machinery is extremely simple, yet thoroughly effective, the workmanship and materials are of the first class, and the amount of work it will do, compared with the cost, most favourable

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Turn which way you will, go where you please, persons will be found who have a ready word of praise for this Ointment. For chaps, chafes, scalds, bruises, and sprains it is an invaluable remedy; for bad legs caused by accident or cold it may be confidently relied upon for effecting a sound and permanent cure. In cases of swelled ankles, erysipelas, gout, and rheumatism, Holloway's Ointment gives the greatest comfort, by reducing the inflammation, cooling the blood, soothing the nerves, adjusting the circulation, and expelling all impurities. This Ointment should have a place in every nursery. It will cure the long list of skin affections which, originating in childhood, gain strength with the child's growth.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present P. and O. mail brings advices from this port to the 8th July; and by the Pacific mail we have twelve days later news, viz., to the 20th July; the French mail from London May 22 arrived out on the 9th July, and the following P. and O. mail of May 29 was received on the 10th July. The Japan Mail supplies the following items of intelligence:—

The position of matters in reference to Formosa remains unchanged. Despatches were sent from Peking to the Court at Yedo, the contents of which or of the replies they produced have not yet been made public, but the present attitude of both nations is unquestionably warlike. From China we have intelligence of great activity in the preparation and purchase of war material, while extensive contracts have been made by the Japanese Government for arms, ammunition, and clothing. It is said that negotiations have been entered upon for the purchase of two or more of the steamvessels at present trading in these waters.

The question of foreign travel in the interior has been somewhat abruptly closed by the resolution of the Government to defer all further discussion on it until the revision of the treaties takes place. The Government does not consider that the country is yet ripe for its acceptance of the proposals of the Foreign Representatives, and has instructed its Ministers abroad to represent to the Ministers of Foreign Affairs of the various countries to which they are accredited the grounds for this decision. An announcement has been made in the official Gazette to the effect that foreigners going into the interior, either at the instance of the Government or of Japanese Associations, must be furnished with passports, or passes, issued by the Minister for Foreign Affairs. Hitherto such passes have been granted to foreigners by the Department under which they were engaged, or, if in the employ of private individuals, by passes obtained in any manner open to such private employers.

On the night of the 9th July a terrific typhoon raged about and between Hiroshima and Simonoseki; the damage done is said to be immense. The crops have been ruined and property to a vast extent has been damaged. Yokohama was visited on the 10th July by a rain storm of almost unparalleled violence, lasting from about 9.30 until nearly midnight, when it began to clear. At half-past eleven o'clock the barometer stood at 29·32 having fallen two-tenths of an inch in the course of the storm. The warm season has now fairly set in, the rains having terminated. Judging from the reports from the provinces a more than average rice-crop may be anticipated.

Mr. E. W. Clark, of the Kaisei-gakko (College), has had the honour to exhibit to the Mikado and his Court, at the Imperial Palace, a series of views taken in foreign countries. The Imperial party expressed much gratification in witnessing the scenes depicted.

There is a rumour current in Yedo that the Japanese inhabitants of the island of Saghalien have all left, and retired to the island of Yezo. No public notification has, however, appeared relative to it.

The Yedo Saibansho (Prefecture) has delivered judgment in the case of the police charged with the assault and imprisonment of William Woods, a constable of the British Legation Escort. The Inspector of Police has been committed to prison for 100 days, and his subordinates for the shorter term of fifty days.

A letter from Capt. Belknap, of the Tuscarora, announces that soundings to the enormous depth of 4,658 fathoms, or five-and-a-quarter miles, have been found in the Japan stream. This is a greater depth by nearly a mile than has ever yet before been accurately sounded.

Dr. Wheeler, R.N., formerly attached to the British Legation at Yedo, has been presented with a testimonial and a flattering address by the English residents on his removal to Yokohama.

The Government of Japan has lost its suit against the P. M. S. S. Company, and has notified its intention of appealing the case to an American tribunal.

The new Temperance Hall was opened on the 6th July. A large number of seamen from the ships in harbour was present, and the chair was occupied by Sir H. S. Parkes.

The band of men who attempted to assassinate Iwakura have been decapitated.

The following items of news are from the Japan Herald :—

Very little news of interest or consequence has come to hand at present with respect to the Formosan Expedition, but from all accounts it seems that the Chinese are making preparations for a resort to offensive measures if the continuance of the Japanese should compel them. It is rumoured that the Japanese Government is increasing the strength of the army, and that additional troops will be despatched to Formosa to support the expedition. By special information from China we learn that the flotillas of Kwangtung and Fohkien have had orders to join in the Formosa waters, under the command of the high Mandarin Shen Pao Shen, quondam commissioner of the Foochow Arsenal. Shen is a man of great talent, who has conducted enterprises against the Taeping and Mahometan rebels successfully and with credit. He has for adviser Monsieur Prosper Giquel, who in the years 1861 to 1864 was commander-in-chief of the Franco-Chinese force which operated in the province of Chekiang against the Taepings, so that if the Japanese want to fight the matter out, they must get some better commanders than the so-called Generals they so much affect. M. Giquel understands war. The Kwantung flotilla is in excellent order, and fit for any service. The Fohkien fleet crews are strong, sturdy men, but as most of the Foochow ships have only been under foreign discipline since November last, they can scarcely be put into the first line of battle. The gunnery, however, is pretty good. The Fohkien corvette, the Yangon, has thirteen guns, all able to pierce the sides of the Japanese so-called ironclad, and the two heavy pivot guns can pierce the sides and breastwork of the Stonewall. From letters we have received we are of opinion the Chinese will not attack at present, as their numerous troops now in Formosa are not formidable in direct attack to forces with any pretension to discipline; but endeavour will be made to reduce the Japanese by sea and land blockade. In two months more China will have a very large force ready, as the trained troops who served so well under Ward, Holland, Gordon, and Giquel are being called in to Ningpo and Fongwô-shan. It is thought that 20,000 to 25,000 of these men can be collected. Colonel Chesney, in his paper on "Chinese Gordon," has the highest opinion of the fighting qualities of these tough and trustworthy troops.

It will probably be remembered when Date went to China to negotiate a treaty between that nation and Japan, a clause was agreed to by which the two countries entered into an offensive and defensive alliance with each other. Upon its being subsequently pointed out how dangerous such a stipulation was to the peace of Japan, because under its operation she was liable to become entangled in any complications with foreign Powers that China might fall into, the Japanese Cabinet, prior to the ratification of the treaty, sought to have the clause in question expunged, and Soyeshima was instructed accordingly. The reason that Date gave for agreeing to the clause was that as Japan contemplated hostilities with Korea, it was a stroke of policy to secure, if not the actual assistance of China, at least her neutrality. But the Chinese refused to ratify the treaty with the clause omitted, and it accordingly stands part of the treaty. As it has not been published as finally agreed to, we give a translation of it :—

Whereas the two nations enter now in relations of friendship, and ought naturally to prove with facts their mutual interest in each other's prosperity: if a foreign nation should act unjustly or illegally against one of the contracting parties, the other, when officially informed, shall be obliged, owing to the existing friendly relations, to lend an immediate assistance, or to interfere or intervene, in order to bring the dissident parties to reconciliation.

Now it is somewhat laughable to find that China complains of Japan having infringed this very clause in carrying on hostilities in Formosa, which it claims as an integral part of the Empire. Japan has been "officially informed" by China that she is acting "unjustly and illegally" against her, and as the case stands, China may call upon Japan to assist her,—in terms of the treaty, —to help her to turn Japan out of Formosa! A very amusing muddle, indeed. There was some Japanese talk, not very long since, about China and Japan having a "policy" in common in Eastern Asia, which, pursued to its farthest limits, was to end in their domination of other nations in their vicinity, and it was urged that the dispossession of the Formosan savages of their country, to be followed by Japanese occupation of it, was a politic move to block out the foreigner from acquiring a possible foothold on the Island. But the Chinese regard the Japanese as foreigners, and have no intention of permitting them to remain permanently to colonise any part of Formosa. The Japanese themselves are at length convinced of the hopelessness of their attempt, and talk of evacuating it if the Chinese will recoup them the expenses they have incurred in prosecuting the expedition. However averse the Chinese may be to war, there is but scant chance of their agreeing to this demand, and it is more than likely that they may even ask an indemnity at the hands of the Japanese themselves, for breach of treaty and violation of territory. The Chinese have already incurred considerable expenses, caused by the Japanese invasion, with a very large outlay indeed to be met for ironclads, arms, and the munitions of war; and if they should insist, as the Germans did of their French aggressors, that they should pay the little bill, it will be a very ugly fact for the Japanese. Like parties who lose at law, they will have, perhaps, the costs of both sides to bear.

A sad accident, attended with great loss of human life, has occurred at Nakadori, Ishikawa, one of the suburbs of the native town. A huge portion of the cliff which overhangs that locality became detached, probably by the immense amount of rain which had fallen, and crushed five or six long sheds, completely burying them and their unfortunate inmates. Coolies have been at work ever since, digging the bodies out of the mass of earth that covers them. About twenty persons next morning were found to be missing, though it is hoped that all are not buried in the ruins. Six bodies, have been already recovered, consisting of two women, a child and three men; some of them were fearfully mangled, and all quite dead. More will yet be dug out, but it will be a work of considerable time, as there is an immense mass of earth yet to be removed.

It is rumoured that the presence of foreign troops in Japan will probably be of longer continuance than has been generally supposed. It is thought that the continued refusal of the present advisers of the Mikado to throw the country open to foreign intercourse, coupled with the firm and vigorous foreign policy of the British Government, will have the effect of prolonging indefinitely the time when Japan will be admitted into and treated as a member of the civilised family of nations. It cannot be expected, so long as the subjects of foreign Powers have not the same privileges here that are accorded to all without distinction in their respective countries, that this country can be treated with the same deference or be admitted to the same rights in every respect which other countries enjoy.

The comet continues to be visible on clear nights. It is of large size, and its tail extends several degrees into space. The Japanese, like ignorant people in other countries, say its coming is of dire portent; that some great calamity is sure to ensue, such as a war with China, or the overthrow of the Government. The good people may set their minds at rest, for they may be assured that whatever calamities may be in store for Japan, the comet has nothing to do with them.

The shipments of tea from here continue to be on a scale larger than in former seasons; in consequence of the excessive competition amongst buyers, prices rule too high to leave a margin of probable profit to exporters. In silk, also, the same ruinous competition obtains. Most articles of import leave a loss more or less great; the sales are small, and the deliveries paltry.

No attempt has yet been made to commence the revision of the treaties. As foreigners have nothing to gain by the measure, it has come to be regarded as a matter of very doubtful expediency.

The annual summer holidays in the Japanese Government offices commenced on the 11th July, and will last until the 15th September, one half of the staff having one month's leave whilst the other half remain to transact the necessary business of the different departments.

The last American mail steamer brought over some $120,000 of the new trade dollars, part for Japan and part for China. We presume that they will soon begin to get into circulation. They are a much better coined dollar than the Mexican, and will prove a powerful rival to that coin.

Judgment has been given by Assistant Judge Goodwin in the case of Walsh, Hall and Co. v. J. Pitman and Co.; plaintiffs to recover $4,000 for breach of contract, costs to be borne by defendants. The action was to recover $6,300 by plaintiffs from defendant, for refusal to take delivery and pay for a certain quantity of blankets, 13,000 in number, alleged to have been contracted for. Defendant put in a cross claim for $3,900, for for alleged breach of warranty, and consequential damages.

The Japanese Government has appealed to the Circuit Court of California against the adverse decision given by the United States Consul in its late suit against the P.M.S.S. Company for damages—$10,050—for breach of contract.

The British steamer Bengal, on entering the harbour, ran aground nearly opposite the English Hatoba, but has since been floated off without damage.

A fatal accident has occurred on board the German frigate Arcona. A sailor fell from aloft, and breaking his neck, expired immediately.

A flower show has been held at the Bluff Gardens.

CHINA.

TIENTSIN.

On the 26th June, in the public building situated near the north gate of the city of Tientsin, and known to Chinese by the name of Tang-hang-kung-so, a treaty in perpetuity was concluded and signed between Peru and China—on the part of the Government of China by H.E. Le Hung-chang, Plenipotentiary; and on the part of the Government of Peru by H.E. Captain Garcia y Garcia, the Plenipotentiary for that country; and it may be further remarked that this is the first treaty which China has made with a South American State. The correspondent of the North China Daily News communicates the subjoined particulars:—

Captain Garcia, accompanied by Mr. J. F. Elmore, LL.D., as secretary of Legation, and by Messrs. Freyre, Garland, and Benavides, as attachés, arrived in Tientsin on the 23rd day of October last, for the purpose of negotiating this treaty. Captain Garcia, having engaged the services of Mr. John A. T. Meadows as interpreter to the Legation, on the afternoon of the day of his arrival at Tientsin, addressed a Chinese note to H. E. Le Hungchang, the Imperial Commissioner, then resident there, informing him that he would call on him at his Yamun at four P.M. on the following day. Captain Garcia, accompanied by Secretary Elmore and Interpreter Meadows, called on the Commissioner at the time mentioned. From that hour till two days before the departure of the Commissioner for Paouting-foo, in his position of Governor-General of the province of Chihli, on the 18th Dec. last, the Minister had constant communication, either personally or by letter, with him, or with his deputy, the Customs Taoutai, regarding the object of his mission to China. Nothing, however, up to that time had been definitively settled, when public business of importance compelled the Imperial Commissioner to depart for Paouting-foo—the capital of the province, and formerly the residence of the Governor-General throughout the whole year—for the winter. In consequence of the Commissioner having thus to depart, the Chinese Foreign-office in Peking, known now generally by the outer world, as well as by the Chinese, under the name of the Tsung-li Yamen, had, at the suggestion of Mr. Wade, H.B.M.'s Minister at the metropolis, arranged with him that the Peruvian Minister should spend the winter at Peking. Captain Garcia, accompanied by his suite, accordingly left Tientsin at the same time that the Commissioner left for Paouting-foo, and arrived at Peking on the 21st Dec. last. His Excellency and part of his suite took up their residence in the German Hotel; while the other part of the suite—the Chinese department—did so in the French Hotel. Some few days later, as soon as the Peruvian Minister had concluded his visits on the Foreign Ministers, and the latter had returned his calls, Captain Garcia addressed to Prince Kung a note saying he would visit his Highness on the following day. This he accordingly did, accompanied by Secretary Elmore and Interpreter Meadows; and the reception his Excellency met with was of the most flattering description, both for himself and for his country. On the 5th January following Prince Kung, accompanied by the Ministers of State, Chung-lun, Shin Kwei-fun, and Chung-how, called on Captain Garcia at the German Hotel—the Peruvian Legation for the time being—and on the following day the Ministers of State, Wanseang, Paoukeun, and Ching-lin did the same.

During the winter, Captain Garcia and Secretary Elmore were engaged in drawing up the draft of a Treaty for negotiation with the Imperial Commissioner, after his return to Tientsin; and Captain Garcia sent this draft of the Treaty to the Tsung-li Yamun for examination, and after that to be forwarded to the Commissioner. Directly Captain Garcia was made aware of the return of Le to Tientsin, he called on the Ministers of the Tsung-li Yamun, and took leave of them. The Peruvian Legation left Peking on the 27th of April on its return to Tientsin, where it arrived on the 30th idem. On the following day, Captain Garcia, accompanied as hitherto by Secretary Elmore and Interpreter Meadows, paid a visit to the Imperial Commissioner, when negotiations again commenced respecting the concluding of the Treaty. On the 1st June the arrangements were ended, as to its wording, and as to that of a special agreement in regard to the position of the Chinese labourers in Peru. Afterwards, till the day of signature, the Spanish and Chinese departments of the Legation were occupied in making the necessary fair copies of the Treaty and special agreement, for the signature of the Plenipotentiaries, which were affixed, as already mentioned above, on the 26th day of June, at the Tang-hang-kung-so, in Tientsin.

Chinese subjects in Peru, and Peruvian citizens in China, are now on the same footing as the subjects of the most favoured nations. These have been the results of the eight months' negotiations; with these results the Governments of both countries are perfectly satisfied; and it is to be hoped that their people will be equally so.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 12th July; the P. and O. mail from London May 15 arrived out on the 27th June, the French mail of 22nd May on the 7th July, and the P. and O. mail of 29th May on the 8th July. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald:—

The German barque Jurgen, arrived from Keelung, has brought news of the loss of the British steamer Laptek. It appears that on the 28th June, at 9 P.M., while the steamer was on her voyage from Swatow to Shanghai, with sugar, she struck on an unknown sunken rock, about two miles from the shore, at a spot about eight miles from Keelung. Captain Tough, finding his vessel was settling down by the head, made for the shore, and succeeded in beaching her on a sand bed. The nature of the damage could not be ascertained, as the forehold was full of water, and there were no means at hand of pumping it out. The engine-room and afterhold, however, remained dry. The weather was calm and fine in Keelung harbour, though a little foggy outside, and was favourable for making attempts to discover the nature and extent of the damage; but from the position in which the vessel lies grave doubts are entertained as to whether this can be accomplished. Though she has not yet been abandoned, it is believed the Laptek will be a total wreck. Nearly half the cargo, about 4,000 bags of sugar, has been landed in good condition, but the remainder is reported to be irretrievably damaged. From another source we are told that the steamer struck near the Double Rock, about six miles from Keelung, and that she was run into Ma-sou Bay, about three miles off. The Jurgen brings thirty-six Chinese who were passengers by the Laptek, but the crew had remained by the vessel.

At the Supreme Court, on the 9th July, before Sir Edmund Hornby, chief judge (Mr. Mowat being also on the bench), Mr. W. V. Drummond, barrister, made an ex parte motion on behalf of the trustees of the Recreation Fund, for permission to appeal to the Privy Council to set aside the perpetual injunction made by his lordship in the recent action, "The Shanghai Race Club v. the Shanghai Cricket Club." Exigencies of space prevent our giving more than a brief outline of the discussion that ensued. The application was argued at considerable length between his lordship and Mr. Drummond, the latter stating that the present motion was made under the 131st section of the Order in Council, which refers to the grounds on which such an appeal may be made, and sets forth that the value of the property in dispute, or the matter at issue, must be to the amount of $2,500. In order to meet that contingency, he had filed an affidavit, signed by two of the trustees, who, Mr. Drummond said, considered themselves the parties aggrieved by his lordship's decision, and had therefore instructed him to apply for permission to appeal for its reversal. The 136th section of the Order in Council also requires that security shall be given within one month to the value of the property in question, and he, therefore, under the provision, had obtained the security of three of the trustees up to the maximum amount required—$2,500. The amount was tendered by Messrs. Keswick, Forbes, and Cameron, and therefore everything necessary to be done before moving for permission to appeal had been done before coming into Court. His Lordship asked in what way the Recreation Fund property was affected by the perpetual injunction to restrain the Cricket Club—how were they aggrieved? Mr. Drummond said the recent proceedings were to try a right, and the injunction then made applied to the whole of the property. If, therefore, the Recreation Fund Trustees desired to build, they could not do so—they would be liable to repeated actions—and, in fact, the effect of the injunction was to restrain them for ever from exercising their rights over their own property, and prevent them putting it to more profitable uses, if they desired to do so. It reduced the land from the condition of building land to that of arable land, therefore materially affecting its value as property. His Lordship said he could not restrain the trustees if they desired to build, and he could not see how his decree affected their rights of ownership. Mr. Drummond urged that if they were to commence to build to-morrow, under the present wording of the decision an injunction would be probably applied for at once against them, and the building stopped. If that would not be the effect of the injunction he did not know what it meant. After much discussion on technical points of law, in what were adduced as analogous cases, his Lordship said, in order that there may be no delay, he would at once refuse the application for permission to appeal, and for that refusal he would give his reasons probably in three or four days. Appeal, by petition to Her Majesty, is still possible, however, under the 139th section of the Order in Council.

At the Mixed Court, before Chên and Dr. Yates, two owners of jinrickshas have been brought up, charged with plying for hire without license. It was shown that 500 licenses having been granted, no more were issued by the Council. The two defendants, however, caused a number of forged licences to be written by a Ningpo man, formerly in the service of the Council, and issued to thirty coolies. The trick was discovered, the coolies and their vehicles were impounded, and the men of course confessed who were their employers. The vehicles were taken to the Central Police Station compound, and one of the Canton men and the Ningpo man were caught. The Canton man was fined $25, and the Ningpo man $10—the full penalty being $50. On Saturday night the Bund at Hongkew, in the neighbourhood of Chiarini's Circus especially, and also in the French Concessions at Kin-lee-yune, was the scene of much excitement, consequent upon the crowds of jinrickshas either plying for hire or conveying passengers. The rule of the road, if a coolie ever knew it, was quite forgotten, and at times the racing, screeching, and hollowing was startling. The police were active, and no doubt prevented serious mischief, and that, considering the heat, deserves mention.

An unusual case has been partly heard before the Court of the Danish Consulate. Peter Boysen, a member of the English municipal police, was summoned for assaulting a Chinese woman, forcibly entering a house, and stealing a dog. Counsel was retained on both sides. The famous Mother Hubbard's dog could not possibly have undergone more or greater changes than the remarkable animal whose rambling propensities, some twelve months ago, are alleged to have led to the occupation of a Consular Court, two lawyers, two reporters, and "ever so many" witnesses, for nearly five hours, with a prospect of another five in probably still more enjoyable weather. This unhappy animal had had his nose slit, had been shot in the throat, had had his hairy tail cut, was frequently clipped, often washed, and after all turns up in custody of the police, just where a dog of such unmistakable Snarleyowistic proclivities might be expected to be. After lengthy addresses by the counsel on both sides, the Court gave judgment, the result being that the defendant was acquitted on all the charges. As he himself confessed to having removed the dog from the complainant's house, the Court, to mark their disapproval of such a step, ordered him to pay all costs, at the same time directing the complainant to pay him $50 as compensation for bringing such grave criminal charges against him as compelled him to go to the expense of employing legal assistance.

The O.S.S. Co.'s Ajax arrived at Woosung on the 8th July, but was unable to cross the Bar, though drawing only 19 feet 9 inches. Six barges were sent down, along with a large number of coolies from the Company's stevedore, to lighten her by 300 tons, and she came up river next day.

At a numerously attended meeting of the Cricket Club, Mr. J. Priestley Tate in the chair, it was resolved nem. con., on the motion of Mr. Manson, seconded by Mr. Maitland, that, in view of the perpetual injunction recently obtained by the Race Club, it was advisable the Committee should write and request the Stewards of the Race Club to allow the pavilion to remain as it now stands, and that the Cricket Club should not be parties to any further appeal against the decision of the Chief Judge.

The Wind Instrument Society's Band has been passing through a crisis caused by the defection of the paid members, who, notwithstanding an engagement they entered into to form part of the wind band for the summer, have been led by superior pay offered them by the Circus people to desert the society which has been their mainstay during past seasons. The society, however, unwilling to disappoint their friends, strained every nerve to hunt up recruits, and bring back retired members, so as to dispense at once and finally with the services of those who have failed in their agreements with them. On their first attempt under the new conditions, after judiciously toning down public expectation, they prepared an agreeable surprise by coming out in greater force than ever. Some of the selections were new, and were performed in a style highly creditable to the conductor as well as to the musicians if it was arrived at without the usual practice. The whole programme was given with equal spirit and care. The night was very hot, and the visitors with whom the garden was crowded must have felt particularly grateful to the amateurs for giving them an inducement to spend a few hours in the only place in the Settlement where existence was tolerable.

The heat has been very severe during the week, the thermometer showing a daily record of over 90 Fahr. in the shade. Police-Constable Persihl, while on duty in the Public Gardens, was suddenly struck down by heat apoplexy. He was carried to the Central Station, and remained in a very precarious condition for some hours, when he manifested symptoms of recovery, and gradually regained consciousness. He had just a few days before been informed of the Council's resolution to invalid him, on account of debilitated health, and has since left for England.

The Chinese Merchants Co's. steamer Leeyuen, from Tientsin, brings a couple of Gatling guns (mitrailleuse) and a considerable quantity of ammunition, intended for the use of the Chinese forces in Formosa. The Gatlings, which we believe were turned out at Nanking Arsenal, have been allowed to fall into a lamentable state of disrepair, as regards carriages and gear, and whether they retain their effectiveness in other respects is a question. We understand that the next trip of the Leeyuen will be southward, probably with the above noticed and other war material.

The whole of the land required for the Shantung Promontory Lighthouse has been granted, and the foundation is already laid.

From Newchwang we hear of a revival of Chinese intercourse and trade with Korea, the new Government being more liberal than the Regency.

A meeting of landrenters was held at Chinkiang on the 3rd July, in reference to the bridge connecting the C. N. Co.'s hulk Cadiz with the Bund. The past action of the Municipal Council in the matter was approved, but it was resolved to represent to Messrs. Butterfield and Swire the desirability of arranging its position so as to avoid any further complications.

Chiarini's Circus opened on the 3rd July, and has been performing since to good houses.

The members of the Peruvian Legation have arrived per steamer Paouting from Tientsin.

HONG KONG.

The Canton struck on the Min Reef at 5.30 P.M. on the 7th July, in very thick weather. On the morning of the 9th, the Jeddah passed close to the wreck, which was lying on her port side, and only the forward part of the vessel out of the water. The sea had commenced to break over her, and everything was swept off her decks but one starboard midship boat, which was still in the davits; funnel, masts and everything gone. On the night of the 8th, passed the steam tug, having on board the English pilot, captain and crew. They had lost everything but what they had on, but no lives were lost. The Yangtsze reports that at 7 P.M., on the 10th July, when abreast of Pih-seang, passed a quantity of boxes, apparently tea, several pieces of wood painted dark stone colour, supposed to be part of a deck-house, and pieces of bulwarks, and also one small half hatch complete. It being dark and a heavy confused sea on, were prevented from lowering a boat to ascertain further particulars.

The new, large, and full-powered steamship Crocus was very nearly bringing her first voyage home with Foochow teas to an abrupt termination, having been aground on the inevitable North Bank from 11 A.M. until 8.45 P.M. on Sunday, June 28th. Before the afternoon tide rose there were only six feet of water under her, but the bottom fortunately being sandy, the vessel, marvellous to state, stood almost upright, having only a slight list to port. While in this perilous position the faithful old tug Woosung came in sight from towing the Mary Blair to sea, and her services were eagerly engaged to prevent the steamer from drifting any further on the bank. The tug went alongside as soon as the tide would admit, took on board a hawser, and then steamed away, and anchored some distance from the stranded ship, keeping her engine going full speed until the Crocus once more floated, and could steam away. We understand that it is supposed that no damage at all was sustained on this occasion.

The Hong Kong Daily Press says:—There has been an utter dearth of news of public interest during the past fortnight. The weather has been exceptionally oppressive, but not unhealthy. On account of an outbreak of cholera in Saigon vessels from that port were for a short time put in quarantine, but telegrams have since been received that the epidemic had disappeared, and there is therefore no reason to apprehend its approach. H.M.S. Cadmus left on the 13th July for home vid the Cape of Good Hope. Some attention has been directed to the provisions of the Ordinance for suppressing gambling-houses, in consequence of a case at Singapore, under a local Ordinance in that colony, which is similar to the one here, providing that a householder may be fined heavily, because a house belonging to him is used as a gambling resort, without any proof that he was in collusion in the matter. The Chief Justice of Singapore has pronounced the provision there as contrary to the fundamental principles of English law, and as it is probable the Ordinance in that colony will shortly be modified in consequence, it is suggested that a similar change should be made here.

The Hong Kong, Canton, and Macao Steamboat Company.—The ordinary half-yearly meeting of this company was held on the 18th July. The accounts show that after paying commission, running expenses, salaries, premia of insurance, repairs, and all other outgoings to June 30th, that there is a profit of $82,435.28, and the directors recommend a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. on the paid-up capital for the half-year. The report notices that notwithstanding the inducements held out to them by the company, the natives still continue to prefer shipping their cotton in flat boats to giving their freight to the steamboats.

BANGKOK.

The civil authorities of the Province of Nak'aunraht Semah have transmitted to the Royal Treasury in Bangkok the sum of $2,016, as the sum due for 842 taxable Chinese in that province for the year 1235, i.e., 1873 A.D. The civil authorities of the Province Saraburi have transmitted to the Royal Treasury of Bangkok the sum of $450, as the sum due for 182 taxable Chinese in that province for the year 1235.

In the Siamese Government Gazette we notice that the monopoly of the right to establish gambling-houses in twenty locations has been disposed of. The successful bidders have in each instance pledged themselves to give more than was given for the same monopolies last year. This revenue enters the Treasury Department known as the P'ra-klang Sinka.

Chin Fung was promoted to the rank of Luang Boekbanburirat, and thereby became the monopolist of the Lottery of Bangkok. His bondsman is Chin Su'. Last year this monopoly was granted to the monopolist for the sum of $142,560. The present monopolist has offered an advance of $28,000, and commenced the working of the monopoly on the 31st of May for the enormous sum of $231,360.

H.M. has granted an audience to his nobles at the throne Amarindra-winich'ai. After this audience H.M. retired and tarried a few moments at his drawing saloon, and then proceeded to the throne Mulasat'ahn. In the evening cards were sent inviting the State Councillors to a session in the throne room T'ewaraht. Ten of the Councillors were present. Two of the members were absent owing to pressing official duties. One was absent on account of duties at the Treasury, K'lang Mahahsombat, the other was on special duty to suppress disturbances of the peace at the Province Tahk. This session did not break up till after 11 P.M. On the 15th, after meeting the nobles as usual, H.M. again convened the Council of State—the same members were present, and the session did not terminate till after 11 P.M. On the 16th there was a third session of the Council, similar to the two previous sessions. On the 17th at three P.M. H.M. met the nobility as usual. When H.M. took his place upon the throne Mula-sat'ahn, the princes and nobles who are graciously permitted to visit H.M. did so at that place. When that audience closed H.M. returned again at dusk, when H. H. Somdetch Chow Phya Boromahah Srisuriyawongse, N.R., M.C., interviewed H.M. till after nine P.M. On the 18th the usual audience of the nobility and of the visits of the princes and others took place. At night, owing to the rainfall, H.M. did not appear. On the 19th, in the forenoon, H.M. gave his usual audience; on that same day H.R.H. Krom P'ra-rahcha-wang-bowara-sat'ahn-mongk'ul had an audience with H.M. the Supreme King in the throne-room Sat'ahn-boroma-Aht. In the evening H.M. appeared on the esplanade in front of the new palace, and then drove out in a carriage, accompanied by Prince Kreedah, Prince T'ewan, and Princess Sukumal, and the nobility who were honoured to visit his Majesty at the new throne-room followed, visiting the new garden in front of the palace Sarahmrom; after a short stay, H.M. returned to the esplanade, and as the rain fell H.M. retired.

SINGAPORE.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 26th July; the French mail from London June 19 was received on the 19th July, and the following P. and O. mail of June 26 arrived out on the 25th July. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times:—

His Excellency Sir Andrew Clarke has not yet returned from Penang, though his visit to that Settlement is, we understand, now drawing to close. During his somewhat protracted stay, we learn that he has been busy with the affairs of Laroot and Perak, where his intervention is certainly not looked upon by the native chiefs as a meddlesome interference, but on the contrary is regarded as most desirable for the peace and prosperity of those States. Public opinion in this colony is strongly with the line of action Sir Andrew Clarke has adopted, and it was generally understood here that the treaty recently concluded with Perak had received the sanction and approval of the Foreign-office. The Reuter's telegram received here, conveying the authoritative announcement that such is not the case, has occasioned considerable surprise. There can be no doubt it is absolutely necessary for the peace and prosperity of those territories, which are so closely connected with the trade and commerce of our own Settlement of Penang, that the Government of this colony should be able to exercise a direct influence in and supervision over the administration of their affairs,—which left to themselves, the chiefs and rulers are incapable of administering even to their own satisfaction. If it be true that the treaty is not yet approved,* we assure Earl Carnarvon that the welfare of both this colony and the native States in question would be best promoted by its speedy ratification and the inauguration of its provisions, in which he may count upon the hearty approval of the public here, and all concerned in the prosperity of the colony. It is, indeed, quite probable that those personally interested in maintaining the anarchy that has so long reigned in those and other territories, will endeavour to retard the inauguration of a better state of affairs under the new treaty, and may to this end strive to obtain a favourable hearing at the Colonial or Foreign-office and in some of the widely circulated English journals. Should this be done, we can only trust that Earl Carnarvon will estimate the misrepresentations thus put forward at their true value, and not permit them to influence his action or delay his approval of this most important treaty.

The third Criminal Session of the Supreme Court opened on the 14th of June, before his Honour the Chief Justice. The calendar was a pretty heavy one, but most of the cases have been disposed of, and the session will probably be concluded in two or three days more. From the lightness of previous criminal calendars we had begun to believe the general morality of the native population was improving, but in view of the array of serious cases and crimes of violence at this session, it is evident that it is yet too early to congratulate Singapore on any improvement in this respect.

The arrivals via the Suez Canal have been the Mactan, on the 15th, from Leith; Essen, on the 11th, from Hamburg; Patroclus, on the 22nd, from Liverpool; and Glengyle, on the 23rd, from London. The departures homeward have been the Sarpedon on the 14th, Orion on the 24th, and Menelaus on the 25th, all for London.

A mercantile decision of some importance has been given in the civil side of the Supreme Court here, by Chief Justice Sidgreaves, as determining where the liability of the shipper ceases and that of the ship commences. Certain goods in course of shipment by a Messageries Maritimes steamer fell out of the ship's sling into the water when being hoisted on board from the wharf, thereby sustaining damage. The shippers sued the company for the damage, claiming that as the goods were in the ship's slings they were virtually in the possession of the ship at the time. The Messageries Company, on the other hand, maintained that their liability did not attach until the goods were actually on board, the duty of slinging them and guiding them safely until they were over the vessel's side devolving wholly on the shippers; the defendants further relied on a special condition in their bills of lading, and on the fact that the plaintiff's employes had themselves placed the goods in the sling; but judgment was given for the defendants on the general ground that the liability of the shippers had not ceased at the time of the accident, the goods being then in the custody of the defendants. In the Vice-Admiralty Court, a claim for salvage by the German steamer Egeria against the Siamese barque Advance, which vessel she towed to Singapore after having been in collision with her, was decided in favour of the steamer, the salvage awarded being $2,500.

* This was telegraphed as on authority of China Telegraph, but the Straits papers assumed it to be Daily Telegraph.

PENANG.

The steamer Fair Malacca brought up ten Chinese from Laroot, who had been ringleaders in an emeute there, and being well known as turbulent and dangerous characters, without any ostensible means of earning a livelihood, they were quietly arrested and ordered to be deported; this is highly satisfactory as far as Laroot is concerned; but it is sincerely to be hoped that our Government will take good care to prevent these men landing in Penang. If our laws will not permit of their being deported at once, the sooner we have a law allowing the Executive this power in an emergency like this the better will it be for the peace of the Colony.

The British steamer Vidar has, we learn, been chartered by Captain Douglas, an Agent of the South Australian Government, to convey coolies to Port Darwin, the northern settlement of that colony, and will leave in a day or two for that port.

His Excellency Sir Andrew Clarke, accompanied by the Lieutenant Governor and Commander Powlet of H.M.S. Avon, left Penang for Butterworth en route to the north of Province Wellesley. We are given to understand that it is his Excellency's intention to leave Penang for Singapore towards the end of next week.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—There had been some improvement to note in staple Cotton Goods. Yarns had been in fair current inquiry, a feature in the market being a demand for 38 to 42, best qualities. Shirtings had improved. Velvets were in more request, at firmer rates, whilst Turkey Reds were fairly saleable. Business in Woollens had scarcely commenced, and Mousselines were difficult of sale. The market for manufactured Iron continued in an unsatisfactory condition, and quotations were nominal.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—The import trade continued dull, and the total result of the business of the month was even less satisfactory than that reported by last Pacific mail. This was in some measure accounted for by excessively wet weather prevailing during the fortnight. Cottons: Yarns—Transactions small and demand languid; best chops only found buyers. Grey Shirtings: In better inquiry, as instanced by improved deliveries. An advance established in the value of best makes, but inferior goods (of which the bulk of the stock consisted) were difficult to move. Large arrivals of Turkey Red Cambrics had checked the demand for this staple. Victoria Lawns exhibited a weakening tendency, owing to the approaching close of the season. Sales of Chintz reported at low rates. Worsteds and Woollens: Camlets entirely neglected. Lastings less inquired for, and a slight decline submitted to. Orleans also somewhat weaker. Mousselines remained as last quoted, with an increased difficulty in placing any but goods of the best quality. Cloth—out of season, and quite unsaleable. Iron had arrived in some quantity, and prices in consequence rather weaker.

HANKOW.—Business for the fortnight under review had been on about a par with last mail's, and there had been a slight improvement in several kinds of goods. Grey Shirtings: 7lbs. There had lately been more enquiry, and holders were firm for some advance. Sales, 5,000 pieces. 8¼lbs. The better class had been chiefly dealt in at about last mail's closing rates. A small quantity of medium make had also found buyers. About 25,000 pieces had changed hands. There was no stock of heavy weights, and they were quoted quite nominal. White Shirtings: About 1,000 pieces of 66 reeds taken at Tls. 2.12 per piece. T-Cloths: Higher reeds of 6 and 7lbs. only wanted, and a rise of 1 to 1½ candareens per piece obtained. Sales, 9,500 pieces. Of 8lbs. only 500 pieces had been quitted. Drills: In some enquiry, and for best 15lbs. prices advanced about 5 candareens per piece. Jeans: More asked for; transactions confined to best chops at about last rates. Fancy Goods: Business comprised a few hundred pieces of Dyed Brocades, Chintz, Handkerchiefs, Turkey Reds, and Figured Lustres. Prices little altered, except for Turkey Reds, which showed about a mace advance. Woollens: Quantity altogether sold limited, but a firmer feeling for all kinds apparent, and for Long Ells rates had advanced 3 to 4 mace per piece. Metals: Lead, some recovery in prices, and current quotation was Tls. 5.40 to 5.50 per picul.

Chefoo.—Messrs. Wilson, Cornabe, and Co.'s Circular says, Since the issue of our last Circular business generaliy has been in rather a dull condition, and at the moment there seems to be little chance of improvement for some time to come. Cotton Goods: Grey Shirtings and T-Cloths have been fairly saleable, but the prices paid have been much under Shanghai values for a like quality or Cloth. Drills and Fancy Cottons have been quite neglected. For Woollens there has been no enquiry. Metals, Nail Rod and Bar Iron have been in fair demand but as we close wants seem to be satisfied. Lead is unsaleable.

Shanghai.—At the commencement of the fortnight a more healthh tone was apparent in the market for most classes of goods, thouge prices showed but a slight improvement. Subsequently, however, thy demand had somewhat subsided, though prices remained tolerably firm, Cottons: There had been considerable sales of 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings and there was a good inquiry for the better class of Grey goods, but the supply was small. For heavy Shirtings the demand was nearly over. T-Cloths had been steady throughout the fortnight, and Mexican 7 and 8 lbs. goods had advanced somewhat in value. White Shirtings, common qualities had met with more inquiry. Drills had been in better demand, and showed some improvement. In Fancy Cottons there was no change to notice. Woollens and Worsteds showed some improvement in demand, as well as a small advance in price. Long Ells, Spanish Stripes, and Camlets had been inquired for, and sales by auction of this class of goods had been made at an advance on previous rates. Lastings were at one time in demand, but the inquiry had not been maintained. Metals: Nail Rod Iron quiet but steady. Lead: A further rise in the value established, and Tls. 5.45 to 5.50 was the current quotation for L.B. Coals: Market very quiet for all descriptions. Cargo quotations from ship—Cardiff, Tls. 10.50 per ton; English, Tls. 7.50 per ton, nominal; American, Tls. 12 per ton.

Foochow.—Sales had been:—T-Cloths, 7lbs., 300 pieces at $2.17 per piece; Grey Shirtings, 8¼lbs., 500 pieces at $2.75 per piece; Lead, 800 pigs at $8.4 per picul.

Hong Kong.—There had been a slight improvement in the demand for the West Coast, but the market still extremely quiet, and dealers were exercising caution in their purchases.

Canton.—Lead: Sales to extent of about 1,100 piculs "Hole" chop at $7.75 per picul were reported. Common brands were worth $7.70 to $7.75, and W.B. $7.80 to $7.85 per picul. Quicksilver was quoted $181 to $182 per picul.

Batavia.—The Market for Cotton Goods showed no improvement and owing to the continued dulness of demand, values in many instances had experienced a material decline. Rainy weather was still interfering with business.

Singapore.—Messrs. Boustead's Circular says:—The arrivals with general cargoes are the Eurus, from London, and steamers Essen, from Hamburg; Patroclus, from Liverpool; and Glengyle, from London.—Piece Goods: During the past fortnight a moderate business only has been done, at about our last quotations.—39 inch Grey Shirtings: Moderate sales of 8¼ lbs. at $2.27½ to 2.25, and close dull at the lower quotation; 7 lbs. quiet, at $1.92½ to 1.90; 6 lbs. very dull, and nominal at $1.77½ to 1.75.—45 inch Grey Shirtings: Transactions confined to a small sale of 8 lbs. at $2.22½; no inquiry for 9 lbs., which are quoted $2.65 to 2.67½.—32 inch T Cloth: Demand has continued limited for 6 lbs. at $1.50, and 7 lbs. at $1.70 to 1.67½, offers are now lower; 4 lbs. and 5 lbs. very dull, at $1 and 1.12½ respectively.—32 inch Grey Madapollams: Enquiry is very trifling, and $16 has been the highest offer for 2½ lbs.—36 inch Grey Supers: No demand, and prices weak.—36 inch White Shirtings: A fair business has been done in medium qualities of favourite makes, at about late rates; fine and low goods are very difficult of sale, and prices are weaker.—45 inch White Shirtings are in limited enquiry, at $3.65 to 3.67½ for favourite chops.—45 inch White Cambrics: Common makes are in fair request, but for fine goods there is less enquiry.— 30 inch White Madapollams: A small sale reported, at $19½ per corge.—32 inch Turkey Red Cambrics are quite unsaleable at present. Quotations nominal 2¼ lbs. $2 to 2.02½; 2½ lbs., $2.10 to 2.12½; 3 lbs., $2.25 to 2.30.—45 inch Turkey Red Mulls: Nothing doing, 1¾ lbs. nominally quoted $32.—Grey Yarns: All counts are very dully, and prices lower; 40's, $114; 30's, $100 to 101, 18/24's, $90 to 92½.—Coloured Yarns: A moderate enquiry is still experienced for Turkey Red of known marks, at $145 to 150 for 10½ lbs.; and $157½ to 162½ for 12½ lbs. Other colours are very dull. Pea Green, $80; Dark Green, $83 to 84; Orange, $81; Yellow, $80; Imperial Red, $68.—Woollens: No improvement to note. Quotations nominal in the absence of demand. Assorted Camlets S. S. $18 to 19. Scarlet Long Ells, 8½ lbs. to 9 lbs., $6 to 6¼. Scarlet Bombazettes, $3 to 3¼; Lastings, 43 cents for Black, and 44 cents for Assorted.

Penang.—The fortnight had been an exceedingly dull one in the Import market, and hardly any business had been done in any class of goods. The small transactions reported had been at a further decline in prices.

EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

Yokohama.—Information of the arrival of New Crop tea, per first two steamers, had reached this market from New York, and the prices realised were by no means satisfactory to buyers here; the meagre intelligence received had, however, had little or no influence, and prices so far remained unaltered. Settlements, since date of last report, amounted to 6,500 piculs, principally good medium and fine grades. Finest and choice parcels were in very limited supply, and Common goods scarce and dear. The following vessels were loading for New York—s.s. Bengal, s.s. Pleiades, s.s. Duna (at £5 to £6 per ton of 40 c. ft.) vid Suez Canal; the ship S. G. Reed, and barque Benefactor (at £3 5s. to £3 10s. per ton.) The ship John Rennie was on the berth for San Francisco, at $8 per ton of 40 c. ft. The s.s. Altona left on the 8th July with the undernoted cargo, which proved larger than estimated—for New York, 318,845 lbs.; for San Francisco, 165,485 lbs; and for other ports, 35,469 lbs. Quotations—Fine, $41 to $43 per picul; finest, $45 to $48 per picul. Export from 1st May to date—3,124,359 lbs., against 2,148,922 lbs. to corresponding date season.

Hiogo-Osaka.—There had been a very active business doing during the month, and settlements aggregate about 9,000 piculs. Common grades were in small supply, and stocks, which were estimated at 2,000 piculs, consisted chiefly of medium to finest. The steamers Duna and Bengal were loading for New York at this port and Yokohama.

Hankow.—Messrs. Evans, Pugh and Co.'s Report says:—We issued our last report on the 22nd of June, since then about 22,000 chests have been settled on this market, and about 30,000 chests shipped to Shanghai on Chinese account. The arrivals during the fortnight we estimate at about 53,000 chests. The few first crop teas that have come to market have sold at full prices, and in some cases an advance of Tls. 1 to 2 per picul has been paid. Second crops have arrived pretty freely, and have sold at Tls. 17 to 25½ per picul, being in most cases rather over last year's rates. The quality of the second crop we consider unsatisfactory. Though there may be exceptions, we make the bulk inferior both in leaf and cup. We estimate the supply of first crop tea this season at fully three millions of pounds less than it was last year. The second crop is also expected to be short in quantity. Quotations are:—For fair to medium Oopacks, Tls. 17 to 25½, against Tls. 17¾ to 23¾ at same date last season; Oanfas, Tls. 17 to 23¾, against 17½ to 22; Oonahms, Tls. 13 to 20½, against 12 to 19. The following is a comparative statement of the Export hence:—1874-75, 36,145,909 lbs; 1873-74, 39,188,778 lbs.; 1872-73, 33,408,501 lbs.; 1871-72, 33,363,510 lbs.; 1870-71, 27,098,026. The steamer Glenlyon is advertised to leave with about 2,000 tons of tea on board; she will, we believe, complete her loading at some other port, though there is little doubt but that in the course of a short time she could have obtained a full cargo here. The steamer Tchihatchoff is still on the berth for Odessa. Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer and Co.'s Report says:—As regards the second crop, we consider it like the first, not up to the average. Some of the best Soong-Yongs and Young-low-toongs about compare with last year, but the rest of the teas we make inferior. The leaf appears older and not so likely to keep well as last year's. This notwithstanding, prices range about Tls. 2 to 3 higher. The difference is, however, modified to some extent by the low rate of exchange. Credits last year were 6s. 3d., while during the past week they have been settled at 6s. 0¼d. At time of writing the market is firm. Teamen prefer shipping to Shanghai to making any concession here.

Kiukiang.—Black Teas: Nine chops equal to 1,043 chests had been settled on a basis of Tls. 24 to 32½ for Ningchows. Total arrivals 102,398 chests.

Shanghai.—Black: The business transacted during the fortnight had been on a moderate scale, more owing to the absence of suitable supplies than to the apathy of buyers. Fine Teas being reduced into a small compass had commanded considerable attention, and worse value by several taels a picul had been obtained in them than in the early settlements on this market. Tael prices for all other first crops, except common descriptions, showed a slight advance. Common Teas were rather easier, though still above London rates. Second crops had been dealt in to a moderate extent at Tls. 25 to 27, but business was not likely to become general unless prices decline. The quality of Teas to hand from Hankow districts was considered rather inferior to last year's crop, in all points except appearance. Settlements for the fortnight, 27,900 chests; Re-shipments, 2,500. Stock, 16,200 packages. Green: Pingsueys continued to meet with a moderate inquiry at about opening prices. Most of the purchases were destined for the London market, only a few chops having been taken for the United States. A few parcels of local-packed Teas were on the market, and one lot had found a buyer. Country Teas were expected down in about a fortnight. Settlements, 12,550 ½-chests. Reshipments, 910; Stock 21,200 half-chests.

Foochow.—A good business had been passing during the week, buying showing considerable activity. Congou: Settlements, 37,850 chests at Tls. 5¾ to 31. A good business reported in fair to good common kinds at about previous rates, whilefor flavoury to fine sorts, stocks of which had been greatly reduced, holders had been able to obtain full rates. Arrivals during the week, 17,650 chests. The following were the current quotations, duty paid, cost at which Teas laid down in London, calculated at exchange of 4s. 4d. and freight £3 10s. Dust and siftings, 7¼d. to 8¼d.; Broken leaf to common, 8¼d. to 11¾d.; fair to good common, 1s. 0¼d. to 1s. 1¾d.; flavoury to medium, 1s. 2¼d. t 1s. 4¾d.; tgood medium to fine, 1s. 5¼d. to 1s. 7¾d.; fine to finest, 1s. 8d. to 2s. 2½d. Souchong: Settlements, 3,500 chests at Tls. 15 to 44,—prices being slightly in favour of buyers. Arrivals, 2,200 chests. Oolong: Settlements, 2,200 half-chests at Tls. 17 to 25, rates fully maintained. Arrivals, 4,000 half-chests. Scented Teas: Settlements, 14,000 boxes at Tls. 25 to 34 for Caper, and Tls. 17 to 34 for Orange Pekoe. Medium kinds showing rather better value. Arrivals, 16,000 boxes. Flowery Pekoe: Settlements, 280 chests at Tls. 42 to 51. Arrivals, 1,200 chests. The export to Great Britain, the Continent of Europe, and the Cape of Good Hope had reached 15,438,849 lbs., (exclusive of S.S Canton, 1,375,381 lbs., lost), against 11,682,922lbs. To America, nil, against nil. To the Colonies, 4,090,311 lbs., against 3,653,379 lbs. (exclusive of cargo of R. J. Robertson.)

Amoy and Tamsui.—Amoy Oolongs: Arrivals since the 1st July had amounted to 33,289 half-chests, consisting mainly of the finer grades, and it is reported that about 17,000 half-chests would complete the first crop. The only transactions had been the settlement of 2,700 half-chests, said to be for England, at prices averaging about $8 over last year's opening rates. These prices were so far beyond the equivalent of those ruling in America that it seems certain that a considerable time must elapse before buying commences for that market. Amoy Congous: Had been further dealt in for Australia, settlement amounting to 4,159 half-chests, the bulk of which were low grade Teas. It was reported that total supplies to this kind would not exceed some 80,000 half-chests. Formosa Oolongs: The Tamsui market [was very quiet, and since 24th June, only a few settlements had taken place. Teamen were still holding out for extreme rates, and until some concession was made, it was not likely that any settlements would be made. The total Export was 1,163,193 lbs. against 126,789 lbs. same time last year.

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon and Co.'s report says a steady business has been passing during the fortnight, at prices which as a rule have been rather in favour of buyers.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Arrivals of new Silk had amounted to about 200 bales. Prices were rapidly forced up to $500 (at exchange 4s. 3½d., equal to a cost of 19s. 5d.), when a pause took place, and late purchases had been, on inspection, reduced to $480 to 490 per picul (18s. 8d. to 19s.). Some few parcels showed an improvement in quality, but the bulk was very much cased, and rather foul. There had been some demand for special sizes of old Oshus. Settlements from 1st July to date 200 bales, against, 1873-4, 650 bales; 1872-3, 1,100 bales. Stock: 100 bales new, and 400 bales old.

SHANGHAI.—Before the close of the last English mail some settlements of chops were made which indicated a further slight advance in price: Tls. 377½, 357½, and 337½ for "Gold Lion," Nos. 1, 2, and 3; Tls. 3478 for "Chin-Jan," and Tls. 325 for "Red Peacocks" having been paid. These, on the resumption of business after the mail, encouraged the Chinese to ask fuller rates, but finding that their exorbitant demands restricted sales, they were compelled to give way, and at the same time the quotations for Sterling Exchange declining, buyers were induced to accept the trifling concessions offered, and the result had been a considerable business. Under the pressure of largely accumulating stocks, holders had been obliged to further give way in price, and at the close a decline of Tls. 5 to 10 was noticeable since the beginning of the fortnight. No sales of best chop Tsatlees had been made, but holders were firm at Tls. 410 for Classical No. 3. Settlements for the fortnight, Chinas, 50,500 bales. Total settlements since 1st June, 11,500, against 1873-74, 8,500 bales; 1872-73, 17,500 bales. Comparative unsold stock on this market on the 10th June, 1874, 12,000 bales; 1873, 8,000 bales; 1872, 8,000 bales.

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon and Co. report as follows:—Last home dates by cable are to 11th July and quote No 4 Tsatlee 11s. 6d. per lb. while here $330 per picul or 12s. 4d. per lb. is asked for same classification. About 450 bales, previously contracted for at lower rates than those now ruling, have been supplied in the past ten days; but actual settlements during that period have been limited, and are put down at 160 bales, 80 of which were taken for last French mail steamer. Taking into account the amount of Silk in London unsold, and the ever downward tendency of that market, and inducement to operate at present rates is not apparent, but lower prices are looked for to obtain ere long, as stocks are considerable, and demand has in the meantime subsided. Loongkongs do not meet with attention, and 200 bales different qualities are said to be in stock. Long-reels have been in fair request for the Indian market, and 250 piculs are reported settled. Re-reels, as shown by the export table, have not been much wanted hitherto. About 200 boxes are in course of preparation under contract. Stock is estimated at 400 bales Tsatlee, 200 bales Loongkong, 100 bales Cumchuck, 50 bales Kowkong, and about 300 bales of inferior sorts. Waste: Settlements 200 bales.

CHINESE matters are attracting some interest and attention in England just now. The Illustrated London News and the Graphic are full of sketches of Formosan scenery and life; the Saturday has, in its issue of the 29th August, a telling and clever article upon the involved relations of China and Japan; and the last Edinburgh Review contains an article (from the pen of Sir R. Alcock, we believe) on "Japan as it Was and Is." The Cornhill has recently had some excellent papers on Chinese superstition and sages, by the Rev. F. S. Turner; the September Macmillan contains an article on the "Future of Eastern Asia;" and other papers on China and Japan, from the pens of Sir R. Alcock, Mr. Mitford, Mr. Bowra, and Professor Douglas, are announced in forthcoming periodicals, magazines, and reviews.

We understand that the Chinese Government have borrowed a million of taels from the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank upon the security of the Customs' Revenue, and at the interest of 8 per cent.

THE HON. HENRY JOHN BALL, late Judge of the Court of Summary Jurisdiction in Hong Kong, died on the 20th inst., at Half-moon-street, Piccadilly, in the 55th year of his age. The late Mr. Ball was educated at the University of London, where he graduated B.A., and, it seems, took a similar degree at Oxford. From 1846 to 1853 he practised as a special pleader, and in June of the latter year he was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple, when he joined the Home Circuit. In 1855 he was appointed Attorney-General of British Honduras, and held that office till 1862, when he was nominated Judge of the Summary Jurisdiction Court at Hong Kong. He acted as Chief Justice at Hong Kong on two occasions, namely, from May, 1863, until October, 1864, and again from May, 1865, until November, 1866. While he acted as Chief Justice he sat as a member of the Legislative Council, and was appointed chairman of the Sanitary Commission in 1863. In 1864 he was nominated as one of the two commissioners for preparing a new edition of the Laws of Hong Kong, and became an unofficial member of the Legislative Council in 1866. In 1867 he acted as Colonial Secretary, and in 1868 as Attorney-General of the colony.

FLOATING DOCK FOR JAVA.—A barque-rigged vessel, named the Sourabaya, was towed down the Clyde on her way to Java on the 27th inst. The Sourabaya is a floating dock, intended for the repair of steam and sailing vessels trading between Sourabaya and the adjacent ports that have a difficulty in getting to ordinary docks to repair damages. The dock has been constructed in the form of one of the old frigate-built vessels, being fitted with a temporary bow, rudder, and deck, and rigged with three masts. She is 200 feet long, 25 feet broad, and 20 feet deep, and it is said will lift a vessel of nearly 2,000 tons burthen when dismantled and refitted in her original form. She was built by the Abercorn Shipbuilding Company, Paisley, at whose yard another vessel is being constructed.

WE have received from Messrs. F. R. Wetmore and Co., of Yokohama, a map of the city of Tokio. It is printed on the finest and strongest Japanese paper, and contains the names of the principal places of interest in the city. It is to be regretted that no London agent is appointed for the sale of these maps, as travellers would be glad to avail themselves of an opportunity to procure so useful a guide.

THE INDIA AND CHINA MAIL SERVICE.

IN a late issue we noticed the new contract made with the P. and O. Company, which provides for an increase in the speed of the outward mails, and a very considerable tightening of the penalties to be enforced in the case of over time. Seeing that it is the company's interest in all cases not to incur penalties, we cannot understand why the Government have thought it wise or expedient to put such a pressure on the commanders of the company's steamers, while the Board of Trade are using their best endeavours to discourage anything like racing or risky navigation. If a mail steamer is lost in cutting off some corner in the Red Sea, then we hold that the Government will assuredly be particeps criminis. It would appear that the Directors had no alternative but to submit, after being kept in suspense nearly twelve months, waiting for the permission to pass through the Suez Canal with the Southampton portion of the mails. They not only had to submit to this but to a deduction in their contract subsidy of £30,000 per annum. On what grounds this deduction was exacted we are at a loss to see, as the company undertake to deliver the Southampton mails in the same time. But for the difficulties of petty opposition which usually surround these matters, we should be inclined to upbraid the Directors in not having made a better bargain. No doubt Government had their difficulties to contend with, but if they cannot maintain and uphold what is right and just who can? The contract was an existing one, not a new one, and to enforce a Chinese squeeze was not exactly dignified, and must incur the risk of reprisal when the company has a chance. We now turn from this part of the subject to the complaints made of an occasional break-down or late delivery, and here we find the antagonistic interests of India, China, and Australia, all of which the company has equally to care for, according to its contract with Government; not so with the merchants and others interested in the respective countries. China has complained for many years that the mail steamers do not come direct from Hong Kong to Suez; they anathematise the Indian service and passengers in no measured terms, and so it is with Indian people when the China mails are allowed to come on without the India mail, should that happen to be detained by a break down or other cause. The last case of this sort is set forth in the columns of the Overland Mail, which, to our surprise, uses the hackneyed expression of "monopoly." This is the cry of all the avowed opponents of the P. and O. Company; but it can hardly be excused in a journal which should be well informed on the subject, and at least admit that a contract made with a company on the best terms, after a public competition can hardly be called "monopoly." This style of handling the grievance indicates something else than a pure and simple advocacy of the public interests. To select one instance of an overdue mail and ignore all those delivered on or before their due date, is hardly consistent or fair in a journal like the Overland Mail, which, as we have indicated, cannot plead ignorance on the subject. Now as a matter of fact we find that out of thirty mails conveyed in this year to Bombay, twenty-six were delivered from one to three days before the due date, and the other four on the due date. The scheme of the Bom bay Chamber of Commerce is simply impracticable, if not chimerical, for the scheme hinges on the further expedition of the continental mails, which is not to be obtained, and what is of more importance, the scheme, if carried out, would entirely upset the present arrangement of delivery of the mails on Monday morning, a boon which we may tell the Chamber would not be surrendered by London merchants on any consideration. When the present contract was made with the P. and O. Company all interests were represented, Mr. CRAWFORD and others connected with India, China, and Australia made their respective views known, and all agreed and urged on the Government to establish the outward mails on Friday and inward on Monday. As we have already intimated, the P. and O. Company has to regard the interests of all, and so long as the present contract exists it is idle to talk about the Indian mail service suffering by its combination with China.

THE HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI BANK.

"No dividend for the past half-year, and $225,000 taken off the Reserve Fund." So runs the telegram received by the London Branch of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank on the 24th inst., and, as a natural consequence, the £28 shares, which once stood at £42, are now at £26 to £28, and unless some prompt action is taken by the directors we fear the downward course will not stop. There is a lurking suspicion in the minds of many shareholders and the public generally that all losses have not been provided for. The disastrous consequences of withholding anything at the present moment need hardly be pointed out. Nothing but a "clean breast" can meet or allay the anxiety now existing, and in the permanent interests of the Bank it is to be hoped that the directors will have the courage to perform this unpleasant duty. This being done, it is necessary to inquire how the present condition of "no profits but heavy losses" has been arrived at. With the splendid connection and position which the Bank has held, its enormous note circulation, and other collateral advantages, the present state of affairs, it would seem, must have been brought about by mismanagement and incompetency. A reorganisation of the staff of managers is imperatively necessary. There can be no confidence in those who have mismanaged the working of the Bank for the past eighteen months, and turned the profits — which for years yielded 12 per cent. to the shareholders — into losses so large as not only to preclude a dividend, but trenches on the "Reserve Fund." We cannot help expressing our opinion, that the chief cause of the disaster is a departure from the employment of the Bank's capital in local operations, and launching into speculative Exchange operations, which have ruined so many banks. Of all the banks in China none had so little need or right to err on this point as the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank; but so it is, and most dearly has it paid the penalty. A prudent Bank manager will never attempt to force up exchange, much less to say so. A Bank which does not follow the current rates of the day, and be content with its margin will assuredly come to grief. Gambling in exchange will no more succeed in the long run in banking, than in any other concern. With an absolute pruning of all bad and doubtful accounts now on the books, prompt and judicious changes in the management, we are confident that the institution will speedily regain its former position and success.

ONCE more we have the melancholy intelligence of a steamer cut off in the Canton waters. Of course any application to the Chinese authorities on the subject, would simply meet with the reply, that if our steamboat owners will not take the necessary precautions to secure the Chinese passengers who travel in them, they must take the consequences. The steamer Spark, which fell a victim on this occasion, was put on the river by the late Captain J. B. ENDICOTT, and was one of the first to run. We presume the calamity is owing to a relaxation of the rules and regulations adopted in 1856-7, when these things were of almost daily occurrence. Will this fresh example of the danger induce the owners to adopt precautions and maintain them?

THE CHINA AND JAPAN MARITIME ORDER IN COUNCIL, 1874.

For many and various reasons, especially owing to the gross abuses of the British flag which so frequently occurred after the signature of the existing Treaties with China and Japan at a time when so many new ports were thrown open to trade, and owing also to the very great increase in the number of British vessels of all classes engaged in trading with and in these countries, it became abundantly manifest several years ago that some alterations must be made in the laws affecting our mercantile marine in that part of the world, two crying grievances and evils being, the impossibility of procuring for ships the proper certificates of British registry, and the laxity in the issue of sailing letters to lorchas, chartered junks, rafts, &c. Reforms in this direction have, however, proceeded but slowly; on more than one occasion circulars were addressed to Her Majesty's Consuls, inviting them to offer such suggestions for amendment as their practical experience had taught them would be useful. These circulars, we presume, were duly answered, and the answers were as duly pigeon-holed. In replying to one of these circular despatches, some six or seven years ago, the late Mr. Consul Markham, an officer of considerable experience in shipping matters both in China and in Siam, besides making other useful suggestions, pointed out, we believe—and others probably did the same,—the necessity of making Shanghai a port of registry for British ships. This, after a long delay, which is much to be regretted, is now an accomplished fact. Her Majesty the Queen, by virtue of the powers vested in her by certain Acts of Parliament and acting by and with the advice of her Privy Council, was pleased, on the 6th of August, to make an Order in Council, of which we have given above the short title, and the tenor of which we now proceed to lay before our readers as concisely as possible, merely premising that, taken as a whole, it is, in our opinion, a very useful measure indeed :—

The port of Shanghai is made a foreign port of registry.

The Registrar is to be a British subject, and will be appointed by Royal Warrant.

In certain emergencies Her Majesty's Minister in China may appoint a Deputy of the Registrar.

The Registrar will practically hold his appointment during good behaviour.

The Registrar shall have and use a seal bearing such device as shall be directed by one of Her Majesty's Secretaries of State; and every signature or seal affixed to any instrument shall be taken as genuine until the contrary is proved.

The Registrar of Shipping at the port of Shanghai shall have the same powers as any Registrar appointed under the Merchant Shipping Acts, and in addition such powers as are conferred by those Acts for the purposes of registration and measurement on any Officer of Customs, or of the Board of Trade.

A certificate of mortgage or sale granted by the Registrar at Shanghai may contain powers to be exercised at the other ports of China. We are at a loss to understand why this provision does not extend to the Japanese ports.

On the transfer of a ship from one British subject to another, under a certificate of sale, at any port in China or Japan (other than Shanghai), the Consular Officer of the port shall endorse an entry of the transfer on the certificates of registry and sale; and should the purchaser wish to register the ship at Shanghai, the Consular officer shall, if required, forward to the Registrar at Shanghai the bill of sale and the declaration of ownership, together with the abovenamed certificates, and a certificate of any survey that may be necessary for fresh registration; and upon receiving these documents the Registrar shall register the ship anew, and shall either retain the new certificate of registry, or forward it to the authority of such port as the purchaser shall require, and on proper request made it shall be forwarded to any other port to be handed to the master of the ship when the requirements of the Merchant Shipping Acts as to the marking of the ship shall have been complied with.

On the transfer of a foreign ship to a British subject, the process is to be the same as in the last-mentioned case. Nothing is said with regard to the transfer of a British ship to a foreigner, and although no provisions may be absolutely necessary for such a case, it would have been better had the course to be pursued been accurately defined. We remember an instance which occurred some eight or nine years ago, when a dismantled British steamer, with a Hong Kong certificate of registry, was sold to an American firm at a port in China, and the utmost difficulty was experienced in completing the transfer in due form.

Lorchas, and other Chinese and Japanese rigged ships, provided with sailing letters or similar documents, shall, after the commencement of this order, on their first arrival at any port in Japan, or at any port in China other than Shanghai where there is a Surveyor, be surveyed, and the Consular officer of the port shall transmit to the Registrar at Shanghai the sailing letters and certificates of survey; and a certificate of registry shall be issued and delivered in the manner before mentioned.

On any transfers, whether from one British subject to another, or from a foreigner to a British subject, or on the first arrival of a ship, provided with a sailing letter or similar document, at any port in Japan, or at any port in China, other than Shanghai, where there is a Surveyor, the Consular officer of the port shall grant to the master, upon his application, a pass containing the particulars required by Schedule A of this Order. In the China and Japan seas, as well as in Hong Kong waters, such pass shall possess the same force as a certificate of registry, until the expiration of four months, or until such earlier time as the new certificate of registry shall be delivered to the Master, or until notice of the cancellation of such pass has been given to the master by the Registrar at Shanghai. On the occurrence of any of these circumstances the pass shall become void, and shall be at once delivered up by the master to a Consular or other duly authorised officer, under a penalty not exceeding £50. We hope that this clause will be carried out with the utmost stringency, for it is this class of vessels which in past years has given so much trouble, and has brought so much disgrace upon the British flag.

Her Majesty's Minister in China shall be considered in all respects as occupying the place of the Board of Trade, and the Commissioners of Customs with regard to British vessels registered at Shanghai.

Her Majesty's Ministers in China and Japan shall, in these countries respectively, have full power to appoint fit and proper surveyors, who shall have the same powers as those appointed by the Board of Trade.

Under certain circumstances, Commissioners of Customs and Governors of British possessions may grant a pass to an unregistered vessel to admit of her proceeding from any port in Her Majesty's dominions to Shanghai, and such pass shall for the time and within the limits therein mentioned have the same effect as a certificate of registry. In the same manner, Her Majesty's Minister may grant a pass to an unregistered vessel to admit of her proceeding from Shanghai to any port in Her Majesty's dominions. We fail to see why this power is withheld from Her Majesty's Minister in Japan.

Lorchas and other Chinese and Japanese rigged ships, registered at Shanghai, so far as regards the employment of native sailors, are exempted from compliance with that part of the Merchant Shipping Acts which relates to the shipment and discharge of seaman. This is probably a wise exemption, but at the same time we think that the crews ought to be inspected by some official, either on the vessel's departure from or arrival at a port, to ensure them fair treatment, without their having the trouble and delay caused by formal petitions to a Consular officer, for any one who is acquainted with this class of vessels will know that their masters have not usually a very keen perception of abstract justice.

Her Majesty's Minister in China may, with the approval of one of Her Majesty's Secretaries of State, amend the instructions to Consuls which accompany this order, and issue others with reference to the performance of any act or thing relating to the registry of ships registered at Shanghai.

This order will commence and have effect as follows :—(1) As to the making of any warrant or appointment, immediately from and after the making of the order. (2) As to all other matters and provisions contained in it, immediately from and after the expiration of one month after this order is first exhibited in the public office of the Shanghai Consulate; and of the time of such first exhibition notice shall, as soon hereafter as possible, be published in every Consular district in China and Japan, in such manner as Her Majesty's Ministers there respectively direct.

A copy of this order shall be kept exhibited conspicuously in each Consulate in China and Japan. Printed copies shall be provided and sold at such reasonable price as Her Majesty's Minister in China directs.

The following are the fees to be taken under this order :—Certificate of registry, $15; inspection of registry book, $1; copy of ditto, recording bill of sale, or deed of mortgage, transfer or discharge of mortgage, provisional certificate of registry, and pass for ship, each $5; for every declaration under the Acts, certificate of sale or mortgage, endorsing ownership or certificate of registry, transfer of registry to another port, alteration in register of name, rig, or tonnage, each $2; change of master, seal, and signature to any document not mentioned herein, each $1.

For measurement of tonnage as under :—

For ships of	15, and under	500	tons gross tonnage,	$15
,,	500, ,,	1,000	,,	22.50
,,	1,000, ,,	2,000	,,	27
,,	2,000, ,,	3,000	,,	31.50
,,	3,000, ,,	4,000	,,	36
,,	4,000, ,,	5,000	,,	40.50
,,	5,000 and upwards		,,	45

For the inspection of the berthing or sleeping accommodation of the crew, each visit $4.50, but fees not to exceed $9, whatever the number of visits, and no fee is to be charged when inspection takes place at the same time as the measurement of tonnage.

For the inspection of light and fog signals :—

For each visit on application of owner, and for each visit made when lights or fittings are found defective, $4. 50, but fees not to exceed $9, whatever be the number of separate visits.

For the inspection of the marking of a ship, for each visit on application of owner, and for each visit made where the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Acts have not been complied with $2. 50, but fees not to exceed $5, whatever be the number of separate visits, and when the marking is inspected at the same time as the light and fog signals no separate fee is to be charged.

Some of the fees in this Schedule are, in our opinion, too low, especially in the last three instances; at the same time it is a great improvement to fix them in dollars instead of in sterling.

We believe that Mr. Tapp, who has been for several years in charge of the shipping department of the Shanghai Consulate, and who was sent home to aid the Board of Trade in drawing up these new regulations, will be appointed first Registrar under the provisions of this Order in Council.

THE ATCHIN WAR.

The following is from an occasional correspondent of The Times, dated July :—

By favour of the military authorities in Batavia I obtained permission to accompany a steamer they had taken up to convey troops to the seat of war, and on the following morning, at daybreak, I was driving down to the port to take boat for the roads. Batavia is situated in a diluvial plain, the shores of which are so shallow that vessels must be about two miles or more off the actual business town, which is connected with the roads by a long canal, carrying the small river, which here debouches, about a mile further into the sea. Once on board, I catch sight of a couple of heavy breech-loaders and a quantity of cases marked "Cartridges," and I put my cigar aside rather hastily, as the captain warns me that certain oilcloth-covered boxes at present encumbering the gangway to my cabin contain gunpowder. An hour later the rickety little steamer which does the service between the Custom-house at the inland end of the canal pants alongside, towing a couple of barges containing the five hundred souls who are to form our live freight, and of whom about one-fifth are women and children. Half of the soldiers are Europeans, a great many being French or Germans, some having crosses won in the late war; the remainder are Amboynese, which race is considered to give the best fighting material hereabouts, and to be hardly inferior to the white troops. Having no intermediate port to call at, we took the quieter passage up the Malacca Straits. At dawn on our seventh day out I lay half awake in my berth, undecided whether to turn out at once or to try another nap, when my mind was suddenly made up for me by hearing the familiar voice of the captain shout "Djardeh!" (Malay for "Let go!"), and immediately there followed a splash and a sound like a gigantic clock running down. The engine stops its heaving throb, and I know that we have come to anchor. Half a minute later I am on deck, and find we are off the mouth of the Atchin river, about two miles from the shore. It is, however, late in the afternoon before we receive our orders, which are to proceed to the extreme west of the Dutch line of coast and land our troops there; but it is too late for any such action that day, so we roll about where we are all night and shift our anchorage the first thing next morning, lying about a mile off shore in six fathoms, a little short of the mouth of the small stream called the Tjankoul.

At this early date I noticed what further observation unfortunately seemed to confirm—namely, a total want of organisation on the part of the Dutch, and an absence of prevision which surprised me in this commercial race.

The Dutch occupy a triangle of territory having for its base about four miles of coast line between the embouchures of the Atchin and Tjankoul rivers; the right bank of the Atchin river is their eastern boundary, the western being formed by the right bank of the Tjankoul and a line of jungle; these last two sides, each about three miles long, culminate southward in the Kraton. Immediately within the sea bank is a considerable extent of untenantable marshland, narrowing towards the west into a small lagoon seventy or eighty yards wide, and shallow except for a few yards in the centre; this communicates with the Tjankoul river, at the mouth of which, on the left, bank at some half a mile distance, is Fort Lamti, occupied by the Atchinese. Here they have some pieces of artillery which blockade the mouth of the river and also prevent the Dutch from advance in this direction. On the south side of the lagoon, at its angle with the river, was the fortified campong, Ouleli, which the Dutch now occupy with about 120 men, and whence they exchange shots with Tookoo Nanta, the hostile Rajah at Lamti. From Ouleli they have made a good ten feet roadway to the Kraton, and this is protected by the intervening forts of Blangkawaai and Mardowattie on the east; and a small fort, Kotta Lunga (Kotta is Malay for a fortified town or village), has lately been occupied by thirty men on the west side to check the advancing Atchinese, who were building forts in that direction. On the eastern side of the triangle the Dutch have a small fort at the mouth of the Atchin river, protecting the entrance, but owing to the shallow water and a troublesome bar this river is of little or no use as a means of communication with the roads in this monsoon. A mile up stream, on the right bank, is the Marina Banteng (Banteng means simply a fort), half a mile further a small fort, only very recently occupied, called Lampouh, and but a few hundred yards further on the more important post of Penajung.

Of the Kraton the correspondent writes :—I think there is a general idea, from this place being spoken of as "the" Kraton, that it is the only place of that title, and it may, perhaps, not be superfluous to explain that the word signifies a fortified palace, and implies the large enclosed space which surrounds a palace, and contains probably from 2,000 to 10,000 inhabitants dwelling within its walls, but without the inner enclosure which walls off the absolute regal household; and the name is applied not alone here, but to all similar buildings throughout Sumatra, Java, and the neighbouring islands.

Alluding to the occasional skirmishes which occur, he says :—On the 28th of June the Dutch made another sortie, with about 400 men, against some forts which had been constructed by the Atchinese in a line between Pedir Point and Penajong. The attack was begun by the artillery, and within a short time all reply from the fort was silenced, and it was assumed that the enemy had vacated the position, and the Dutch therefore advanced, but of course observing proper caution, to the storm. On forcing the gate, the first man to enter, a sergeant, immediately fell, cut to pieces; the second man, one of the captains, received five severe klaywang wounds, and it then appeared that the Atchinese were "playing 'possum," and quietly awaiting under cover of their earthworks the hand-to-hand combat which they well know to be less to their disadvantage. After considerable and severe fighting the fort remained in the hands of the assailants, with a loss of thirty-seven wounded, and the capture of seven prisoners.

The conduct of the war is far too slow and petty, and the soldiers who are not quite of the European standard are rendered listless by want of occupation and active fighting. To insure progress blow should follow blow, and any success be followed by a further attack while the enemy is still disorganised, instead of which intervals of one and even two weeks are allowed between the Dutch movements against the foe. On the other side, it is set forth that Holland has not the command of sufficient strength for such a policy, and in that case it would seem to me that it were much better to abstain totally from fighting until such time as they can accumulate the needful force, and then throw it against the Atchinese with energy. In the meantime, fresh men are being sent up at the rate of 1,000 to 1,5000 a month, and it seems to be overlooked that while a small portion of these are used in tinkering at the present style of fighting there is a far more considerable number sent every week into hospital who might, if they must be lost to active service, be much more advantageously lost in the field. I cannot but think if the men were better lodged and better fed, much of the sickness might be avoided, and quicker action might, I believe, reduce it also from primary causes, and it certainly would operate favourably in shortening the term during which the men have to be exposed to the climate.

Literature.

We are glad to hear that the Rev. Wm. Scarborough, of Hankow, is now engaged in the compilation of a work on Chinese proverbs, containing some 3,000 examples. It is printing at Shanghai, and will probably be ready at the end of the year.

Two important works bearing on Chinese literature, viz., A Handbook of Biographical, Historical, Mythological, and General Literary Reference, by W. F. Mayers, Chinese Secretary to H.B.M.'s Legation at Peking, and A Chinese Dictionary, by S. Wells Williams, will shortly be published by Messrs. Trübner and Co. The object of Mr. Mayers's work is to elucidate the personal and historical allusions frequently met with in Chinese literature.

The Athenæum notices the paper read by Dr. Bushell on the Confucian Temple at Peking, which has been published in pamphlet form by Harrison and Sons, London.

TRIAL TRIP OF THE "LY-EE-MOON."

On the 29th inst. the Ly-ee-Moon, with a number of visitors more or less interested in China and Japan, proceeded from Blackwall to the Maplin Sands on her trial trip. The dimensions and capabilities of the vessel are: — Length, 272 ft.; breadth, 27ft. 6in.; depth of hold, 18ft.; draft, when loaded, 13ft. 6in.; displacement at that draft, 1,540 tons. There is also accommodation for 36 first, 24 second, and 40 third-class passengers, besides 300 below, and stowage for 1,350 tons. The cabins, &c., are all built on the main deck, forming a flush upper deck, which makes a splendid promenade of more than two-thirds the length of the vessel. The engines are by the Ouseburn Engine Works Company, Newcastle-upon-Tyne. The maximum horse power developed was 385 in the high pressure, and 428 in the low pressure engines, making a total of 803 indicated horse power. At four turns of the running wheel the high pressure indicated 250, and the low pressure 258, total 508; the boilers are constructed to work 70lbs. to the square inch. One feature in regard to this engineering firm is that all their work is turned out on the co-operative principle, and, according to the remarks of the manager of the works on the subject, the plan works admirably for all concerned. Several trials were made at the measured mile, and the maximum rate of speed attained was 13½ knots, with a proportionate consumption of 9¼ tons coal per twenty-four hours; this result was considered highly satisfactory. Had the vessel been deeper, and the screw more immersed, a better result would have been obtained. It was a general remark how easily and smoothly the engines worked, the vibration being almost imperceptible on any part of the ship. Over forty guests sat down to an excellent luncheon in the chief saloon, after which the customary toasts were proposed and responded to in the usual manner. About nine o'clock the vessel came to an anchor off Gravesend, where the company separated.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

BIRTHS.

CAMERON—On the 24th Aug., at Little Buckland Cottage, near Lymington, the wife of Ewen Hay Cameron, of Ceylon, of a daughter.

JONES—On the 15th July, at Runnymede House, Penang, the wife of Philip Jones, of a son.

KIRCHHOFF—On the 5th July, at Shanghai, Mrs. Kirchhoff, of a daughter.

KRUGER—On the 2nd July, at Swatow, the wife of Cæsar Kruger, of a daughter.

MORRIS—On the 27th June, at Foochow, Mrs. B. J. Morris, of a daughter.

MOULE—On the 8th July, at Ningpo, the wife of the Rev. A. E. Moule, of a son.

RENNIE—On the 28th Aug., at Coombe Wood, Surrey, the wife of W. U. Rennie, C.M.G., Lieutenant-Governor of St. Vincent, of a daughter.

THOMAS—On the 24th Aug., at Holmwood, Caterham, the wife of Thomas Thomas, of Japan, of a son.

WATSON—On the 17th July, at Yokohama, Mrs. E. B. Watson, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

BOLTON—WARRICK.—On the 26th Aug., at Claremont Park, Leith, by the Rev. John Kelman, the Rev. Wm. Bolton, M.A., Leeds, to Ellen, eldest daughter of Wm. Warrick, merchant, Leith.

HALL—MOORE.—On the 29th Aug., at Bethesda Chapel, Hanley, by the Rev. J. C. Watts, the Rev. William Nelthorpe Hall, of Tientsin, China, to Susan, daughter of the late William Moore, of Cauldon-place, Shelton, Staffordshire.

PAYNE—WEBSTER.—On the 10th July, at the British Legation, Yokohama, by the Rev. Wm. Ball Wright, in the presence of Sir Harry Parkes, K.C.B., Herbert William Glendining Payne, only son of the late Capt. William Payne, R.N., to Elizabeth Amy Cathcart, daughter of Francis Webster, Writer to the Signet, Edinburgh.

THOMSEN—GOTTLIEB.—On the 18th July, at St. George's Church, Penang, by the Rev. Julian Moreton, Nicholai Thomsen, of Enterprise Estate, Deli, to Andrea Gottlieb.

THORBURN—MARLER.—On the 27th Aug., at St. John the Baptist, Highgate-road, N.W., Richard, eldest son of R. Thorburn, Librarian of the Admiralty, Whitehall, to Florence Amy, second daughter of Henry W. Marler, Brecknock-road.

WEYMOUTH—LIDDELOW.—On the 15th July, at St. Andrew's Cathedral, Singapore, by the Rev. Canon Hose, William M. Weymouth, late of Brooklyn, New York, to Harriet Marie, daughter of the late Robert Liddelow, Manor Farm, West Dereham, Norfolk.

DEATHS.

BALL—On the 20th Aug., in Half Moon-street, Piccadilly, in the 55th year of his age, Henry John Ball, late Judge of the Court of Summary Jurisdiction, Hong Kong, and sometime Her Majesty's Attorney-General for British Honduras.

GREIG—On the 20th April last, fell overboard, on his voyage from Sydney to Shanghai, Arthur Davidson, fifth son of the late John Greig, LL.D., of Walthamstow House, Essex, in his 25th year.

LEONARD—On the 26th Aug., at Edinburgh, James Keith Leonard, late of Shanghai, China, aged 38 years.

MEDHURST—On the 23rd Aug., at Teignmouth, South Devon, Mrs. Elizabeth Medhurst, widow of the Rev. Dr. Medhurst, of Shanghai, aged 80 years.

PERRY On the 24th Aug., in Venice, Sir William Perry, for many years H.M.'s Consul-General.

PLUMER—On the 27th Aug., at Talbot-square, Hyde Park, Ann, widow of Mr. T. H. Plumer, late of Canons Park, Middlesex, aged 79.

RUTTER—On the 25th Aug., at Ravensbury, Mitcham, Surrey, Alice Elizabeth, relict of the late John Rutter, aged 75 years.

WHITE—On the 8th July, at Yokohama, Thomas White, aged 33 years, a citizen of the United States.

Barker.

STEAMERS PASSED THE SUEZ CANAL.—Aug. 30, Cawdor Castle, from London, for Singapore, China &c., Conrad; from Batavia, for Nieuwe Diep.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Advices from Bahia Aug. 7, state that the Solent, Meldrum, from London to Singapore, which put in there 13th July, leaky, is discharging.—Lisbon, 22nd Aug.—The discharge of the Gordon Castle continues, but goes on slowly, because the forebulkhead has to be shored off as the tea is removed from behind it; the forebulkhead shows signs of the enormous pressure upon it from the water in the fore compartment, consequently every precaution is necessary to avoid accident.—Greenock, 28th Aug.—The Sourabaya (barq.), hence to Java has put back with steering-gear defective.

CASUALTIES.—A telegram from Japan announces the loss of the Pingon steamer, a local trader, but partly insured in London. Sourabaya, Aug. 29. The Albion (Brit. ship), from Java to the Channel with about 840 tons of sugar on board, has been burnt at Probolingo, and is a total loss.

SPOKEN.—Horatia Sprague, Hong Kong to San Francisco, off Bonin Island; H. P. B. P. (Fr. barq.), Bordeaux, to Batavia, June 5, 7 N., 30 W.

Naval and Military.

The Department of the Accountant General of the Navy has given notice that preparations are now being made for the distribution of the amount awarded for salvage services rendered to the British barque Foo-chow-foo on the 1st and 2nd August, 1873, by Her Majesty's ship Hornet; and for the distribution of the tonnage bounty awarded for the slave dhow Kasoomba, captured on May 26, 1873, by Her Majesty's ship Daphne. The date proposed for the commencement of the distribution, and the amount of an individual's share in the respective classes will shortly be made known.

A large furnace has been built in the Royal Laboratory at Woolwich for the special purpose of burning down the old metal cartridge cases returned to Woolwich from various stations at home and abroad, after being expended at target practice. Something like ten tons of metal has been already recovered in this way, but the brass is considerably alloyed with the iron which forms the base of the cartridges, and its value is thereby deteriorated to some extent. Cartridge cases are now generally made wholly of brass, and the residuum will consequently be of more value.

Lieut.-Colonel J. W. Graves, who served with the 18th regiment in China from 1840 to 1847, and has latterly been staff officer of pensioners at Cork, has accepted retirement pay.

Major J. Garnier, of the Royal Engineers, has been ordered to hold himself in readiness to embark for service at Hong Kong.

The "Chinese Dragon," earned by the 98th Regiment during the first China war, has been approved as the regimental badge.

Assistant-commissary A. J. Hutton, of the Control Department, has been detached from the Straits Settlements.

THE JAPANESE RAID ON FORMOSA.

The Daily Telegraph says that it is not wonderful that the prospect of a conflict between China and Japan should have excited apprehensions, however vague, among not only the commercial class, but the politicians. It can easily understand that the trading community should be interested in the preservation of quiet, yet it would be absurd to suppose that either the Government of Peking or that of Yedo will stifle their ambition, or square their policy, whether it be offensive or defensive, by the wants and wishes of the European Powers. Asiatic rulers follow their own bent, just as if they controlled military monarchies or democratic republics framed after the most approved fashion. For many years both China and Japan, stimulated by contact with Europe and America, have shown a marked disposition to augment the physical force at their disposal, and supply it with the best attainable armaments. In addition, the persistent activity in Chinese arsenals and building yards has been duly noted by the observant foreigner, who, after his wont, has not failed to record the launching of war ships, and the accumulation of military means in all the depôts. Humiliated by internal, and beaten by external foes, the Empire naturally desires to develop its power, and possess, ashore and afloat, at least, a respectable force. Foreign residents, mainly devoted to trade, have neither been slow to note these changes, nor exempt from solicitude on their account. They see in them a wish to escape from European and American influences, and are not without fears lest China should attempt to return to her old but impossible policy of exclusiveness. Russia may not be indisposed to foment a conflict directly tending towards a diversion of Chinese attention from the countries forming her new frontier, but no other Power can desire to see Japan and China wasting their resources in naval and military operations so likely, among other consequences, to revive the stricken fortunes of piracy on the highways of Eastern trade. The threatened calamity may be averted by diplomacy; yet the incident will serve to impress on the world the fact that both China and Japan are developing maritime and territorial forces certain to become important elements weighing heavily upon the future political condition of Asia between the Pamir Steppe and the Pacific Ocean.

The prospect of a war between China and Japan has, the London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian states, made itself felt in one important branch of European commerce—that which deals with munitions of war. For some weeks past Chinese agents have been purchasing Krupp guns in Germany and gunpowder, mostly in England, to the value of £10,000. Persons interested in the trade of the Far East, or who have lived in China and Japan, regard the prospects of war between those two countries with some alarm. They consider that the consequences would be very disastrous to all foreign interests if China should prove the victor; and, as a result of that contingency, they anticipate the ejectment of the foreign residents in the Chinese Empire. According to the best information which reaches us, the Japanese appear to be in the right; for when they complained some time ago in Peking of what had occurred in Formosa, the Chinese Government disavowed all responsibility and authority in the island; and it is only now, post factum, that they are trying to assert a sovereignty that had certainly not been admitted a year ago by the Chinese Government.

THE PEKING HOSPITAL.

The Rev. Joseph Edkins contributes to the Academy a notice of the report of the Peking Hospital, by Dr. Dudgeon, and adds an interesting account of the introduction of foreign medicines and vaccination by Sir George Staunton at Canton. Doctoring, says the writer, is a very favourite occupation of the literati of that country. A man needs no certificate to practise. He depends for reputation on the cures he performs, and his introduction to the profession is accomplished by his learning its duties from some physician who communicates to him his experience.

The two fundamental medical books are very old, and belong to the Confucian epoch as that of the Early Han. The doctrines of alchemy, which budded and blossomed in the Later Han age, or about A.D. 200, do not appear in these works. The combination of Tauist doctrine with the healing art by the alchemists of the Han dynasty and the time following it, marks a new period in the history of Chinese medicine. Before this time the forest hermit, gathering herbs in the mountains, became by successful cures a noted physician. Here was the first connection between the Tauist religion and the history of Chinese healing. The notion of a vegitable elixir, that is, of the herb of immortality, dates from the time of the simple followers of Lautsze, or of the hermits who preceded him, and whom he admired. The seekers of the elixir were in high favour with Tsin she hwang, the book burner. Among the books exempted from destruction those treating on medicine were included. Soo wen and Ling k'éu, the two works above referred to, may have very well escaped from the memorable burning which raged most fiercely against the writings of Confucius and other political and moral writers. The invention of alchemy was productive of more injury than benefit to medicine, and has not in China been succeeded as in Europe by a scientific age of enlightened enquiry. Alchemy of course fell into disuse because it failed. Two emperors are said to have died after partaking of the philosopher's stone. Repeated want of success tired out the operators and rendered popular faith in it impossible. Yet the names and hypotheses remained to cumber medical literature and obscure the intelligence of the physician.

At least a thousand years before the Christian era a doctrine of five elements existed among the wise men of China. It is found in the Book of History which dates from that time. This doctrine has beclouded the minds of the physicians of that country down to the present day. The five elements are in their view the five activities which operate on each other in the form of metals, wood, water, fire, earth. Under the influence of this theory the ancient chemists while preparing medicines accounted in a ready-to-hand way for the phenomena they witnessed. Metals melting under the action of fire showed that the element fire conquers the element metal. But water extinguishes fire. The element water, therefore, which manifestly is the victor over fire, may be applied by those who know how to subdue all evils attendant on fire. In this way they arranged a circle of interacting influences, and thought that in so doing they had arrived at the inner secrets of nature. The human body they represented as under the dominion of the five elements, and the efficacy of all drugs is nothing but an exemplification in each case of the elemental action. Fever, for instance, is the domination of the element of fire, and must be expelled by a judicious application of the element of water.

From the elemental theory and from alchemy springs the whole nomenclature of medicine, the idea of the microcosm being added, according to which everything in heaven and earth finds its analogue in the human body. From this way of looking at things Chinese medicine has never yet set itself free. The foreign physician resident in China finds, therefore, the native mind in regard to medicine besotted with prejudice and error.

Of vaccination the writer says:—In the country private vaccinators go where they please, and in some districts they charge very high fees for the privilege of vaccination. No law or usage interferes with them, and if they demand twice as much for operating on a boy as on a girl public opinion is in no way outraged. It is the habit of the people to value boys more than girls, and the vaccinator takes advantage of this.

The Pacific Mail Company and the Tea Trade.—A San Francisco paper says:—We published a circular from a prominent firm in the Tea trade at San Francisco, reflecting on the action of the Pacific Mail Company for an alleged discrimination against the Tea importers of that City, in bringing freight from Japan. It appears that the same communication was sent to other New York journals, and one of them, an obscure weekly, accompanied the statement in its columns with an emphatic denial of the allegation from the Managing Director of the Mail Company, who, as alleged, pronounced the charges contained in the circular false. About the same time the Journal of Commerce of this city, in its money column, made reference to the matter, and stated substantially that, having consulted the Managing Director of the Company, he had acknowledged that the charge of discrimination was true, and attempted to justify it on business principles, to all of which the Journal very properly, as we think, took issue. But having seen the denial of the Managing Director in the obscure weekly, the author of the circular has taken the trouble to substantiate his original charge by an abundance of documentary evidence which he sends us, in the shape of copies of letters from his correspondents in Japan, and also one from the San Francisco agents of the Mail Company, the latter offering an apology for what they call "a serious dereliction, and of a nature well calculated to militate against the prosperity of the Company," adding that they have presented the case to the Yokohama agency. As the matter now stands, we do not deem it necessary to publish these letters. We may add, however, that the gentleman who brings these charges against the Mail Company is known by the writer of this to be one of the most upright and honourable merchants in San Francisco.

On the 1st September next, and thenceforward, the postage on a newspaper not exceeding four ounces in weight, addressed to any of the following places, and intended for transmission by the mail vid Southampton, will be reduced from 2d. to 1d., viz.:—To the East Indies, Hong Kong, or any other part of China, Japan, Ceylon, Straits Settlements, or Labuan; a further rate of 1d. being chargeable for every additional four ounces or fraction of four ounces. The above postage must in all cases be paid in advance, or the newspapers cannot be forwarded.

Mr. J. S. Dismorr, of the Royal Netherlands Steam Navigation Company, states that advices have just reached him announcing the assassination by a native of his correspondent in Japan, Mr. L. Haber. Mr. Haber was of German nationality, and had recently been acting as Consul for the German Empire at Hakodade.

Monetary and Commercial.

The acceptances of Paul S. Forbes (who has been of late years in London and Paris) for £40,000 have been protested, and judgment given on them. Mr. Forbes was, up to June last, a partner in Messrs. Russell and Co.'s, of China, but these acceptances were given by Mr. Forbes in his own name, on behalf of a steam line from San Francisco to Australia, in which he took a prominent part. Of course the company has gone to smash, and the unfortunate passengers who paid their passage-money have been victimised. It is to be regretted that a merchant of Mr. Forbes's position and standing should be mixed up with so miserable a business. It is another instance of the danger of allowing a partner to remain in a firm who does not confine his operations to business connected with the firm. To have a partner or partners roving about Europe entering into all kinds of speculation is an element of danger which firms like Messrs. Russell and Co. should not incur. On the first rumour of the affair in London it was stated that the disaster would affect his firm, but inquiries at Messrs. Baring Brothers dispelled any fears on this head, and we are glad to find that Messrs. Russell and Co. will not be in any way affected by it. Mr. Forbes is at present believed to be in America, but, we understand, his address is not known, and that he has other large liabilities, both here and there.

Advices from Shanghai report that the affairs of Messrs. Coutts and Co., whose suspension we noticed last month, have been placed in bankruptcy, and that an investigation into some discreditable transactions will be made by the trustees.

An official return has just been made by the Egyptian Custom House of the foreign trade in Egypt in 1873, from which it appears that the volume of trade remains about the level of the last few years, notwithstanding a reduction in price of some important articles. The total value of the exports amounted to £13,673,000, and of the imports to £6,463,000, the greater part of the trade in both cases being with the United Kingdom, to which the exports were £9,673,000, while the imports therefrom were £3,127,000. The principal export was cotton, of which the total value sent out was £10,071,000, the amount to England alone being £7,578,000.

At a meeting on the 25th inst. of the creditors of Messrs. Grant, Brodie, and Co., of East Indian Avenue, commission merchants, who failed on the 16th ult., the statement of affairs showed the liabilities secured and unsecured to amount to £634,000 and the assets, including securities in the hands of creditors, to £330,816. A resolution for liquidation by arrangement was passed, and Mr. John Weise, of the firm of Turquand, Youngs, and Co., was elected trustee, with a committee of inspection formed of five of the principal creditors. Messrs. Phelps and Sidgwick were appointed solicitors to the estate.

Advices by telegram state that the report of the directors of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank announces that, owing to losses incurred, no dividend would be paid for the half-year ending June, and $225,000 had been written off the reserve fund, leaving $775,000.

There has been a good enquiry for Bar Silver during the week, and the price has been well maintained at 58d. per oz. standard. The arrivals have been limited—about £20,000 from the United States, and £64,000 from the Pacific. The demand for Mexican Dollars has been rather active, and 56½d. per oz. was obtained for a limited amount from New Orleans. This is a rise in price of about ¼d. per oz.

The bullion per P. and O. steamer Khiva, from Southampton Aug. 27, was in silver to Hong Kong, £23,646.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Our market has been generally quiet during the past week; the very great number of samples on show each day have fully occupied the trade, whilst numerous public sales have also been held. The trade have been very chary in buying Foochow Teas, and prices for common to medium of this class show some decline. The cargoes of the Japan and Nankin, from Hankow, were on the market, but there was not much business done in them, buyers waiting to see the samples thoroughly before making offers. The deliveries for the week as compared with last year are as follows:—

Coastwise	729,000	686,000
Exports	864,000	1,142,000
	3,638,000	3,801,000

Congous.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings and broken-leaf show but little alteration. Fair to good, of old import, with good leaf, remain firm. Fair to good Kaisow kinds have been difficult of sale at a decline of 1d. to 1½d. per lb. Fine have sold 1d. per lb. lower. Finest meet with only a moderate demand. Pak Lin kinds continue saleable. Fair to good in boxes, from 1s. 7d. to 1s. 9d., fine from 1s. 10d. to 2s. 1d. per lb. Half-chests have also sold at full prices. Black-leaf kinds: Common to good, of old import, have been sold from 11d. to 1s. 2½d. per lb., showing easy rates. In new Teas there has not been a large business, but prices show some decline, common to fair ranging from 11⅜d. to 1s. 2½d., fair to good medium 1s. 3d. to 1s. 6d., fine from 1s. 7s. to 1s. 10d. and finest from 1s. 11d. to 2s. 3d. per lb. Superfine Chops remain firm at full prices. New-make kinds: Common have sold at 10½d. per lb., fair from 1s. to 1s. 2d., good from 1s. 3d. to 1s. 5d., being about previous rates. Souchows show no material change, the demand being moderate. Oolongs have been difficult of sale, even at a further decline of 1d. to 2d. per lb. for fair to good and fine kinds. Scented Teas: There has been an improved demand for Canton Capers, and considerable sales have been made from 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 2d. for common to fair, 1s. 2½d. to 1s. 5d. for good, and 1s. 6d. to 1s 8d. for fine kinds. Orange Pekoes have, however, sold at rather easier rates. Foochow Capers continue to command full prices. Orange Pekoes have also been in steady demand at full rates. Green Teas: There have been some arrivals of new Teas from Shanghai, which have been sold at public sales, the prices being very fair for the quality; further auctions take place to-day and to-morrow. Prices have ruled up to 2s. 8d. for No. 1 Gunpowder, and 2s. 5d. for No. 1 Young Hyson, the common to medium grades selling at low prices. Indian Teas: The market continues fairly supplied with new season's Teas, and the demand has been tolerably good, but the quality in many instances is still disappointing. For all the thin flavoury kinds prices must be quoted 1d. per lb. lower, but the strong pungent kinds command a ready sale at fully previous prices. Some very fine Nassau Company's Tea sold from 2s. 10d. to 2s. 11½d. per lb. The quantity offered has been 4,968 packages, of which about 3,300 packages have been sold.

SILK.

The public sales "without reserve" are progressing, and will not be concluded till the 29th. The prices realised are certainly much better than were expected, showing little or no change in the price of common Tsatlees, which, although in considerable quantity, sell at 11s. to 11s. 6d., but medium and better Silks are about 6d. to 1s. easier than the asking prices previously to the sales. Japan Silk is decidedly lower in price, some parcels of very common to medium Mybash bringing only 12s. to 14s.; better qualities at 15s. to 18s. Canton Tsatlees reel market No. 4 are selling at 10s. to 10s. 6d., and better sorts, of which there are very few, at 11s. to 13s. 7d.; Loong Kongs at 10s. 6d. to 13s. 6d. Rather more than half of the quantity of raw Silk brought forward has passed the hammer, say 2,800 bales out of 5,200 bales offered. Deliveries from 1st to 27th inst.:—

Canton	372	650
Japan	577	470
Bengal	150	296
Total	3,652	4,506 bales.

COFFEE.—There has been a further reduction in the value of Ceylon. Coloury kinds being 1s. to 2s. lower, and pale descriptions 6d. to 1s. At auction Plantation Ceylon has sold, fine bright bold coloury at 123s. 6d. to 125s.; good 120s. 6d.; middling to good middling, 118s. to 119s.; low middling, 115s. to 116s.; pea berry, 130s. to 131s. 6d.; grey qualities from 116s. to 118s. 6d. for middling to bold, and 112s. 6d. to 114s. for low middling. Native good ordinary at 88s. to 89s.; bold, at 96s. 6d. per cwt.

HEMP.—The parcels offered have met a dull demand, and have been nearly all bought in. Of 2,300 bales of Manila offered only 150 bales sold—fair to good fair, £32 to £33; good white, £45 15s. to £46 5s.; fine white £65 per ton.

HIDES.—At the sales yesterday there was a good demand for East India kips, and prices of the lighter weights were ¼d. to ½d. per lb. higher. Extra weights, however, continued rather difficult to sell. Singapore, &c., ox and cow brought about late rates. Buffalo hides without change, but the Batavias mostly taken in. 98,782 East India kips in the hair offered, 75,490 sold; 1,571 Singapore and Penang, &c., ox and cow hides offered, 1,174 sold; 4,656 Batavia buffalo hides offered, 144 sold; 2,358 Singapore and Penang, &c., buffalo hides offered, 2,260 sold; 1,638 East India buffalo hides offered, 1,400 sold.

PEPPER has continued dull of sale at previous quotations.

RICE.—There has been little or no change in the market during the week, business being limited, and prices remaining without alteration. The sales have included 2,100 tons Japan at 9s. 3d. per cwt.

Sugar.—There has been a fair but not active demand during the week, and prices have exhibited no alteration from our last quoted rates. The business done has been chiefly in West Indian kinds.

Spices.—Nutmegs: 310 packages offered, and chiefly sold at ¼d. per lb. decline. Penang: 75 nuts to the lb., at 3s. 8d. to 3s. 9d.; 80 to 77 ditto, at 3s. 7d.; 110 ditto, at 3s. 4d.; 116 to 113 ditto, at 3s. 3d.; limed, 3s. to 3s. 1d.; defective, 1s. 3d. to 2s. 2d.; Java, limed, 3s. to 3s. 2d.; defective, 1s. 6d.; West India, 2s. 9d. to 3s. 4d. Mace: 14 cases sold; Penang, ordinary to middling, 2s. 8d. to 3s. 4d.; pickings, 1s. 9d. to 1s. 10d. Pimento: 40 bags sold at 3⅜d. to 3½d. Cloves: Of 220 bales Zanzibar, 170 bales sold at 1s. 3¼d. to 1s. 4d., being previous rates. Cassia Lignea: 74 cases sold, unworked at 56s.

Sticklac.—In public sale 100 cases Siam have been sold at the advance quoted last week—viz., at £5 10s. to £5 12s. 6d. per cwt.

Sago.—Of 1,200 bags offered, 700 bags sold; fine small, at 18s. 6d.; good medium, 17s. 9d., large, 17s.

Tin.—Great dulness has prevailed during the past few days, and prices have been irregular and lower. The current quotations are—Straits on the spot £91 to £93, afloat £91; Banca £98 to £100; Billiton £94 per ton.

ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

METALS.

Iron.—Welsh: Rails, £7 10s. to £8. Bars, £9 10s. to £10. Staffordshire Best: Bars, £10 15s. to £11 10s.; Nail Rods, £10 15s. to £11 10s.; Hoop, £12 to £13; Sheets, £14 to £16; Scotch Pig, No. 1, £4 11s. to £5 15s.; Swedes, Bars, Hammered, £17 10s. to £18; Swedes, Steel in kegs, ½ and ⅝in., £20.

Yellow Metal.—Sheets, 4 by 4 ft., 7¾d.; Sheathing and Rods, 7¾d. to 8d. per lb.

Tin.—English Refined, £97. Tin Plates: Charcoal I C, per box, 36s. to 41s.; Coke, 28s. 6d. to 37s.

Lead.—WB, £22 10s.; do., other brands, £21 5s. Spanish soft, ex ship, £20 7s. 6d. to £21; Sheet, £22 10s.; Shot (kegs extra), £26 White do., £28 10s. to £29; Red do., £23 15s.

Spelter.—Silesian, £22.

Quicksilver.—In bottles of 75 lbs. each, £23.

Messrs. French and Smith report:—There is but little improvement to notice in Metals. Iron is in fair demand. Copper is rather firmer, but with few transactions. Tin Plates firm. Lead steady. Spelter scarce. Quicksilver is £1 per bottle dearer.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

There has been scarcely any change in the tone of the Market. Rather more enquiry has been exhibited for common Shirtings, especially 84's, but the prices offered have prevented any material increase in the amount of business; it is only where stocks have accumulated that concessions have been submitted to, and in these instances the reductions have only been slight, and on the whole prices have been fairly maintained, both for Goods and Yarns.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Sores, wounds, ulcerations, and other diseases affecting the skin, are capable of speedy amendment by this cooling and healing unguent, which has called forth the loudest praise from persons who had suffered for years from bad legs, abscesses, and chronic ulcers, after every hope of cure had long passed away. None but those who have experienced the soothing effect of this Ointment can form an idea of the comfort it bestows by restraining inflammation and allaying pain. Whenever Holloway's Ointment has been once used it has established its own worth, and has again been eagerly sought for as the easiest and safest remedy for all ulcerous complaints. In neuralgia, rheumatism, and gout the same application, properly used, gives wonderful relief.

Per French steamer Sindh, Oct. 25, (booked from London).—To Shanghai: Mrs. Little, Mr. Leopold Lefebre.

JAPAN.

Our advices from the Japan ports by the present mail are of no later date than those received by Pacific mail on the 31st ult., and published in our last issue. The steamer Altona arrived at San Francisco on the 24th ult., bringing Yokohama advices to the 3rd August. The subjoined summary of news has been telegraphed to the New York press:—

From private sources we learn that the Formosa expedition had been entirely successful, and that a Japanese Embassy had been sent from Tokio to Peking. This embassy was accompanied by General Legendre. Outside of Yokohama and the English press the general feeling is that it will be a success in amicably settling all matters between the two Governments.

Nothing further has transpired with respect to the revision of the treaties or the opening of the interior. Meanwhile the greatest strictness is observed in granting passes to persons desirous of travelling beyond the Treaty limits, although many foreigners in the Government employ have obtained them.

During the month of July and the early part of the present month rain fell so abundantly throughout the whole country as to cause serious inundations and land-slips. From every direction information reaches the Government of damage to property and loss of life from these causes.

There has been talk of the Mikado formally and ceremoniously opening the telegraph system, which, although now in operation for some years, has not yet been so honoured. It was spoken of as his Majesty's wish that some such opening should take place a long time ago, but constant interruption on the main line between Yokohama and Nagasaki has interfered with it.

CHINA.

TIENTSIN.

The correspondent of the North China Herald writes as follows:—

M. Geoffroy, the Minister for France, passed here, en route for Cheefoo, on the 3rd July. It is said the Minister has been engaged for some weeks past discussing with Prince Kung the demands recently made by the Peking Government for indemnity for the Chinese who lost their lives in the riot on the French Concession, in Shanghai, in May. It has not been announced that this indemnity will be paid. Judged by the "pile" claimed it is not difficult to suppose that perhaps Prince Kung has happily bethought himself to include in this indemnity something by way of "indirect damages" against France and Great Britain, for the indignity put upon the sacred person of the Emperor at China New Year, by Messrs. Wade and Geoffroy, in their attempt at an "audience" to offer their congratulations at the foot of the throne.

"The war in Formosa" is the absorbing topic in official circles here. There is little doubt that Li Hung-chang is in favour of snuffing out the Japanese in Formosa, even if it takes telegraphs, ironclads, and a few foreign appliances of various kinds to accomplish it. The Viceroy's recommendations will be certain to shape the course of action taken by China in the Formosan difficulty. He is unquestionably the "power behind the throne."

There has been a "labour strike" amongst the coolies who were employed to dig the canal which is being constructed from Tientsin to Peitang. These poor creatures, after enduring the miseries of a three years' flood, were taken in and done for by a fostering and paternal Government some months ago. As they have been starving by inches for two years past, it was not deemed prudent to give them access to too much "high living" all of a sudden, so they were employed by their humane Government at five candareens per day, out of which they feed and clothe themselves, and support, in most instances, a wife and a host of children. It was the intention of their wise and humane employers to raise their wages by degrees, and in this way save them and their families from the ill effects of an overfeed. But alas! poor ignorant creatures, they could not see it, and so they struck, 4,000 of them, all on one day. The petty mandarins who had charge of the workmen, and who are held responsible for everything, after the Chinese fashion, have all bolted; so there is a fair prospect for some of your Shanghai merchants to sell a dredger for that canal soon.

Our rainy season has come early this year, and judging by the appearance of the Peiho at present, we will have to begin with the old story of "the flood" pretty soon again, just as we have been doing for three years past. Speaking of the floods, we are beginning to feel the bad effects of so much water on the plains which surround us here. A large portion of the foreign residents are sick—some of them seriously—with malarial and intermittent fevers, and kindred affections.

The markets here are dull, but there is a brisk demand for ironclads amongst Chinese purchasers. Li Hung-chang, it is understood, has recommended the Peking Government to purchase, at once, two or more first class ironclad men-of-war. The eager inquiries now being made for this class of naval architecture by the Viceroy's own underlings, seem to imply that the Government have sanctioned his recommendation. But unhappily ironclad vessels are not a drug in this market, and it is feared that it will be some time before the Chinese are able to "go marching through" Formosa.

The sudden and unexpected, not to say very unwelcome, appearance in the heavens of a fiery tailed comet has created great consternation here amongst all classes of Chinese. They remark, as a singular and ominous fact, that the tail of this comet points toward Formosa; while its head points in the opposite direction. This is regarded as a bad omen. A comet, at best, is regarded by the Chinese as a sure forerunner of some evil to the Empire. They speak of the one which preceded the invasion of this province by the allied armies in 1860; and now that this one has put in its appearance, like an evil spirit, just as the gathering cloud of war begins to thicken over Formosa, no one seems to doubt that it portends great affairs of state and "moving accidents by flood and field."

CHEFOO.

On the 9th July the Rev. Dr. Nevius delivered a lecture at the hall of the Temperance Association at this port, on "Thirteen Years Reminiscences in Shantung."

The lecturer spoke of the intense excitement caused in this province by a visit of a U.S. man-of-war during the first foreign war with China. Multitudes fled to the city of Tungchow, on the sea coast, for safety. When the vessel came in sight their hearts failed them, and great numbers fled again into the interior. When the lecturer came to this province in 1861 there were no steamers on the coast, and the place where the foreign settlement now stands was cultivated ground. A vivid description was given of the rebellion in this province the same year, when Revs. Messrs. Holmes and Parker lost their lives, thousands of towns and villages were burnt, and a vast number of people lost their lives. A great multitude fled to a temple built on a hill in the southern part of Shantung, to seek the protection of a god who was reported to have great power. Almost the entire company were massacred. After this, the people built walls round many towns and villages, and on the tops of high hills, which proved very serviceable at the time of the second raid, a few years later. The following year great numbers were carried off by cholera. A number of the foreigners also lost their lives.

Reference was made to the great excitement at the time of the Tientsin massacre, and the results which have followed. Foreigners are now much better known than they were before. The rumours which so excited the people were found to be so false that it would be difficult again to cause such a deep feeling throughout the country. At that time the people seemed prepared for anything, and if an able leader had risen, a general attempt might have been made to exterminate foreigners. When it is remembered that the people have no confidence and faith in each other, it is not surprising that they were suspicious of foreigners, and ready to believe the worst possible stories concerning them.

The conciliatory policy of the Western nations has done much to create a better feeling. The official class, the merchants, the customs service so efficiently and faithfully administered, and the missionary, each, in its own way, is doing much to educate the people, dispel prejudice, and awaken the mind and energy of the Chinese. When the lecturer first travelled through this province he often did not feel safe in entering a town and putting up at an inn until he had first remained some time, often several hours, outside, that the people might satisfy their curiosity, and have their fears and prejudices somewhat allayed. Now, in all parts of the province, foreigners are known and generally well treated. Many books have been circulated and read, and inquiries are constantly made for new books. The Chinese periodical published at Shanghai is fast gaining friends, and doing a good work. All foreigners are anxious to see great changes take place in their time. From year to year progress seems slow, but it is plain that there has been undoubted progress, and probably as great as could be reasonably expected.

The Rev. Mr. Hartwell gave some interesting reminiscences of his experiences at Tungchow. He was the first foreigner who settled at that place. The President, in a few closing remarks, said he thought all classes were contributing to advance the cause of truth and civilisation in China, but he was persuaded the missionaries stood second to no other. They were a noble pioneers, and got more direct access to the people than any other. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the lecturer.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 19th July; no later mail from London had arrived out, but the French mail of 5th June was expected the day this mail left. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald:—

The regular fleet of coasting steamers has just received an addition in the Arratoon Apcar, of 959 tons, 140-horse power, originally one of the Apcar line of opium vessels running between Hong Kong and Calcutta. The Arratoon Apcar was built at Renfrew, on the Clyde, in 1859, and up till within about two years ago was very successful in the trade for which she was intended. Subsequently, she was laid up for about eighteen months, until taken over by Messrs. Watts, Millburn, and Co., of London, by whom she was sent to Shields to be thoroughly overhauled and fitted with various improvements, in order to render her suitable for the trade she is now engaged in. Previous to her late overhaul in the latter end of 1873, she had two funnels and three masts, which have given place to one of the former and two of the latter. Her engines have been much improved, and among the additions are two donkey engines—one fore and one aft. The present is her first trip to Shanghai, and she is, we understand, to ply permanently between the coast ports.

The captain of the Arratoon Apcar, to investigate charges of drunkenness and incapacity brought against him by his officers and engineers while he was prosecuting the latter on charges of insubordination in H.B.M. Police Court, applied for a Naval Court of Enquiry. The Court sat at the British Consulate, and the enquiry resulted in the suspension of Captain Montgomery's certificate for six months, pending the action of the Board of Trade, the Court expressing an opinion that he is unfit for the responsibility of command. Charles, the chief mate, is censured for not going further than he actually did; Taggart, the second mate, is exonerated, and the chief and second engineers are found to be addicted to insobriety, such as to render them unsafe persons to be in charge of important functions. This appears to be the only decision the Court could have come to upon the evidence before it, and the judgment should exercise a salutary influence which will not be confined to those immediately affected by it. Mr. Emil Schultze, first officer of the China, has been appointed to the command of the steamer.

The steamer Dragon, which left Shanghai on the 12th July, for Chefoo and Newchwang, was obliged to put back when about seventy miles off Shaweishan, in consequence of some defect betraying itself in her machinery. The same Company's steamer Haining having met the Dragon, assisted her till the entrance to the river was reached, when, being only partially disabled, she came up to Shanghai by herself. After effecting the necessary repairs, the Dragon will, it is said, resume her place on the Foochow line.

Whatever the issue may be of the present negotiation upon the Formosan question, the officials in charge of the Shanghai Arsenal are evidently more than ordinarily anxious about their armaments and the probabilities of war. Unusual activity prevails in the ordnance department at Kaou-chang-meaou. For the past three months general work has been suspended, and all efforts concentrated on the production of shot and shell for the heavy rifled ordnance lately arrived from Europe, and which is to replace the old smooth-bores. The Ni-ning (No. 4) has been undergoing an overhaul, out in the stream opposite the Arsenal, the dock being occupied by No. 6 (frigate), the vessel launched some few months ago, and sister ship to No. 5, launched in 1872. The Ni-ning is having her forecastle decks double beamed, to accommodate a 60-pounder Krupp rifled pivot gun, and aft, for the reception of a 40-pounder of the same class; besides which she will have one 20-pounder Blakeley on the forecastle, and four 4-pounder Blakeley broadside rifled guns. All the other vessels built at the Arsenal are being similarly armed. Work in the iron-clad factory shed erected lately will be begun so soon as orders have been received. The large marine engine factory has been appropriated to the manufacture of the 40 and 20-pounder shot and shell for the Krupp and Blakeley guns, of which 125 and 80 respectively are being turned out daily, ready for charging. In the small arms department, the manufacture of time fuses is going on apace; and the powder mills at Loongwha are producing about 1,800 lbs. of powder per week. As already remarked, "No. 6" (frigate) is still in dock, and her equipment, it is said, will be completed in about two months, thus raising the naval force sent out by the Kaouchang-meaou

Arsenal to six vessels, and the total of guns to sixty-six. In connection with these preparations we may mention that at the present time the crews of the several Shanghai vessels are being drafted for a period of gun practice at Woosung, on board the "No. 3" (frigate), under the instruction of a Prussian officer sent out from Europe by Krupp. The results of the practice are said to be very creditable.

The accounts of the late torpedo experiments at Loong-wha have been somewhat contradictory, but from what we have since learned we are inclined to adhere to our former statement, that the results achieved were not up to expectation. We understand that several of the foreigners employed at the Arsenal were called on to give their attention to the production of a torpedo from an American design—which was said to have been found very effective during the late American war; but, whatever the reason, the result was not a success. Whether or not it was the case that none of the foreign staff were inclined to fire the trial electric torpedo, it is a fact creditable to the students of the college at the Arsenal that one of their number was called on to arrange the connection and work the battery on the occasion of the experiment.

The Chinese gunboat Feiyuen, Captain Ping, arrived on the 11th July, from Formosa, under orders to proceed from Taiwan-foo to Tientsin. She left Taiwan on the 6th, and Keelung on the 8th July, and it is understood carries despatches from the Imperial Commissioner, Shen Pao-chen, for the Chinese Government. These were entrusted to a Japanese officer and interpreter, Hidaka and Ikada, from the Japanese headquarters at Liangkiau. The savages having retired out of reach, all was quiet. The number of Japanese troops disembarked is given at 5,000, and their camps are scattered all over the south end of the island. The Japanese gunboats had all left Formosa, and the impression seemed to be that the Japanese would retire when the return of their ships enabled them to do so, but that they expect compensation for giving up the expedition. A war with China is looked upon as very improbable. The Feiyuen, which left for Tientsin on the 13th July, is a trim vessel of about 600 tons and 120-horse power, and has a crew of 130 men. Her armament consists of six 40-pounder breechloading rifled guns, and one 113-pounder Armstrong.

It is said the Chinese Government has issued orders that all despatches for transmission to Peking shall be intrusted to the China Merchants S. N. Company, at the various ports of call. A special department is to be organised by the Company for this purpose. Here, probably we have the germ of an Imperial postal scheme.

A correspondent, writing on the 8th July from Keelung, informs us that several ineffectual attempts have been made to get the s.s. Laptak off. Several junks were set to work at her, and the Fusing (Chinese gunboat), which had been detailed to protect the wreck, lent assistance. The hull of the steamer was getting firmly imbedded in the sand, and the captain and crew were hard at work securing machinery and everything movable. It is reported that the underwriters have taken over the wreck.

Michael Martin, remanded from the 4th July on a charge of sending a threatening letter to Alfred Silverthorne, has been again brought up at H.B.M. Police Court, and committed for trial. The trial is set down for the 23rd July.

On the night of the 13th July, about eleven o'clock, Mr. George Gardner Reid, chief engineer of the C.M.S.N. Co.'s steamer Yangning, while passing from the pontoon to the bridge which connects with the shore, missed his footing and fell into the water. Efforts were made by those present to rescue him, but he sank immediately, and was not seen to rise again to the surface. A strong flood current was running at the time. Mr. Reid was near-sighted, and it is believed that to this the accident is to be attributed. The efforts to recover the body proved futile up to the 17th, when it was found floating among the junks at Tunkadoo by one of the police boats.

As we noticed last week, the Wind Instrument Society, instead of allowing the defection of the paid members to interfere with their arrangements, set themselves energetically to work to fill the gap in their ranks. Recruits were found; and with the prospect of being permanently left out thus placed before them, the men who had preferred the more immediately remunerative engagement at the Circus, were glad to come in again. The society has, therefore, drawn fresh vigour from its brief trial. The performance in the gardens this week brought out the largest concourse of the season, and was thoroughly enjoyed. The night was perfect, comparatively cool, and with a light breeze blowing. The regular programme was varied and amplified by the introduction of chorus singing from a houseboat in the river, off the gardens, the vocalists being, we believe, members of the Club Concordia Liedertafel, and the addition enhanced not a little the pleasure of the evening's entertainment. A number of houseboats were moored in the neighbourhood, and the increasing practice of hanging Chinese lanterns from the rigging heightened the effect of a charming scene.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 25th July; the P. and O. mail from London June 12 was received on the 21st July. We take the following items of news from the Daily Press:—

The ordinary meeting of the shareholders of the Hong Kong Hotel Company (Limited) was held at the Hotel on the 22nd July; there were present:—Messrs. Andre (Chairman), Belilios, H. Cohen, W. R. Landstein, S. E. Burrows, H. Smith, Vaucher, J. B. Smith, G. Sharp, Rozario, and E. Baker (Secretary). The Secretary having read the notice calling the meeting, the Chairman said that as the report had been in the hands of the shareholders for some days he did not think it was necessary for him to read it, and the different items it contained spoke for themselves. He was glad to say that the Company was progressing favourably. The new lease extended for four years more, and if no unforeseen circumstance occurred, they should be able to continue the same dividend as at present, at the same time reducing the loan account. The new building adjacent to the hotel was now completed, and formed a valuable addition to the property; all the furniture had been re-painted, and the directors had carefully examined it and found it in the best order.

The report was then adopted.

Mr. Belilios proposed, and Mr. Vauchier seconded the confirmation of Messrs. S. E. Burrows and W. R. Landstein as directors, which was agreed to. Mr. J. B. Smith proposed the re-election of Messrs. Belilios and Chater as directors; Mr. H. Smith seconded, and it was agreed to. Mr. G. Sharp proposed, and Mr. Landstein seconded the election of Messrs. Erdmann and Cohen as auditors, and it was carried.

The Chairman said there was one other matter he wished to refer to, and that was in regard to the fire insurance on the building. The directors, of course, always took good care that the premises and furniture were fully insured. At the same time they deemed it advisable to alter the amount sometimes, either by increasing it or decreasing it. He should like to have a motion passed at this meeting, leaving it to the directors alone to fix the amount.

Mr. J. B. Smith proposed that it be left to the discretion of the directors to fix the amount of fire insurance; Mr. Cohen seconded, and it was agreed to.

A vote of thanks having been accorded to the chairman on the motion of Mr. J. B. Smith, the meeting terminated.

In the Supreme Court, before the Hon. Chief Justice Smale and Mr. Justice Snowdon, the case of Kresser and others v. Jardine and others was heard. Mr. Hayllar, Q.C., instructed by Messrs. Stephens and Holmes, was for plaintiffs; and the Attorney-General (Mr. Bramston), instructed by Messrs. Caldwell and Brereton, was for defendants.

Mr. Hayllar said this was a case in which one gentleman rendered another valuable service, and their statements differed on a very important matter. The recollection of Mr. John Dent, who conducted the negotiation on behalf of the firm of Messrs. John Dent and Co., was very distinct in one way, and that of Mr. James Whittall (of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co.) was very distinct in another. Plaintiff now sought to obtain from the Court a declaration of how the matter actually stood. The intention of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co. was to give assistance at a critical time, but it was not their intention to incur loss. The only question was whether such legal steps were taken at that time as did protect them from losses. Messrs. Dent and Co. were a very large firm in China, and had traded there for half a century or more. Towards the end of 1867 their position became extremely critical, and at that time it appeared from Mr. Dent's own evidence, which had been taken before the Commissioner at Shanghai, Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co. came forward and offered them assistance to tide them over. Between £90,000 and £100,000 were advanced, and the security was to be, according to Mr. Whittall, all the property of the firm (with the exception of that in Hong Kong and the steamer Yesso), including the particular subject of this suit, but according to Mr. Dent's recollection this particular was not included. The learned counsel then went on to explain that the property in question was the shares and dividends in the Canton Insurance office, of which Dent and Co. were general managers, and shares in the Triton Insurance Company, for which they were general agents, the head office being at Calcutta. Dent and Co. were holders of certain shares in both these companies. The learned counsel read Mr. Dent's evidence, and it stated that the shares in the Canton office were not transferred as security to Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Company. He said that if Mr. Whittall's recollection of the matter was more accurate than Mr. Dent's, then the question was decided at once. But if, on the other hand, there should be a balance of doubt upon the matter, then it seemed to him it must resolve itself into one of mutual credit, as though these shares had never been assigned at all. The question really was whether as between these parties, who were really joint partners, there was such a credit or such a dealing between them at the time as must necessarily have terminated in a debt.

The Chief Justice asked if Mr. Dent was to be called.

Mr. Hayllar said there would be some difficulty in getting him to attend.

The Chief Justice thought it would be necessary to have him in Court, but after some conversation it was agreed that the case should proceed.

The Attorney-General then submitted that the defendants had a right to obtain the money entirely apart from any agreements between the members of the firms.

The Hon. J. Whittall was then called as a witness, and the Attorney-General afterwards urged that, by the evidence, there was an agreement, and that defendants were entitled by common law, apart from the mutual credit clause, to set off one debt against the other.

Mr. Hayllar and the Attorney-General having again addressed the Court,

Mr. Justice Snowden said the Court would take time to consider the case.

The P.M.S.S. Company's steamship Japan has returned from Aberdeen Docks where she had been to be recoppered. It is gratifying to know that the colony possesses docks capable of taking in some of the largest vessels which have visited the China waters.

We learn that the pirates who made the attack at Aberdeen came from the hills and not from the sea, and the place attacked was the small village a mile away from Aberdeen known as "Little Hong Kong." About twenty men made the attack, none of whom were recognised.

The colony may certainly be congratulated upon the activity which the Surveyor-General is showing in repairing the streets. He is searching out our shortcomings and mending our ways. Jervois-street—one of the most important thoroughfares in the native portion of the town—being that in which the large piece-goods dealers all reside—has been long in a most dilapidated condition, and we are glad to notice that the road is being thoroughly repaired. There seems, however, to be an oversight as far as can be judged by the work as it at present stands. The road is raised about a foot above the level of the footway, and in the event of heavy rain the water must of necessity run into the shops, as it cannot get to the gutter. A centre gutter in the footway would obviate the difficulty. We are told that the Chinese intend sending in a petition on the subject, but as the defect is obvious, this will probably be unnecessary.

Advices from Tamsui state that a severe typhoon occurred there on the 18th July. Foreign property and jetties on the shore have been much damaged. The tea-firing establishments have, however, escaped. Lieut. Gardner and six sailors of H.M.S. Kestrel, who were engaged at the wreck of the Laptek, and Mr. Greig, of Dodd and Co., have been drowned. The Laptek has now entirely disappeared.

The case of Whittall v. Bell and others, recently heard in the Supreme Court, resulted in the following verdict:—A majority of five to two of the jury found for the plaintiff upon the first issue, and upon the second and upon the third for the plaintiff in the amount of the original claim of $21,811.70, less $9,726.64 upon credit given by the Hong Kong Distillery Company, making a remainder of $12,016.16, less a dividend of about 10 per cent., amounting to about $10,800 damages. Upon the fourth all the defendants were liable. His Lordship accepted the verdict, but reserved his decision about costs.

SIAM.

BANGKOK.

On the 14th of July the Councillors of State met and took each his oath of office, as provided for by the laws which have been recently established to govern their rules of action.

The details of the ceremony were as follows:—Ten of the most prominent Buddhist priests assembled, rehearsed their incantations, read the imprecations, and the Royal sword was dipped into the consecrated water. This done his Majesty appeared upon his throne, when each of the Councillors rose, read the oath, and drank of the water, pledging fidelity and loyalty; his Majesty then gave to each successively in order the commission of appointment.

After the administration of the oath of office and the distribution of diplomas to the Councillors of State, H.M. addressed them substantially as follows:—"Gentlemen, Councillors of State, your assembling and pledging yourself by your oath of office this day has in view the progressive prosperity of our country. This is the first time that servants of the Government have pledged themselves by an oath like the present; therefore, we confidently expect for the future of our common country progressive prosperity, and that the Sovereign, the Government, officials, and the entire people will be bound together by unflagging fidelity. We entreat you all tenaciously to preserve your fidelity and act, think, and help to your utmost capacity as may be proper from all who are faithful. We entreat the power which is, or he who may be supreme in the universe, and the celestial beings, to preserve you, give you every prosperity, enable you to perform your official duties praise-worthily, supply you with abundance and bless you with righteousness and flourishing families.

P'ra-p'irendr-t'ape, who was sent to Tahk, on arriving at that province was received by the Government officials, and assisted to pursue his journey to the Laosian provinces connected with Chiengmai. All along the route the Siamese and Laosian officials rendered him every assistance in his journey and work.

All the prominent roads and passes to these provinces have been provided with a protective force to carry out the engagements of the Treaty recently negotiated with the Government of the British Indian Empire.

H.M. the Supreme King of Siam has appointed the following ten gentlemen as judges of the Court of Sahn rap-sang.

1. Phya Charoen-Ratchamaitree, N. C., a member of the Council of State, Chief Judge.
2. Phya Rahtsupahwadee, C. M. T. C. W., member of the Council of State.
3. Phya Rahcha-waranukul, T. C. W., N. C. P. M.
4. Phya Krasahpana Kichakohson, T. C. W., M. M., one of the Councilors of State.
5. Phya Bhashakarawongs, T. C. W., P. C., P. M., a Councillor of State.
6. Phya Rahsyot'ah, on of the Councillors of State.
7. Phya Indrat'ibaudee-Sriha-rahtraung muang, P. C.
8. Phra Indrat'ape, M. M., P. C.
9. Phra Maha Montree, T. C.
10. Phra P'irendratape, W. M.

These 10 are temporary judges of this Court, and have not been appointed for life. The time they shall serve depends wholly upon the Royal pleasure.

The place for holding their sessions will be at the sword armory, near the clock tower near the throne room, Anantasamak'om. Sessions commenced July 14th, 1874.

BORNEO.

SARAWAK.

A Committee of Administration was held on the 16th of July, at which the Acting Resident (Capt. Rodway), Commandant (Capt. Bacchus), Treasurer (Mr. J. Innes), Datu Bandar and Imaum were present.

The Rajah's despatch dated May 5th was read to the Members and fully explained.

It was determined that in accordance with instructions received from H. H. the Rajah that the handsome bronze bust, by T. Woolner, of H. H. the late Rajah Sir James Brooke (which was a tribute of respect raised by public subscription), should be removed from Astana, were it now stands, to the new Court-house. The place for the bracket was settled. It was decided that there should be no fresh demonstration, as this matter had been alluded to at the opening of the Court-house.

The Resident of Pontianak has stationed a detachment of soldiers and a gunboat at Madjang, under the orders of the Controller, for the purpose of putting a stop to the frequent raids made by the Dutch Dyaks upon the Dyaks of Batang, Lupar Residency.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 3rd Aug.; no later mail from London than June 19 had been received. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times:—

The rental of the new Clyde Terrace market was sold at public auction on the 13th inst., for five and a half months, to a Chinaman, for $370 per month. The farmer took possession on the 15th inst., and leases the stalls out daily, but has, we understand, so far not succeeded in obtaining sufficient stall-renters to cover his expenses, his income from the market amounting to only a little more than half what he has to pay for it. The market building is very pretty, the framework and roof being of iron, and the flooring a casing of granite, filled in with concrete, and covered with prepared asphalte. The meat-stands are iron frames, covered with black slate. There should be no difficulty in keeping the market clean, being perfectly open, having no woodwork about it, the flooring being high, and a deep well-made drain running all round the building. When the new fish-market is constructed and farmed together with this, it is anticipated they will yield a revenue of about $700 per month.

The removal of the General Post-office from its old to its present locality was a step in the right direction, which commends itself at once to everybody's common sense, and there are two other departments of Government whose transfer to Fort Fullerton is equally, if not more, desirable, and would be in accordance with the fitness of things, being departments which are in constant daily and hourly communication with the mercantile portion of the community, and which therefore ought to be in as close proximity with the square as possible. These departments are the Import and Export-office and Shipping-office. In making this suggestion and urging it upon Government there are several considerations which we think ought to be taken into account before any step is taken in the matter. In the first place, the accommodation provided in the new building for the Post-office may be all that is necessary and complete for that department, but in making it only of one storey it cannot be denied that there has been lamentable waste of valuable space on the part of Government, where the ground, limited as it is, ought to have been utilised with careful economy. In the second place, if the departments we have mentioned are removed to Fort Fullerton, then the opportunity ought to be taken to effect some reforms in the system on which one at least of these departments is conducted.

The Spanish steamer Mariveles, Captain de Zabala, from Manila 21st inst., with the Manila mails, arrived at Tanjong Pagar Wharf yesterday evening.

A cricket match between the Singapore Cricket Club and eleven from the men-of-war in harbour was commenced on the 22nd. The S.C.C. were the victors in a single innings.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

HANKOW.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer and Co.'s Report says:—A moderate business has been transacted here during the past week, settlements being—2,118 chests, 7,923 half-chests, 200 boxes, at 1s. 4½d. to 1s. 7d. per lb.; 2,137 chests, 1,268 half-chests, at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 4½d. per lb.; 429 half-chests at 1s. per lb. The principal sales of the week are of Cheong-sow-kai Tea, for which the market has opened at Tls. 22 to 24½, the favourite chops "Chuen-kut" and "Ping-hing" realising Tls. 24 to 24½ per picul respectively. They were settled last year at Tls. 23⅝, but with the difference in Exchange the laid down cost is about the same. At the same time the Teas are not as good as they were then. Other sales reported are, Soong-yong Tea, Tls. 23¼ to 23⅝; Low-yong, Tls. 21 to 22; Ping-kong, Tls. 18½ to 20; Wun-kye, Tls. 17 to 19½; Toong-shan, Tls. 19½ to 21½; Nip-car-see, Tls. 16½ to 18; and a Shun-tam Tea Tls. 13 per picul. Prices continue to range over last year's, and the market is very firm. Some good sales are reported from Shanghai, and Teamen are shipping rather largely there. Russians are the principal buyers here, their purchases being for the "Tchihatchoff." Export per latest Customs Returns:—Hankow Tea, 32,028,746 lbs.; Re-export Kiukiang Tea, 7,897,409 lbs.; total 39,926,155 lbs. Total of settlements at Hankow in first crop Teas Season 1874-75:—

SHANGHAI.—Black: The market had been fairly active during the week, but arrivals had been considerable, and prices closed rather easier than at the date of last mail. The business had been chiefly in second crops at about Tls. 24 to 28 for Oopacks, and Tls. 29 to 32 for Ningchows. Settlements, 21,423 chests. Stock, 21,000 chests. Prices paid had been:—Oopacks, &c., Tls. 20 to 28; Hohows and Ningchows, Tls. 19 to 36; Oonams and Oonfass, Tls. 19 to 25½. Green: Pingsueys were not in general request, but a fair business had been done, and teamen were willing sellers at the decline quoted in our last. A few chops of new Fychows (Taiping) Tea had been purchased at Tls. 33 to 36. They were of poor-make colour, but fair drawing quality. Settlements had been:—Fychows, Moyunes, &c., 1,052 half-chests, at Tls. 33 to 36; Pingsueys, 11,177 half-chests, at Tls. 24⅜ to 50; Shanghai-packed, 2,434 half-chests, at Tls. 29½ to 31; total, 14,663 half-chests. Stock, 21,600 half-chests. Export to Great Britain (lost cargoes included):—

FOOCHOW.—Messrs. Westall, Galton and Co.'s Weekly Letter reports a quieter feeling prevailing since the 11th July, and purchases on a more limited scale for all kinds, excepting Scented Teas, which continue to be much sought after. Congou: The first crop has all come to hand, and shows an excess over last season of 30,000 chests, a very large proportion of which consists of low broken leaf and dusty kinds, the extreme prices ruling at the opening of the market stimulating the supply. The bulk of late purchases consists of second crops, which are coming down, but slowly. The market closes quiet with a downward tendency. Souchong: Prices have again ruled rather in favour of buyers, and a fair amount of business has resulted. Oolongs: The settlements show no alteration. Flowery Pekoe: Only three parcels have been placed, two of which are for India, holders being firm and refusing to accept any decline. Scented Teas are still sought after, and large purchases have been made. The Chamber of Commerce Circular reports the settlements as follows:—Congou: Settlemnts, 40,900 chests, at Tls 4 to 27½. Souchong: Settlements 4,700 chests at Tls. 16½ to 41; arrivals, 3,300 chests.—Oolongs: Settlements, 3,400 half-chests at Tls. 16⅜ to 29; arrivals, 8,200 half-chests.—Scented Teas: Settlements, 10,300 boxes at Tls. 23 to Tls. 26½ for Caper, and Tls 24 to Tls. 28 for Orange Pekoe; arrivals, 7,000 boxes.—Flowery Pekoe: Settlements, 500 chests at Tls. 40 to Tls. 50; arrivals, 200 chests.

Naval and Military.

H.M.S. Audacious, which has been commissioned at Chatham by Capt. Colomb, late of the Dryad, as the flag ship of Rear-Admiral Ryder, who hoisted his flag as Commander-in-Chief on the China station at Portsmouth on the 1st inst., is an iron-clad of over 6,000 tons, and engines of 800-horse power. She is divided into five water-tight compartments, and is fitted with a formidable prow at her stem. Her length is 280 feet, beam 54 feet, and the loaded draft 24 feet. Her armament consists of ten guns of twelve tons, and two 64-pounders at the bow and stern; the armour platings are eight to six inches thick. The internal fittings are on a very complete scale for the climate. The main deck is ten feet high, fitted with large ports and scuttles; the sick bay we believe to be unequalled in size or ventilation in Her Majesty's fleet. The entire complement of the vessel will be 461 officers and men. We congratulate Admiral Ryder and the officers and men who have to serve on the station on the selection made by the Admiralty of the Audacious, and the efficient manner of her fitting-out. It is expected that she will be ready for sea early in October, when Admiral Ryder will embark with his staff and proceed to their destination. The officers appointed to the present time are as follows:—

*Captain—Philip H. Colomb. Commander—Cyprian A. G. Bridge Staff Commander—Frederic A. Johnston. Lieutenants—Adolphus F. St. Clair (Flag-Lieutenant), William McC. F. Castle, Herbert J. G. Garbett, the Hon. Francis R. Sandilands, James E. C. Goodrich, and William J. P. Graves. Sub-Lieutenants—Arthur R. M. Creagh, Francis J. Ommaney, and Powlett H. E. Hungerford. Navigating Sub-Lieutenant—Henry Brayer. Midshipmen—The Hon. Seymour J. Fortescue, Francis J. Stuart-Wortley, Egerton B. Cleeve, Frederic F. Fegan, Henry N. Thomson, Algernon H. Oliver, and Charles E. Baxter. Naval

* Capt. Colomb is the author of a work, "Slave Catching in Indian Seas," 1 H.M.S. Dryad.

The Vigilant, paddle despatch vessel, Lieut. Commander Ryder, which was commissioned on the 18th ult. as tender to the Audacious, is being fitted out at Portsmouth with all despatch.

The new ironclad turret ship El Plata, built for the Argentine Confederation, was launched on the 29th ult. at Messrs. Laird's shipyard, Birkenhead. The ship was christened by Sinorita Garcia, the daughter of Senor Garcia, Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States, and now in England on business of the Confederation. Senor Garcia was present with a large party of friends at the lunch which followed. In responding to the toast of success to the El Plata and the flag she carries, he expressed the warmest friendship for England, which had been, he said, the first great Power to recognise the independence of the Argentine Republic, and had proved the best friend it had in the world. Senior Frias also expressed friendship for this country. The El Plata is heavily armoured, and will carry twelve of the largest guns. She is now in dock, where she will receive her engines.

A good service pension has been conferred upon Colonel F. G. Kempster, Madras Staff Corps, with effect from April last, in room of Major-General L. Barrow, C.B., who has succeeded to the Colonel's allowance. Colonel Kempster was appointed Ensign, 1837; Lieutenant, 1840; Captain, 1853; Major, 1861; Lieutenant-Colonel, 1863; Brevet-Colonel, 1868. He served with the expedition to China, 1842, and was present at the assault and storming of Ching-kiang.

Mr. W. H. White, engineer, R.N., who has been appointed to the Audacious, the new flagship on the China station, has received a vot of thanks from the Working Men's Conservative Club at Portsmouth "for his regular attendance at their meetings, as well as for the valuable assistance he rendered to the Conservative cause at the last election."

Brevet-Major W. C. O'Shaughnessy, who, since 1869, has been serving as assistant military secretary to Major-General H. W. Whitfeild, commander-in-chief in China, is about to join the first battalion of his regiment, the 12th, now serving at Kinsale.

Lieut. W. H. Chippindall, Royal Engineers, has proceeded to join Col. Gordon's Expedition in Central Africa. He was specially applied for by Col. Gordon.

H.M.S. Challenger has completed the soundings between Sydney and New Zealand, and will probably arrive at Hong Kong in December.

Miscellaneous.

RIFLES AND AMMUNITION FOR CHINA.—The Times Paris correspondent writes:—"The Marseilles packet of 31st Aug. conveyed sixty-eight chests of Remington rifles, 1,300 in all. These rifles came from the entrepôt of Cherbourg, and were destined for Shanghai. A battery of six pieces Montagne has just been despatched from Germany, via Belfort, for Foochow. It will be embarked at Marseilles on the packet of the 6th. The Messageries Company having refused to take 4,000,000 cartridges from Cherbourg, Mr. Morris, of the Boulevard des Capucines, offered a Havre steamer which would embark at Cherbourg 5,000 to 6,000 Remington rifles and 5,000,000 cartridges. The steamer is now loading at Havre, whence it will proceed to London to take in a cargo of arms and military equipments. Other Montagne cannons will shortly be despatched. The wheels and gun-carriages will be sent from France, and are all in readiness, their destination being Foochow and Shanghai. A German is at the head of these expeditions."

THE P. and O. Company's steamer Cathay, Captain Dundas, arrived at Southampton on the 6th inst., with the heavy India, China, and Australia mails, and 133 passengers. She brought £580,000 in specie, 2,076 packages of silk, 5,148 chests, 2,587 half-chests, and 17,141 boxes of tea, and 772 packages of sundries. The Cathay left Shanghai 12th; Hong Kong, 18th; Singapore, 25th; Penang, 27th July; Galle, 5th; Aden, 16th; Suez, 22nd; Alexandria, 25th; Malta, 28th Aug.; and Gibraltar, Sept. 1. Her Majesty ship Frolic was at Shanghai; the Elk, Swinger, Opossum, and Princess Charlotte at Hong Kong; the Cadmus, Basilisk, Charybdis, and Hart at Singapore, the Cadmus homeward bound; the Avon at Penang.

THE Chinese Government some time ago complained that an American naval officer was engaged with the Japan Government against Formosa, which was considered an offence against China. In order to remove the cause of complaint the Navy Department has revoked the leave of absence heretofore granted to Lieutenant Commander Cassell, and he will, therefore, withdraw from the expedition, on which he was only a volunteer.

MESSRS. CALDWELL AND BRERETON, solicitors of Hong Kong, announce that as Alfred Kirchner, Heinrich Boger, and Christian Friedrich Grosemann, lately trading under the firm of Kirchner, Boger and Co., have assigned all their estate and effects to Adolf Andre and Carl Wilhelm Seigfried, of Victoria, Hong Kong, the trustees for the creditors, all creditors of the late firm should send in their claims to the trustees, or their solicitors, before the 1st of November next.

THE Imperial College at Tokio, Japan, and the other Government schools have lately held their annual examinations, and vacation has commenced, to continue until September next. Professor M. M. Scott, formerly a teacher at the Rincon School, in San Francisco, has been Principal of the Japanese Norman School, and has proved himself an efficient teacher and a particularly successful organiser of great value to the Japanese.

MR. CAMPBELL, Secretary to the Commissioners of Maritime Customs, was the delegate from China attending the conference held in London last week for the discussion of subjects connected with maritime meteorology.

THE China Trans-Pacific Steamship Company's steamer Vancouver arrived at San Francisco, from Yokohama and Hong Kong 5th inst. The Vasco de Gama sailed from Hong Kong, for Yokohama and San Francisco 3rd inst.

THE Pacific Mail steamship Colima arrived at Yokohama on the 2nd ult. Her sailing time from San Francisco was seventeen days and thirteen hours, being the quickest passage ever made between these ports.

THE Japanese Secretary in Vienna has arrived with his wife at Aix-les-Bain. From this watering-place he intends proceeding to Berne, in order to be present at the International Postal Conference.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

HAMBURG, AUGUST 31.

The Bank of Prussia has given notice that all bills brought to them for discount and falling due in 1875 must be drawn in the new currency. According to the returns compiled to be laid before the Federal Council the thirty-four Banks of Issue in Germany had on the 31st October, 1873, a paid-up capital of 130,833,000 thalers, and their notes in circulation were 441,500,000 ditto, of which only 298,300,000 were covered by bullion, coin, and securities.

The filial establishments at Hamburg and Bremen of the Deutsche Bank (Action Gesellshaft) have been so successful in their financial operations this year, that in the term ending June 30th they had made a clear profit of 9 per cent., or at the rate of 18 per cent. per annum, whilst the dividend of that bank last year was only 4 per cent. The value of the shares has not been given for some time past in this market, but now they are quoted in the official share list at 89½ to 90 per cent.

The Berliner Volks-Zeitung of the 6th inst. publishes an article on Chinese coolie labour, chiefly with reference to Peru and Salangore; but as it contains only extracts from a South-American paper to the glorification of Mr. Meiggs, the enterprising contractor for the Peruvian Railways, and partly from some remarks of your contemporary, the Hour, à propos of the new company formed for the purpose of working the tin mines in the Malay Peninsula, I need not enter further into the subject.

Some young Japanese are to be sent at the charge of their Government to Pilsen in Bohemia to learn the art of brewing. The Japanese Ambassador at Vienna, Sano Tsunatami, on his return from Carlsbad, stopped a couple of days at Pilsen to inspect the Great Joint-Stock Company Brewery there, and was so much pleased with the quality of their beer that he gave them an order for a considerable quantity to be sent out to Japan for the use of the Court there, and asked the Director if he would instruct some of the young Japanese now on their way to Europe, which was willingly agreed to, and his Excellency promised to send him some of them on their arrival.

The New York Handels-Zeitung states that the appointment of a number of American citizens to the Japanese service and employed in the expedition to Formosa, has given rise to reclamations and complaints on the part of the Chinese Government, who consider such conduct as a breach of neutrality.

The Copenhagen journal Folkets-Avis announces that in a very short time, and partly in fulfilment of the wish of the Chinese Government, a Minister Plenipotentiary will be accredited with the sovereigns of China and Japan to protect the interests of the Danish subjects in those countries and the shareholders of the Great Northern Telegraph Company.

It will no doubt be interesting to many of your readers to learn that the beautiful Gothic structure of the Church of St. Nicholas, designed and executed by Sir George Gilbert Scott, of London, has been finally completed, and was inaugurated on the 26th inst., in the presence of members of the Senate, the diplomatic body, the civil, ecclesiastical, and military authorities, and a large concourse of spectators. The architect was also present, having come over on purpose to witness the imposing ceremony. The old church, on whose site the present one is constructed, was burned down in the great conflagration that destroyed nearly one-half of this city in 1843, since which it has risen like a Phœnix from its ashes, and is now become one of the handsomest cities in Europe.

The seat of the Imperial German Consulate at Foochow has been removed to Amoy, and includes in its Consular jurisdiction the province of Fookien and the island of Formosa. This is officially gazetted under date of the 15th inst.

Herr E. von Leesen, a native of this city resident at Nagasaki, is appointed German Consul at that port.

Messrs. Krummel and Militzy of this city, who failed, with liabilities to the sum of 790,000 marks, have the greatest liabilities in London, Manchester, and other parts of England.

THE PRINCE OF KUNG'S DESPATCH ON THE WOOSUNG BAR QUESTION.

NEVER in the whole course of our experience of Chinese diplomacy have we seen so plain-spoken a document as this. However much the excuses put forward in it may be ridiculed in the present days of progress, it is impossible not to admire the definite and tangible terms of the despatch, and we trust that on all questions which may arise in the future the reasons given by the Chinese authorities for the course they adopt will be equally explicit. The views entertained by the Southern Superintendent of Trade and the Prince of KUNG on the subject of treaty obligations are, to say the least of them, somewhat novel and curious. The former official, not over familiar in all probability with the text of the treaties, seizes upon Article XX. of the British Treaty, which after all he quotes incorrectly, and points out that, although the Chinese are bound to come to the aid of British vessels which may be unlucky enough to get stranded on the coast, yet the article in question "says nothing about digging out the sand bars on which these vessels are stranded!" We should have been surprised if it had done so, and we think that Lord ELGIN could hardly have contemplated the possibility of this article ever being employed in such a comical way, or, perhaps, he would have been still more exact in the language he used. Indeed, the notions of the Southern Superintendent of Trade on the subject of the article would scarcely be worth even this passing allusion but for the notable conclusion at which he arrives in consequence of his lucubrations. "It is plain enough," he says in the rather lame translation before us, "that the only feasible "way to do is to build the ships to draw more or less "water according as the entrance of the port is deep or "shallow." If we do not adopt the advice given us by this very enlightened official, our steamers and sailing vessels must be content to follow the example of the Chinese junks. They anchor, he tells us, when they come to a shallow spot, and the boatmen go to sleep on the ship's bow, quietly waiting till the tide rises, when they sound the rattles and go on their course as they like. This is a method of proceeding which will naturally commend itself to the captains of our mail packets and trading steamers, to whom, of course, time is no object, and to whom a delay of a few hours cannot possibly cause any serious inconvenience.

Turn we now to the Prince of KUNG'S ideas of treaty obligations. His Imperial Highness, during his long tenure of office, has had occasion to make himself well acquainted with the text of the treaties and conventions with foreign powers, and he is not so foolish as to blunder about the twentieth article of our treaty, which has no particular bearing on the question at issue. So, ignoring the nonsensical and crude view expressed by his subordinate, and prompted, doubtless, by the hidden influences which teach him VATTEL, and instil into his mind some diluted and hazy ideas about International Law, he boldly pins his faith upon "Art. 10 of the Trade Regulations, wherein the dis- "tribution of lights, buoys, beacons, and the like at all the "ports and their maintenance are provided for out of the "tonnage dues, but no mention is made of dredging the "channels." The Prince is literally correct; no mention is made of dredging the channels; but did he never arrive at the true meaning and import of Art. 32 of the British Treaty, and of that portion of the tenth Trade Regulation which he quotes with such unction as a knock-down argument? Did it never occur to him and his advisers that the obligation thus imposed upon the Chinese was the facilitating of navigation in every conceivable way? Surely the clearing and deepening of the channels leading to such an important centre of commerce as Shanghai are necessary to facilitate navigation. What will be the use of lights, buoys, beacons, and the like, if the Chinese are to allow the approaches to the harbour to be blocked up? And why—as the Chinese authorities are so anxious on this occasion, when they think it will serve their purpose, to keep to what appears to them to be the literal and proper interpretation of their treaty obligations—why, we ask, should we not maintain, and maintain successfully, that the dredging of channels is covered by the generalisation which we have placed in italics? In our own country, if an important harbour, or the entrance to it, shoals at all, we expect to see, and we do see, the dredging machine do its work with as much regularity as the lighthouse; and why should it not be so in China? If Lord ELGIN had ever conceived the possibility of the Chinese becoming such dolts, and so blind to their own interests as to refuse to keep the channels to their ports free and clear for the navigation of foreign ships, from which they derive such enormous advantages, we doubt not that he would have gone a little more into detail in the wording of Art. 32 of our Treaty, and that he would have specifically mentioned dredging machines and other necessary appliances for keeping the harbours of the open ports of China, as well as the approaches thereto, in a fit and proper state for use by vessels of all sizes. How does the Prince of KUNG reconcile the position which he now takes up with Mr. WADE'S despatch to Earl GRANVILLE, dated July 22nd, 1872, in which our Minister states that he finds on enquiry "that Mr. HART "had been authorised by the [Tsung-li] yamên to expend "a considerable sum upon a dredging apparatus to be em- "ployed specially at Woosung?" Mr. HART'S position in this matter is to us quite inexplicable if what is stated by the North China Herald of June 27 be literally true, viz., that "when pressed lately on the subject of dredging the "Woosung Bar, the Tsung-li yamên quoted a despatch of "Mr. HART'S to the effect that they might as well throw "money into the river as undertake that work."

We expressed our views on the subject of the tonnage dues several weeks ago, and we hope that our remarks on that occasion may have been translated for the benefit of the Chinese authorities, and that they will profit by them. We are still of opinion that a portion of this fund ought to be employed for such purposes as dredging bars and harbours, for if the tonnage dues are not to be employed for such and similar purposes it is high time that they were materially reduced, if not altogether abolished. Why is it that the Chinese are so hopelessly, so idiotically obstructive in such matters as these? They admit now in the most unequivocal terms the obligations they are under to provide and maintain lights, buoys, and beacons, but any one whose experience of the country dates from but a few years back will remember the trouble there was to induce them to adopt even this limited interpretation of what it was always unmistakably their bounden duty to do. The Prince of KUNG is unfortunate in his allusion to the rights of nations governing their own countries, and it is sheer nonsense for him to say that "at the entrance of the "Woosung river there used to be forts, and now the river "has made itself a bank which may be regarded as not only "like a bar in a gate, but as a defence placed there by "Heaven, and to be taken in the sense of a protection."

We need say nothing about the engineering difficulties raised in the despatch under consideration, for it is sufficiently notorious that the Chinese are not gifted with the ability necessary to cope successfully with such difficulties, and are in consequence naturally timid about them; but if they would only avail themselves of the skill and science which foreigners would most readily and gladly place at their disposal, they would soon find that these difficulties are not by any means insurmountable, and further, they would be able afterwards to deal more effectually with the vagaries of the Yellow River and other streams which now annually cause incalculable ruin and desolation in various parts of the Empire.

A word in conclusion upon one or two matters incidentally raised in the course of this despatch. The Southern Superintendent of Trade, at the close of his notable report, exhibits some ignorance of the mysteries of tonnage dues, for he says that he has thought the matter over and over, and finally believes that it cannot now be undertaken, because, apart from "the flood tide "causing the bar to grow, it is not easy to provide the "means." Had the Chinese, if the tonnage dues were not sufficient for the purpose—a most unlikely eventuality, —only employed upon works of practical utility like this a few of the many millions of taels which they have squandered on dockyards, arsenals, and matters relating thereto, there would have been no lack of money available for an occasion like the present, and they would have thereby been saved the disgrace and humiliation of making such an impotent and ridiculous figure before the world as they have done in their quarrel with the Japanese. In this matter of what avail have been (we quote the words of the Prince's despatch) "preparations of an army, raising up marines, building up forts," frigates, gunboats, Dahlgren guns of Nanking manufacture, home-made Remington rifles, &c., &c. ? Of a surety they had far better have spent the money thus wasted to no purpose on the "dredging of channels" and in stopping and providing against the frightful calamities caused by inundations; for if after all their vast expenditure on arsenals and warlike matériel they cannot successfully oppose a descent on Formosa by a comparatively petty power like Japan, what will they do if they have a stronger enemy to deal with ? They may rest assured that their Heaven-sent defence will not stand them in good stead, however much it may appear to the Chinese mind to be "like a bar in a gate."

RUSSIA AND CHINA.

JUDGING from the tenor of a telegram from The Times correspondent at Berlin, which we published in our last issue, there would seem to be some chance of a collision between the Russians and the Chinese on the extreme north-western boundary of the latter Empire. We speak thus guardedly, for it is not by any means easy at first sight to grasp the true significance of the news we have received, and, in point of fact, its real import depends, to some extent, on the actual condition of matters with regard to the Kulja district, which, we may mention, is now called Prulinsk on the best maps. It has been the fashion to call this the Russian province of Kulja, and to speak of it as having been annexed by that Power in 1872; but the most recent intelligence from that remote part of the world, which has been brought by a traveller who has lately been there, states that the Russians themselves do not claim it as a province, but merely exercise a protectorate over it in consequence of the internal dissensions existing there three or four years ago, and that the district in question is still an integral portion of the Chinese Empire. We are bound to say that such a curious state of things is somewhat difficult of comprehension, but many matters connected with Chinese statesmanship and policy are even more difficult of comprehension. The telegram says that the Russian Government has determined to construct a military road from Semipalatinsk to the Chinese frontier, but this is very indefinite, for the road may run due south or in a south-easterly direction, in the former case, we suppose, passing through Kulja, which is fully 450 miles from Semipalatinsk. The Chinese troops are said to be "threatening the new Russian province of Kulja," and to be "stationed on the Semipalatinsk frontier." This, again, is indefinite, and at the same time unintelligible, for if the Chinese were simply threatening Prülinsk, why should they be at the trouble of going to the north to the Semipalatinsk frontier when a comparatively easy road—the Tien Shan Pei-lu—leading direct to the town of Kulja, is open to them ? We confess that we are at a loss to understand the matter taken from this point of view, for it seems to us to involve some serious improbabilities. A solution of the difficulty suggests itself which would account for the appearance of Chinese troops in a position which may involve them in trouble with Russia. It is well known that our new ally, YAKOOB BEG, the de facto Ameer of Kashgar, has been pushing his forces eastward along the Tarim, and casting greedy eyes on portions of the outlying Chinese province of Ili, and that a Chinese corps of observation—if such a term can be given to the rabble which, in the opinion of the Celestials, constitutes an army—has been for some time past stationed at Hami watching events. Now, the Ameer's line of march would lie along the Tarim Kul, to the south of Prülinsk or the Kulja district, in what is called the Tien Shan Nan-lu; and it is suggested that the Chinese are probably executing a strategical move—if, indeed, they are capable of such a thing—and having taken the Tien Shan Pei-lu, have marched westward from Hami, intending to cross the Kulja valley, or else to work round the north of the district under Russian protection, and then to strike south, and cut off the Ameer's retreat. This view presents an intelligible reason for the Chinese appearing to threaten the Semipalatinsk frontier.

WITH considerable satisfaction we call attention to a telegram in another column, announcing that the differences between the Chinese and Japanese in regard to the raid on Formosa, have been adjusted without recourse to hostilities. There are many who will regret this peaceable solution of the difficulty, for there are in China and Japan a number of foreign rowdies and would-be filibusters, who regard such an opportunity lost as a great calamity. Merchants also rival each other in the supply of arms and ammunition, and the competition affords an opportunity for showing up the worst features of the trading class. Although a brush between the two countries would have caused a stir in some branches, there is no doubt but that our trade on the whole would have suffered considerably. By another telegram, in regard to the purchase of the Danish ironclad, we see that the contract is not likely to be carried through, and this is no doubt owing to the receipt of the news noticed.

A LETTER from Yokohama in the Cologne Gazette says that the Koreans seem determined to provoke the Japanese to make war upon them. The old antagonism between the two nations is embittered by the acceptance of European institutions by the Japanese, and Korea, which is strongly opposed to these novelties, has manifested its dissatisfaction by destroying some fishermen's villages in the Japanese islands opposite the Korean coast. The Koreans have built extensive fortifications, and armed them with rifled cannon; their army is tolerably well equipped, and it is being trained by Chinese instructors who have served under European officers — chiefly Frenchmen — in the Chinese army.

MR. NACAYAMA, who has been for some time Japanese Consul at Venice and Milan, has been withdrawn. It is clear that the Japanese Government have decided on a considerable retrenchment in the way of Embassies and Consulates, which have been opened up rather at random and at great cost. As usual in such cases, they now proceed to the other extreme. Considering the great interest that silk and its culture is to the Japanese, we think it a mistake to close the Consulate at Milan. H.E. SANO is still travelling on the Continent, but will probably return to Japan early in October with Baron VON SIEBOLD.

BY the last mail from the Straits we observe that the telegram sent out in July in reference to the Treaty of Perak was misquoted. REUTER'S inform us it was telegraphed out on the authority of the China Telegraph. Up to the present it has not been ratified, but there is no doubt that it will be on the return of Lord CARNARVON.

THE French Minister of Public Instruction has lately received from KIDO, who is the head of the Department of Public Education in Japan, a letter, thanking the French Government for the gift of a series of French works on History and Agriculture, and promising to send in return a number of Japanese books of similar kind.

Literature.

Mr. Henry S. Munroe has just published, in connection with the geological survey, his report on the Yesso coal. "It will be seen," he says, "that these Japanese coals are widely removed in composition from all coals of similar age, and can be compared with the best carboniferous coals; they are, therefore, neither lignites nor brown coals, but true bituminous coals."

The Athenæum says:—A great literary curiosity is now for sale at Peking. It consists of a copy of a gigantic work, composed of 6,109 volumes, entitled "An Imperial Collection of Ancient and Modern Literature." This huge encyclopædia was commenced during the reign of the Emperor Kang-he (1662-1722), and was printed at the Imperial Printing Office, where a complete fount of copper type was cast for the purpose. Its contents are arranged under thirty-two divisions, and embrace every subject dealt with within the range of Chinese literature. Unfortunately, the greater part of the type employed in printing the work was, after the publication of the first edition, purloined by dishonest officials, and the remaining portion was melted down to be coined into cash. The result is that very few copies are now in existence, and still fewer ever come into the market. The price asked for the present copy by the Chinese owner is, we believe, about £4,000.

Sir Rutherford Alcock's pen is becoming so very prolific that we can hardly keep pace with him; at the same time it is pleasant to find that, though he has retired from active service, his thoughts are still earnestly and ever directed to that part of the world in which he has spent so many years of his life. It is but the other day that we drew attention to Sir Rutherford's long letter in the Pall Mall Gazette, and now we have before us a still longer and still more important paper by him in Macmillan's Magazine for September. Sir Rutherford commences by giving an interesting and rapid survey of Central Asian matters. In this he naturally finds occasion to speak of the manner in which the Chinese try to prevent our crossing their inland frontier, and knowing as we do the views which he takes on questions relating to China—views, too, which are usually antagonistic to our own—we are somewhat surprised to find him concluding this portion of his essay with the following sentences:—"Hostility begets hostility, and injurious action along the whole Chinese inland borders cannot be compensated by a forced admission of a right of trade on the coast. The manifest contradiction between the two only tends to prove a total misapprehension on the part of China of the rights of nations in mutual intercourse." Sir Rutherford next turns his attention to China Proper and Japan, but more particularly the former, and he discusses at great length "what is now passing there, and the tendency as well as the aim of the progress observable." In the course of his remarks he speaks in the highest terms of commendation of the administrative ability and energy of Mr. Hart, the Inspector General of Customs, and he has a word to say in defence of the course pursued by the Chinese in regard to the dredging of the Woosung Bar. In this connection, when speaking of the inadequacy of the tonnage dues of 1872 to pay for a work of such magnitude, he entirely omits to allude to the enormous accumulations of bygone years, in which lighthouses were not, and buoys and beacons were few and far between. We must not omit to mention that at the conclusion of his paper Sir Rutherford incidentally furnishes Messrs. Bryant and May with a capital advertisement for their lucifer matches.

Under the title of "Up the Grand Canal of China" the current number of the Atlantic Monthly contains an article which is very remarkable for the hopeless inaccuracy of its nomenclature. The blunders, indeed, are so continuous that the responsibility for them can hardly be shifted on to the shoulders of the printer; besides, the article bears date early in May of last year, so that a proof might have been corrected in any part of the world. When we took up the magazine we not unnaturally expected to find an account of a journey from Soochow to Tientsin, but we were mistaken. The writer went from Shanghai to Soochow, and thence to Tenyan (? Tan-yang); from that place he walked to Chinkiang, as his boat had got entangled in one of those blocks which are not uncommon in the canal. Of the Grand Canal we hear no more! The writer went by steamer up to Hankow and back to Shanghai, making a trip to one of the Kiukiang tea districts, en route; from Shanghai he found his way to Peking. Had we not been intimately and personally acquainted with nearly all the places named we should have been sorely puzzled to recognise them in their strange garb. Further, the chief Chinese official residing at Shanghai is repeatedly spoken of as the Tantai!

The Cornhill Magazine contains a delightfully complete and interesting article on the Danish National Theatre. The Danes have had for more than a century a State-supported theatre in Copenhagen, and what is more important, they have been blessed with men of sufficient dramatic genius to give them an original and individual drama. In this last respect Denmark stands alone among the small nations of Europe. The writer in the Cornhill has been led to take a survey of the Danish drama at this particular time by an event of some importance in its history—the demolition, to make way for a more spacious building, of the old theatre upon whose stage have been produced all the plays of the famous national dramatists. And the Danish stage differs very notably from our modern stage in this respect, that it has always commanded the services of the most distinguished poets.

The September number of the Geographical Magazine contains "Routes to the North Polar Regions," by Admiral Sherard Osborn, the fourth of Captain J. E. Davis's series of papers on the "Voyage of the Challenger," and a "Contribution to Cyclone History." There is also a curious note on "Tea Culture in Japan as Affected by Ocean Currents," and a notice, from an R.G.S. point of view, of Mr. W. D. Cooley's notable pamphlet on "Dr. Livingstone and the Royal Geographical Society." From the "Log Book" we learn that, when on Aug. 1 the Presidents of the R.S. and R.G.S. had an interview with Mr. Disraeli on the subject of the Arctic Expedition in 1875, "the Prime Minister asked numerous questions and promised to read the papers that were left with him, and to consider the subject carefully with a view to its early decision."

Mr. F. O. Adams, Secretary to the British Embassy at Berlin, has just completed the second volume of his "History of Japan from the Earliest Period to the Present Time." It is to appear in October, and carries on the history of Japan from 1865 to 1871.

The September number of Art contains sketches of Antony and Cleopatra, Age, and Scottish Deer Hounds. All these are excellent, and the letter-press, by the editor, Mr. Forbes Robertson, is very interesting and instructive.

In the Gentleman's Magazine for September "Olympia" and "A Rambling Story" continue to be the main features of interest. A paper of John Poole, the author of "Paul Pry," is very readable.

THE JAPANESE IN FORMOSA.

(SATURDAY REVIEW.)

A threatened quarrel between China and Japan is a symptom of the vast processes of change which have supplied to the present generation an unprecedented variety of political experience. Both States had long been regarded as strange and almost unintelligible instances of an ancient and stagnant civilisation. The trade of China was valuable both to the East India Company while it enjoyed a monopoly, and to the merchants who eventually succeeded in removing the former restrictions. In Japan, according to popular legend, the Dutch were allowed a limited intercourse on condition of trampling on the Cross; and it was more certain that all other foreigners were absolutely excluded from the kingdom. The extraordinary aptitude of the Japanese for the adoption of novel practices and modes of thought could by no possibility have been anticipated, even if the remarkable literature of which only a few specimens have been since translated had been known to foreigners. The Chinese also have been profoundly influenced by the results of two unsuccessful wars. If the Chinese, who are naturally indifferent to danger, once succeed in organising their forces after the European fashion, their enormous numbers will render them extremely formidable. It was always difficult to believe except in a vague and careless manner, that three or four hundred millions of people acknowledged the authority of a single Government. Except by a great superiority of arms and discipline, no existing State would find itself a match for China. The Japanese came within reach of Western influences much later than their neighbours; but they have since made far more rapid progress. The Chinese and Japanese are perhaps equal in military qualities, but the resources of China are inexhaustible. If it is not thought prudent to engage in a naval contest, the Chinese will find little difficulty in landing troops in Formosa, who will be supported by the native population. The territory and the harbours of Formosa might perhaps be valuable if they could be safely acquired, and the substitution of a more civilised race for the piratical inhabitants would tend to general advantage; but no acquisition of the kind could be worth the risk of a serious quarrel with China. If the Japanese navy is employed elsewhere in the repression of piracy in the Eastern seas, the commerce of all countries will be greatly benefited. It is not known whether the Government of Japan has reasons of domestic policy for undertaking aggressive enterprises. It is highly probable that recent changes may have created discontent which it may be thought prudent to divert into the channel of foreign enterprise; and Japan is showing itself sufficiently like Europe to render conquest and military fame the most certain foundations of popularity. The national feeling, if it has been consulted by the Government, will perhaps be satisfied by the attainment of the original object of the expedition; and withdrawal in deference to Chinese remonstrances may easily be explained away. On the other hand, it is possible that the invasion of Formosa may have been part of a deliberate policy for gratifying the national ambition and forming an efficient army. It is impossible to foresee the immediate result of a war between Japan and China, though the greater Power would in the long run almost certainly succeed. It would be difficult for the Western Governments to remain indifferent to the injuries which would be inflicted on commerce and to the diplomatic complications which might probably arise.

Should the political complications in the Far East not be unravelled by some afterthoughts of diplomacy, the world must be prepared for a strange spectacle—an naval war between two purely Oriental Powers. The Imperial Governments of China and of Japan each claim a territorial sovereignty over the extensive and luxuriant island of Formosa, which, geographically speaking, is more closely allied with the former than with the latter, while, from the point of view of history, its relations with Japan are of the most shadowy and traditional character. Under no circumstances could we anticipate a collision of the true Asiatic kind between two armadas of junks, painted, high-pooped, with temples on their decks, and double-sworded warriors chanting heroic songs; for the East is becoming less Eastern every day; the mysteries of interior Japan have been dissipated; no longer are mariners awed by miles of white calico batteries daubed with black representations of port-holes, as in the epoch when Thunberg travelled; war steamers are among the arsenals of those immemorial nations, and their orders are transmitted to Europe for Krupp's guns of the largest calibre. The Chinese, pitted against any Asiatic population—the military castes of India excepted—are formidable enough in the field, and their fortifications and castramentation are not, regarded in such a light, contemptible; but they are less maritime in their experience than the Japanese, and both nations suffer from the long and deliberate discouragement by their several Governments of naval architecture. The actual dispute, however, is a striking sign of the times. It is not pretended that China wants additional territory. Populous though the empire be, there exist immense tracts capable of maintaining their millions almost without number. Nor is the vast dominion of the Vermilion Pencil poor in the matter of frontiers, since it enjoys, perhaps, the widest in the world; but it wants outlets, and the Japanese have hit upon the same secret. With them the object is less to possess Formosa than to exclude the Chinese from the island.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Times writes:—Copies, said to be authentic, of correspondence which has passed between the Japanese and Chinese on the subject of the Formosan occupation have lately found their way into the native newspaper here, and translations have appeared in the local foreign press. The most important of these is a letter purporting to have been addressed by the Chinese Tsungliyamen to the Minister for Foreign Affairs in Japan. It admits that the question of a mission to Formosa by the Japanese did come up for discussion when Soyeshima, the Japanese Minister, was in Peking, but asserts that all that passed was only in the nature of a conversation, and that the proposition, as put before the Chinese, was simply to send a peaceful mission to the aborigines in order to induce them to treat chance visitors from Japan to Loochoo with humanity, the Japanese Minister having particularly observed, on "shaking hands" to take leave, that there should be no intrusion on either part upon the other's territory. The Hong Kong papers have given publicity to another interesting document, which, if authentic, somewhat contradicts the Tsungliyamen's letter just noticed, as to the nature of the understanding come to with the Japanese Minister at Peking. It professes to give the text of the instructions sent by the Privy Council of Peking to Shen, the Commissioner, associating with him the Viceroy and Commander-in-Chief of Fukhien, the Viceroy of Kiangsu, and Li-Hung-chang, the Viceroy of Chili. Referring to the visit of the Japanese Minister, it declares that nothing transpired with regard to the Formosan aborigines during the negotiations at Peking, and ascribes the expedition to an afterthought, induced solely by an evil lust for Chinese territory, on the part of the Japanese. The high functionaries addressed are therefore directed to adopt all necessary measures of precaution and defence, but to be careful in no way to provoke hostilities. They are, at the same time, instructed to maintain order throughout the island, and so to administer its affairs as to conciliate and reclaim the savages, in order that they may be utilised, as far as possible, in the protess of protecting the country from foreign invasion.

The Hour says it is hard to ascertain what are the respective warlike capabilities of the two empires. It may be urged on the one hand that the resources of China are practically illimitable, and that when once the Chinese forces can be thrown on Formosa, or upon the Japanese group itself, they will crush the armies of Japan without mercy. But this theory must be qualified by the consideration that Japan, although inferior on land, is rapidly becoming a naval power of the highest class. Even if the Japanese cannot successfully invade China, their ironclads and gunboats can prevent the landing of the Chinese forces on the shores of Formosa, and can sweep Chinese commerce from the seas. Opinions differ as to the relative military qualities of the Chinese and the soldiers of Japan. We ourselves are disposed to form a high estimate of the Japanese character, and to believe that, in the teeth of mandarin traditions, they are a hardier, a more interesting, and a more promising race than the millions who crowd the exhausted Empire of China. But hostile critics contrast the courage and discipline of the "Ever-Victorious Army" under "Chinese Gordon" with the timid and disorderly conduct of the Japanese troops who were ordered to suppress the Saga insurrection. If we balance military experience by naval superiority we are led to believe that the rival Powers are fairly pitted against each other.

(NEW YORK TIMES.)

To punish these barbarians, and if possible secure protection to the shipwrecked mariners of all nations, the Japanese Government has undertaken an armed expedition to the island. The war-junks of ancient Japan play no part in this naval raid; it is conducted wholly by steam-vessels, bought or chartered by the Government, and built after approved European or American models. These "fire-ships" seem to have alarmed the Formosans, and late accounts say that they fled to their fastnesses in great terror. Admiral Pennock, in a communication to our own Government, says that the Chinese Government, which still retains a feeble hold upon Formosa, has ordered the expeditionary forces to leave. Furthermore, it is said that the Peking Government has vigorously remonstrated against the prosecution of hostilities in Formosa, and has given a warlike notice to Japan. There is prospect of war, and both parties are said to be actively preparing therefor. This was anticipated by our Government; and Minister Bingham solemnly warned Americans in Japan against engaging in the expedition, which was notoriously against a Chinese province. Notwithstanding this notice, Gen. Le Gendre, formerly United States Consul at Amoy, and a United States officer, Lieut. Cassell, of the navy, went on the expedition. We do not anticipate, however, that any serious difficulty will arise from this little unpleasantness. China is in a torpid condition. Province after province has slipped out of her possession; Formosa has been semi-independent for a hundred years past. The wide-awake Japanese have attempted to chastise the people in the interest of humanity. China could not do it. The world will be glad if Japan can.

Monetary and Commercial.

Tenders for £500,000 in bills on India were received at the Bank on the 2nd inst. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £467,000; to Bombay, £30,000; and to Madras, £3,000. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10d. will receive about 62 per cent., and on Bombay at that price in full. These figures show a trifling diminution in the demand for the means of remittance to the East.

Subscriptions are invited for 21,491 Bonds of £20 each, or £429,820 of Five per Cent. Russian Land Mortgage Bonds of the Charkoff Agrarian Bank, at the price of £16 4s. (or, reckoning allowances, £15 19s.) per £20 bond, being equal to 79¼ per cent. The Bonds are to bearer, and the instalments extend to the 21st of December. A cumulative sinking fund of ½ per cent. is to provide for their redemption at par in forty-nine years.

Frankfort advices describe some revival of animation on the Bourse during the last week or two, money being more than ever abundant. Speculators, however, look almost in vain for some channel of operations. All investment stocks are very high and scarce. Shares of the new banks have slightly recovered, but the public at large keep aloof from such undertakings. The new Bank law, as contemplated by the Chancellor, has led to much discussion, and is said to be unlikely to pass in its present form.

We understand that the P. and O. Company have agreed to take a cargo of coals from the Lingga coal mines in Borneo, and should it prove satisfactory steps will be taken to form a company and work the mines in a full and complete manner.

The Eastern Telegraph Company's traffic receipts for the month of August amounted to £31,265, against £28,091 for the corresponding period of 1873. The traffic receipts of the Eastern Extension 1874, Australasia and China Telegraph Company (Limited) for the month amounted to £19,697, and to £19,219 for the corresponding period of 1873.

The Great Northern Telegraph Company's traffic receipts for the month of Aug. were, this year, f.414,553; last year, f.331,238. The total traffic receipts from Jan. 1 to Aug. 31 were, this year, f.2,914,362; last year, f.2,053,350.

The Shanghai correspondent of the Grocer writes as follows with reference to the Tea market:—

Before entering into the more minute particulars of the transactions of the past fortnight, a few remarks as to prospects may not prove unacceptable, especially as the comparison of the figures of this season with those of the last might induce your readers to conclude that heavy supplies of teas may be looked for, and that the London market will again become overstocked with tea. The rather rapid and simultaneous shipments, both from the Yangtsze ports and from Foochow, would appear to justify this view of the question, inasmuch as the exports from China to date show an increase of about 15,000,000 lbs.; but it must be borne in mind that the home stock is estimated to stand at 52,000,000 lbs. on June 30, as against 71,500,000 lbs. last year, so that speaking of total shipments from all China, and assuming that henceforth the tea will go forward on the same scale as in 1873, we are actually 4,000,000 lbs. to the good. But, taking the Yangtsze ports alone, the gloomy forebodings which seem to be entertained by some are again found untenable. It is not the shipments that should form the basis of a calculation of this kind, but the actual supplies; for, although hasty consignments, arriving on the markets of consumption all at once, may cause momentary depression, the produce would quickly recover its lost ground in the opinion of purchasers the moment it was discovered that after all there was a deficiency in the crop. And what is the condition of our supplies? Simply this—we are 18,000 chests behind 1873 for the first crop, the severe winter having seriously affected the shrubs; and it is expected that the second crop will follow suit. Your readers must not base their opinions on the rapidity with which, during a month or two, steamer after steamer comes into port with full cargoes of tea; they may rely upon it that an amount of first and second crop Congou—for to these I confine my remarks—equal to that of 1873, cannot be sent forward this season; the country cannot produce it.

Bar Silver is quiet, though the price is unchanged, and still remains at 58d. per oz. standard. The arrivals are very limited. Mexican dollars have been disposed of at 56⅜d. per oz., being a reduction of ⅛d. from recent quotations.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

Most of the leading articles have continued in a dull and drooping state, there still being an almost complete absence of speculative inquiry, and prices of Tea, Silk, Cotton, Hemp, Coffee, Pepper, and Tin show a greater or less reduction. On the other hand, Rice, Cinnamon, Camphor, Gambier, Galls, and some articles of lesser importance have been in good request at advanced prices.

TEA.

There is little to report about the market; the large quantity showing, as advised last week, has now mostly been looked at; but the Trade, having previously bought very freely, have been keeping quiet, and only just bought for their wants, or have been tempted by lower rates. Generally the lower qualities have shown an easier tendency, but it is difficult to obtain full value for any sorts when a desire is shown to sell. Green Teas have been offered at auction on arrival, and show a considerable decline from first sales.

Messrs. Arthur Capel and Co.'s Circular says:—During the past month the arrivals have been very heavy, affording a good selection of different grades for the trade and exporters, and the result has been a fair amount of business, although at prices generally in favour of buyers, owing to the very large quantity offering. It is satisfactory to note that the deliveries for the month have amounted to the large total of 15,722,563 lbs., being 1,400,000 lbs. more than last year. Congous—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings of old import show no change; old red-leaf, common to good common, have been sold from 10d. to 1s. 0½d. per lb. New siftings and broken leaf have sold from 8d. to 1s. 1d. per lb., the latter for exceptionally good quality. Fair to good Kaisow kinds have been in over-supply, and difficult of sale at a decline of about 2d. per lb.; fine have also sold 1d. to 1½d. per lb. lower. Finest have been firmly held, but sales have been difficult to make, even at some decline in prices. Pak Lin kinds have been in good demand, from 1s. 5d. to 1s. 10d. per lb. in half-chests, and 1s. 7d. to 2s. 2d. in boxes, for fair to good and fine kinds. Black-leaf kinds: Several parcels of old season's common to good quality have been sold at public sale from 11d. to 1s. 3d. per lb., being easy rates. New have been fairly saleable, but at lower prices, common to fair ranging from 11⅝d. to 1s. 2½d. per lb., being fully 1d. per lb. lower. Fair to good medium from 1s. 3d. to 1s. 6d., and fine from 1s. 7d. to 1s. 10d., also show a similar reduction; finest from 1s. 11d. to 2s. 3d. have sold rather lower, but superfine chops still command full rates for export. New-make kinds: Common have sold from 10d. to 11d. per lb., fair 1s. to 1s. 2d. per lb., good from 1s. 3d. to 1s. 5d., being about previous prices. In Souchongs a fair amount of business has been done, the demand being chiefly for the finer grades at from 1s. 11d. to 2s. 6d. per lb. Oolongs have been very difficult to move, and several parcels have been sold, at public auction, from 1s. 3d. to 1s. 6d. for good to fine in half-chests, and 1s. 5d. to 1s. 7d. per lb. in boxes, showing a decline on the month of fully 3d. per lb. Scented Teas.—There has been a better market for Canton Capers, and considerable sales have been made at an improvement of fully 1d. per lb. on the low rates previously current, prices for common to fair ranging from 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 2½d., good 1s. 3d. to 1s. 5½d. per lb., and fine from 1s. 6d. to 1s. 9d. per lb. Foochow Capers have been sold to some extent, but prices show 1d. per lb. decline. Canton Orange Pekoes show no improvement in prices. Foochow Orange Pekoes have been in larger supply, and sales made from 1s. 10d. to 2s. 2d. per lb., show 1d. per lb. decline.—Green Teas: Several invoices of new season's have come to hand and been sold at public sale, prices of the earlier sales being satisfactory, ranging up to 2s. 8d. per lb. for No. 1 Gunpowder, but latterly there has been a decline of 1d. to 2d. per lb. The stock in the United Kingdom on the 31st ultimo was estimated at 75,081,000 lbs., against 74,742,415 lbs. last year, and the quantity afloat (advices by letter) at 10,800,000 lbs., against 14,575,000 lbs. of China Tea, and 480,000 lbs. against 310,281 lbs. of Indian Tea.

Messrs. J. C. Sillar and Co.'s Circular says:—The arrivals from China have again been heavy, and the market has been glutted with samples; public auctions "without reserve" have been held almost daily; importers have pressed sales, and a large business has been done at irregular prices. As anticipated in our last, the telegram reporting shipments to the middle of August to be 71,250,000 lbs. proved to be incorrect. On the 18th August they were 87,250,000 lbs. They have not been made up to the end of August, but on the 25th they had reached 92,000,000 lbs.; of this 46,268,000 lbs. have arrived, 41,632,000 lbs. remain afloat, and 4,100,000 lbs. have been lost. The steamer Gordon Castle, which was wrecked near Lisbon, has been raised, and a thousand chests of her teas have been sold there at 2d. per lb. It is proposed to send the remainder of her cargo, twenty thousand chests, to this market. They have been under water for a fortnight or three weeks, and the samples which we have seen are in a state of fermentation, and quite unfit for human consumption. We hope the authorities will prevent their being offered for sale here.

SILK.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co. report as follows:—The public sales have concluded with the following result:—The attendance of buyers was good. Without reserve, 3,033 bales China, 457 Canton, 471 Japan, and 147 Bengals, total 4,108 bales, all of which have been sold at the following prices, which show that the rates previously ruling have been maintained for common Tsatlees, but are about 6d. to 1s. easier for the medium qualities. China Silk: 10s. 6d. to 11s. for very common and inferior Tsatlees, of which the bulk of the Chinas consisted; 11s. to 11s. 6d. for No. 5; 12s. to 14s. for 4½ to fair 4; 14s. 6d. to 15s. 11d. for the small quantity between a four and three-and-a-half; 9s. 6d. to 12s. 1d. for common to good Hongchow Tsatlee; 8s. 5d. to 10s. 7d. for very common Kahing Taysaam; 12s. to 13s. 5d. for medium to good ditto; 8s. to 9s. 8d. for common Hainin; 12s. 2d. to 14s. 11d. for Rosechop and Pang-y-tah ditto.—Japan Silk: 12s. to 18s. 2d. for common to good Mybash, which are lower in price and very irregular. Canton Silk: 9s. 6d. to 13s. 7d. for Tsatlee No. 4 and upwards; 10s. 6d. to 13s. 6d. for common to good Loeng Kong. Besides the above, the following quantity was taxed: 520 bales China, 576 Japan, total, 1,096 bales; and although at moderate limits yet attracted little or no attention, and they were passed, with the exception of just a few bales.

Messrs. Durant and Co.'s Circular says:—The primary object was to clear out old parcels before any large arrivals of new Silk, and so far the object has been attained, but the cost of the operation has been severe—not more so perhaps than might have been expected seeing the large quantity put forward; still a very large proportion realised only very low prices—generally 1s. to 2s. under previous nominal rates. Japan and Canton Silk especially felt the pressure, and the prices of the thrown Silk were deplorable. However, the market has been to a certain extent relieved, and manufacturers and throwsters have had the opportunity to supply themselves with a large quantity of very cheap Silk, with which, one would think, they cannot fail to make profitable business. In new Silk some little progress has been made since the sales. In the better Silks at some advance upon the prices quoted for old Silk, but the lower qualities have not escaped the influence of the large stocks and low prices established at the public sales. The quantity of the new Silk may be estimated at about 1,000 bales, at the following quotations for good Silk:—Best chop 3rd Tsatlee, 18s. 9d. to 19s. 6d.; best chop 3½ Tsatlee, 18s. to 18s. 6d.; No. 2 Golden Lion, 16s.; Red Peacock, 14s.; 4½ to good No. 5, 13s. to 12; inferior Tsatlee, 11s. to 11s. 6d. The deliveries are only fairly good.

Messrs. Arles, Dufour and Co.'s Circular, dated Lyons, September 4, says:—We confirm our advices of the 7th ult. For ten or twelve days after that date business remained very quiet, and in several instances prices showed again a tendency to weakness. Towards that time a good many buyers of silk goods arrived on our market, and bought rather freely, although prices obtained were not always remunerative; manufacturers showed more disposition to effect purchases in raw and thrown silks, and a better tone began to set in. The first unloadings of new China Silks were then particularly welcome, but the announcement of large public sales "without reserve" in London caused fresh uneasiness, and for several days transactions were very limited. Nevertheless, our market recovered gradually from this depressing influence. In spite of low prices reported from London, many buyers, considering the undesirable quality of silk put up for sale, gave the preference to new silk; many runs have since changed hands at full quotations. In other descriptions business has also been resumed with fair activity.

COCOANUT OIL.—Transactions in Ceylon have been to a fair extent, and include 200 tons at £34 10s. to £35 as to quality for pipes; but the continued scarcity of Cochin causes prices of this description to be very firm, and sales have been effected at £42 5s. to £43. Of 132 pipes Ceylon at auction, 60 pipes fine, tare 19 per cent., sold at £34 17s. 6d. Of 66 puncheons, 30 puncheons good, tare 19lb., at £35, 48 hogsheads sold, fine, tare 22 per cent., at £35 10s., good fair, tare 22 per cent., at £35 5s. to £35, and 19 per cent. at £35 per ton.

CUTCH.—The market has continued very quiet, no public sales have been held, and by private contract only small sales of Pegue have been made at 22s. 6d. to 23s.

CINNAMON.—The third periodical auctions were held on the 31st ult., when 1,327 bales Ceylon were offered, against 2,697 bales at the previous sales, and 1,911 bales at the August sales last year. The small supply met an active demand, and the whole was disposed of at a very irregular, although important, advance; fine and superior qualities at an advance of 6d. to 10d. per lb., ordinary to medium 2d. to 5d. above the previous sales.

spurious	...	0s. 9d.	to 0s. 11d.

CINNAMON CHIPS.—432 bags Ceylon have been sold at fully ½d. per lb. advance, bark at 3½d., ordinary at 4d. to 4½d., fair to good at 5½d. to 6½d., quill cuttings 1s. 5d. to 1s. 6d. per lb.

CAMPHOR.—About 2,000 cases China have changed hands at advancing prices, principally at 80s. to 85s.

COPRA is in request; no sales reported.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—Market firm and steady.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed has been firm, and there have been about 75 cases sold on the spot at 8s. 6d. to 8s. 9d.; afloat further lots offer. Cassia quiet, but firmly held, small sales at 4s. 8d., but 4 cases sold under the hammer at 4s. 6d. to 4s. 7d. Nutmegs quiet, 7 cases retired. Cinnamon scarce, of 20 cases offered, a few sold at 2½d. per oz. for common leaf; fine sold last at 7s. to 8s. Citronelle quieter, of 94 cases, few only sold at 1⅝d. per oz., being easier; the bulk held for 1¾d. Lemon Grass: Very firm, sales at 2¾d., and no sellers.

HEMP.—Easier rates having been accepted for Manila, sales to the extent of about 2,500 bales have been effected, fair to good fair at £32 10s. £33 10s., superior at £39.

INDIA-RUBBER.—No sales of importance have been effected, but the market has exhibited a firm tone.

PLUMBAGO.—Market for Ceylon firm; about 900 barrels offered, and nearly all sold. Lump, fine bright 22s. 6d. to 23s. 6d.; good 18s. to 19s.; chips, ordinary to fine, 9s. 6d. to 12s. 6d. Dust, 8s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. per cwt., closing very firm.

RICE.—During the first half of the fortnight a general recovery took place, and prices advanced 6d. to 9d. per cwt., but a quieter tone has since prevailed, and this improvement is not in all instances upheld. On the spot a good business has been done at gradually advancing rates, until a recovery of fully 6d. per cwt. was established for hard as well as soft grain, which checked the demand, and the market closes quietly. For arrival large sales of Madras have been effected, closing at 9s. 7½d., or 1s. above the previous rates. There has been a good demand for floating cargoes, chiefly for Liverpool, and prices advanced 9d. per cwt., but with very large arrivals and less demand about 3d. of this advance has been lost. The sales on the spot are as follows:—35,000 bags white Bengal from 10s. 3d. for ordinary to 13s. for fine, 500 bags Askoolie at 9s., 5,000 bags Ballam at 9s. 6d. to 10s. 6d., 8,000 bags Madras at 8s. 6d. to 9s. 1½d., 10,500 bags Rangoon at 8s. 6d. to 9s. 1½d., 12,500 bags Moulmein at 9s. 3d. to 9s. 6d., and 38,000 bags, 18,000 mats (2,500 tons) Japan at 9s. 3d. In auction 3,008 bags Saigon from Melbourne sold at 8s. 6d. to 8s. 9d.

MUSK is firmly held, but there have been large arrivals; 18 tins retired; 4 tins grain sold, fine 60s., fair 43s., common 25s. per oz.

RHUBARB.—China has met a good demand, and of 190 cases in sale fully half were sold; bold dull, root part sun-dried 1s. 10d. to 2s. 1d.; high dried middling and good 1s. to 1s. 6d.

RATTANS.—Market dull; of 6,073 bundles at auction, the bulk sold at 3s. 1d. to 4s. per 100 canes.

SPICES.—Cinnamon: (See report of quarterly sales above.) Cassia Lignea: Market firmer; 800 cases sold at 56s. to 57s. Large sale to arrive; unchanged. Cloves: Penang are scarce and firmly held; os25 cases about one-third sold at 2s. 2d. per lb. for fine. Amboyna are higher, and sales at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 4½d. Mace: Quiet; at sale 47 cases offered, 28 finding buyers; good at 3s. to 3s. 4d., fair at 2s. 6d. to 2s. 11d., common 1s. 8d. to 1s. 11d. Nutmegs dull and rather easier; plentiful supplies at auction, viz., 365 packages mostly small, of which 285 sold at about 1d. decline for common sorts, 80's to 75's at 3s. 7d. to 3s. 9d., 116's to 110's 3s. 3d. to 3s. 4d., limed ditto 3s. to 3s. 1d., defective 1s. 3d. to 2s. 2d.

SAPANWOOD continues scarce and in request; in auction of 57 tons Manila 36 tons sold at £12, damaged £8 to £10 10s., and 11 tons Ceylon at £12 15s. to £13 per ton.

SAGO.—Market rather easier; of 2,000 bags offered, about half sold, good medium small at 17s. 6d., superior 18s. to 18s. 6d. Large sorts principally bought in. Flour remains dull of sale at 15s. to 15s. 6d.

STICKLAC and STAR ANISEEDS are firm, without alteration in price; no transactions of importance have been entered into.

TAPIOCA.—Market steady; 2,016 bags Penang offered, 1,620 bags sold, at 2d. to 2⅝d. for ordinary to good. Pearl: No change; 520 bags sold at 21s. to 23s. for medium to good.

The current quotations for coal, &c., are as follows:—From Wear or Tyne, per keel.—To Singapore: £23, f.c. To Penang: £27, f.c. To Batavia and Sourabaya: £25. To Colombo: £24. To Galle: £20.

From Newport, Cardiff, or Swansea, per ton.—To Hong Kong: 32s. To Shanghai: 35s. to 37s. 6d. To Singapore: 24s. To Galle: 21s. To Batavia: 27s. To Sourabaya: 30s. To Colombo: 25s. To Manila: 28s.

From Birkenhead, per ton.—To Hong Kong: 25s. To Galle: 18s. To Singapore: 21s. To Manila: 28s. to 30s.

CASUALTIES.

Telegrams from Algiers, Sept. 2 and 3, announce that the Yorkshire (str.), from Calcutta and Colombo to London, had arrived there, with cargo and coal on fire; she is now in dock; half cargo lost; ship must be submerged; fire gaining.

A telegram announces the arrival of the Sliedrecht, Willemse, at Singapore, Aug. 27, with her rudder damaged.

A telegram from Cadiz, Aug. 29, announces that the Sorsogon (str.), of Liverpool, Darbishire, from Newcastle to Manila, was aground at South Conil, but will probably float and proceed.

Digitized by Google

CADIZ, AUG. 30.—The Sorsogon (str.) has floated off and proceeded.

NEW YORK, AUG. 18.—The North American, Tucker, from Hong Kong (?), with coal, struck a sunken rock in Gaspar Straits, in July, and sprung a leak, but was got off, taken to Singapore and docked; she was examined, and found to have knocked off forefoot and four feet of keel, opening the garboard seams as far as the foremast.

SOURABAYA, AUG. 29.—The Albion (Brit. ship), from Java to the Channel with about 840 tons of sugar on board, has been burnt at Probolingo, and is a total loss.

MISCELLANEOUS.

At SIMON'S BAY, AUG. 6.—D. M. B. Park, and sailed for Colombo; Rota, and sailed for Batavia.

LISBON, AUG. 22.—The discharge of the Gordon Castle continues, but goes on slowly, because the forebulkhead has to be shored off as the tea is removed from behind it; the forebulkhead shows signs of the enormous pressure upon it from the water in the fore compartment, consequently every precaution is necessary to avoid accident.—Lisbon, Aug. 29.—With the exception of about 100 packages, salt water has soaked through every chest of the Gordon Castle's cargo, and it is unfit for consumption.—Advices from Bahia, Aug. 7, state that the Solent, Meldrum, from London to Singapore, which put in there 13th July, leaky, is discharging.—Greenock, Aug. 28.—The Sourabaya (barq.), hence to Java, has put back with steering gear defective.

THE STEAMER ORÉNOQUE.—A fine steamer named the Orénoque has just been finished for the Messageries Maritimes at La Ciotat, and she is in every respect French built. The vessel is one of 5,400 tons, and is 410ft. in length, and a little over 39ft. beam; her horse power is 600 nominal, and can be worked up to 2,500. She is built of iron, and is divided into compartments; her three decks are also of iron, the upper one being covered with teak. A notable improvement in the internal arrangements of this ship, and one which we are informed is due to a suggestion of our own, is that the baths and fittings are all of marble. The Orénoque is a veritable floating hotel, and can accommodate comfortably over 300 first and second-class passengers, or she could carry 500 emigrants; and besides, she still has ample room for her crew of 140. One detail alone will suffice to show the excellence of the arrangements for the well-being and comfort of the passengers, viz., that the Orénoque's ice house will hold no less than about 65,000lbs. of ice. We wish this vessel all success, and hope she may soon be placed on the Indo-China line.

THE steamer Orion, Capt. Smerdon, which has lately arrived with a cargo of 3,300 tons of teas from Foochow, has made the fastest passage as yet from that port, having made the run in forty-three days from Pagoda Anchorage to Gravesend, including stoppages at Singapore, &c., but not including three days' detention at Suez in consequence of not being provided with a bill of health from Foochow. This will serve as a caution to other commanders. The Orion, which is a fine steamer, with first-rate accommodation, belongs to Messrs. Rathbone Brothers, Liverpool. It is expected that she will be in China next year in time to take part in the trial for first steamer from Hankow. She now loads out to Calcutta. The dates are as follow:—Left Foochow, 17th July; Singapore, July 24, strong S.W. monsoon to Cape Guardafui; Aden, arrived for coals Aug. 9, 2 P.M., left 8 P.M. same date; Suez, arrived noon, Aug. 15, three days' quarantine; arrived Port Said Aug. 19, left Port Said 5 P.M.; arrived at Gravesend Sept. 2, 10 A.M.

MESSRS. BLACKWOOD AND GORDON, Port Glasgow, have launched an iron screw-steamer, named the Amboyna, of 680 tons. She will be supplied with engines of 155-horse power. The Amboyna is intended to form one of the Java line of steamers, owned by the Netherlands Indian Steam Navigation Company.

MESSRS. DENNY BROS., Dumbarton have launched a screw steamship of 1,906 tons, named the Canara, for the British India Steam Navigation Company of Glasgow. The Canara is 297 feet length of keel, 33 feet beam, and 26½ feet deep, and will be supplied with engines of 200-horse power.

DURING the ten days ending August 20 the number of ships which passed through the Suez Canal was twenty-seven. The transit revenue of the Canal Company in the same period amounted to £18,000.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

AND OINTMENT.—A great and precious property possessed by Holloway's inestimable remedies is that no skill or experience is required for their successful administration. No education or intelligence is necessary for using them to advantage, beyond the capacity of understanding the plain and intelligible instructions accompanying each box and pot. For the cure of all internal and external ailments, Professor Holloway has considerately placed such printed rules round his remedies that error is impossible after they have been once read with attention. In these Pills there is nothing nauseous to the taste, or trying to the most tender age or delicate constitution. They purify, regulate, and strengthen the entire human system.

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 26th July; the French mail from London, 5th June, arrived out on the 20th July, and the following P. and O. mail of 12th June on the 23rd July. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald:—

The minutes of the meeting of the French Municipal Council held on the 22nd June have been published. Correspondence was laid on the table which had been exchanged between the Consul-General and the Chairman of the Council, on the non-convocation of the ratepayers to assist at the meeting at which the Budget was passed, and as to the yielding up to the Chinese by the Consul-General of the ground in dispute in the Ningpo and Saigon road affair. As to the first, the Council considered itself freed from responsibility by the refusal of the Consul-General to convoke or preside at the meeting. As to the second, the Council decided to ask whether the electors mean to have their rights to this piece of public property vindicated before a proper tribunal. A special meeting is to be held to consider the matter of wharves and pontoons. It is proposed to refer to arbitration a little dispute with the English Council arising out of the repairs to Yang-king-pang bridge No. 2. The only other matter of importance is an instruction to the secretary regarding the division of the wheelbarrow-tax and the responsibility for the maintenance of the bridges over the Yang-king-pang, which has already been made public in the letter addressed to the English Municipal Council.

The fifty bales of raw silk salved from the wreck of the Canton have been sold by auction at Hunt's Wharf. The sale attracted a large number of bidders, almost all native dealers. The prices realised, per bale, were, for Tsatlee Kukee Kinhoc, Tls. 241 to Tls. 248; Tsatlee, Tls. 131 to Tls. 227; Tsatlee Blue Elephant, Tls. 132 to Tls. 228; Tsatlee Eagle, Tls. 129 to Tls. 192; Tsatlee Red Peacocks, Tls. 197 to Tls. 223; and Taysaam Kahing Tinghous, Tls. 140 to Tls. 159. There was a very brisk competition.

The U.S.S. Ashuelot, Commander Matthews, returned to Shanghai on the 21st July, after a cruise of over a month in the waters of the Yang-tsze above Hankow. The Ashuelot left that place on the 12th June, voyaged up the river for a distance of over 1,000 miles, or more than 360 miles above Hankow, and considerably above the point hitherto reached by foreign vessels. After having anchored at Ichang, where ceremonial visits were exchanged between the officers and the Taoutai and other dignitaries from the city, a party from the ship went overland on an exploring expedition, and met with the greatest kindness and good feeling everywhere. The excursion extended over several days, and after the return of the party steam was raised and the Ashuelot ran up to the gorges of the Yang-tsze. At one time the crowds about the ship were so great, and became so inconvenient to those on board, that it became necessary for the Taoutai to issue a notification to prevent any annoyance. At another stage of the Ashuelot's progress the assemblage along the banks of the river was computed at 50,000 to 60,000—immense numbers having repaired to Ichang from the districts round to see the extraordinary visitor. The Ashuelot reports that as far as she had reached water was found fit to float any steamer or tea ship visiting this coast. She also reports portions of the country above Hankow as very much inundated.

We are glad to be able to state, on the authority of Mr. Medhurst, H.B.M. Consul, that the subscriptions towards the Chinese Reading Room and Polytechnic School have reached Tls. 1,098.65 and $398. The Taoutai has given Tls. 200, the Manager of the Arsenal Tls. 100, the Hsien $100, and other Chinese gentlemen have subscribed with equal liberality.

The British str. Glamis Castle arrived at Woosung on the 22nd July, but could not get over the Bar. On her arrival at Woosung, high-water showed only 18 feet on the Bar, while the Glamis Castle drew 20 feet. The O. S. S. Company's steamer Priam arrived at Woosung on the 24th, but had also to remain until lightened of a portion of her cargo, so as to enable her to cross the Bar.

H. M.'s gun-vessel Hornet arrived in port from Nagasaki on the 23rd July, on her way to Tientsin and Chefoo, to relieve the Curlew. The Thistle left for Nagasaki on the 23rd.

We take the following items of intelligence from the Shanghai Budget:—

There have been rumours floating about of war between China and Japan being imminent, but we have been unable to trace them to any definite source.

The telegraph steamer H. C. Oersted returned on the 18th July from her telegraphic construction expedition to Foochow. We understand that the line between the Foreign Settlement and the Pagoda Anchorage was completed with all the anticipated despatch, but that from the settlement to the Viceroy's yamen in the city has not yet been erected. After that the steamer is said to have visited Amoy and Formosa, inspecting and prospecting, but with what result we have not heard.

The trial of Michael Martin on a charge of sending a letter to Alfred Silverthorne, threatening to burn down a house belonging to him, has taken place at the Supreme Court, before Sir E. Hornby and a jury. There was no Crown prosecutor. Mr. Robinson conducted the defence. The taking of evidence was soon over, after which Mr. Robinson contended in point of law that there was no case to go to a jury, as there was no evidence to connect accused with the sending of the letter, which was the gravamen of the offence charged. In support of his contention he quoted the leading case of King v. Howe. His Lordship made a note of this point, but overruled it, on which Mr. Robinson addressed an elaborate defence to the jury. The latter retired for about ten minutes, and returned with a verdict of guilty. His Lordship, after a few remarks, sentenced the prisoner to six months' imprisonment with hard labour, to be followed by deportation from this port; but added, in regard to this last part of the sentence, that if satisfactory security were offered he might consider it.

The strange agglomeration of races and languages existing in Shanghai has been well illustrated in H.B.M. Police Court. In one case of assault, one Bengalee speaking English was sued by another who needed a Bengalee interpreter, while, of the witnesses called, one was a Bengalee speaking remarkable English, the other was apparently also a native of Hindostan, but the fact that he spoke French seemed to hint of Pondicherry. They had all shipped in London for the steamer Europe but sailed for Cardiff. In another assault case, a German mate was sued by two Japanese; all of them belonging to a British ship. The Japanese were accompanied by an interpreter, and between their lengthened colloquies with the lattter, in a low, dropping, rhyming concatenation of utterances, and the hazy English in which he gave, in six words or so, the sum of the whole, made the examination one of the most excruciating we ever listened to. In the course of it, it turned out that the owner is a Scotchman, the captain a Dane; the mate a German; the second mate a European (?), while the remainder of the "fifteen all told" included 4 Malays, 2 Manila men, 2 Chinese, 2 Japanese and "another Japanese."

A few days since, while two large junks, bound up river, were tacking across the bows of H.M.S. Frolic, they were drifted by the last of the flood till they fouled her stem. But English oak proved too much for Foochow pine. The Frolic was scarcely scratched. One of the largest junk's masts went by the board. The other junk was unscathed.

As a gentleman, the other evening, was riding down through Hongkew, a noisy cur rushed barking from some house or shop into the roadway, and, getting among the horse's feet, caused it so to plunge and rear that the rider was thrown, and suffered a severe shattering of the right elbow joint, which will disable him for many weeks.

FORMOSA.

THE JAPANESE EXPEDITION.

A correspondent of the Hong Kong Daily Press writes as follows:—

Everything is so quiet here that one would be inclined to forget altogether the presence of the Japanese in the island, were it not for the sight now and then of a steamer passing by, flying a flag with a red sun upon a white field, or for the occasional appearance here of one or two strangers who wear European clothes, but show unmistakably Eastern features. The relations between the Chinese and the Japanese are in exactly the same state as they were a fortnight ago. The Chinese authorities still content themselves with firmly and politely requesting the Japanese to leave Formosa, and assuring them that no portion of Chinese territory can possibly be ceded to a foreign Power. At the same time they are making preparations in case peaceful measures should prove unsuccessful. A camp has been established in one of the Pescadore Islands, where there is a good harbour accessible in all weathers. M. Giquel is busy at Tai-wan-foo making plans and inspecting fortifications. Mr. H. O. Brown, of the Chinese Customs' service, has just landed at Anping. As he was employed for some years by the Chinese in drilling troops at Tientsin, it is easy to guess what his employment in Formosa is likely to be. There is even some talk of laying a telegraph cable between the mainland and Tai-wan-foo. If this is really carried out, the presence of the Japanese will have quickened the wits of the mandarins in most astonishing degree.

The Japanese at Langkiaou are keeping very still. The south camp, which has been for some time their head-quarters, is a picture of neatness and tidiness. All the troops there are lodged in comfortable wooden houses. A road has been made to the shore, and trees planted. The army seems prepared to stay any length of time, but there are no arrivals of new troops, no fortications in course of construction. No new expeditions are being undertaken against the savages, but a few chiefs from the neighbouring villages occasionally come in to assure the General of the friendliness of themselves and their tribes. One road at least across the island is now considered safe, as the General and suite latterly rode across without an escort to the camp on the east coast, returning the same night.

The Taoutai of Taiwan has arrived at Takao and left for the Pescadores, where he was to change to another steamer and go to Tamsuy, Kelung, or Sau-o Bay. It is said that he has undertaken this voyage on account of some new complication with the Japanese in the north of the island.

TYPHOON AT KEELUNG.

H.I.C.M. despatch vessel Wan-kien-chang has arrived at Shanghai direct from Keelung, on her way to Tientsin, and brought on Capt. Tough, his officers, engineers and crew from the late s.s. Laptek. By this opportunity we (North China Herald) are in possession of particulars regarding the typhoon of the 17th inst., which proved so disastrous to the party from H.M.S. Kestrel, who it appears were at the time engaged in dismantling the wreck of the Laptek. The correspondent writes as follows:—

Very little remained to be done on board the Laptek after the services of the steamer's crew were dispensed with; but for fully a week previous to the day which proved fatal to so many of them Lieutenant Gardner, Mr. Jones, chief engineer, and twelve men and stokers of the Kestrel, under the superintendence of Mr. James Greig, of Messrs. Dodd and Co., Lloyd's agents, carried on the work of salving by themselves; and as the hull was to have been sold the next day, their occupation of it would not in all probability have lasted twenty-four hours longer. The gunboat steamed away into Keelung harbour as soon as the men were sent on board the wreck, but the cutter in which they were conveyed was left moored at some distance from them. For several days previously the position of the wreck was the same as when the typhoon came on, and the work of demolition having become difficult her condition was not altered much during that time. The hull was so denuded of everything that it is difficult to imagine how anyone could have lived on it even in fine weather; full of water fore and aft, up to the 'tween decks; saloon and engine-room skylights, the rail and stanchions, accommodation ladder, all hatches, midship and quarter-deck houses removed or in course of removal; all boats, lifebuoys, ropes, rigging, sails, spars, chains, and anchors sent on shore to be sold, with portions of the engines, steam winches and windlass, and everything above water that could be torn away, "for the benefit of the underwriters"—nothing unfortunately was left to provide for the shelter or safety of the wreckers.

Masou Bay, where the Laptek was beached, is about ten miles from Keelung by water, having Masu Peninsula on the south and Double Rock on the North side, and from the latter a reef crosses the mouth of the bay about two-thirds of the way. The chief exposure is north-easterly, and along the shore for several miles there runs a sandy beach, with sand hills and water courses behind it. The hull of the vessel lay head out to sea, with the stern about one hundred yards from what in fine weather is the shore, but as it is only a narrow sandbank, the rollers during the typhoon must have swept clear over it and into the low land beyond. To the south of the ship's position only did the high land dip down to the sea, without being intercepted by streams and lagoons; therefore it will be seen that a swimmer had but a poor chance, in a dark night and heavy sea, of saving his life, even if he succeeded in gaining the beach directly opposite the ship. When it commenced to blow on the morning of the 17th, the ship worked a good deal, and as the wind increased during the afternoon it must have been something dreadful on board, as she lurched with the weight of water in her hold, springing the decks and causing the boiler to bump about out of its place. Towards night matters became much worse, and the Chinese servants begged to be sent on shore, as they said it was going to blow a typhoon. The others seem only to have had a slight suspicion that this might be the case, but one of the men-of-war's men and a Malay were allowed to swim on shore, and go in quest of a boat for them. The cutter had previously to this time been once in danger, and was with much difficulty moored further out by two seamen who swam off to her, but afterwards, dragging her moorings, she drove into the breakers and was swamped. A boat from the shore was at last induced to go alongside, and the boys and two Europeans were landed by it in safety, but it did not succeed in reaching the ship a second time.

Those on board now apparently recognised the danger of their situation. A raft had been constructed during the day, and by means of it all would doubtless have been enabled to reach the shore, but on being put over the side it broke adrift, and a sailor who jumped overboard, after an unsuccessful effort or two to bring it back, scrambled on to it and was landed on the beach in safety. Two more sailors were washed overboard about this time, and driven on the beach, clinging to a piece of the deck, making in all six men-of-war's men who have been saved. Between eight and nine o'clock, or later, a sea washed Lieut. Gardner and Mr. Jones off the deck. They were both good swimmers, but only Mr. Jones got clear of the wreck, and after a long struggle amongst the breakers, in which he was much bruised and exhausted, he at last got a footing. Lieut. Gardner, it is supposed, was hurled against the ship's side, or some floating portion of the wreck, and rendered powerless to save himself, as nothing is known regarding his fate than that he must inevitably have been drowned. Mr. Greig, on observing that Lieut. Gardner and Mr. Jones were washed away, went to communicate the fact to the remaining six men belonging to the Kestrel, who had taken refuge in the ship's iron galley, and who, it is believed, were all unable to swim. This he had scarcely done, when a heavy lurch of the vessel caused the iron door to slam, while he was holding on. Catching his hand, it broke his arm at the wrist; the next wave probably washed him overboard, and although he could swim fairly, his sufferings from the accident in all likelihood rendered him quite insensible to the fate which must have afterwards overtaken him.

In the thick darkness of that stormy night the survivors on shore neither saw nor heard anything of the six men who remained the last occupants of the wreck, and when the calm of morning came the most diligent search failed to discover any of the bodies, nor was anything to be seen to indicate the spot where the hull lay the night before. Only one body has been found up to this time, that of a seaman from the Kestrel, which was brought in to Keelung by Chinese fishermen and buried.

The hull of the Laptek, as it lies under water, was sold for $275.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 1st August; the P. and O. mail from London June 12 was received on the 18th July, and the following French mail of June 19 arrived out on the 27th July. We take the following items of news from the Overland Trade Report:—

The ordinary half-yearly meeting of the shareholders in the Hong Kong, Canton, and Macao Steamboat Company took place on the 18th ult., Mr. G. Heard in the chair. The report was duly passed, and a dividend of 8 per cent. for the half-year declared.

The ordinary half-yearly meeting of the shareholders in the Hong Kong Hotel took place on the 22nd inst. The report showed a profit of $6,843, and a dividend of 2½ per cent. for the half-year was declared, leaving a balance of $2,198 to be carried forward.

Some further facts have been published with reference to the manner in which the Hoppo of Canton has managed to put an end to the carriage of cotton from Hong Kong to Canton in foreign steamers.

The Chinese merchants in Hong Kong have forwarded a memorial for protection against the Chinese revenue cruisers, which have been making grievous havoc with the trade. They set forth that they were promised protection on the cession of the island, and that in consequence many settled at Hong Kong as traders, but that at present they are unable to carry on their business except under great restraints from the squeezing cruisers which surround the harbour. It is announced that the Chamber of Commerce intend to forward a similar memorial. The course adopted will probably have the effect of calling prominent attention to the subject in England, but there is no doubt that the matter is one which can be better treated by specific action in individual cases on the spot than by reference home, Seeing, however, that the local government is so loathe to do anything, a reference home is the only remedy left; but except so far as it may have the effect of making the officials here a little more active in such cases, it is to be feared it is not likely to produce any immediate beneficial result, as, if a diplomatic question be raised in regular form, there is undoubtedly much which may be urged which will go in favour of strengthening the position of the Chinese, and they will be able to stretch whatever dictums of international law may be pronounced in their favour on the supposition of their collecting a legitimate revenue, so as rather to strengthen them than otherwise in the line of action which has proved so vexatious to the trade of the colony.

AN enterprising speculator, who happened to have by him just now the particular mercantile commodities which are in most request, might realise in a very short time a handsome fortune by the judicious disposal of his wares. We have a sufficiency and more of enterprising speculators, but unfortunately they none of them keep on hand the articles which are at present in urgent request. Stands of arms, with all the latest improvements, and ready-made ironclads are not to be found in the godowns of our principal merchants; and these are the sort of goods at the present moment most adapted to the Chinese market. The offer of the Chinese Government to purchase from Great Britain the Iron Duke was no canard, but a proposition made in perfectly good faith by the would-be buyers, to whom a sum of $2,000,000, or one of twice that amount, is not a very serious matter. The Chinese are good believers. They believe not only that every man has his price, but also that everything may be bought for money, and that a place, or a fleet if necessary, may be obtained, provided enough is given for either or both of them. In the matter of the Iron Duke, the authorities could hardly be convinced that that vessel was "not for sale." When they did realise that fact, they made the best of their knowledge, and comforted themselves for their disappointment by ordering two bran new ironclads to be made with speed in England, and transmitted their orders through the British Consul at Canton. They have bought up all the rifles, good and bad, that were obtainable. They mean, if they can, to give Japan a lesson. They did not at first attach much importance to the Japanese raid upon Formosa. Indeed many of the chief men among them did not even know where or what Formosa was. Most of them hardly knew that such an island existed, still less that it was part of the Chinese Empire; and only the few very best informed were aware that it was not part of the mainland. They were content in the first instance, when they found that such a place, so objectionably inhabited, did belong to them, that the Japanese, or any one else, should take the pains and incur the expense of chastising the savage islanders; but they cannot bear the idea of Japan, now that the work is done, wanting her expenses paid, or, failing that, requesting to be allowed peaceably to colonise the island. The present attitude of the two Powers is sufficiently ridiculous. Japan is fearful of the overwhelming numerical force of China, and begins to wish that she had not meddled. If she could see how to get out of the difficulty, without losing her money and her honour, she would withdraw her 3,000 troops to-morrow. The minds of the Japanese Executive are much exercised just now, and public business of national importance is neglected at Tokio, through the embarrassment of the officials, and their endless discussions. On the other hand China is alarmed at the European weapons, European vessels, and European servants of the smaller Power. Hence she has assembled an overwhelming force to throw into Formosa. To drive away the handful of Japanese who at present occupy that island, she has concentrated some 30,000 or 40,000 men at and near Amoy, on the coast of the mainland, in order to strike surely and effectively, if strike she must. She has dallied and played with Japan, coquetted with her propositions, humbugged her envoys, and now that politic deceit is no longer necessary, she has thrown off the mask. If Formosa is not instantly evacuated by the Japanese troops there will be a struggle, of which the result must be disastrous to Japan. The idea of a war, under such circumstances, is so popular in China that volunteers have been solicited in Canton, and have actually responded to the appeal. The comet which was visible in the early part of last month, and which is now hiding somewhere in the region of the sun, is, as was to be expected from the Chinese nature, blamed for the disturbance; which, though extremely ludicrous, has yet its serious aspect. China is as remorselessly inimical to foreigners as she was before the lesson she received fifteen years ago, a lesson which she is fast forgetting, and which the truckling policy of our national representatives near—for they are not at—the Court, is teaching them to forget. In the event of China being victorious in the approaching struggle with Japan she will not be slow to "give cheek" to the first comer from the West.

Your somewhat swinging articles upon the Consular Service have excited here a perfect furore of execration. The English press of North and South China and Japan has, with a unanimity rarely to be found amongst its members, taken up the cudgels on behalf of the subjects of your censure. What could have induced you to suppose that student interpreters were not diligent; that they had any other occupations than those involved in the sedulous pursuit of their profession? What reason had you to suppose that Mr. Wade was a wonderful sinologue, but no great thing at diplomacy? You cannot seriously think that Great Britain could be better represented in China by a man who knew less Chinese, and had a higher notion of his country's dignity.

We had a Distillery Company in Hong Kong. First. Too much faith brought it to grief. Its virtue was its downfall. It was Charity herself, "believing all things, trusting all things, enduring all things." It thought it could make spirits, and did so, such as they were, or are, for there is some of the dew from its still left still. I will not give you the whole history of the concern. The directors were sensible shrewd men of the world, business men in fact. One of them, starting from small beginnings in the carpentering line, had by industry and frugality accumulated a fair fortune, a considerable portion of which, some forty thousand dollars at least, he loses by this venture. Another director was a prosperous newspaper proprietor. All were men in good positions, and ought to have known that it was impossible to sell large quantities of spirits at half of what the manufacture cost them, and make a profit out of the loss. Yet they seem to have believed this fallacy, and to have induced shareholders to believe it also. They talked at their meetings in a most cheerful way of their losses, and kept on lending money and taking shares. This pleasant state of things would have continued had not the representative of a leading firm, which had been supplying them with molasses, stopped the flow of the nectarous fluid, and then, with unsoftened heart, sued the directors collectively, and individually, for a small bill of $ 20,000. Fancy £5,000 worth of treacle! How many infant mouths might it have lubricated! How many pounds weight of jumble and hardbake might it not have provided for grateful schoolboys! The case went against the directors, and, urged by bad example, the ungrateful shareholders have begun to sue. The conclusion of one suit was heard to-day. A gentleman who bought shares, and is not the sort of person to lay himself out to buy pigs in pokes, but on the contrary, has the reputation of knowing pretty well what he is doing, and of keeping at least one eye open to the main chance, sued the directors for the value of his shares. The Chief Justice had reserved his decision, which will not be promulgated till after the vacation. Should it be in favour of the plaintiff, more litigation of the same sort will follow. Meanwhile, the public opinion is that the buyer had an eye to immediate business in his purchase, and that he thought a temporary rise in the price of shares would put money in his purse. Just now he is expected to feel rather mean, and the directors are expected to feel particularly foolish.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 9th August; the French mail from London 3rd July was received on the 2nd August, and the following P. and O. mail of July 10 arrived out on the 7th August. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times:—

The Governor returned to Singapore on the 14th July, after having called at the Pangkor Islands, Klang, and Langkat on his way from Penang. Everything was quiet at those places. One of the turbulent leaders of the late Klang disturbances had, we learn, got into the neighbourhood of Sunghie Ujong, and was endeavouring to obtain a few followers, but Tunku dia Oodin, the ruler of Klang, will, it is believed, be able to defeat his designs. Though the treaty with Perak and Larhoot has been ratified, no Residents have yet been appointed to those States, which is to be regretted, as the provision with respect to Residents is the point upon which the success of this engagement hinges, and too long delay in inaugurating the new form of administration may permit complications to arise between the chiefs, which would make the protectorate more difficult of establishment at a later date, and seriously retard the prosperity of those territories and the development of their resources. It is, therefore, urgent that the voluntary engagement entered into by the Sultan and chiefs, and which, moreover, is in accordance with the desire of former rulers for years past, should be availed of at the earliest possible date, lest the golden opportunity be lost.

The session of the Legislative Council will now no doubt be shortly resumed, when we shall be in possession of the correspondence and papers alluded to in H. E. the Governor's opening speech, about which considerable curiosity has been felt. It is probable one of the first subjects for consideration will be the estimates for the ensuing year, which we understand have been fully made up, though not yet published.

We are in possession of no late news from Atchin. At last accounts, the Atchinese still continued hostile, and even the people of the West Coast, who had given in their nominal adhesion to the Netherlands, showed anything but a friendly spirit, the Sultan of Analaboe being reported as actually absent with his forces fighting the Dutch at the Kraton. Reinforcements have been sent from Batavia to the assistance of the garrison, with what result we have not learned. The Java papers state that the Atchinese envoys who have lately returned from Turkey have sought to make terms with the Netherlands India Government, but that the offer has been declined, they being referred to the commander of the Dutch forces in Atchin. Notwithstanding the Netherlands official assurances of the favourable disposition of the people, it is apparent that the Dutch forces have made but little advance, and that the people are as hostile as ever, contesting every inch of ground. There is no longer any doubt that if the Netherlands Government intend to continue the war, a third and possibly a fourth expedition will have to be despatched.

The steamers arrived via Suez Canal have been the Eastern Isles, from Glasgow, on the 1st Aug.; Galley of Lorne, on the 4th, and Glenfinlas, on the 5th, from London; and the Hector, on the 7th, from Liverpool. The departures homeward have been the Glenlyon, on the 30th July, Cheops, on the 3rd, and Ajax, on the 5th August, for London; and the Tchihatchoff, on the 5th, for Odessa, all with tea cargoes.

The Bill entitled the "Final Supply Ordinance for 1873" is published in the Straits Settlements Government Gazette. It enacts that whereas by Ordinance No. 11 of 1872 a sum not exceeding $1,331,636.23 was charged upon the revenue of the colony for the service of the year 1873, and this sum is insufficient, a further sum of $214,562.41 is authorised to be charged upon the revenue. The proportion for each head of service is as follows:—Establishments, $8,029.89; pensions, $2,054.82; revenue services, $2,318.12; administration of justice, $427.97; education, $1,549.67; medical, $8,335.14; police and gaols, $25,016.36; convict department, $58,791.14; harbour department and lighthouses, $3,670.08; Government vessels, $11,129.36; conveyance of mails, $9,615.09; rent, $1,046.10; transport, $5,420; interest, $277.40; miscellaneous services, $5,278.64; works and building, $61,080.81; roads, streets, and bridges, $917.66; land and houses purchased, $450; military contributions, $487.32; special expenses, $8,666.84; giving a total of $214,562.41.

The Postmaster-General's Report is published also in the Gazette, and from that document it appears that the Department has made steady progress during the years 1872 and 1873. The number of letters, &c., received in 1873 for local distribution were 55,933 in excess of those received in 1872, and 55,596 more letters, &c., were despatched during 1873. The revenue of that year exceeded that of 1872 by $4,306.44. There was also a large increase in the money-order transactions. The sub-post-offices opened at Butterworth and Bukit Tamboon in Province Wellesley have more than paid their expenses. The attempts made to enter into conventions with the neighbouring Governments with a view to the adoption of a uniform rate of postage, with free delivery at each end of all prepaid correspondence exchanged with the Straits Settlements, are likely to lead to satisfactory results. In a few months it is probable that such correspondence will be conveyed between the Straits Settlements and Netherlands India, China, Japan, Saigon, and Sarawak at a cheap rate, without charge on delivery. A scheme for affording the Chinese labouring classes greater facilities for communicating with their friends in China is now under Government consideration, as is also the establishment of a savings bank in connection with the General Post-office. The new General Post-office commenced last year is approaching completion. Last year the Dutch expedition to Atchin opened Field Post-offices, and the bulk of their correspondence passed through the Post-offices at Singapore and Penang. As there is no connection now between the P. and O. steamers from Australia to Galle and those between Bombay and China, the Australian mails via Ceylon were for the most part of 1873 brought on to Singapore by the Messageries steamers, the French Post-office claiming a share of the postage. It is satisfactory to learn that no mail has been lost, and that where letters have not reached it has been the fault of the writer. One eccentric person, for instance, posted a letter addressed as follows:—"Miss —, with the White Cross on the Locket, Peterboro Station Refreshment Room." This communication duly reached the nameless young lady, ornamented as described, but unfortunately the sender neglected to pay the postage, and the etter was not accepted.

IMPORTS.

HANKOW.—The market for Piece Goods had been comparatively quiet, and the only feature of moment to notice had been a considerable improvement in the value of Woollens, particularly Long Ells.

SHANGHAI.—There had been little improvement on the market generally, which with some few exceptions had remained quiet throughout the fortnight. There had, however, been some enquiry for common Drills, Jeans, and Long Ells. At the close the market was dull, with the exception of Drills, which were still enquired for. At auction goods had continued to realise fair market rates. Cottons had mostly remained very quiet. Grey Shirtings: Heavy goods were lower; 8¼lbs. quiet, and without alteration. T-Cloths: Little enquiry, but unchanged in value. White Shirtings without improvement. Drills had been in considerable demand, and prices had advanced; rather a large business had been done, and stocks were much reduced. Fancy Cottons were without alteration, but there had been a small enquiry for Velvets. Woollens and Worsteds showed but little change. Long Ells, Camlets, and Spanish Stripes had been asked for, and the former showed some improvement for assorted cargo; the stock was small. At auction Camlets showed a small decline, while Spanish Stripes had realised rather better prices.

HONG KONG.—There had been considerable improvement in the demand for both Piece Goods and Yarns, and large transactions were reported for the fortnight. Messrs. Olyphant and Company's Circular says:—Cotton Yarns: A rather better feeling has existed, as the stocks of good and best qualities of Nos. 16 to 24 and 28 to 32 are light, and importers have thus been enabled to display more firmness in treating with native buyers for these kinds ; but for common Yarns there is no enquiry, and values are more or less nominal. Nos. 38 to 42 of really good spinning will readily command extreme rates. Piece Goods : During the first week of the fortnight there was a decidedly better enquiry for both 7 lb. and 8/4 lb. Grey Shirtings, and a fair business was done in these weights ; but latterly the demand has fallen off, and closing prices are the same as those last given. White Shirtings are wanted, and are generally dearer. Drills have been considerably bought, and present values show a sensible improvement, which is well maintained at the close. Prices of T-Cloths are unchanged, with the exception of 6 lb. ordinary makes, which have been sold at an advance of 1 to 2 cents per piece, and are at present held for still higher figures. Woollens : The enquiries of dealers have resulted in fair settlements of the principal fabrics, and prices are now somewhat better for nearly all heavy goods, but the wants of the natives are as yet mainly for the best makes and qualities. Metals : Tin is weaker, as full supplies are reported on the way from the south. Lead has been in good demand, both from native dealers and foreign speculators, and prices now show a fair improvement. Quicksilver has advanced, under the influence of recent purchases by foreigners, and extreme rates are now demanded. Coals : There has been no movement whatever in Cardiff and English kinds.

CANTON.—Lead had been fairly active for common kinds, 1,400 piculs of which had found buyers at $7.90 to $7.95 per picul, leaving a stock of 2,500 piculs on the market. There was no supply of W.B., the quotation for which was $8.00 to $8.05 per picul. Quicksilver was quoted at $182.00 to $184.00 per picul, with no transactions.

SINGAPORE.—The market for Piece Goods generally had been very quiet, and there was little change in prices. 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings were firmer, but only a small business doing. The demand for all qualities of White Shirtings had fallen off. White Spots neglected. 40s Grey Yarn in more demand, which had been met at lower prices. Low qualities of White Cambrics in excellent demand, and none in first hands ; Turkey Red Cambrics in no request whatever.

PENANG.—No improvement had taken place in the import market during the fortnight ; transactions had again been on a very limited scale, and prices had still further declined.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

HANKOW.—Messrs. Evans, Pugh and Co.'s Report says :—During the fortnight under review, there has been a fair business transacted in secondcrop Teas, amounting to 18,000 chests, which is same as in corresponding time last year, but arrivals are 53,500 chests, against 48,800 chests, and shipments to Shanghai 37,000 chests, against 32,000 chests. Prices have ruled firm in consequence of the high rates current in Shanghai, which have made Teamen very independent about selling in this market ; our quotations have had an upward tendency till an advance of one Tael per picul has been established during the last few days. Chon-sow-ki second crops have been in some demand at from Tls. 21 to 24½ per picul, the highest quotation being paid for "Pinghing" by a Russian buyer ; the chop "Chune-cut" realised Tls. 24. These Teas possess better quality than the Oopacks generally. Second crop Oanfas are of fair quality, and have been selling at Tls. 20½ to 24½ per picul. Ly-lings of this crop are as usual dull and flavourless, but have commanded Tls. 17¼ to 17¾ per picul. Of the 40,000 chests of second crop so far settled 8,000 chests are for Russia. There are no indications of the shortness in supplies of second crop, which we anticipated a fortnight ago, arrivals being so far 92,000 chests against 72,000 last year. Quotations are, for Fair to Medium Oopacks, Tls. 17 to 24½, against Tls. 15 to 23¾ at same date last season ; Oanfas, Tls. 18¼ to 24½, against Tls.16½ to 20 ; Oonahms, Tls.13 to 19¼, against Tls. 11½ to 17½. Settlements to date are, 262,577 chests, against 269,522 chests in 1873. Shipments on Native account, 105,960 chests, against 110,330 chests in 1873 ; Contracts, 3,437 chests, against 11,324 chests in 1873 ; Stock is estimated at 5,562 chests, against 9,764 chests in 1873. The following is a comparative statement of the export hence: 1874-75, 45,227,039 lbs.; 1873-74, 44,668,936 lbs.; 1872-73, 41,200,874 lbs.; 1871-72, 40,095,971 lbs.; 1870-71, 31,026,321.

KIUKIANG.—Black Teas.—Fourteen chops Ningchows, equal to 2,588 chests, had been settled during the fortnight at Tls. 21.8.0 to 27.5.0 per picul. Total arrivals amounted to 125,433 chests.

SHANGHAI.—Black : A large business had been transacted, settlements averaging about 3,500 chests a day. Prices for all descriptions, except good common to fair, showed a decline of Tls. 1 to 1½ a picul on last P. and O. mail's rates. Good common to fair were sought after, and had fully maintained previous quotations. For low and common Teas (Shuntaams) there was no market. Compared with last year's rates at this time, Teas costing Tls. 16 to 17 last year were worth Tls. 19 to 20. Medium Oopacks were about on a par with last year's prices; medium Oonams and Oanfas were Tls. 1 to 2 dearer, and Ningchows were fully Tls. 2 to 3 higher. Arrivals were coming forward freely ; the second crop so far was in excess of last season's yield, and the scale of prices gave every encouragement to Teamen to manufacture a very full third crop. Settlements for the fortnight, 40,700 chests ; re-shipments, 1,875 chests ; stock, 31,300 packages.—Green : The demand for Pingsueys had been well sustained, but prices showed a decline which was most perceptible on Teas of common quality. Several chops of Taiping Teas had been bought at prices about 3 taels above rates paid for the same description of merchandise last season. A few chops of Countay Tea had arrived in market. The stock was, as yet, too small to give any definite idea of the crop, but, judging from musters seen, the quality was much the same as last year. Teamen, as is usual at the beginning of the season, talked of high country cost, and asked correspondingly exorbitant prices here, Tls. 50 being demanded for ten best chop, but it remained to be seen whether any sanguine foreigners would be found to accede to their extravagant ideas. The following were about the prices paid :—For Pingsuey, 20,151 half-chests at Tls. 24¾ to 25 per picul ; for Taiping, 1,463 half-chests at Tls. 33½ to 36½ per picul ; for Local-packed, 3,423 half-chests at Tls. 29¼ to 35 per picul ; settlements, 25,037 half chests ; re-shipments, 1,415 half-chests.

FOOCHOW.—During the week buying had been very active, a good demand existing for all descriptions. Congou : Settlements had been 36,300 chests at Tls. 5 to Tls. 27. Rates paid showed some irregularity though the Teamen were willing sellers at quotations. Second crop Kaisows were arriving freely, and a few sales had been reported at Tls. 19 to Tls. 23, being about last year's rates. Arrivals during the week 35,000 chests. The following were the current quotations, duty paid. (The cost at which Teas lay down in London calculated at Exchange of 4s. 2½d. and freight £3.) Dust and siftings. 6¼d. to 7¾d. ; broken leaf to common, 8¼d. to 11¼d. ; fair to good common, 11¾d. to 1s. ; flavory to medium, 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 4d. ; good medium to fine, 1s. 4½d. to 1s. 7d. ; fine, 1s. 7¼d. Souchong : settlements 2,800 chests at Tls. 15½ to Tls. 34, medium to fine kinds being a shade easier. Arrivals 200 chests. Oolong : settlements 100 half-chests at Tls. 23½. Arrivals 4,500 half-chests. Scented Teas : settlements 7,960 boxes at Tls. 23 to Tls. 25 for Orange Pekoe, and Tls. 17 to Tls. 23 for Capers, being about former rates. Arrivals, 11,000 boxes. Flowery Pekoe : settlements 270 chests at Tls. 33 to Tls. 40. Arrivals, 200 chests.

AMOY AND TAMSUI.—Very little business had been transacted at Amoy. Stocks were still accumulating, and Teamen were firm at prices, which were far too high for buyers. Oolong : Stocks 90,000 half-chests, which were firmly held for very much higher rates than the New York market can afford. Most of the chops lately settled had been for the London market, and there still appeared to be little prospect of business to any extent for the American market for some time to come. Congou : Stocks somewhat reduced. Quotations: common cargo $16 to $18, fair cargo $19 to $20, good cargo $21 to $22. Formosa Oolong : Later advices from Tamsui do hot show any improvement in this market. Fine Teas were scarce, and owing to the firmness of holders, only a very small business had been done. The stock on offer amounted to about 2,000 piculs poor quality Tea.

CANTON.—The market had remained very quiet ; Teamen, however, had shown rather more disposition to realise, and some business had in consequence resulted, at somewhat easier rates. Scented Capers.—Fair to good medium Teas had principally been dealt in up to Tls. 22, but of fine and finest quality the market was entirely bare ; very few musters had been shown of third crop Teas, as in the existing state of the market Teamen were not willing to pay the prices asked for the leaf in the country. Scented Orange Pekoes.—A few parcels of good long leaf had been shown on the market, and these had found buyers at about previous rates ; the result of these sales was not satisfactory we hear to the Teamen, and the bulk of the Tayshan leaf would probably be used for Congou. In other descriptions we do not hear of any business having been done. Settlements reported :—Scented Caper, 14,000 boxes at Tls. 16.00 to 22.0.0 per picul. Scented Orange Pekoe, 5,000 boxes at Tls. 18.00 to 27.50

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—The fortnight's settlements had been again on a large scale, which had been chiefly owing to the decline in Exchange, and influenced by continued heavy arrivals the Chinese had been current sellers, and prices had declined from 5 to 10 taels ; Tls. 435 for best chop No. 3 ; Tls. 367½, 347½, and 327½, for No. 1, 2 and 3, Gold Lion ; and Tls. 307½, for Red Peacock, being the last prices paid. There had been a small enquiry for the American market, amounting to about 200 bales. Settlements for the fortnight, Chinas, 7,000 bales. Total settlements since 1st June, 18,500 bales ; against 1873-74, 12,000 bales ; 1872-73, 22,500 bales. Comparative unsold stock on this market on the 24th July, 1874, 14,000 bales ; 1873, 9,000 bales ; 1872, 7,500 bales.

CANTON.—During the fortnight but little had been doing on this market, higher prices here and very discouraging telegrams from both London and the United States having almost entirely put a stop to business. In consequence of there being so little demand only a very small quantity of 3rd crop Silk had arrived on the market ; that which had arrived showed a bright colour, was of fair quality but the thread somewhat coarse. During the fortnight the only authenticated settlement had been one of 15 bales market Tsatlee ; no new contracts for rereels had transpired ; of Waste Silk 300 bales had been shipped to London and 126 bales of Pierced Cocoons. Stock consisted of 500 bales Tsatlee Reel, 200 bales Loongkong, 100 bales Cumchook and Lacklow and 300 bales of inferior descriptions.

CHINESE IN PERU.

Mr. Isaac Lawton, writing to The Times upon Peru and the labour question, says:—It seems fashionable not to believe anything which is good of Peru, while there is an eagerness to credit everything which betokens ill of that interesting country. It is, however, with the labour question in Peru in particular that I would deal in this letter, since it has formed the subject of several communications which have lately appeared in The Times. They have chiefly emanated from gentlemen interested in the British colonies, with whom, as an Englishman who resided for many years in the West Indies, I fully sympathise; but I am not ready to admit that the advocacy of the cause of the British sugar-producing colonies can be best served by injurious insinuations and actual misstatements in reference to foreign countries, made by those who in many instances possess not the slightest knowledge or experience of such countries. It is not my intention to defend or to attempt to defend the cruelties of the "Chinese traffic" with Peru.

Digitized by Google

For three years or more I have persistently commented upon the subject publicly, and, in common with my contemporaries of Lima, have openly denounced such evils as have been attendant on it. Perhaps, then, I may be entitled to some credence when I state that the evils have in many instances been exaggerated. It is, perhaps, not unreasonable to suppose that many of the evils which beset the Chinaman in lands other than his own may in a great measure be accounted for by the peculiarities of his own nature, and it may be accepted as certain that it is entirely from the lowest class of Chinamen that the emigrants to Peru have been selected. Yet, in face of this, it is gratifying to know that many thousands of them, who a few years ago were worse than slaves in their own country, are now enjoying actual comfort, and —incredible as it may appear to very many of your readers who cannot possibly disconnect the poor Chinaman in Peru from misery, pain, and suffering—not a few are in prosperity bordering on opulence. Thousands of them are domestic servants, cleanly in their appearance, and, as a rule, easily instructed in domiciliary duties. Large numbers of those who have served out the terms of their indentures are engaged in various and profitable branches of trade and different industries. Some are importers of merchandise, and there are in Lima two highly respectable firms composed of Chinamen who receive very large consignments. Their business in Callao, as is customary, is done by an agent, who is one of the oldest and most respectable foreign residents. Then there is the Chinese Club and the Chinese Theatre in Lima, while in Calle de Puno, Callao, they have recently established the Chinese Benevolent Society.

THE SUEZ CANAL.—A bulky Blue-book has just been published containing correspondence that has taken place between June, 1872, and July, 1874, respecting the question of the Suez Canal dues. In the month first named the attention of the British Government was called to an alteration proposed by the Suez Canal Company of the basis on which they levied the canal dues on vessels using the canal. Since the opening of the canal up to that time the company had levied their maximum due of f.10 per ton on the net register tonnage, as shown by the register, or, in the case of foreign-owned steamships, by the British "measure brief;" but it was recently officially intimated that, on and after the 1st July following, this due of f.10 would be levied on the gross register tonnage of such vessels. This alteration of the tariff of the company was much opposed, and the Viceroy of Egypt expressed himself of opinion that the company had gone beyond their powers in making the increase of the dues on their own authority. After some negotiation it was agreed, on the suggestion of the Turkish Government, to hold an international conference on the question, and, the British Government agreeing to the proposal, appointed Colonel Stokes and Sir P. Francis as their delegates. The conference met for the first time on the 7th October, 1873, and, after having held twenty-one sittings, broke up on the 18th December, when a new set of rules as regards tonnage and the levying of dues was agreed to, and the arrangement was ordered to be carried into effect within three months. M. de Lesseps protested against the new tariff; but the Porte authorised the Khedive to enforce submission to the decisions of the conference, and M. de Lesseps at last submitted under protest.

THE INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF ORIENTALISTS.—The programme of the arrangements of this Congress has been completed, and preparations have been made for the reception of foreign Orientalists, who continue to arrive from the Continent. France, Germany, Sweden, and other States send delegates. The following are the times of meeting:—14th of September, 8.30 P.M., inaugural meeting, at the Royal Institution; 15th, 2.30 P.M., Semitic Section, at the Royal Asiatic Society; 16th, 8.30 P.M., Turanian Section, at King's College; 17th, 2.30 P.M., Aryan Section, Royal Institution; Hamitic Section, 8.30 P.M., at 9, Conduit-street; 18th, 11 A.M., Archæological Section, at the University of London; 18th, 2.30 P.M., Ethnographical Section, at the Royal Asiatic Society. Receptions will be given by Sir Bartle Frere, Mr. Bosanquet, and others, and some private collections will be open to inspection. The Imperial University of St. Petersburg has sent a special contribution of considerable amount to the Congress. The Lord Mayor has invited the members of the Congress to a banquet in the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House on the 19th inst.

WE have received from Messrs. Henry S. King and Co. "Translations from the Hakayit Abdulla (Bin Abdul Radar) Munshi," by J. T. Thomson, F.R.G.S., formerly resident in the Straits, but now of Otago, New Zealand. Mr. Thomson says in the preface to this work, which we shall notice fully in our next:—Portions have already been translated by Mr. Braddell (now Attorney-General to the Straits Settlements), viz., "Abdulla's Schooling," "Colonel Farquhar's Seeking for a Settlement," and the "Tan Tae Hoey," which appeared in the Journal of the Indian Archipelago, 1852; and by myself, viz., "Abdulla's Family," "Christian Missionaries," and "Malay Governments," which appeared in a work termed "Some Glimpses into Life in the Far East," published in London in 1863. The above are not reproduced here, but they, as well as the remaining untranslated portions, will be shortly noticed.

WE are glad to hear that Mr. Mundy, of the firm of Messrs. Deacon and Co., who was a passenger on board the Spark, captured by the Chinese on the 22nd of August, is progressing favourably from the injuries he received on that occasion.

THE steamer India left Lisbon for Macao on the 3rd inst. with troops.

HOLLAND.

AMSTERDAM, SEPT. 9.

A few days have yet to elapse before the Parliamentary Session is opened. Next Monday, the 14th inst., this ceremony will take place, and the King will, as usual, read the Speech from the Throne. The public is most anxious to know its tenor, as it is generally supposed that we shall hear something positive about the Ministerial programme. It may be that this hope will be realised; but we are too familiar with the nature of royal speeches of late years to be certain on the point. They have been of late mere confirmations of the theory that language is given to mankind to conceal their thoughts. In my next letter I shall be enabled to state whether Mr. Heemskerk will really make known his programme or not. In the meanwhile the press continues to discuss his probable policy. Most of the papers confess to the belief that the new Cabinet will, after all, prove a mere business Ministry. The most difficult task will be laid upon the shoulders of the Minister of the Financial Department. It is true our treasury is still well provided, but Atchin will absorb a good deal of money. Again, Mr. Van Goltstein is a promoter of the construction of railways in Java, and the abolition of the forced services of the natives, which will involve considerable expense. So much is certain, that it will be very difficult to make both ends meet.

It has created much astonishment that Mgr. Bianchi, the Papal Nuncio, has been invested with the Grand Cross of the Netherlands Lion. There was, it was asserted, no reason for such a proceeding. I, however, hear that he will start in a short time for Munchen, and it is an old custom to present the Grand Cross to the Ambassadors when they leave the residency. There is, therefore, no foundation at all for the rumour that this act was a concession of the new Cabinet to the Ultramontanes. A good deal has also been made of the fact that Captain de Roo van Alderwerelt, M.P., has been promoted to a majority. This makes it necessary for him to submit himself for re-election but there is small chance that the electors will reject their Radical representative.

Elections will shortly take place at Amersfoort and at Tiel. As candidates for the first named place are Mr. Pynappel (a Moderate Conservative), and Mr. van Asch van Wyck (an Anti-revolutionist). Mr. Geertsema is mentioned as a candidate for Tiel but I think it very doubtful whether the ex-Minister, who is now with Mr. Fransen van de Putte at Marseilles, awaiting the arrival of General van Swieten, will accept the candidature. Other rumours say that Professor Tienhoven will be put forward by the Liberals as their candidate.

The Emperor of Russia has appointed the King colonel of a regiment of the Imperial Guard. This appointment was made on the occasion of the visit of Prince Alexander to the Russian Court. As soon as Prince Alexander returns he will establish himself in his own palace. Rumours are once more in circulation of a marriage with a German Princess, but I don't believe there is any foundation for the report. It seems that both the sons of the King prefer to remain unmarried.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

The transactions in the market for Colonial Produce have been limited in extent since last mail, and both by private tender and auctions only trifling lots have changed hands. The position of most articles, however, is firm, and prices are, as a rule, well maintained.

COFFEE.—The market has been in general very firm, but the demand very dull. The news from the places of produce is satisfactory. The September auction of the Dutch Trading Company will take place on the 23rd.

TEA.—On the 25th inst. 10,500 chests Java will be brought under the hammer, and this fact, of course, checks business. Some demand has prevailed for China, so that the cargo ex Kirkland will probably soon find buyers. The stock includes 23,600/4 chests Java and 3,000/4 chests China.

SUGAR.—Only small lots have changed hands at the last auction prices. The Nos. 15 and 17 of the August sale have been bought for the Baltic at f.¾ under November value; for Nos. from 8 to 14 there is some demand for Belgium at f.1 to f.1¼ under November. The result of the beetroot crop being quite uncertain there are now neither buyers nor sellers. This state of affairs will last about three weeks.

RICE.—The market is somewhat firmer. The arrivals are very important, so that the stock amounts to 5,304 bags Java, 18,064 bags Rangoon, 26,830 mats Japan, whilst 10,687 pcc. Java are afloat.

SPICES.—Since the auction there has been much demand for Mace, and an important advance has been paid. Nutmegs are saleable at the auction prices, but holders decline to operate. Cloves are also firm. The quotations are:—No. 1, 210c. to 215c.; No. 2, 200c. to 205c.; No. 3, 170c. to 175c.; No. 4, 128c. to 130c.; Mace, D, 215c. to 218c.; E, 210c. to 212c.; Cloves, No. 1, 112c. to 110c.; No. 3, 108c. to 106c.

JAVA TOBACCO.—About 20,000 bales offered for sale by public tender, and only 718 bales were bought in. The result proves that there is still a firm demand for the qualities which are fit for manufacturing purposes. Prices are as a rule very high.

DRUGS.—The trade is inspecting the several parcels which will be offered for sale in a few days.

JAVA INDIGO is dull, and there is scarcely any demand. The total stock is 2,070 chests. The result of the forthcoming auctions is expected to be anything but satisfactory.

BANCA TIN.—Some transactions have taken place in the last few days. Holders however do not incline to sell large lots at the low prices offered by the buyers. On the spot can be bought at f.57¾. For Billiton is offered f.54¼.

HIDES meet with a good demand for superior qualities.

ARRACK.—In spite of the advancing season, when usually large quantities are shipped, no transactions in first hands have taken place.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Sept. 1, at Brouwershaven, from Rangoon, Unione; 3, at Brouwershaven, from Batavia, Nieuwe Waterweg II.; from Rangoon, Emanuele; at Maassluis, from Batavia, Harrington (str.); 4, at Brouwershaven, from Rangoon, Petronella, Florentine; at Texel, from Batavia, Maria Elise, Amstelstroom, A.M.E.; 5, at Brouwershaven, from Rangoon, Grad Senj; at Hellevoet, from Batavia, Petronella; 6, at Texel, from Batavia, Warrior (str.); from Rangoon, Constantin; 8, at Texel, from Rangoon, Goodell.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.—For Java, per Dahlia: Mr. H. Veerkamp, Miss C. Wenssen, Miss M. Blankenberg, Miss E. Wynen-Riems and family, Messrs. A. Muyterman, D. Schoonermarck.

THE TREATY BETWEEN CHINA AND PERU.

AT length we have intelligence of the conclusion of a treaty between the Envoy of Peru, Senor GARCIA, and the Chinese Government at Peking, after eight months' negotiations. The chief object attained is the proper regulation of the coolie traffic between the two countries, which for a long course of years has not only been a curse to the Chinese who were kidnapped, and a stain upon the character of their Peruvian taskmasters, but a disgrace to humanity. Happily the long list of crimes at sea involved in that vile traffic is now at an end, chiefly through the representations of the British and other Governments to the Portuguese and Spanish authorities concerned. The conclusion of this treaty may be considered the crowning act in giving effect to the philanthropic intervention of friendly States and their ministers at Peking, who supported the Chinese Government in demanding an amelioration of the condition of the EMPEROR'S subjects in Peru. When it is known that there are about one hundred and forty thousand in a state of semi-bondage in that country, it shows the importance of the question at issue. Evidently LI HUNG CHANG, the Imperial Commissioner, was fully impressed with the responsibility of protecting so many of his countrymen, and their transit from China to Peru, or vice versa, while conducting the negotiations with the Peruvian Envoy. Accordingly, we learn that it became "his duty, as the Chinese Plenipotentiary, to take every "necessary measure to ensure that his nationals should "have accorded to them by the Peruvian Government the "same rights, immunities, and privileges which are accorded "to foreigners of other countries resident in Peru, and that "the Chinese there should hereafter enjoy on equal terms "with the peoples of the most favoured nations full pro-"tection on the part of the Peruvian Government for their "persons and for their properties. H.E. consequently "deemed it necessary, besides concluding the treaty, to "arrange with the Peruvian Plenipotentiary, by a special "convention, that a Chinese Commission should at once "proceed to Peru to institute an investigation into the "condition of the Chinese labourers in that country, for "the information of the Chinese Government." Doubtless this convention was urged by the Imperial Commissioner in consequence of the unsatisfactory result of reports received from the Commission of Enquiry of which Mr. MACPHERSON, of the Customs, is a member, which left Peking some six months ago for Cuba. We have not heard anything of their movements lately, but they must be about leaving on their return to China. In all probability, on their arrival at Peking the new Commission will be preparing to start, and will avail of the experience of their predecessors. While viewing with satisfaction the successful diplomacy of LI HUNG CHANG in securing a favourable treaty for the protection of his countrymen in Peru, we congratulate Senor GARCIA on his perseverance in overcoming the difficulties he had to encounter. At the outset it was quite within bounds that the Chinese Government would have persisted in an obstinate resistance to enter into any treaty relations with Peru, not only on account of the misdeeds of the Peruvians, but being averse to the national policy. Now that the treaty is a fait accompli, it behoves Senor GARCIA to see that his Government carries out its stipulations fairly and honestly. Every facility should be given to the Commission in their investigations into the condition of their fellow countrymen, as it is only after that proving satisfactory that the Chinese Government will permit emigration.

THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT AND THEIR CUSTOMS SERVICE.

WE are inclined to believe that the Chinese are losing faith in their foreign employés, whether from their excess of zeal, or their want of it, it is not easy to say. But the facts are clear. In the difficulties which have so recently arisen in Formosa, in which acquaintance with the Chinese language, and knowledge of international law—both, we believe, considered essential qualifications for those occupying the position of commissioners—would have been eminently useful, it does not appear to have been the Customs employés who have been called to the counsel and assistance of the local Government, but the foreign Consuls and the ex-Director of the Arsenal at Foochow. We speak with the utmost impartiality on this occasion. We are even ignorant of the names of the Commissioners at Formosa and Foochow, but we make bold to say that on an occasion like the present it behoved the head of the service to see that the Chinese were supplied with the best counsel and advice which the service could afford. A pacific solution of the difficulty was earnestly to be desired, not only in the interests of China and Japan, but also in those of the united commerce of the world. We might fairly expect that a person occupying the important—and remarkably well paid—post of Commissioner of Customs, speaking the Chinese language, and mixing on terms of official equality with Chinese authorities, should have given his employers sound, safe, and salutary counsel; should have had influence enough to shape, to some extent, the course of events, and have aided in reconciling the two conflicting interests. Yet we hear nothing of the presence of the Customs Commissioners in the negotiations now pending in Formosa, and we believe that for nearly two years no visit, either of ceremony or business, has been exchanged between the Governor of the island and the Commissioner in charge of the port; while it is a well-known fact that since the departure of the Baron DE MERITENS from Foochow the influence of the Customs—once paramount—has dwindled into insignificance.

WE understand that Sir JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE, late Attorney-General at Hong Kong, and at present Chief Justice of the Leeward Islands, has been appointed Third Assistant-Under-Secretary at the Colonial-office, vice Sir HENRY HOLLAND.

AN extraordinary Embassy from the King of DENMARK to China and Japan is talked of, and General ROASLOFF is mentioned as the probable Minister.

SARAWAK.

The Sarawak Government has, we hear, determined upon opening a station at a point named "Kapit," in the Rejang river, situated 150 miles in the interior, capable of being reached by vessels of from one to two hundred tons burden. There are already two stations in this fine river, one (head-quarters) situated sixty miles, and the other one hundred miles. from its mouth. The trade in exports and imports has increased from £8,000 to £85,000 per annum, during the last fifteen years, consisting of gutta-percha, beeswax, rattans, sticks (canes), the valuable camphor and hard woods for the Chinese market, besides other articles, such as bezoar stones of various sorts, worth their weight in gold, and are always sold at that rate. These are exported to China to be used as drugs, Dyak mats, cloths, arms, &c., &c. The imports consist of piece goods, iron, salt, tobacco, jars, &c. The population of the Rejang numbers 50,000 souls of different speaking tribes, some being very warlike and give considerable trouble at times; but yet they are active traders and have learnt the value of money. It is expected that when this third and upper station of "Kapit" is established the commodities will be collected here from the very centre of the island of Borneo. The Rejang is the largest river on the whole of the north coast of Borneo, situated seventy miles from Kuching, the capital of the Sarawak territory. Three Government officers administer the affairs of this district, holding court at stated times at the different stations, and settling the affairs of the aborigines as well as the claims of the creditors. Malay chiefs and Chinese magistrates sit in court when required by the Government officer, and the Malay population are ready to be called out should disturbances arise in the many branches up the river. The Government have a mixed force of forty paid fortmen and police, with one seventy-five feet steam launch, in this district. The importance of this river is increasing rapidly, and during last year the blessing of a trading steam vessel, of the Borneo Company, Limited, has been experienced by its inhabitants, in addition to many trading vessels. The Chinese here, as every where else in these parts, are the great pioneers of commerce, and many hundreds have already located themselves in this river, and ready to increase in number as the resources of the inland country are developed, to afford them maintenance and profit.

LE THEATRE AU JAPON.

Writing from Yedo on the 26th of last May, M. George Bousquet contributes a long and very interesting article to the Revue des Deux Mondes under the above title. Speaking at the outset of the changes now going on in the Japanese Empire, he observes that it is not his object in this paper to point out the promises and perils of this "hasty and incoherent transformation," nor to explain the reasons which rendered it inevitable, but rather to save from the universal shipwreck some relics of a world which is about to disappear. After a few words respecting the different tendencies of the upper and lower classes, and the conservatism of the latter, he proceeds to remark that if you question a dignitary of the official world respecting the theatre, novels, tales, and stories, he will speak of them with a smile of disdain as being valueless in his eyes ; but it is none the less true that it is in these matters that we must study Japan in order to become acquainted with her. There are many theatres at Yedo, but those of Shimabara and Naka-Bashi only attract chance spectators, and most people prefer to frequent the houses in the suburb of Asaksa, so celebrated for its religious monuments, temples, chapels, pagodas, monasteries, and a multitude of small establishments of an infinitely less sacred character. In order to go to the theatre in Japan one has to get up earlier than usual, for the performances commence at 6 A.M., and terminate at 8 or 9 P.M. ; and some idea may be formed of the powers of endurance of all concerned when we mention that three whole days are not always sufficient to finish certain pieces. Etiquette still forbids great dignitaries, men of letters, and officials of high rank from showing themselves at the theatre, and their wives only go there incognito ; so the vast majority of the audience is composed of people in holiday attire, such as shopkeepers, peasants, artisans, boatmen, porters, and the like, who go with their whole families.

We next have a brief glimpse of the internal arrangements of a theatre, where "the musicians, clad in sacerdotal garb, never cease playing on drums, flutes, and three-stringed guitars, at one time to divert the audience during the entr'actes, and at another to accompany the actors ; and it is a great proof of the placidity of the Japanese nature that 1,500 persons can listen to this squeaking for twelve hours at a stretch without exhibiting the least sign of mental agony !"

The pay of the actors is not high, and but rarely exceeds 1,000 rios per annum at the outside : sometimes their pay depends upon the success of the performances ; some again play for nothing, and with no other profit beyond the advantage of making themselves a name. Women never appear on the stage, and their parts are very effectively taken by men, though their voices betray them directly they speak. As amongst the Greeks, continues M. Bousquet, and in our own middle ages, the origin of the drama in Japan is of a religious nature ; its beginnings recall our mysteries, celebrated at first in the churches, next transferred to the palace and thence to the theatre. Having given us the same fable about the first origin of the dramatic art as Mr. Mitford had previously given in his Tales of Old Japan, and which that gentleman tells us is to be found in the Zoku Nipon Ki, or supplementary history of Japan, M. Bousquet discusses tragedy, comedy, and the no, or classical opera, as it has been called, which is performed chiefly in princely palaces, and he cites and analyses specimens of each class, but his remarks on these heads extend to so great a length that it is impossible for us to follow him through them, although they are naturally of very considerable interest. He concludes his instructive paper with some observations respecting Japanese novels, a subject which is intimately connected with the theatre, and the more so as it is very rare to find the text of a piece for sale, and it is the corresponding novel alone which can be purchased. The women are almost the only readers of this class of literature, and for the small subscription of half-a-dollar a month they get what books they want at a library. Apart from their titles, these novels resemble one another precisely, and as a specimen of what they are all like, M. Bousquet gives a succinct analysis of one of the most popular, the Kosan-Kinguro.

THE AUSTRIAN POLAR EXPEDITION.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

The telegraph will have informed you of the return of the Austrian North Pole Expedition, which had not been heard of for two years, and about whose safety grave anxiety was beginning to be felt, so that it was great relief when the first telegram came to hand announcing their arrival at Vardoe, a little commercial and fishing port in Norway at the mouth of the Varanger Fiord, and about four degrees to the East of the North Cape. The expedition was fitted out at Bremen, and was under the command of Captain Weyprecht, of the Austrian navy, and Lieut. Payer, formerly an officer in the Imperial army, and well known to the readers of Dr. Petermann's "Geogr. Mittheilungen," from his numerous accounts of his mountain and glacier ascents in the Austrian Switzerland. The Tegethoff, in which they embarked, was a screw steamer, built and fitted out at Bremen for this special service, and they sailed in her from the Weser in the month of July, 1872, for Tromsoe, in Norway, whence they took their final departure for the unexplored north, taking with them the Norwegian Captain Carlsen, an experienced navigator of the icy sea. There were also five other scientific men on board, and with the crew and engineer were twenty-three persons, all told. The vessel was provisioned for three years, and their instructions were to explore the sea to the east of Spitzbergen and Novaya Zemlya, along the coast of Siberia, and endeavour to reach Behring's Straits by that route. That object, however, was not realised ; but, on the other hand, they made some valuable discoveries in another direction, especially a large mountainous island or continent to the north of Novaya Zemlya, and often sighted from Spitzbergen, but always unapproachable on account of the ice. The officers of the expedition landed on this island, and propose to call it Franz Joseph's Land. The following is a translation of the telegram sent by Weyprecht to Count Wilczek, an Austrian noble himself, an Arctic explorer :—

In August, 1872, locked in by ice and frozen up ; knocked about in the pack-ice for fourteen months. 1873, five summer months' of work to endeavour to get clear of ice, but without effect. Ship raised seven feet out of the water by the pressure of the ice. August, 1873, discovered large tracts of land north of 80 deg. Locked up by ice and wintered in 79 deg. 51 min. N. lat. and 59 deg. E. lon. Landed and made excursions, but could not find the northern or eastern termination. May 20, abandoned the vessel and came over the ice in a southerly direction in four sledges and ice-boats. After a troublesome and difficult journey of ninety-six days on the ice, fell in with a Russian schooner in Dunen Bay, Novaya Zemlya. The chief engineer, Krisch by name, died of tuberculose, the remainder all alive and well. Great collection of observations. Request permission of the Emperor to name the place discovered—Franz Joseph's Land. Money required 1,200 roubles silver. Pay owing to the crew 11,385 florins silver, and 4,000 florins due for remunerations. Travelling expenses from Tromsoe to Vienna estimated to be 3,400 florins. Pray advise Agaard (the Austrian consular agent at Tromsoe) by telegraph to lend me 8,000 florins for journey to Vienna, charters and advances.—(Signed) WEYPRECHT.

Another telegram has been received by Count Wilczek from Lieut. Payer, giving further particulars of the expedition. It is as follows :—

Vardoe, 3rd September, 4 o'clock.—The vessel has been without a harbour for two years, during which time we were blocked up by the ice. For fourteen months driven about to the north of Novaya Zemlya. During the first winter ship suffered severely from pressure of the ice. In the autumn of 1873 driven to within three miles of unknown land. Passed the second winter in 79 deg. 51 min. north and 59deg. east. 1874, from March 9 to May 4, travelled in sledges over part of the new discovery, from 79 deg. 54 min. to 82 deg. 5 min., and sighted land in 83 deg. Country extends at least 15 degrees of longitude, but except on the south side no termination of the land visible from the summit of the highest mountains, which are 5,000 feet high, and of the dolorite formation. Very little drift-wood seen. Arctic voyage follows large tracts of land bridged over by one-year-old ice. North of 82 deg. coast-water and drift ice visible, therefore a wake. Maximum of cold 37 deg. Reaumur under zero, on the land journey in the middle of March. Land expedition lasted seven months. In the night of May 20 abandoned the ship. August 15th, reached the boundary of the ice, in 77 deg. 40 min. north lat., Motoschkin Schaar bearing south. August 24th, fell in with Russian fishermen, who conveyed us to Norway. With the exception of Krish, who died, all the party are alive and well. Ask his Majesty's permission to call the newly-discovered land Franz-Joseph's Land. Pray send order for 2,600 florins paper for sledge journey, premium recognised, and if possible a remuneration to the surgeon for his valuable and important services. Send telegrams to the Press at Vienna, Pesth, and Klagenfurt, and also to Dr. Petermann at Gotha. (Signed) PAYER.

We hear that the whole party are expected to arrive in a few days (by the Norwegian steamer Hakon Karl, from Hammerfest, touching at Tromsoe and Christiania) in this city, en route for Vienna. In the meantime the Managing Committee of the Hamburg Geographical Society have, through their President—Burgermeister Dr. Kirchenfrauer—sent a telegraphic message to the German Consul-General at Christiania requesting him to congratulate the intrepid voyagers on their safe return, and invite them to attend a special general meeting of the society on the evening of their arrival here. I have reason to believe that there will be a very numerous muster of the members on that occasion, to express their sympathy and admiration of the gallant conduct of the party, as well as the dangers and hardships they had to endure. The Senate, too, as a special recognition of the importance of the discoveries achieved by the expedition, have given orders to the commander of the State steamer to proceed down the Elbe as soon as the Norwegian steamer's arrival at Cuxhaven is announced by telegraph, and to bring up the party to this city—an honour hitherto only accorded to crowned heads and other very distinguished personages.

FORMOSA.

The following is an extract from an account of a visit to Formosa, contributed to The Times by a correspondent signing himself "E. B. M.":—

I started from Takow on the morning of the 17th of October, shortly after daylight in company with the captain of the man-of-war in which I had come to Formosa and two other gentlemen, one of whom was a resident at Takow, acquainted with the country and the local Chinese dialect. We owe it to him that we were able to make the expedition, as it would have been impossible to penetrate into the interior without an interpreter. A traveller arriving at this village at nightfall would be strangely impressed by hearing the solemn and familiar strain of the Old Hundredth rising fitfully through the thick growth of bamboos, guiding him to the home of the chief of the small community. The Presbyterian mission has been exceptionally successful in Formosa, and thanks to their labours our first night's halt was among Christian Chinese. The farm house of the headman was a quadrangle, one side of which formed the dwelling-house, in which the principal room was ornamented with engravings from the Illustrated News. Early on the ensuing morning we resumed our journey in the sedan chairs. For upwards of ten miles our road lay through richly-cultivated districts such as we had seen the day before, but as we neared the mountains the aspect of the plain changed. The hand of the husbandmen seemed to have relaxed its grasp; the soil, apparently as rich as any we had passed through, remained untilled; no bamboo groves diversified the landscape; wild nature was tenant of the land. We had reached the neutral zone between the conquered and unconquered parts of the island. Behind us were the rural homes of the Chinese; in front, the mountain fastnesses of the savages. The internecine strife which continues to this day between the inhabitants of the plain and the mountain has produced a wilderness some ten miles in breadth at the foot of the mountain range. Within this neutral district, however, are a few villages where the savages and the Chinese meet to exchange commodities. At Hoansia, where we had passed the night, we had been urged to proceed no further, as a party of marauding savages had been surrounded on the previous day, and two of their number had been captured and beheaded. Such an incident was, however, of too common an occurrence to be likely to make any change in the friendliness with which Europeans were regarded, and we thought ourselves justified in not heeding the advice, and pursued our way to a neutral village named Kalipo, the Christian Headman of Hoansia accompanying us. At Kalipo the wife of the Headman was of savage birth, and sister of the chief whose home in the mountains it was our object to reach. We experienced considerable delay before we could prevail upon her to act as our guide without sending word previously to know if we should be welcome; and, indeed, she refused to venture upon doing so unless she could find two other women to go with us. There were several savages in the village, who for a bit of red cloth would have taken us anywhere; but we were given to understand that we could only penetrate with safety provided we were under female escort. Our next difficulty was to prevail upon our Chinese baggage-carriers to accompany us. Their terror at the idea of entering the dreaded territory was such that bribes and threats appeared at first to be useless to shake their determination to abandon us. In the end the greater part of our things were left behind and the rest carried by the more valiant of the crew, to whom we assured protection as far as we were able.

When we were about to move forward a savage appeared whose rank we concluded to be greater than or equal to that of the warrior who had first stood by our side, for he stopped the advance and began a lively dispute with him. We learnt afterwards that he claimed the right to escort us up the mountain. Towards eight o'clock we reached our destination—a village situate some 2,000 feet above the level of the sea. The scene of our arrival was illuminated by flaming millet stalks, held by savages. An old man came forward and shook each of us by the hand. Immediately afterwards a youth put his arm round my waist and led me along the road, which was paved in with rude flagstones in the most inconvenient manner, as about every ten paces a flagstone was placed upright, obliging one to step over it. We were soon again in darkness, and I felt really grateful to my friendly guide who seemed to be taking so much care of me, till I found that with the hand which was not round my waist he had succeeded in extricating my revolver from my belt. I endeavoured to regain possession of it, and, before I knew where I was, I found myself engaged in a struggle, which would probably have ended in my discomfiture, as I quickly recognised the superior strength and agility of my friend, when a light was shed upon the scene from a neighbouring doorway, on which he suddenly disappeared, leaving the revolver in my hands. A few steps further brought us to the house of the chief, who was a ruler over ten tribes. He was away on a hunting expedition, and we were received by his wife. She bowed to us as we advanced in succession with all the dignity of a Western Princess. On her head was a massive wreath of brilliant yellow flowers, and we learnt afterwards that married women had the privilege of wearing flowers in their hair, while those who were not married might only wear leaves. Her dress was of green cloth with a red and yellow border, and round her neck she wore necklaces of beads. The room was soon filled with a crowd of natives, whose curiosity about us it was difficult to appease. They were friendly, but inconvenient, and it was impossible to escape from them. Our only compensation was that we were equally curious about them, and their appearance was most picturesque. Some wore a species of headdress which, looked at from the front, resembled a cocked hat with a fringe of many-coloured feathers, others wreaths of small rosy apples, others chaplets of wild boars' tusks.

In the morning, when we announced our intention to return to the plain, difficulties were put in our way, and we were told that we could not be permitted to leave until the arrival of the chief. A number of lances were stacked against the wall of the house, and the natives destined to do the service of outposts came one after another, received their orders, took a lance, and darted away. The distribution of the cloth and beads, which we had brought with us as presents, occupied about two hours, and produced interminable disputes. On finding that we were denuded of all we had brought with us we determined to make good our retreat, for the return of the chief and his hunting party would have been embarrassing if we had no presents. It was also not at all unlikely that the marauders whose heads had been cut off two days before in the plain had belonged to this party, and that the survivors might be inclined to reprisals. On the wife of the chief being informed that we positively intended starting whether she sent an escort with us or not, no further opposition was made; on the contrary, she attired herself in a gala costume of green cloth, did up her hair with fresh flowers, and smeared her face with oil. Then seating herself on the divan she extended her hand for us to kiss as we bade her farewell. I fired three shots from my rifle, which I was told was a civility, and we started down the mountain. On reaching the outskirts of the village we were requested to stop, and presently we saw the wife of the chief being carried down the path towards us on the back of a stalwart warrior. We learnt that it was against etiquette for her to put her feet to the ground outside her own precincts, but that as she wished to see us safely on our road she had desired to be carried to the limits of the settlement. The warrior deposited her upon a stone bench, and we again bade her a formal farewell. An escort of picked men accompanied us on our descent, which was rapidly accomplished. On nearing the plain we divided the last remnant of red cloth among them, and once more wrangling began as to the share to which each was entitled. We should have been glad to leave our wild acquaintance with mutual expressions of goodwill; but, as it was, we had to make our retreat at a moment when their savage nature was making itself unpleasantly conspicuous, and their countenances were distorted with the expression of envy, hatred, and malice. An hour's walk in the plain brought us to Kalipo, and on the following day we returned to Takow.

MURDER OR SUICIDE?

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—The Overland Straits Times of July 25 thus eloquently expresses itself in reference to Lord Stanley of Alderley's speech of last May on Straits matters:—

When Sir H. Ord was here he had to bear in silence the imputations publicly current as to the wretched presents which he thought he could not in courtesy refuse, and his mouth was shut when Lord Stanley took up the matter in the House of Lords. In a matter of life or death to his personal character and reputation, he could only defend himself through the Secretary of State, a mode of defence which, ably and loyally as it was done, could hardly have satisfied his sense of indignation when wrongfully accused of what he knew himself innocent. The inference, we think, is that to make a charge against a public man upon mere hearsay or frivolous grounds, nay, without proof positive and unquestionable, is cowardly and unfair, and we almost think ought to be punished with exceptional punishment.

This is high-souled and noble, indeed. Why did not Sir Harry, like his predecessors, and like the Governors of other colonies, send to the Treasury the presents which he could not refuse? Why was he condemned to silence in the colony, when he might have prosecuted his libellers; or why has he not since supplied the public with that complete contradiction of all imputations against him which the noble lord offered to pay for with a public apology? These are questions worth answering. But they are comparatively unimportant. What is important is, to ask who is the culprit that deserves the exceptional punishment? Lord Stanley? Why so? He only believed that the following passage, which he read to his fellow peers, was not devoid of foundation, seeing that it had been published in a newspaper of repute and respectability:—

It may be well to move to have a committee—not a jobbed one—to inquire into the practice of his Excellency the Governor (Ord) of receiving presents from different persons, native chiefs and others, and the time and occasion when these presents were received. . . . . The subject of present-taking by the Governor is notorious, and that high official in no way conceals the fact. Can the public, however, believe that when a public man publicly takes presents he will be very particular as to their nature and extent, or be very communicative as to all the good things he may receive? The bold admission that he does receive presents may be but a blind as to their importance and influence.

If it was "base and cowardly" to read such a statement in reliance on the respectability of the paper which published it, and to ask the Government whether they had enquired into its truth, how is the conduct of those persons to be designated who printed and promulgated it "on hearsay and frivolous grounds," if not editorially, at least without a word of dissent or objection? I must ask the Straits Times to dip again into its vocabulary for suitable language, and to devise also an exceptional punishment for such conduct, for the passage just cited occurs in its own columns of the 23rd of August, 1873. Its invective recalls to mind the fate of that unhappy American martyr to absence of mind, who one night fancied himself a burglar, and did not discover his mistake until he had run himself through the body.

—Yours obediently,

A. B.

Literature.

There is no very striking feature in the China Review for May and June, but we are glad to see the journal sustained. Miss L. M. Fay contributes "The Borrowed Boots," a specimen of a Chinese farce; Mr. E. C. Bowra a paper on Hainan, an island about which we wish that more copious and trustworthy information was available than is at present the case; and Mr. Geo. Hughes the first instalment of "The Japanese and China." Mr. C. F. R. Allen, of H.M.'s Consular Service, furnishes two papers of some interest, the one comprising a few notes respecting the Chung Ling spring at Chinkiang, and the other being the first portion of translations from the "Liao-Chai Chih-yi," or tales of the marvellous collected in moments of leisure. This number also contains an article on Kang-hi Dictionaries, the conclusion of a "Chinese Webster," by the Rev. J. Nacken, and two papers by Dr. Hirth relating to geographical matters. Mr. C. Piton contributes some odd information in a "note" entitled "Chinese Anthropophagy," in regard to which we think that he ought to have qualified his statements by remarking that the horrible custom which he describes is peculiar to Southern China, for we do not remember to have heard of similar occurrences in the Central and Northern provinces of the Empire. In his "Literary Intelligence" the editor falls into a curious error; he quotes The Times as his authority for saying that a poetical account of the Chinese conquest of Nepaul in A.D. 1790, written by the Emperor of China, is among the recent additions to the British Museum. Reference to the London and China Telegraph of May 18, and the London and China Express of May 15, under the head of Literature, will show that the information is taken verbatim from the annual return of the income and expenditure, &c., of the British Museum for the past financial year.

Naval and Military.

The Vigilant, now fitting out at Portsmouth as a tender for the service of the new Commander-in-Chief on the China station (Vice-Admiral A. P. Ryder), is expected to sail on the 18th inst. The following officers have been appointed to her:—Lieutenant Hugh C. D. Ryder (in command); Navigating-Lieutenant G. W. Balliston; Chief-engineer, H. Jones; Assistant-paymaster (in charge), W. J. Stewart Cannon; Surgeon (in charge), R. A. Mowll, M.D.; Sub-Lieutenant F. O. Pike; Gunner, W. Ricketts; Engineers, R. Sutherland and G. Triggs; Assistant-engineer, G. H. Hearson. The ship's complement is 73 officers and men.

Captain Philip Colomb, who has just commissioned the Audacious (Vice-Admiral Ryder's flagship), entered the navy in 1846. He served as mate in the Serpent, 12, in the East Indies, from May 8, 1852, until paid off at the commencement of 1854, and on March 14 of the same year was appointed to the Phœnix, 8, Captain E. A. Inglefield, in which ship he was employed in the Arctic Regions, and on February 3, 1855, was promoted to lieutenant. As lieutenant he served in the Hastings, 60, in the Baltic, from the date of his promotion to the close of the Russian war, and in the Excellent, gunnery ship, from January 1 until December 15, 1857. From the latter date until February 1, 1863, he was flag-lieutenant successively to Rear-Admirals Sir Thomas S. Pasley, Bart., and T. M. C. Symonds, C.B., at Devonport, and from June 11 until promoted to commander, December 12, 1863, was additional of the Edgar, 71, flagship of Rear-Admiral Dacres, with the Channel Squadron. From March 20 till December 7, 1865, he was borne on the books of the Edgar as additional for special service, and from the latter date until the commencement of 1867 on the books of the Victory for temporary service. On July 8, 1868, he was appointed to the command of the Dryad, 4, sloop, in the East Indies, where he remained until posted April 4, 1870. Captain Colomb was engaged in 1864 with Captain Bolton, of the 12th Regiment, in carrying out a series of experiments with their systems of flashing signals at extreme ranges, the object aimed at being the combination of both systems for naval and military purposes, and more especially with reference to coast defence. He also published a pamphlet, "How Collisions at Sea Occur," having reference to the Hetton v. The Uhlenhorst, a letter addressed to Rear-Admiral Collinson, R.N., C.B., and Captain Pigott, the Nautical Assessors who tried the case. He was engaged more recently upon an entire reorganisation of the lighting of Her Majesty's ships. Captain Colomb has received three medals for his services.

The following officers, who last served on the China station, have been appointed as under:—Lieutenant F. Papillon (in the Juno from 1872 to 1873), to the Bittern, gun-vessel, Mediterranean; Lieutenant the Hon. F. R. Sandilands (in the Avon from 1872 to 1873), to the Audacious, the new flagship for the China station; Navigating sub-lieutenant H. B. Newton (in the Rinaldo from 1873 to 1874), to the Topaze, frigate, detached squadron; Mr. W. C. Graham, engineer (in the Midge from 1872 to 1874), to the Helicon, despatch-vessel, Mediterranean; Mr. J. F. Lewis, engineer (in the Leven from 1871 to 1873), to the Pigeon, gunboat, Mediterranean; Mr. G. F. Ludlow, engineer (in the Salamis from 1869 to 1872), to the Wizard, gunboat, Mediterranean; the Rev. J. Edwards, M.A., chaplain (in the Iron Duke from 1871 to 1874), to the Vanguard, coastguardship at Kingstown; W. J. S. Cannon, assistant-paymaster (in the Salamis from 1873 to 1874), to the Vigilant, despatch vessel, fitting out for China.

The crew of the Audacious, the new flagship for the China station, are now, in accordance with the Admiralty regulations of the present day, engaged in completing the rigging of the vessel at Chatham Dockyard, the men being quartered on board the Forte, a vessel which was fitted up as a receiving ship at Chatham when the new order was issued that in future crews should rig vessels fitting out, and not the riggers of the dockyards, as had hitherto been the practice.

Colonel C. Shadwell, C.B., of the 19th Regiment, who served with the 98th Regiment in the China expedition in 1842, and was present at the attack and capture of Chin-Kiang and the investment of Nanking, has become Major-General.

Mr. T. H. L. Bowling is appointed secretary to Rear-Admiral Ryder, the new Commander-in-Chief in China.

Monetary and Commercial.

The directors of the London Bank of Mexico and South America (Limited) have decided to recommend, at the meeting on the 22nd inst., a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum. At the corresponding period of last year the rate was 10 per cent.

The directors of the London and San Francisco Bank (Limited) notify that they have declared a dividend on account of 3 per cent., being 6s. per share, for the half-year ending the 30th June last.

The report of the Cuba Submarine Telegraph Company has been issued for the half-year ending the 30th June. The balance of the revenue account amounts to £5,895 13s. 7d., and the extraordinary expenditure for the repair of the cable to £21,747 2s. 5d., absorbing the whole of the balance at the reserve fund—£12,283 13s. 6d.—and the above profit of the half-year, and leaving £3,567 15s. 4d. to be carried forward to the debit of the current account.

At an adjourned special general meeting of the shareholders in the Great Western Railway of Canada, Mr. Childers, M.P., was elected chairman of the new board, eight members of which were also elected at the same time. The remaining three will be selected by the board.

An additional return of capital in the Bank of London of 5s. per share has just been announced, making, with the previous returns, the sum of £6 per £10 per share. There are other assets yet to be realised. The bank has been over eight years in liquidation, and the interest on customers' balances, and liquidation and other expenses, have represented over £5 per share, so that at the time of its suspension the bank was perfectly solvent.

A petition has been filed in the County Court at Dewsbury on behalf of Messrs. Gomersall Brothers, woollen manufacturers. Bad trade, losses, large stocks, and pressure by their bankers is said to be the cause of stoppage. The liabilities are about £90,000, and Mr. Good is appointed the receiver.

The suspension is reported of Messrs. John Miller and Company, papermakers, of Denny and Colinton, and stationers at Glasgow. The unsecured liabilities are estimated at £30,000.

The failure is announced of Mr. Castle Kelsey, corn merchant, of Hull, with liabilities for £250,000.

The price of Bar Silver has slightly declined; and for the amounts received this week 57 15-16d. for Fine Silver has been realised; the market is by no means firm, nearly all orders having been filled. Mexican Dollars remain without alteration.

The bullion per P. and O. steamer Zambesi, from Southampton Sept. 10, was in gold, to Galle, £135.

THE BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade Returns for August have been issued, and re very unfavourable. The total value of the exports for the month amounted to £20,503,756, against £22,657,334 in the corresponding month of 1873, being a decrease of 9½ per cent.; and this is the more marked, as following a similar decrease upon 1872. The decrease is, however, chiefly in value. The total value of the imports was £32,433,286, against £29,894,506, being an increase of 8½ per cent. upon 1873. But it will be remembered that in the previous month there was a decrease in the imports total of about 7 per cent. In the exports, cotton yarn shows a decrease in quantity of 4¾ per cent.; but in this case the decrease in value is only 1¾ per cent.; cotton piece goods, a decrease in quantity of 8 per cent., and of 11 per cent. in value; linen yarn, an increase of 1 per cent. in quantity, but a decrease of 11 per cent. in value; linen piece goods, a decrease of 2 per cent. in quantity, and 4½ per cent. in value; woollen yarn, a decrease of 12 per cent. in both quantity and value; woollen cloths, an increase of 5¼ per cent. in quantity and 7 per cent. in value; worsted stuffs, a decrease of 15½ per cent. in quantity, and 21 per cent. in value; iron and steel, a decrease of 5 per cent. in quantity, and as much as 13¾ per cent. in value; and coal, &c., manufactured, an increase of 29½ per cent. in quantity, but here the increase in value is only 2¾ per cent. With regard to the imports, raw cotton shows an increase of 23½ per cent. in quantity, and 25⅜ per cent. in value; flax an increase of 50½ per cent. in quantity, and 42 per cent. in value; raw silk, an increase of 58½ per cent. in quantity, and 50 per cent. in value; wool, a decrease of 25 per cent. in quantity, and 31¾ per cent. in value; tea shows an increase in value of 30 per cent.; coffee a decrease of 4 per cent. in the quantity entered for home consumption, but the total value shows a decrease of 21¾ per cent. The exports for the eight months reached £159,477,032, against £171,401,295 in the corresponding period of last year, and the imports £252,338,598, against £245,970,964.

The following is an extract from these Returns of the figures which refer to our Export trade with China and the Far East :—

TEA.

The market during the past week has been rather more steady, with a fair amount of business doing, both for export and home consumption, and prices show rather more firmness for black-leaf kinds of Congou, other kinds generally remaining much as last week. Public sales have comprised 11,680 packages, nearly the whole of which have been offered and sold without reserve. The deliveries for the week as compared with last year are as follows :—

Coastwise	816,895	747,849
	4,045,982	3,506,230

Congous.—Red-leaf kinds : Siftings have been in less active demand, and prices have ruled a shade easier. Broken-leaf kinds remain firm ; fair to good common have been steady at previous rates. Fair to good Kaisow kinds have been rather more saleable at last week's prices. Fine to finest kinds have been sold without change. Pak Lin kinds meet with a good inquiry at fully former prices. Black-leaf kinds : Common to fair have sold at previous rates ; fair to good medium have been in demand at rather better prices ; good to fine have also been firm, whilst finest still command high rates. Souchongs have been fairly saleable without alteration in price. Oolongs have been sold to some extent at public sale without reserve, at the low rates lately current, say from 1s. 3d. to 1s. 6d. for good to fine Kokew. Scented Teas : The demand for Canton Capers has been rather quieter, but prices have been firmly maintained. Foochow kinds have sold at the recent decline. Canton Orange Pekoes remain without improvement. Foochow kinds have not been so readily saleable, and prices have given way ½d. to 1d. per lb. Green Teas : The private contract market is quiet. New Teas continue to be offered for public sale, without reserve, as they arrive, and prices have generally ruled in favour of buyers.

SILK.

A good deal of business has been doing this week in China Silk, both home and foreign manufacturers showing a disposition to buy pretty freely of the new silk, at prices which show fully 6d. rise on rates obtainable during sale week. Importers readily meet buyers, and altogether the market is steadier and the feeling generally better than for a long time past. Canton and other silks are not sharing in the improvement, which is almost exclusively limited to the new Chinas. Deliveries are good, viz., China 1,584 bales, Canton 276 bales, Japan 227 bales, Bengal 111 bales, total, 2,198 bales.

COFFEE.—A continued decline has been observable in the market for Ceylon, and prices are 2s. to 3s. lower than the closing rates of last week. Quotations are :—Plantation triage, 81s. 6d. to 88s. ; small to low middling, 100s. to 109s. ; middling to bold, 110s. to 114s. ; peaberry, 121s. 6d. to 124s. ; Native, small, 74s. to 74s. 6d. ; good ordinary pale, 80s. 6d. ; bold, 84s. ; peaberry, 103s. An offer of 130 bags mixed Singapore was quitted at 70s. 6d. to 73s. 6d. per cwt.

CHINA PRESERVES.—250 cases Ginger sold at 6¾d. to 7d., and 30 cases Chow-Chow 10¼d. to 10½d.

CUTCH.—No business done.

GAMBIER.—150 bales have been sold at 27s. per cwt. ex ship, and 50 tons afloat at 25s. 6d. ex ship.

PEPPER.—The market continues extremely quiet ; scarcely any business has been done, and the few transactions effected have established no change in the prices ruling last week.

RICE.—Very few sales have been made on the spot, but at a decline of 6d. per cwt. several cargoes of soft grain have been disposed of—one of Rangoon, 940 tons, at 9s. 9d., Liverpool quay terms ; and seven of Necransie (5,700 tons), two at 9s. 1½d. and 9s. 4½d., for Bordeaux ; three at 9s., for the Continent ; one at 9s., for Antwerp ; one at 9s., ex ship London.

STICLAC.—5 boxes Siam sold at £5 12s. 6d. per cwt.

SPICES.—Cloves : 70 bags Amboyna part sold at 1s. 5½d., and part of 10 cases Penang at 21s. ; Nutmegs : 30 packages sold, 72 nuts to the pound, at 3s. 9d. ; 81 ditto, 3s. 6d. to 3s. 7d. ; 140 ditto shrivelled, 2s. 2d. Mace : 20 packages bought in at 2s. 6d. to 3s. 1d. Cassia : Of 200 packages offered, 20 boxes sold—Japan, 35s. 6d. Cassia lignea : Of 1,200 boxes offered, 350 boxes sold at steady rates—first pile, 80s. ; unworked, 57s. Cinnamon : 50 bales Ceylon part sold—second sort, 3s. 1d. ; third, 1s. 10d. ; fourth, 1s. 3d. to 1s. 4d. ; and 50 boxes China, at 8d. to 9d. per lb. for broken ; 130 bags chips withdrawn.

SAGO.—1,400 bags pearl offered, and all bought in. 300 bags since sold, good small, 17s. 6d.

TAPIOCA.—2,400 bags flake chiefly sold, bold white Penang, 2½d. to 2⅝d. ; old, 2d. to 2¼d. ; old Singapore, 2d. ; and 30 bags pearl, 22s. 6d. 400 bags flour withdrawn.

TIN.—The market is steady, with a fair demand. Importers of Straits hold for higher prices, and consequently very little is offered on the market. The Dutch Trading Company announce that they will offer for sale at Rotterdam, on the 29th inst., 22,300 slabs Banca ; no Billiton. The current quotations are—Straits on the spot £92 10s. to £93, afloat £92 ; Banca £101, Billiton £95 per ton.

IMPROVED AND ECONOMIC COOKERY.—Use

as "stock" for beef-tea, soups, made dishes, and sauces; gives fine flavour and great strength. Invariably adopted in households when fairly tried.

CAUTION.—Genuine only with Baron Liebig's facsimile across label.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

INDIGESTION, STOMACH AND LIVER COMPLAINTS.—Persons suffering from any disorders of the liver, stomach, or other organs of digestion, should have recourse to Holloway's Pills, as there is no medicine known that acts on these particular complaints with such certain success. Its peculiar properties strengthen the stomach, increase the appetite, and rouse a sluggish liver. For bowel complaints it is invaluable, as it removes every primary derangement, thereby restoring the patient to the soundest health and strength. These preparations may be used at all times, and in all climates, by persons affected with biliousness, nausea, or disordered livers. For flatulency and heartburn they are specifics. Indeed, no ailment of the digestive organs can long resist their purifying and corrective power.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present French mail brings advices from this port to the 29th July; and by the Pacific mail we have five days later news, viz., to the 3rd August; the French mail from London 5th and the following P. and O. mail of 12th June were received together on the 27th July. The Japan Mail supplies the following items of intelligence:—

The settlement of the Formosa question now depends upon the reception given to Yanigawara at Peking. The Japanese Government are willing to evacuate their position in the island if the Chinese Government will engage to occupy it, and enforce on the savages such discipline as will prevent the recurrence of the outrages which the Expedition was sent to redress. The Japanese Government also require the admission of the Cabinet at Peking that it has hitherto been in the right, and has been justified in sending the Expedition. With this acknowledgment it would be satisfied without the payment of any indemnity or any claim for the expenses incurred. Whether the Chinese Government will give the desired admission must remain a question for some time. But it is far from impossible. The general disposition of the Cabinet will be to avoid war if possible, and however informal may have been the answer given to the Japanese Secretary of Legation by the Tsung-li-yamen on the subject of the jurisdiction of China over the savage tribes, it has never been denied that the tenor of the answer was to deny all responsibility for their acts. The interpretation of the answer, therefore, will hinge on the disposition of the Peking Cabinet, and if this be peaceable a satisfactory arrangement will follow. We may continue, then, to hope for the best.

A very remarkable memorial has been addressed to the Sain on the subject of the Expedition. The savage expressions it contains are probably orientalisms or extravagances which time has consecrated, and which demand rather a metaphorical than a literal interpretation. They are certainly amply atoned for, however, by an exhibition of high spirit and excellent sense in analysing the whole question. The strong patriotic feeling characteristic of the Japanese, and the absence of which seems so complete in the Chinese, is apparent throughout the whole memorial, which is also very much more out-spoken than we should have been prepared to expect. The publication of the memorial is possibly another hopeful sign, as showing that the Government feels itself quite strong enough, not only from general points of view, but on the subject of the Expedition, to permit of very free criticism upon the latter. Inferences of this nature, however, are of doubtful value.

Severe weather has been experienced on the southern coast of these islands. The violence of a typhoon on the 23rd July, destroyed the telegraphic wires connecting Shimonoseki with Nagasaki, and communication was interrupted for two or three days. The P.M.S.S. Company's steamer, bound hence to Hong Kong, was compelled to seek refuge in Nagasaki on the 26th July, but was able to proceed on her voyage on the following day. Grave fears were entertained as to the safety of the Messageries Maritimes Company's steamer Volga, which left Hong Kong on the 15th July, and did not arrive at Yokohama until the 27th. The Volga met with severe weather on her passage, and was for three days subjected to the buffeting of a gale of wind, from which she sustained many injuries. She will proceed to the Yokoska Dry Dock for repair, the Company's agent having chartered the American steamer Nevada to take her place on the line provisionally. The Volga encountered two typhoons; in the first of these she lost three blades of her screw, and in the second she brokeher tiller.

It is said that the Kenrei (chief local authorities) were some time back ordered to report on the feeling of the people in the districts under their jurisdiction regarding the admission of foreigners into the country, and that this feeling has been found adverse to the measure. On this ground it is supposed that the Government came to the resolution announced by us elsewhere, and determined to shelve for the present the question of opening the country to foreigners.

The attention of the Consular Authorities has been directed to the existence of several gambling establishments in the settlement, and a determination to use every possible means to suppress them has been arrived at. The proprietor of one of these has been fined $500, and a warrant has been issued to close his establishment.

It is rumoured that there is a probability of the Japanese Government abandoning their appeal from the decision of the American Consular Court to California, in the case of their action against the P.M.S.S. Company, for breach of charter for the New York.

Orders have been issued by the Central Government that the local officials of the various provinces, who are to constitute the Deliberative Assembly, shall assemble in Yedo not later than the 10th of September next, for the despatch of public business.

We learn from a native paper that Tanabi, an officer occupying an important position in the Gaimusho, proceeded to Shanghai by the Costa Rica on the 16th July. He is said to be the bearer of important despatches to the special envoy, Yanigawara, who was sent to China two months since to discuss the subject of Formosa.

The examinations at the Kaisei Gakko having now been brought to a conclusion, the long vacation has commenced, and both professors and scholars have separated, a large majority of the former betaking themselves to the various interesting and health-giving resorts of this part of the country. Studies will recommence on the 2nd September.

A new Japanese theatre of large dimensions has just been completed on the site of the houses burnt down in the serious fire of last year. The energetic Takashima Kayemon is said to be its proprietor.

The gradual deterioration of the silk-growing industry of this country, to which Mr. De Bavier in his work on Sericulture very largely addresses himself, is, it is stated, now receiving the notice of the Government.

A performance of sacred music was held at Christ Church on the evening of the 21st July, and passed off very successfully. A member ofthe community, whose name has not been disclosed, has discharged the balance of the debt incurred in the purchase of an organ for Christ Church.

Dealings in army clothing, munitions of war, and arms continue to be reported. Enquiries from China represent a pressing demand in that country, and it is stated that the Chinese Government is desirous to purchase iron-clad men-of-war.

The unexpected appearance of a comet in the northern heavens has created much excitement in both Japan and China. In the latter country it is regarded as a presage of evil and is connected with the position of matters in Formosa.

The Japan Herald contains the following summary of news:—

The Formosan expedition still drags its slow length along, being, so far as we know, still in statu quo. Offensive operations appear to have been suspended, although reinforcements, to fill casualties from disease and wounds, have been despatched. Meanwhile, China is making strenuous efforts, and is said to be arming on a gigantic scale, and it would only be a just retribution on Japan were China to avenge her violated territory and the attempted colonisation of Formosa by annexing some of the outlying Japanese islands, say the Lew Chews. The Japanese Government is using every means to come out of the affair with the loss of as little prestige as possible, knowing that should the force now in Formosa be captured, or have to withdraw at the order of China (one of which events must inevitably occur should the two Powers come into collision), the ministers responsible for this ill-judged expedition would scarcely be able to withstand the well-merited indignation of the people, unless popular wrath could be diverted by a war with China, in which, however, in the end Japan would be vanquished. It is well known that strong differences of opinion prevailed originally in the Dai-jo-kuan respecting the policy of despatching the mission, and it was eventually undertaken as a sop in the pan to a discontented soldiery. Probably the Government will in future, in indulging their aggressive propensities, remember the old proverb of "look before you leap." The prime author of all this turmoil, Mr. Le Gendre, left this on the 21st July for Hong Kong, it is said to conduct some negotiations with the Chinese. It would be quite in the style of Japanese character to despatch Mr. Le Gendre to negotiate at one spot whilst the specially appointed Envoy, Yanagiwara, is doing the same thing at another.

Provision has been made, we hear, for the payment of the final balance of the Simonoseki indemnity. We trust that this salutary mulct—the payment of which has been too long delayed—will teach the Japanese that they cannot be permitted to fire upon foreign flags with impunity, and that if they do they will be certain to be made to suffer for their silly temerity.

The sentences pronounced on the police for the late outrage on the British Legation have been published, but no sooner was this done than a somewhat similar case in Yokohama again served to warn the public as to the absurdity of trusting Japanese with any authority over Europeans. In the last case the Inspector of Police has been dismissed. The Government has, it is said, offered the escort man Woods, who was illegally assaulted and imprisoned, the sum of $500.

There seems at last a fair prospect of an arrangement being arrived at by which the foreign settlement here will be lit with gas.

ELEVEN DAYS LATER.

The Pacific Mail steamer Great Republic arrived at San Francisco on the 4th inst., bringing Yokohama advices to the 14th August. The subjoined summary of news has been telegraphed to the New York press:—

The Japanese adhere to their determination not to be driven into war with China except in the last extremity. The whole tendency of their present negotiations is pacific, but so many influences are operating against them that they feel the necessity of fully preparing themselves. To this end large bodies of troops have been assembled in certain southern ports, ready for instant departure in case of need, and several large steamers have been added to their transport fleet. The most important of these are the Pacific Mail Company's ship New York, purchased for $250,000, and the ships Acantha and Madras for $118,000 and $90,000 respectively. In regard to the New York, it is possible that the claims for commissions, yet unsettled, and about to be adjudicated, will swell the amount paid by the Japanese to $280,000. General Le Gendre, who sailed for China a fortnight ago to continue the peaceful negotiation commenced in Formosa, was arrested by United States officials on landing at Amoy. It is not yet known whether he will be temporarily or permanently detained. Astonishment at the news of his seizure is chiefly caused by the fact that the amicable character of his mission was known to everybody. It is looked upon as another proof of the determination of foreign representatives to obstruct the efforts of Japan to arrive at a fair understanding. No foreigner acting on behalf of China has been molested or interfered with in any way.

The Japanese Government, fortunately foreseeing the possibility of obstacles in General Le Gendre's case, despatched other commissioners immediately after his departure, who could not be hindered in the fulfilment of their duties. The first of these is Okubo, Minister of the Interior, and a member of the highest Board of the Government. His assistant is Yosharas, an officer of the Treasury Department and the head of the Yokohama Custom House. They are to proceed directly to Peking. Accompanying them is a French gentleman in the legal service of the Japanese. The French Minister undertook to detain his employe. Having the law and a complete knowledge of the law on his side, he was able to convince M. Berthemy of the danger of the course he was pursuing. The Japanese are still hopeful of tranquillising the results of this last mission. The Mikado takes the keenest interest in the deliberations of the Government on the Formosa question. On the 4th of August he personally visited the office of the Diajokwan, or the first Board of the Government, and presided over the debates, an act almost without precedent in modern times.

The affair of the Simonoseki indemnity has taken a turn that could never have been anticipated by Americans. Mr. Bingham has received instructions from Washington to demand full payment, and the amount has been deposited to his credit. The grounds upon which the order from the State Department was based are not that the claim is just or that the United States Government desires the money, but solely that as other Governments concerned have received their share ours must also be paid according to the bond. The Japanese are greatly chagrined, not wholly on account of the unlooked for loss of money, but principally because they had been given to understand for the last two years that the balance of the payment would never be exacted. In this conviction they felt themselves in a better position to resist the aggressions of other nations. They now consider themselves free to believe that the assurances of forbearance and unwillingness to press an extortionate demand were nothing but empty declamations. It is understood that Mr. Bingham deeply regrets the decision of the State Department, which, nevertheless, he is bound to enforce. He has not, up to this moment, taken possession of the amount, hoping that another mail may bring some modification of his instructions.

The United States Consul, General Van Buren, has arrived and assumed the duties of his office. General Meyers and Colonel Lyford, of the United States Army, specially commissioned by President Grant to bring presents of new and improved arms to the Sovereign of Japan, are now at Yedo. On the 10th they were, with Minister Bingham, received by the Mikado. In the unlucky event of a war with China it is probable that these instruments of attack, among which were Gatling guns, would be made immediate use of. It does not appear, however, that Mr. Bingham has issued any orders forbidding their delivery to the Japanese authorities.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 2nd August; the French mail from London, 19th June, arrived out on the 1st August. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald:—

In the Supreme Court, before Sir Edmund Hornby, chief judge, the case of Robert Mackenzie against Messrs. Rowley Miller and Augustus White came on for hearing. It was a petition for a settlement of partnership accounts, and the plaintiff also claimed payment of a sum of money amounting to nearly Tls. 5,000. Both defendants were examined, and testified to their belief that the plaintiff had really withdrawn from the firm. There was much argument on both sides, and the Court sat until seven o'clock, the case having commenced at eleven in the morning. Mr. Drummond objected at that late hour, after a fatiguing day, to enter upon his summing up on behalf of his clients, to whom he would not be doing justice if he attempted it. His lordship said he could not name an earlier day to resume than the 15th October, and the case accordingly stands adjourned until that date.

A case has also been argued on appeal from the Consular Court at Nagasaki, in which the master and owners of the barque Mistletoe were the defendants and appellants, and Mr. W. L. Malcolmson, plaintiff and respondent. The Nagasaki Court had found the master of the Mistletoe responsible for breach of charter party, and had cast him in a heavy penalty, amounting to $2,779.29. The appeal was argued at considerable length by Mr. Wainewright for the appellants, and Mr. Robinson for the respondent. His lordship, who took time to consider his decision, gave judgment, reversing that of the Nagasaki Court.

The decision of the arbitrators in the Golden Age and junk case is that the collision was occasioned by the fault of both, and that the damage on both sides, together with the costs, should be shared equally. The junk will thus recover assessed damages in full, less the amount of the injury to the steamer.

A Naval Court has been held at H.B.M. Consulate, to inquire into the wreck and abandonment of the steamer Laptek. It has found Capt. Tough culpable in not placing the ship by bearings and recording these from noon of the day the vessel struck; had this been done it would have given the Court assistance in judging of the exact position of his ship at the time of the casualty. It accordingly censures him, but expresses satisfaction with his conduct after the accident. The Court acknowledges the good offices of the Chinese navy, but in acting on Mr. Robinson's suggestion in this respect, has given credit only to the gunboat which brought the crew from Keelung, and by what we are sure must have been purely an oversight, left unnoticed the valuable and prompt assistance rendered by the gunboat Foksching on the night of the occurrence and afterwards. We hope it will still be possible to extend the Court's recommendation that the Board of Trade should notice these services to both vessels.

We hear that negotiations have been resumed between the Race Club and Recreation Fund, which are likely to result in an amicable adjustment of their differences, and a clear understanding as to their relative positions, rights and obligations. It is therefore improbable that the proposed steps to appeal against the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the matter will be taken.

We have to acknowledge the Customs' returns of trade at Shanghai for the second quarter of 1874. The import of opium shows a slight increase over the corresponding quarter of last year; grey goods the same, but drills and woollens are much less. Iron is about 10,000 piculs short, but lead is nearly five times as great, and tin more than double. Needles are an article of trade capable apparently of indefinite increase, the import for the quarter being 651,320 mille, double last year's, and more than quadrupling that of three years ago. Coal gives 31,659 tons' or about 5,000 in excess of last year. The re-export of opium is on a par with its import, but the same cannot be said of shirtings, though T-cloths and drills appear to have been withdrawn more freely than they were received. The re-export of grey and white shirtings, however, compares favourably with last year; but in T-cloths and drills there has been a falling off. Woollens have not gone off so largely as last year, but then the import has also been considerably less. 21,569 piculs of iron were re-exported, against an import of 44,780, and a last year's business of 28,903; but of lead 31,392 piculs, against an import of 35,781, and a re-export last year of 20,775. Notwithstanding the enormous import of needles noted above, the re-export is only 153,950 mille, or one-half what it was in the same quarter of last year. The issue of transit passes reaches 1,502, against last year 1,291, but much fewer piece goods appear to have been sent inland under them. The revenue is Tls. 30,732 over the corresponding period of 1873, though still Tls. 57,198 under 1872. The tonnage dues have risen Tls. 1,500.

The Governor-General of Chili, in a memorial published in the Peking Gazette, gives particulars of the recent capture of a pirate junk by a Chinese gunboat, near Newchwang, and represents that an action of this description, "performed by an officer in command of a steam vessel built by the Chinese Government itself, deserves a more than ordinary reward."

Another of the Foochow built Chinese Government transports, the "No. 15," the second arrival from the same place within the past few days, came into port on the 31st July. She appears to have been but lately launched, and like the Tchen Hang (No. 14), which left Shanghai for, we believe, Nanking, has had large temporary cooking houses constructed on deck, capable of preparing "chow-chow" for 600 or 700 men. It is reported that the No. 15 is also bound for Nanking and other ports up the Yangtsze for troops, but for what destination has not transpired.

The U.S. steamer Monocacy came into port on the 29th July, and went up to Tunkadoo Dock on the 31st. When steaming past the Frolic, the cross tide current caught her bow and swung her round to within twenty yards of the stern of the Frolic, on board which the crew were prepared to lower the boat on the stern davits. The moment danger was apprehended on board the Monocacy the engines were reversed, and the mishap which had seemed inevitable was averted.

The American three-masted schooner Almatia came into port on the 27th July in a disabled condition, having had her spars and head gear carried away during the typhoon of the 17th July, while on her passage from Newchwang to Swatow. She is freighted with a general cargo, and after repairing will resume her voyage.

The steamer Glamis Castle came up the river on the 28th July, having been detained outside Woosung for nearly a week by low water on the bar. She had to be lightened of a large portion of her cargo.

FORMOSA.

THE JAPANESE EXPEDITION.

A correspondent of the Hong Kong Daily Press writes follows, under date Takow, 26th June:—

On the 21st June a proclamation was posted in Taiwanfoo on the subject of the Japanese expedition. It was issued by the "Assistant Imperial Commissioner for arranging matters in Formosa," and the Taoutai of the island. It runs something like this:—

The Japanese have come to Formosa to punish the Bawtans for the murder of certain Lewchewans. But as the Japanese have remained several months without going away, and are talking of attacking some other savages, namely, those of Pelam, the Emperor has therefore sent the two Commissioners to arrange matters. The Bawtans are certainly guilty, but still it is China's business to punish them, and not Japan's; and the Pelam savages have not only given Japan no cause for complaint, but even earned its gratitude by saving certain shipwrecked Japanese last year. The Assistant Commissioner and the Taoutai are therefore going to Langkiaou to see the Japanese General, who certainly will not be allowed to touch any more tribes. The headmen of the frontier villages are ordered to tell the savages to keep quiet and mind their own business, and the Chinese Government will see that no injury is done to any one who does not deserve it.

This proclamation is of considerable interest, as it is the first public expression by the Chinese authorities of their views on the Formosan question. The line that they have taken is very much that which one thought they would adopt. That is to say, they deny the right of Japan to meddle with Formosa at all, but they show no eagerness to precipitate matters by hasty action. Evidently they will be only too glad if the Japanese can be induced to retire quietly without a collision occurring. The plainly-spoken and authoritative statement that the Japanese will certainly not be allowed to touch any more tribes need not be taken too literally. It is probably meant to keep up the dignity of the writers in the eyes of their own people. China will doubtless use all pacific means to induce Japan to leave the savages alone, not so much because she cares for them, as for the sake of her own prestige. But she will only fight on the more serious question of permanent occupation. The Japanese meanwhile give no sign. It would be easy for them to announce that they mean to retire as soon as they have effectually punished the savages; but they do not say so; while on the other hand they carefully abstain from declaring that they intend to stay.

A notification, issued by the United States Consul at Amoy, under instructions from the American Chargé d'Affaires at Peking, has been circulated here. It ordered all citizens of the United States to withdraw from the Japanese expedition, under pain of being arrested and tried for breach of neutrality. This document appeared to us rather startling; as, in the first place, though nearer than anyone else to the scene of action, we were not aware of there being war between China and Japan; and in the second, it appeared that taking part with the Japanese was forbiddden, but not assisting anybody else.

A further communication, dated Takow, 5th July, is as follows:—

The Japanese at Langkiaou have been for some time in a state of inaction, and apparently they do not know what step to take next. They have got possession of the Bawtan territory and the Bawtan villages, and have established inland camps in various places, but they are unable to lay hands on the savages themselves. They cannot therefore be considered to have completed their work, especially as it is not thought safe to move from one camp to another alone, or even in parties of only two or three. Stragglers have been fired at upon several occasions, but fortunately nobody has been killed. The invaders are centainly rather awkwardly situated. They may remain as long as they like in their present position; and yet they will not have any greater hold on the savages, who have undoubtedly found a home among some of their neighbours. At the same time, there will be a touch of absurdity in retaining a couple of thousand soldiers to keep guard against a tribe of savages who, before their numbers were thinned in the various encounters, only consisted of two or three hundred men. If, on the other hand, the Japanese withdraw, the very next day after they weigh anchor the savages will be back in their villages; and the rebuilding of the houses, if they be destroyed, will take but little more time and trouble than their destruction did.

The Chinese Commissioner has returned from Langkiaou after a visit of about five days. When he went to see General Saigo he was for some reason not received. But General Saigo returned the visit next day, and an interview then took place. Neither party has made public what took place at the meeting, but I have heard two accounts, both coming from small Chinese officials who were at Langkiaou at the time. The first is that the Japanese, when requested to go away, said that they could not do so without orders from the Government at Yedo, to which the Chinese Commissioner replied that China would give one month, and if they were not gone in that time the result would be war. The second story says that the Japanese replied to the Chinese demand by saying that they would withdraw if the Chinese would pay the expenses of the expedition, and that the Commissioner gave some answer which was neither an assent nor a distinct refusal. These two stories are not perfectly compatible with each other, but very probably both may contain some germs of truth.

The gunboat Chang-sing has just returned after a cruise round the island. She reports everything in statu quo. The rumours which were flying about of the occupation by the Japanese of Sau-o Bay, on the north-east coast, the best harbour in the island, and of General Le Gendre's being somewhere in the north with a large force, are entirely without foundation.

FOOCHOW.

The Herald has the following:—

H. E. the Futai returned to this port on the 28th inst. from the North. In view of the Formosa difficulty the Lekim and other arbitrary exactions will now doubtless be fully enforced.

Troops are being rapidly pushed forward to Formosa, several thousand men having embarked at this port and Amoy during the week.

A court of enquiry into the conduct of Captain MacNabb, of the late s. s. Canton, has honourably acquitted the captain of all blame in connection with the loss of his vessel.

The wreck of the steamer has entirely disappeared, and is now lying in about ten fathoms of water.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 8th August; the P. and O. mail from London June 26 was received on the 3rd August. We take the following items of news from the Hong Kong Daily Press:—

A rather novel and exciting scene occurred at the Canton steamboat wharf. As usual, when the Canton steamer arrived, the fish-lan's cargo-boat went alongside before the steamer was moored, and a great quantity of very large Canton fish were shot through a net into it, all alive from the fresh water ponds up the river, when the steamer, to get into her proper berth and clear some cargo-boats which obstructed the fairway, gave two or three sudden turns of her paddle wheels, the commotion from which caught the bottom of the boat full of live fish, and completely capsized her, thus turning hundreds of fresh water fish into the salt water. A stampede then ensued, those Chinese who could swim at once plunging in, and in a minute a couple of hundred of Chinese were diving for the fish, who were struggling to get out of the salt water—an unnatural element to them. Every description of boat swarmed to the scene also in chase after them. The excitement did not end here, for after all or nearly all the fish had been re-caught, some swimming races were contested by the divers, to prove their right to fish caught in cases when two or three had arrived on the scene at the capture of one.

We understand that an addition to the various improvements which have of late been made in the Public Gardens is in contemplation, in the form of an aviary. This, when completed, will no doubt form an interesting and instructive feature, as many curious specimens of birds can be obtained in these parts with little trouble.

The Russian Government has given orders to the general commanding the Cossack army in Siberia to found a Russian colony on the Chinese frontier south of Semipalatinsk, in the course of this summer, by assigning that place as a habitation to fifty Cossack families. If possible the new colony is to be peopled with volunteer settlers. Supposing, however, a sufficient contingent of volunteers not to be forthcoming the requisite number of families is to be told off by lot.

SUPREME COURT.—AUG. 4.

Before the Hon. Chief Justice (Sir JOHN SMALE) and Mr. Justice SNOWDEN.

KRESSER AND OTHERS V. JARDINE AND OTHERS.

Mr. Justice Snowden delivered the following judgment of their lordships in the above case:—

"The plaintiffs in this bill are the trustees of the firm of Dent and Co., under a deed of assignment made May 8, 1868. The defendants are Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co., represented by Mr. Whittal, as their managing partner, in Hong Kong. The defendants and the firm of Dent and Co. were in the years 1865, 1866, and 1867 co-partners and shareholders with other persons in two companies formed for the purpose of marine insurance—the Canton and Triton Insurance Companies. The former was conducted at Hong Kong by Jardine, Matheson and Co., Mr. Whittal being the general manager; the latter was conducted in Calcutta by Messrs. Jardine, Skinner and Co., for whom Mr. Whittal was the special agent at Hong Kong, to receive and divide the profits divisable amongst the shareholders. These companies were formed as companies for one year only, so that in fact there were three companies. Each company was wound up at the end of the year, the accounts were taken, a balance struck, and the amount payable to each shareholder in respect of his share of the profits in the partnership for each year ascertained. This having been done, it became the defendants' duty, as managers of the Canton, or as such special agents for the Triton Company, to pay to each shareholder in Hong Kong his ascertained share of the profits. The profits and dividends for the years 1865, 1866, and 1867 were received by the defendants, who claim to retain a part of the profit due to Dent and Company before the making of the deed, as having been equitably assigned to them as a security for money advanced, or on the ground that it became a mutual debt within the meaning of Section 125 of the Bankruptcy Ordinance No. 4 of 1865, which they have a right to set off against a debt due to their firm from Dent and Company. The plaintiffs pray that under the circumstances it may be declared that there was not an equitable assignment of this fund, or that the defendants may not be allowed to retain it under the Mutual Credit Clause of the Bankruptcy Ordinance No 5 of 1864, Section 125. It would seem from Field v. Megan, Law Report 4 C.P., p. 680, and other cases, that there must be either verbally or in writing a distinct unequivocal engagement that a particular fund shall be made iable for a particular debt, it may possibly be doubted whether, although there was an agreement that these shares should be with other property liable to secure the debt, such an agreement constituted an equitable assignment absolutely pledging the shares to secure this debt. We do not entirely concur in opinion on this point, nor indeed is it necessary to come to a concluded decision upon it. Next comes the question was there between the parties what are described as mutual credits or mutual debts. The fact that the debt was in existence as soon as the money reached Mr. Whittal's hand, and that there was not merely a credit in existence between the parties ultimately to become a debt, simplifies the matter, and relieves us from the necessity of referring to recent leading cases on the subject of mutual credits, namely, Young v. the Bank of Bengal, Moore, P.C. 750; Navraowge v. the Chartered Bank of India, 3 Law Report C.P. 444; or Astley v. Gurney, reported in 4 Law Report C.P. 714. Nor is any question raised in this petition as to when, with reference to the deed of assignment, these m oneys were received; or when notice of an Act of Bankruptcy reached the defendants. We have only to decide whether these dividends and profits of the Canton and Triton Insurance Companies formed a debt in the hands of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co., which they were entitled to set off against the balance of £90,000 due to that firm from Dent and Co., and we are of opinion that they were. We have considered the question of costs carefully, and think that had there been clear proof of an equitable assignment, and an equitable assignment only, it would be hard on the plaintiffs to saddle them with the expenses of this suit, that being the view in accordance with the decision of Sir J. Stuart in Gurnell v. Gardner, Jurist. p. 220, because they would rely naturally on Mr. Dent's recollection, and he was unable to call to mind anything of the kind. As, however, we find that this was a mutual debt, which they ought to have known, Messrs. Jardine would be entitled to set off against the deficiency on the advance. We have come to the conclusion that the defendants are entitled to their costs in defending this suit.

PHILIPPINES.

MANILA.

The Diario de Manila, after stating that the steamers of the new China Australian line are to touch at Manila on their voyages to and from Australia, and that commercial relations have for many years existed between Sydney, Melbourne and Adelaide, and the Philippines, thus describes their nature :—

"The great refineries established in Australia, which are amongst the first in the world, prepare considerable quantities of sugar from raw material derived from this country. Manila cigars were also much esteemed there, although their consumption has, we are informed, become less since those of the class called second Havannas have been made of less weight than formerly ; now, that country is an excellent market for cigars of other kinds. Besides sugar and cigars, our hemp, and other produce are sold to advantage in Australia. From that country there have been imported hither, several times, small quantities or wheat and flour of very superior quality."

The Diario further says that when these steamers touch at Manila, the long standing commercial relations between that port and Australia will be strengthened and extended, and also expresses the hope that these vessels may be warmly welcome, and meet with every facility at Manila.

Six capitalists at Manila have formed a company to work the coal mines of the province of Albay, belonging to a person well known in these islands. We understand that the capital embarked to make a beginning with the work amounts to $60,000. We are very glad to publish this news because of the great end in view, namely, that of turning to account one of the great sources of wealth of this archipelago in order to avoid having to import from abroad what it has in abundance and of excellent quality. We congratulate the parties who have set the undertaking on foot, and also those who have taken it in hand by making the spirit of association a reality.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 17th August ; no later mail from London had been received.

The Straits Times of 14th August has an article on the "Malayan Tin Mining Company," and Mr. R. B. Read, in a letter the following day, says :—

The civilising effect of the company will soon benefit the place, and cannot, as you seem to imagine, weaken the hands of Government ; it must strengthen them, and very materially. Why, then, the delay that you counsel ? Salangore is miserably poor and languishing, and here is a company ready to work the quantity of tin now lying useless. It will introduce hundreds of industrious Chinese labourers under intelligent European supervisors, and must ultimately tend to increase the general commerce between Singapore and the peninsula. Why, therefore, delay when so much good can be done ? I can only hope —and I think every reasonable man, free from prejudice and jealousy, must do so likewise—that the company will commence working as soon as possible.

The following has been made public in the Straits :—

Sir,—I transmit to you copies of rules respecting the acceptance by public officers of presents from native chiefs and others, which will be inserted in the Colonial Regulations. They correspond in substance with those which are laid down and acted upon in India.

It is desirable that full publicity should be given to these rules, and that where applicable they should be systematically enforced.—I have, &c., (Signed) CARNARVON.

The Officer Administering the Government of the Straits Settlements.

PRESENTS.—CHAPTER XVII.

421—1. Governors, Lieutenant-governors, and other servants of the Crown in a colony are prohibited from receiving presents offered for their personal acceptance by kings, chiefs, or other members of the native population, in or neighbouring to such colony.

422—2. When such presents cannot be absolutely refused without giving offence, they are to be delivered up to the Government. To this rule there can be no exception unless with the express sanction of the Secretary of State.

423—3. When presents are exchanged between Governors or other officers acting on behalf of the Colonial Government in ceremonial intercourse with native chiefs, rulers, or others, the presents received must be credited to the Government, and such return presents as may be sanctioned by the Secretary of State will be given at the Government expense.

The Government Gazette announces that Mr. H. D. Dent assumed charge of his duties as Superintendent of Prisons on the 6th August.

The average note circulation of the local banks during July was :—Oriental Bank, $273,000 ; Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China, $622,475 ; Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China, $466,880.

A fatal accident occurred at the Patent Slip and Dock Company's Dock. The steamer Fair Penang is undergoing repair there, and while the master of the vessel was crossing the gangway plank connecting the vessel with the shore it slipped, and he and others on the gangway were precipitated from a height of about twenty feet into the bottom of the dock. The captain almost miraculously escaped with a sprained ancle and a few bruises, but a Chinese workman was instantly killed, his skull being fractured.

The Sarawak Gazette on the subject of labour says :—The Batang Lupars are also very wealthy, owing to their perseverance in collecting jungle produce ; they have also lately shown their willingness to work by offering their services to the engineer engaged in opening out the Lingga coal field. The labour of road making, clearing and carrying the sample 300 tons of coal through the jungle has been performed by them in a manner most satisfactory, and at contract prices considerably under that asked by either Chinese, Boyans, or Malays.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—During the first portion of the interval the market had remained quiet, owing probably to the unsatisfactory advices received from New York, but further heavy arrivals coming forward native dealers showed more disposition to meet the views of buyers, the result being a concession of $2 to 3 per picul on all grades. This led to an active resumption of business, and settlements of no less than 12,000 piculs during the fortnight, at about a basis of $35 to 37 per picul for strict Good Medium. A few of the common qualities had come to hand, but choice Teas remained scarce. The P.M.S.S. Colorado left on the 19th July with 266,163½lbs. for New York, 21,674lbs. for San Francisco, and 29,250 lbs. for other ports. The following vessels had also sailed for New York :—S.S. Pleiades on the 21st, with 319,426 lbs.; s.s. Bengal on the 23rd, with 275,693 lbs.; and ship S. G. Reid on the 28th, with 505,941 lbs. from this port. Quotations :—Common, $25 to 27 per picul ; Good Common, $28 to 30 ; Medium, $31 to 33 ; Good Medium, $35 to 37 ; Fine, $38 to 41 ; Finest, $44 to 48 per picul. Export from 1st May to date, 4,542,506 lbs., against 2,508,316 lbs. to corresponding date last season.

HANKOW.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer, and Co.'s Report says :—Arrivals for the week have been about 30,000 chests, nearly the whole of which have been forwarded direct to Shanghai. Settlements amount to 1,728 chests and 5,104 half-chests, particulars of same being :—688 chests 2,442 half-chests 200 boxes at 1s. 4½d. to 1s. 5½d. per lb. ; 1,040 chests 2,662 half-chests at 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 4d. There is no decline in prices to notice. Latest advices from Shanghai report lower rates, and Teamen have made a show of reducing prices here, but the quality of the leaf on offer considered, we are unable to report any decline. Sales, such as they are, are Cheong-sow-kai Tea, Tls. 19½ to 22½ ; Oonfar, Tls. 20 to 22 ; Soong-yong, Tls. 20 to 21½ ; Toong-shan, Tls. 19½ to 21½ ; Nip-car-see and Lee-ling, Tls. 17 to 17½, and mixed Shuntam leaf, Tls. 15 to 15½ per picul. Customs export to July 27 :—Hankow Tea, 39,953,348 lbs., against 41,377,525 lbs. last year ; re-export Kiukiang Tea, 8,306,798 lbs., against 7,247,771 lbs. ; total, 48,260,146 lbs., against 48,625,296 lbs. Taking Customs figures, which are the most reliable guide, there will apparently be very little difference in our first and second crop as compared with last year. Third crop leaf will probably be arriving during the next week, and this by all accounts is likely to prove of more than average quality. Prices are high up country, and if they rule the same here or in Shanghai there is not likely to be any falling off in our total export for the season. From Kiukiang the export is about a million in excess of last year, or 14,511,000 lbs., against 13,575,000 lbs.

SHANGHAI.—Black : There had been a large business during the week and the quotations of last mail had, as a rule, been fully maintained. Arrivals, though considerable, had not equalled the settlements, and the stock had been a little reduced. It will be noticed that the figures of export compared favourably with those of last season. Settlements, 28,347 chests ; stock, 37,000 ; prices paid :—Oopacks, &c., Tls. 21 to 27; Oonams and Oonfaas, Tls. 17 to 26 ; Hohows and Ningchows, Tls. 19 to 36. Green : There had been only a moderate demand for Pingsueys at about former rates, some common ones being again cheaper. Several chops of new Teenkais had been shown, and a few settlements made at Tls. 40 to 47. The higher priced chops were about Tls. 3 dearer than at the beginning of last season. Fychow and Taiping kinds had sold to a small extent at Tls. 34 to 36. Settlements :—Fychows and Teenkai, 2,167 half-chests at Tls. 34 to 47 ; Pingsueys, 9,049 half-chests, at Tls. 29 to 43 ; Shanghai packed, 1,052 half-chests at Tls. 30 to 42 ; total, 12,268 half-chests. Export to Great Britain to date (lost cargoes not included) :—

FOOCHOW.—Messrs. Westall, Galton and Co.'s Weekly Letter says :—A steady business has continued during the week, and although purchases fall short by some 5,000 chests of the former one, rates have been fully maintained in all grades. Buying has been general, and a great portion of the settlements have been taken for the Colonies, whilst small purchases have been made for the Continent. Arrivals and settlements for the week are :—Congou : arrivals 28,900 chests, settlements 32,996 chests ; Souchong : arrivals 1,270 chests, settlements 2,175 chests ; Oolong : arrivals 7,520 ½-chests, settlements 1,082 ½-chests ; Flowery Pekoe : arrivals 200 chests, settlements 225 chests ; Scented Teas : arrivals 4,700 boxes, settlements 624 boxes. Congou : Buying has continued on much the same scale as last quoted ; with one exception, in common to good common, a decided rise has taken place, and this grade now shows fully Tl. 1 per picul worse value than it did a week since. Broken leaf and low descriptions have been freely operated in, chiefly for the Colonies. The second crop Teas continue to show inferiority over last season's. Souchongs have been freely taken at previous rates ; the choice parcels have now nearly all been cleared off. Oolong : A line of 7 chops has been settled at Tls. 23 short, the purchase showing a marked rise upon last quotations. Flowery Pekoe : The small quantity settled is destined for the Continent. Scented Teas continue to be freely dealt in ; a slight reduction is at times noticeable, but prices as a rule continue full. The export to Great Britain, the Continent of Europe, and the Cape of Good Hope is 24,889,552 lbs., against 20,058,422 lbs. To America, 154,936 lbs., against nil. To the Colonies, 6,921,594 lbs., against 7,514,737 lbs.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—There had been a dragging market during the fortnight. Buying had been very irregular and confined to a few, and dealers for the most part had been reluctant sellers. An advance had been paid for a few parcels of better quality ; for the bulk, prices had ruled about as before. A little had been done in old Taysaam sorts. Settlements, from 1st July to date, 400 bales, against corresponding period, season 1873-74, 1,100 bales ; ditto 1872-73, 2,100 bales ; ditto 1871-72, 1,300 bales ; stock, 250 bales new, and 300 bales old.

SHANGHAI.—During the week fully 2,000 bales had been purchased, chiefly for Continental orders, at prices showing little or no change as compared with last quotations. Total settlements since 1st June, 20,500 bales. The following were some of the reported purchases :—Yah Kee, Chop No. 2, Tls. 410 ; Tso Ping's Chick, No. 3 and 3½, Tls. 397½ and 375 ; Dragon, No. 3½, Tls. 350 ; Gold Lion, No. 1, Tls. 365 ; Clouded Dragon, No. 4, Tls. 340 ; Kukee's Chin Jan and Kin Hock, Tls. 342½ and 312½ ; Beautiful Woman, No. 2, Tls. 320 ; Buffalo, No. 2, Tls. 320 ; Double Phœnix Ting-foong, Tls. 320 ; Mow-foong Elephant, Tls. 307½ ; Market, No. 4 Tsatlees, Tls. 300 to 320 ; Common, No. 4 Tsatlees, Tls. 235 to 250 ; Tsing-changkee's Vung Yuen, Tls. 280 ; Market and Common Kahing Taysaams, Tls. 215 to 260 ; Tiki and Coarse Taysaams, Tls. 215 to 270 ; Sewhings (Long reel Taysaams), Tls. 210 to 230 ; Hangchow Tsatlees, Tls. 240 to 270 ; Laeyangs (skeins), Market classes, Tls. 200 to 215 ; Market re-reeled Hainings, Tls. 320 to 400 ; Han-quong-shing's re-reeled Hainings, Tls. 417½ ; Market re-reeled Tsatlees, Tls. 295 to 350 per picul. For Koo-fong-sing's chop 3 Tsatlees Tls. 400 per picul were asked, for Blue Elephant Tls. 315 per picul, and for Red Peacock Tls. 305 per picul—but as there was great anxiety on the part of holders of all classes of silk to realise, lower rates than these would doubtless be accepted. Arrivals had continued on a liberal scale, and the unsold stock had increased to 16,000 bales. A fair demand existed for the American market. About 50 bales chop Tsatlees Nos. 1 and 2, and about 200 bales of re-reeled Hainings and Tsatlees (market grades chiefly) had been purchased. Prices paid showed little change, although silk was eagerly pressed for sale by the Chinese.

KASHGAR AND CHINA.

(THE TIMES CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, SEPT. 13.—Kuli Beg, the son of Yakoob, the Ameer of Kashgar, after his victory over the Chinese, occupied the towns of Urumtched and Manasse, north of the Gelesna Ridge and east of the Russian Province of Kuldja, which is thus relieved from the threatened danger of a Chinese attack. The conquered towns being about 250 miles east from the extreme limits of the Kashgar territory, it follows that the intervening district is practically, if not absolutely, under the sway of Yakoob, whose dominion has thus been very considerably increased. The date of the collision is unknown.

DEPARTURES.—Sept. 18, from London, for Singapore, Java, &c., Banca (str.); for Singapore, China, &c., Nankin (str.); 16, from Cardiff, for Singapore, Deutchland; from Newcastle, for Penang, Ella Beatrice; 18, from Liverpool, for Yokohama and Hiogo, Mora.

SPOKEN.—Caroline (barq.), Colombo to London, Aug. 23, 27 N., 39 W., 82 days out.

MISCELLANEOUS.—The Montgomeryshire (str.), from Foochow to London, proceeded from Port Said Sept. 16, after having been detained three days in quarantine; Glamis Castle (str.), Shanghai to London, in Suez Canal, Sept. 19.

The question of deviation of voyage has again been called up by the steamer Canton having called in at Foochow, after signing bills of lading in Shanghai for London, without any reference to calling at Foochow to fill up. The loss of this vessel and cargo in the river Min will be remembered by our readers as a most disastrous loss, and one that underwriters would in all probability have escaped had she proceeded on her voyage from Shanghai. At any rate they should not be called on to pay losses for which they have not been paid proper premiums. The rate for calling at Foochow would, we presume, have been 10s. extra. It is high time some resistance was offered against the payment of such claims.

The 77th Regiment, stationed at Chatham, has been ordered to supply a reinforcement of 140 non-commissioned officers and men for the 57th Regiment, which is serving in Ceylon. The detachment is to leave England about the end of next month.

MR. JAMES ALLAN.—It is with regret we have to announce the death of Mr. James Allan, the Senior Managing Director of the P. and O. Company. Associated with Mr. Wilcox and Mr. Anderson in the steam companies which led to the establishment of the P. and O. Company in 1840, the deceased was appointed its first secretary. In 1848 he proceeded to Calcutta to put the agency on a better footing, and on his return was appointed Managing Director, which post he continued to fill until his death, which occurred on the 15th inst., at Campshill House, Lewisham. The kindness of his disposition and general benevolence had endeared him to a large circle of friends, who will mourn his loss. His remains buried on the 19th inst., at the new Lee Cemetery. Mr. Allan was in his sixty-fourth year, and leaves a widow, two sons, and two daughters.

THE Circular of Mr. Sam Mendel of the 18th says:—Since Tuesday the Manchester market has steadily maintained the improved tone then noted, though there has been no absolute increase of business, owing to the divergence between the views of buyers and sellers, the latter basing their demands on the greater activity in, and upward tendency of prices of Cotton, but the former finding no encouragement in foreign advices to enter into operations at any advance on late rates. To-day the firmer feeling has become more marked, and prices more decidedly against buyers in the transactions that have taken place.

TRIAL TRIP.—On the 14th inst. the steamer Normanby went on trial between the Cloch and Cumbrae lights, and in spite of the heavy gale attained a speed of thirteen knots. The Normanby was built and engined by Messrs. Henderson, Coulburn, and Co., for the Eastern and Australian Mail Steam Company, for their new line from Singapore to Australia, via Torres Straits, and is a sister ship to the Somerset. These steamers are 1,000 tons register, and are fitted with the builders' compound engines of 180-horse power, nominal. The London agents are Messrs. MacTaggart, Tidman, and Co.

THE Messageries Maritimes steamer Meikong, with the present inward French mails, arrived at Marseilles on the 15th inst., at 5.0 P.M. She brought seventy-eight passengers and a general cargo, including 657 bales of silk, 17,420 packages of tea, 220 bales of cotton, and 1,058 packages of sundries for London, which part of her cargo will be forwarded to its destination per Company's steamer Indus, due in London on or about the 28th inst.

THE Pacific Mail Company's new steamer, the City of Pekin, is anchored off Boston, and has been visited by the Municipal officers and a large number of people. The vessel was gaily decorated and a lunch prepared on board. The City of Pekin will shortly make a further test of her speed previous to proceeding to the San Francisco and China line.

ADVICES received from San Francisco state that the Supreme Court has decided that the State law which regulates immigration is constitutional, and that therefore the twenty-three Chinese women brought there in the Japan must be returned to China.

THE China Trans-Pacific Steamship Company's steamer Vasco de Gama arrived at Yokohama from Hong Kong on 10th inst., and sailed for San Francisco 12th inst.

THE Japanese Legation will remove to 9, Kensington Park-gardens on the 1st proximo.

LONDON: MONDAY, SEPT. 21, 1874.

THE INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF ORIENTALISTS.

IT is one of the characteristics of this age that the bonds of society throughout the leading Western nations are becoming more closely united by international friendly associations, in their political, scientific, and social spheres, where questions at issue may be amicably discussed and settled. There is no necessity to enumerate these, but we may especially refer to the British Association for the Advancement of Science as the parent of many similar and kindred institutions in Europe and America that have been founded since its inauguration. Notwithstanding the comprehensive range of subjects embodied in their annual programmes it has been felt that there was a deficiency in overlooking the important themes of philology, which engross the attention especially of learned Continental savants. That omission is now filled in a manner which would have scarcely been calculated on a few years since. It does not consist merely of one or two sections added to existing international associations, but it comes before us as an independent Congress of Orientalists desirous of following in the footsteps of their Occidental confreres, and working zealously for their friendly receptions. As a rule the study of languages is dry, and not, generally speaking, of an inviting character. But when these have been dead for ages, and the tablets of their characters have to be exhumed from debris of extinct cities in mutilated fragments, with inscriptions that to ordinary persons could scarcely be deciphered in the Roman letter; then the genius of a RAWLINSON, SMITH, or OPPERT, interprets the cuneiform letters, and the dull study of a dead language becomes intensely interesting. Indeed, as Sir HENRY RAWLINSON remarked in his excellent address as President of the Semitic Section, the interpretation of Assyrian by English philologists partook more of the "sensational, rather than "the practical branch of the inquiry, and had thus built "up a superstructure on insecure foundation." Be that as it may, the public at large are indebted to the learned President and other Assyriologists in this country and on the Continent for what they have deciphered regarding the written and spoken language of ancient Nineveh and Sennacherib, which unfolds the history and life of a people that has been obscure for ages. In this sense the study of extinct languages is not dull, and though the interpretations may partake of the "sensational," doubtless these will stimulate new students to aid in the task of decipherment who otherwise would not perceive sufficient interest in the pursuit, or those who have the means to contribute to the outlay in new fields of discovery.

Regarding the transactions of the Turanian Section, which includes the Chinese and Japanese languages, as coming specially within the scope of our Journal, the former was chiefly represented by two of the most learned sinologues from China, the Rev. Mr. EDKINS and the Rev. Dr. LEGGE, with M. LEON DE ROSNY from Paris. Mr. EDKINS had prepared a paper on "The State of the Chinese Language at the time of the Invention of Writing," but, in consequence of the pressure on the section, all papers were taken as read, and the writers to give only a brief oral sketch of their contents. This was done by Mr. EDKINS in a lucid and interesting manner. He supported the statements of the Chinese linguists that the written character was invented between 3,500 and 4,000 years ago. In reply to those who disputed this statement he very logically said that even if that was an exaggeration, yet centuries must be allowed for the primitive characters, which were simply outline drawings, to become mature, so as to form a comprehensive dictionary. All unprejudiced philologists will agree with the learned gentlemen in this view, for it stands to reason that no language, either oral or written, sprung at once into existence as a full fledged tongue. He also gave it as his opinion that at the time of the invention of Chinese writing the oral language accorded with the characters, without the differences in "tones" which distinguish the speech of the Chinese at the present day from the written characters. These tones have arisen from time to time in the colloquial dialects where the people generally had not the genius to form fresh characters for new ideas, and so in altering the sound by elevating or depressing the voice, the vocabularies increased. Mr. EDKINS illustrated some of his views by showing the Chinese characters on a board, as an index to the sound of the words at the time of the invention, also to the nature and extent of the vocabulary then in use.

As to Japanese, it may be said not to have been represented at either of the meetings or in this section, as no paper was read on that language, and the only native of Japan present was the delegate, who took no active part in the proceedings, and did not understand English. It was a very different matter at the Parisian meetings, for disquisitions and discussions on the Japanese language occupied nearly half the time the session was in action, while the MIKADO'S Minister for France, and several other members of the Legation, took an active part in the proceedings, which lasted four seances out of the nine. This preponderance given to one language was injudicious, as it exhausted the subject, leaving little or nothing for the London Congress to discuss; and hence we presume the comparative absence of Japanese philology at the Turanian Section. "On the Study of Turanian Languages," however, there were numerous speakers, and a lively discussion ensued, after which Professor HUNFALVY gave an oral precis on the subject, which will appear in extenso in the transactions of the Congress. The learned Hungarian professor—who spoke in French, intermixed with some English—endeavoured to show that the group of languages classed under "Turanian" was not well founded, and that by the accepted maxim it leads the students into many errors, and that before such a perfect science can be had every comparative study of them must be unavailing. In these views he was supported by several members. In these discussions it may be remarked that they were conducted in the most friendly manner, eliciting at times plaudits of approbation, and occasionally a hearty laugh at some jeu d'esprit. Of course, at such meetings, where the leading topic is language in its widest bearings, it may be naturally concluded that the tongues of the members are free to give their pent-up utterances. In this respect our lively friends across the Channel bear away the palm, sometimes taxing the patience of the President and audience in occupying more than their share of the time at the disposal of the meetings. Although our German friends preponderate over the French, yet they sensibly condense their prelections and speeches, which have the advantage of being delivered in English that may be easily understood. Altogether, however, this second International Congress of Orientalists has so far been a great success, and we have no doubt when it terminates on the 19th in the "Feast of Reason and the Flow of Soul" at the hospitable board of the LORD MAYOR, all will disperse satisfied with their reception in London. The introduction of "receptions," which will be found noticed in another column, has been a very happy mixture, and appropriately concluded on the last day with the proverbial English dinner at the Mansion-house. We cannot help expressing our great regret that more time was not arranged for the discussion of the various sections, and that the President did not arrange for more aid. Professor DOUGLAS did all that mortal man could do, but it was utterly impossible for him to cope with the work thrown on him, and the consequence is that we hear of complaints on all sides, but especially from our foreign friends, at the incompleteness of the arrangements made for the Congress. Of hospitality and kindness they speak loudly in praise, but of the business for which they came they feel to have been served with only half a loaf.

SIAMESE DIAMONDS.

THE controversy between Dr. LITTLE and Mr. ALABASTER, which has attracted the attention of our Straits friends, may be summed up in a few words. Dr. LITTLE asserts that Mr. ALABASTER openly proclaimed in Singapore that an English Governor had taken valuable diamonds from the Siamese King against their owner's will. Mr. ALABASTER denies that he ever told this story, or ever made any imputation on the Governor's integrity. But he admits that he did say the Governor had taken presents, and that he, as Acting Consul at Bangkok, had represented the Governor's conduct to the Foreign-office. But what did he complain of? Not, surely, of the mere acceptance of a voluntary gift. It could not have been refused without affront; and no rule of the service even forbade the acceptance, but only the appropriation of a gift instead of sending it to the Treasury. If, indeed, he noticed, or the KING complained of any circumstance of an objectionable nature connected with the transaction, then, indeed, the despatch to the Foreign-office is intelligible enough. That despatch would prove either that Mr. ALABASTER was very simple in complaining about such an everyday affair as the offer and acceptance of a present; or it would prove that in contradicting Dr. LITTLE, as he has done, he omitted the point of the story in his letter to the Foreign-office.

KASHGAR AND CHINA.

A FORTNIGHT ago we endeavoured to place before our readers an intelligible explanation of a somewhat enigmatical telegram from the Berlin correspondent of The Times respecting the doings of the Chinese in the extreme north-west of their vast Empire; since then two further telegrams, dated September 10 and 13, have been received from the same source, which, in a great measure, confirm the view we took of the matter. The former of these two telegrams briefly announced the defeat of the Chinese troops by the son of YAKOOB, the Ameer of Kashgar, while the latter concisely describes the subsequent proceedings of the victorious commander. Where KULI BEG defeated his adversaries, we have not been told, but the collision most probably took place a little to the north of the mountain range called the Gelesna Ridge in the latest telegram. The Ameer's son then proceeded to occupy Urumtched (? Urumtsi) and Manasse, which towns are stated to be distant "about 250 miles east from the limits of the Kashgar territory." This is manifestly a mistake. In his eastward march of aggression YAKOOB BEG has of late years gradually absorbed the ancient Chinese province of Ili up to Karashar, if indeed his encroachments have not already extended as far as Turfan; some think that he has got even further to the East, but on that point we have no decisive information. Now Urumtsi and Manasse are, roughly speaking, about 150 and 200 miles distant respectively from Karashar in a northerly direction, and lie comparatively near the Gelesna Ridge, spoken of before, which, if any dependence can be placed on the latest map, must be looked upon as the extreme limit of the Kashgar territory in that part. This Gelesna Ridge is a portion of the great Tien Shan range, which afterwards skirts the southern boundary of the Kulja province. How the fact of KULI BEG'S having occupied these two towns can be said to throw any material obstacle in the way of the Chinese march on the Kulja province, if indeed they contemplate such a step with a hostile purpose, we do not pretend to understand, for, judging by the map, the road to the Kulja valley seems to be still quite open. The Ameer of KASHGAR has probably, as stated in the telegram, very considerably increased his dominions by his recent successes, but we shrewdly suspect that he has nearly got to the end of his tether, and that a mightier power than his will object to his making any further encroachments on Chinese territory to the north and east of his present positions. How long the Chinese will allow him to remain in undisturbed possession of the territory which he has seized of late years, is a question which time alone can solve; but unless we are much mistaken in our estimate of the purpose of the Chinese in that quarter, we shall hear of another and more serious encounter between them and the Ameer's troops before many weeks have passed. In view of this contingency we would express a hope that the telegrams from Berlin may in future be more intelligible and accurate, for surely this phase of the Central Asian question is sufficiently complicated and obscure without its obscurity being intensified by careless and inaccurate statements. The Times correspondent at Berlin evidently writes his telegrams currente calamo, without studying the precise geographical position of the places to which he alludes, and many of his readers must be much puzzled to arrive at a clear understanding of the value of the news which he transmits on the subject of which we have been speaking.

WE have received some communications on the subject of our article on the Consular Service in May last, and we find that the impression prevails that we included the whole service in our condemnation, in fact, "tarred them all with one brush." Such was not the case. We desired to call attention to the worthless and incompetent officers in order that steps might be devised by the Foreign-office to prevent the repetition of the scandals which have taken place. Our opinion is that proper precautions are not taken to prevent the rising officers falling into evil ways. A greater discipline is required, and a more direct responsibility on the heads of Consulates.

WE are glad to announce that the case of the seizure of the Marie Louise and Gazelle by the Spanish man-of-war at Sooloo has been settled, and the owners are indemnified for losses.

THE statement in our last of the probable appointment of a Danish Minister to China is now confirmed. M. RAASLOEFF leaves by the mail of 9th Oct.

THE INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF ORIENTALISTS.

This Congress was formally opened on the 14th inst., at the Royal Institution, Albemarle-street, with an inaugural address by the President, Dr. Samuel Birch, Keeper of the Oriental Antiquities in the British Museum, and who had been specially designated as the President of the London Congress at that held in Paris at this time last year, and whose proceedings were reported in our issues of the 5th and 12th Sept., 1873. The Congress was originated by M. Léon de Rosny, Professor at l'Ecole Spéciale des Langues Orientales at Paris, where the first series of meetings took place. When, towards the end of these meetings, the question was agitated as to the country and the capital in which the next Congress should assemble, the vote was given in favour of London, and it was resolved that the presidency should be offered to Dr. Birch. The election of the Council was the first business, and then Dr. Birch spoke as follows:—

This second meeting of the International Congress of Orientalists is an era in the history of such studies. The happy idea of thus bringing together students of Orientalism is due to M. de Rosny, whom we rejoice to see with us to-day. The Congress was founded in Paris last year—a city most appropriate for such a meeting. At the close of the Paris Congress it was voted that the next meeting should be held in London—this great city connected by a thousand ties with the East. Since the election of a President was necessary the nomination to that office fell upon me. I was aware that a President of such a Congress in these days is no merely ornamental officer. My first and most agreeable duty is to acknowledge with gratitude the favour with which the States and Sovereigns of Europe have treated our movement. Their delegates are now present, some from the North, others from the West; and the Far East has sent its representatives to meet them, to enlighten us by the information they bring, to interest us in the objects they exhibit, and to cheer us with their personal acquaintance.

When you visit the Indian Museum and Library you will see that the administration is not indifferent to Oriental learning. The spread of knowledge has begun to popularise such studies. The bond which holds us to our Asiatic Empire, and our vast commerce with all Eastern nations, render an intimate knowledge of Eastern languages, thought, history, and monuments, no mere luxury but a necessity. Orientalists are one family. Students feel that in presence of that family bond all distinctions of race, nationality, and creed vanish. Our century has seen a striking revival of Orientalism, and the discoveries in Mesopotamia, Egypt, India, and Persia have brought again into light, ancient but forgotten monarchies, religions, and tongues, as they existed four thousand years ago. Modern travellers have left no accessible monument uncopied, and immense material is now at the student's disposal—for the first time, a contemporary history of recorded events in these old times. In Egypt only the other day, M. Mariette discovered fresh inscriptions at Karnak recording the conquests of Thothmes III. These enabled him, in a paper just read before the French Academy of Inscriptions, to propose important reforms in our Egyptian geography. Mr. George Smith's diggings at Kowywnjik have brought to light new Assyrian texts; whilst in India, General Cuningham's labours promised very importtant results. Every facility should be given for excavations in the East, especially for such as follow up the hints afforded by monumental information. Dr. Birch then referred to the important question of the translation of Oriental texts into European characters, a reform which he strenuously advocated. He also referred to the problem of the Etruscan language, and to the Rev. Isaac Taylor's late ingenious attempt to solve it. A paper by Mr. Taylor upon the subject would be read before the Congress. The Aryan section will have papers on the Sanskrit and its cognate tongues. The problem of the ancient Lycian language was also mentioned. The president then spoke of the labours awaiting the Hamitic or Egyptian section, and of the immense progress made in that important branch of Orientalism. In like manner he mapped out the respective provinces of the Archæological and Ethnographical Sections. There now only remained to mention the assistance rendered to Oriental studies by the universities and learned societies of Europe, who, in addition to the interest with which they have received memoirs on subjects connected with the East, have many of them sent delegates and representatives to the present Congress. In this country the Royal Asiatic Society has generally encouraged the advance of Oriental learning, especially the Aryan and Turanian sections. The Royal Society of Literature has also, besides Greek and Roman antiquities promoted the study of Egyptian hieroglyphs. The new Society of Biblical Archæology has also, though last, entered with the greatest energy on the route of Semitic and Hamitic languages as well as the archæology of lands connected with the Bible. In order to bring this knowledge before all classes of the public by the publication of the records of the past, and in order to revive the study of Oriental learning, they have proposed a series of lectures of Assyrian and Egyptian philology. The Journal Asiatique in France and that of the German Oriental Society in Leipsic are the well-known organs of all Oriental languages in those countries, and the special sections of Egyptian and Assyrian have been well represented in the Zeitscripte fur Aegyptische Sprache und Alterthumskunde of Berlin. It is to be hoped that all these exertions will not have been in vain, and that this Congress, demonstrating the growing importance of Oriental studies, will attract fresh inquirers to these studies, and such as will sustain hereafter the brilliant reputation achieved by those now present in the pursuit. Nor can this address be closed without asking you to join with me in an expression of our thanks for the countenance afforded to this Congress and this country by the Governments of Europe—by Germany, Italy, Portugal, Russia, Egypt, and others, whose enlightened rulers have sent from universities and other public institutions representatives to be present on the occasion.

At the conclusion of the President's inaugural discourse Professor Leon de Rosny, the founder of the International Oriental Congress, and Mr. Shunker Punderung, of Bombay, specially deputed by Lord Northbrook to represent India at the Congress, spoke a few words to express on behalf of the foreign members their deep sense of the hospitality they had everywhere met with on English soil.

TUESDAY, 15TH.

Nearly two hundred members of the Congress attended a "reception" at the British Museum. Dr. Birch, the President of the Congress, did the honours of the Department of Oriental Antiquities, of which he is the keeper; and Mr. Le Page Renouf, Professor Jules Oppert, Mr. Basil H. Cooper, and several German professors, readily acted as interpreters of the more important objects. Mr. C. T. Newton gave a more set and lecture-like exposition of the Greek and Roman antiquities in the department of which he is the head; and Professor Douglas and other members of the Council devoted themselves to the entertainment of their guests. This was the first scientific "reception" on the programme of the Congress.

The Semitic Section of the Congress met at the rooms of the Royal Society of Literature, in St. Martin's-place, under the presidency of Sir Henry Rawlinson; but shortly after business began the crowd was so great that an adjournment to the Royal Institution took place.

The President delivered a short introductory address, stating that this section of the Congress was organised to afford opportunity to scholars and students of the linguistic group entitled Semitic, to interchange ideas. The Semitic languages were esteemed for their having been the means of handing down proofs of Divine revelation, and throwing light on the Mosaic dispensation. Most students would probably attach more importance to philological than historical research. He wished to point out the enlarged proportions which Semitic research had assumed, for since the obtaining of Phœnician materials Arabia had yielded a mass of inscriptions which had opened up much knowledge of the ancient languages. Educated Europe had been slow to admit of the genuineness of cuneiform deciphering, and he well remembered the incredulity with which the results of his own Babylonian researches were received in 1849. Biblical students did not care for Semitic cuneiform deciphering as they did for comparison of contemporary languages, and others, of whom Sir Cornewall Lewis was a type, preferred the Greek traditions to what they termed barbarian history. At length, as materials increased, and the results of different inquirers were found to be identical, cuneiform deciphering got a hold on the scientific mind. M. Jules Oppert, of Paris, did much to popularise Assyrian and Babylonian lore and cuneiform research. In England the labours of George Smith, Fox Talbot, and others had thrown great light on Assyrian traditions; but in this country not so much had been effected by Semitic inquiry as had been done on the Continent by French, German, and Swiss savans. While he congratulated Mr. George Smith and his co-labourers in their contributions to Babylonian history, and the traditions of the Assyrian Empire, perhaps more attention had been paid to the sensational than to the practical part of inquiry, and he would advise that greater regard should be shown to the rudiments of their study. Still, a good deal had been achieved in England in the way of cuneiform deciphering, but he would impress on young Semitic scholars to begin with the beginning, and to learn the alphabetical part of languages before they attempted composition. Materials were accumulating, special additions having been made in the last two years by Mr. George Smith's more recent discoveries; and he trusted they would be duly used.

M. Jules Oppert, of Paris, then delivered—in French—an elaborate disquisition on decipherings in Assyria as applicable to the history of ancient nations. He said that he was in the presence of his master, for it was Sir Henry Rawlinson who first taught him to read a cuneiform inscription. He begged to be allowed to deal with the second class of Assyrian inscriptions, which were rather Turanian than Semitic, inasmuch as they related mainly to the Median language. Having dwelt on this, he proceeded to dilate on Assyrian chronology as gathered from decipherings.

A short discussion ensued, in which Professor Schrader, of Jena, and Baron Texter de Ravisa (Algerian delegate) spoke. Several papers were taken as read, and will be recorded in the journals of the Congress, and the section adjourned.

WEDNESDAY, 16TH.

Sir Bartle Frere, President of the Royal Asiatic Society, entertained the members of the Congress of Orientalists at breakfast at his residence, Wressil-lodge, Wimbledon. About 150 members of the Congress availed themselves of the invitation, and were received by Sir Bartle and Miss Frere, Lady Frere being from home. Among those present were Dr. Birch, President of the Congress; M. Léon de Rosny, his Holiness Patriarch of the Nestorian Christians; Mr. Hurrychund Chintamon, Mrs. Chintamon, Henry Brugsch Bey, Mr. Alexander Brugsch, Dr. Lepsius, Dr. R. Lepsius, Dr. G. Ebers, Dr. Schrader, Dr. W. Petsch (Gotha), Colonel J. Miln, M. A. Lacordaire, Dr. A. Umans, the Rev. W. J. Ainslabie, Dr. R. Gosche, Mr. A. Campbell, Dr. Legge, the Rev. J. Edkins, Mr. Alexander J. Ellis, Professor Schuzler, Mr. L. B. Bowring, Mr. Paul Hunfalvy (Pesth), Professor T. Noldske (Strasburg), Mr. Tyssen Amhurst, Professor Weber, Mr. Karl Blind, Professor Windisch, Dr. F. Ruchl (Dorpat), Professor Krehl, Mr. H. C. Fisch (United States), Baron Textor de Ravisi, Mr. R. Cull, Mr. Imamaura Warau (Japan), Baron de Tosson, Professor K. Patkanoff (St. Petersburg), Professor Wahnfield (Gothenburg), Dr. Chwolson (St. Petersburg), Sir Walter Elliot, Mr. Hyde Clarke, Mr. W. S. W. Vaux, Mr. E. W. Brabrook, F.S.A., Mr. Hepworth Dixon, M. Jules Oppert, and Mr. A. Tyler.

There was an abundant entertainment provided, not only by conversation, which was carried on in English, French, German, Italian, Hindustanee, Arabic, and Syriac, by different knots of guests, but also by the examination of a number of fine specimens of heads and horns, weapons, and other Oriental curiosities. In Sir Bartle Frere's library some of the most attractive objects were the photographs and Indian views. At about 1 P.M. the guests took leave of their hospitable host, many of them proceeding to visit Dr. Hooker at Kew-gardens.

The Turanian section held a meeting in the theatre of King's College, under the presidency of Sir Walter Elliot, K.C.S.I. The meeting having been opened, Professor Hunfalvy read the first paper, on "The Study of the Turanian Language," and he argued that the established idea of Turanianism was not well founded, and that students were often led into many errors. He endeavoured to show that the same genealogical method of studying which has created the Aryan and Semitic linguistic science must also be applied to the Turanian languages. Professor Cull (who represents Russia at the Congress), Dr. Lichman, and the Rev. Isaac Taylor took part in the discussion which followed. The latter gentleman read a second paper "On the Relations between the Accadian and Etruscan Languages." The audience numbered nearly 200, including Sir Arthur Phayre (the newly-appointed Governor of Mauritius), Dr. Birch, Professor Douglas, Rev. Dr. Legge, Rev. Joseph Edkins, Rev. S. Beal, Mr. Davenport, Mr. E. C. Bowra, F. J. Angier, Mr. Howarth, Dr. Bushell, Imamura (the only Japanese who has attended the meetings), L. B. Bowring, S. Mossman, and Mr. Simpson.

The Rev. J. Edkins then gave an account of the ancient Chinese character as the commencement of writing, which was placed by some at 3,500 and by others at 4,000 years ago. In the characters we have a reflex of the ideas of that distant period such as alphabetical writing would not have given. About 1,200 years ago a Chinese pilgrim had travelled into India, where he had collected a number of legends of Buddha, which he had translated from the Sanscrit, and from his translations might be gathered the pronunciation of that time, for numbers of Sanscrit words were written by him in the Chinese character. Again, great changes had been introduced into the language up to the year 600 A.D., from the time of Confucius and again up to 700 years ago, and the difference could be traced between the vernacular at the time of Confucius and the language as it became more ornate and complex, a change principally introduced by a poet of ancient time. Even in the earliest writing there were characters signifying moral words, and in the study of these there was nothing to encourage a materialistic or Darwinian view. These words were derived from intuitive ideas and not from external objects. The substantive verb, the demonstrative pronoun, and the expression for rectitude were all similar, and were derived from man. He showed that the Chinese characters are an index to the sound of the words at the time of the invention, and from them may be learned the phonetic changes that have since taken place; and further, that they are also an index to the nature and extent of the vocabulary then in use, and a measure of the civilisation that had then been attained.

Mr. H. Howarth asked if Mr. Edkins had observed evidence of the introduction of new tones.

Mr. Edkins said he had. It took about 1,200 years for a new tone to become established in Chinese.

Dr. Birch remarked that there seemed to be much difficulty in fixing a phonetic system according to rule in the language.

Mr. Edkins said the formation of phonetic characters had been subject to all sorts of caprices.

Dr. Legge said he had not studied the language save as a translator, but he agreed with Mr. Edkins as to the possibility of working out the interesting problems which he had indicated.

The Rev. Samuel Beal gave briefly the result of the examination of some Chinese Buddhist books in the library of the India-office. 1. The distinctive marks belonging to the Northern School of Buddhism. 2. A consideration of the Sama Jataka, and its relation to the episode in the Kama yana. 3. A comparison of the Chinese version of the Chatur Dharmaka with that of M. Leon Feer from the Thibetan. In speaking of Buddhists, numbering 300 millions, he said it should be remembered that 250 millions of these were Northern Buddhists, and that these did not affix the meaning of annihilation to the word accepted in that sense by the Southern Buddhist. They held the word to mean not "non-existence," but a refined state of being, in fact, the very essence of existence.

THURSDAY, 17TH.

The members of Orientalists were received by Dr. Rost, the librarian, who did the honours of an institution to which Dr. Birch referred in his opening address as creditably exhibiting the sympathy of the Government with Oriental studies. The library of the India-office is particularly rich in books bearing on India, and Asia generally. It possesses the largest collection, out of India, of Sanskrit manuscripts, about 3,500, in addition to an equal number in the Persian and Arabic languages, and about 500 more in Zend, Pehlvi, Pushtu, Kawi, Javanese, Malay, Pali, Burmese, Siamese, Singhalese, and various other Oriental tongues. The specimens which were specially offered for the inspection of the members of the Congress this morning comprised—(1) a selection of manuscripts in the various languages represented on the shelves of the library; (2) a selection of Sanskrit manuscripts, on paper and on palm-leaves, in the various characters in which Sanskrit is written in various parts of India—Devanagari, Nandinagari, Bengali, Uringa, Telugu, Karnataka, Grantha, and Malayalma; and (3) specimens of the most ancient manuscripts, in Sanscrit and Arabic, in the possession of the library. The oldest of the Sanscrit manuscripts on paper is dated A.D. 1380. But the Bombay Government has lent the library four manuscripts of earlier date, written on long strips of palm-leaf; and these were exhibited to the assembled savants. In Arabic the library possesses several specimens of ancient Korans written on vellum in the Kufic character, and very many manuscript works copied between five and six hundred years ago, and formerly belonging to the palace library at Bijapore. The members of the Congress afterwards paid a visit to the Soane Museum, where they were received by the Curator, Mr. Joseph Bonomi, and by his assistant, Mr. W. R. Cooper, both of whom are members of the Council of the Congress.

At 2.30 they attended the Aryan section, under the presidency of Max Muller, and a portion also attended at a reception given by Dr. Birch at his house by the Museum.

The address of Max Muller was received with great applause, and at the close Professor Stenzler, of Breslau, spoke of the religious institutions of India, which he referred back to extremely ancient times. Other topics followed, and the discussions were well sustained. The learned representative of the Bombay Government, Mr. Shanker Panderung Pandit, bore his fair share in the debates, and in particular spoke of the Hindoo law on the subject of the Violation of Caste. A very interesting paper was presented by Dr. Spiegel on the Geometry of the Veda, illustrated by diagrams. Professor Haug addressed the Section at considerable length, so that at six there were still three papers to read. An adjournment was therefore carried.

The Hamitic Section assembled at 8.30 P.M. at the rooms of the Society of Biblical Archæology, 9, Conduit-street, W. The attendance was crowded. The President, Dr. S. Birch, LL.D., F.S.A., delivered a very brief introductory address. This was followed by some questions proposed to the Hamitic Section by Professor Lepsius. The next business was the great feature of the evening—viz., his Excellency Brugsch Bey's address on "The Site of the Lake or Sea passed by the Israelites at the Exodus." There were other papers on the agenda, viz., "On the Great Medical Papyrus," by Dr. Ebers; "On the Egyptian Measures," by Dr. August Eisenlohr; "On the Royal Tombs at Abydos," by Miss Edwards; "On the Proportions of the Great Pyramid," by Mr. W. R. A. Boyle; "Deux Communications Egyptologiques," par by M. J. Lieblein; and "Communications to the Section on his Work in Bædeker's Handbook of Egypt," by Professor Duemichen. Brugsch Bey spoke in French, but was followed with the keenest interest by the savants present.

FRIDAY, 18TH.

The adjourned meeting of the Aryan section was held in the theatre of the Royal Institution—Professor Max Müller in the chair.

Mr. Shankar Pândarunge read a paper, "The Poetry and Dramatic Writings of India," which he described not only in its literary character, but also as to its chronological value, and which was largely illustrated.

Baron Textor de Ravisi read a paper on a Pagoda near Madras. The inscription on the pagoda had been translated, and he was of opinion the translation which had been first given was erroneous. Recently this inscription had been investigated and translated syllable by syllable and letter by letter, and very remarkable conclusions had resulted from this. It appeared from the translation that the pagoda had been built since the introduction of Christianity, and, in fact, that it had been built by St. Thomas the Apostle. He hoped that photographs of the inscription would be taken, so that this interesting object might be fully investigated by scholars. He could prove that St. Thomas had died in Madras.

The President said the communication made by the Baron was one of the greatest interest, and well worthy of being taken into consideration.

Professor Eggeling exhibited a fine collection of Indian manuscripts, consisting of specimens of all the languages of Southern India. These were in admirable condition, and highly interesting to the student. The members came up to the table, and examined the manuscripts as the professor explained their character.

The President then said he had in conclusion to thank the members who had contributed to the success of the section, and especially to thank the Government of India for having sent Shankar Pandarunge, who had given them such an interesting paper.

Mr. W. S. W. Vaux said he wished to propose a vote of thanks to Professor Max Muller, not in set terms for his conduct in the chair, but for his admirable address, and also because he felt certain that it was very much in consequence of the able management of the president that the section had been so successful. If the Congress had been productive of no other benefit than that of permitting its members to hear the able addresses of Sir H. Rawlinson and Professor Max Muller, the time spent would have been fruitful.

Sir M. Coomara Swany, member of the Legislative Council of Ceylon, seconded the motion. He said that he and other Aryans had to thank Professor Max Muller, and to thank the other Oriental scholars of Enrope and America, for the attention they had paid to the literature of India. It was a matter of pride to the race to which he belonged, and they owed much of the stimulus to their own advancement to the knowledge that they had had a literature of the past in which they could live again. The resolution being passed by acclamation, was then briefly acknowledged by the president, and the section closed.

At eleven o'clock the Archæological section met in the same place, Mr. Grant Duff, M.P., in the chair He said the subject for the section was of the widest character, for it embraced the whole of the architecture and archæology of the East. There was, therefore, the utmost liberty afforded, but anything like a comprehensive account of the subjects of the section would be impossible. He would therefore refer to some recent discoveries. It was in 1860 that the promotion of archæological surveys was recognised as the duty of the Government of India, and General Cunningham did a great deal of useful work as Government head of the archæological survey. In 1866 the survey was stopped, but it was recommenced in 1870 by the Duke of Argyll, who reappointed General Cunningham, and many large cities were explored. The general divides the remains into groups, six of Hindu styles and eight of Mohammedan styles; the former for periods ranging from 1000 B.C. to 1750 A.D.; the Mohammedan being from 1191 to 1750 A.D. The president observed upon Mr. Beglar's views upon the Kubb Masjid as to the question of Hindu or Mohammedan architecture. After some further remarks on the character of the buildings, the president gave an account of the discovery in 1873-4, by Mr. Beglar, of some remarkable ruins at a place called Bharahut, nine miles to the S.E. of the Suthra railway station, 120 miles S.W. of Allahabad. The place is called Bharaod, and is believed to be the same as the Baodaotis of Ptolemy, and is the site of an old city, which sixty years ago was covered with jungle. Here there stood a stupa sixty-eight feet in diameter. A number of pillars have been excavated, and among the scenes represented are upwards of a dozen of the Buddhist legends called Jálaka, all relating to the former births of Buddha, and these have all appropriate inscriptions. These remains are most interesting, as showing what was the dress of all classes in India during the reign of Asoka, or about seventy years after the death of Alexander the Great. The Queen of India is represented in all her finery, with a flowered shawl or muslin sheet over her head, with massive earrings and elaborate necklaces, and a petticoat reaching to the mid-leg, which is secured round her waist by a zone of Koru strings, and a broad and highly ornamented belt. Here is also the soldier with short curly hair, clad in a long jacket or tunic tied at the waist, and a dhote reaching below the knee, with long boots ornamented with a tassel in front, and armed with a straight broadsword, the scabbard being three inches wide. The standard bearer is on horseback, bearing a pole surmounted by a human-headed bird. The king sits on an elephant escorting a casket of relics; horse and elephant trappings are given in detail. Everywhere is to be seen the peculiar Buddhist symbol which crowns the great stupa at Sanchi. It forms the drop of an earring, the clasp of a n ecklace, the support of a lamp, the crest of the royal standard, and the decoration of the lady's broad belt and soldier's scabbard. General Cunningham assigns to these ruins the age of Asoka, which is 250 B.C., but it is needful to be cautious in fixing a date. Besides these discoveries there had been an important survey made of the rock temples of Western India by Mr. Burgess, who had brought to Bombay fifty-four photographs, between twenty-five and thirty inscriptions, about forty ground plans, sections, drawings of columns, &c., and forty sketches of sculpture. Mr. Grant Duff, in conclusion, expressed the hope that this work would be continued now by those who had succeeded the Duke of Argyll in the Government of India. The Duke had left the Government on the fall of the Gladstone administration, just at the time when the deficit which had been left to him by his predecessors (though by no fault of theirs) had been cleared off, and it was to be hoped that now these valuable archæological surveys would be continued.

Professor Eggeling read a paper on the inscriptions to be found in the Deccan, which he urged ought to be copied and preserved; there were numbers which were likely to be lost.

Sir Walter Elliot said the work would be one of great labour, and required a good deal of assistance. He had himself done a little, but for want of help could only touch such as had come in his way.

Mr. Lewin Bowring corroborated the remark of Sir W. Elliot.

Mr. Burgess said the whole of Mysore swarmed with inscriptions. They would afford employment to a man with a couple of native assistants for twenty-five years.

Dr. Caldwell said he could testify that the same was the case in the Carnatic also.

Dr. Rogers proposed that a committee should be formed to take such steps as might seem best for the preservation of ancient monuments. In Egypt many highly interesting Mohammedan buildings had been destroyed, and the mosque of the Sultan Hassan had suffered much injury. Bronze plates had been torn from the doors and sold, and some had been recovered from a foreigner, who had them packed up to take away.—Mr. Poole seconded the proposition.

His Excellency Brugsch Bey said the Khédive was ever devising means for the preservation of ancient monuments; the true causes of the mischief were not his subjects, but European travellers. These people had frequently destroyed the text of the hieroglyphics in the temples, and they constantly bought from the Arabs, who were greedy, pieces of monuments. They also painted their names in large letters, in all the colours of the rainbow, on the temples and monuments, and even frequently cut them deep into the stone. He thought this a very bad way of leaving a carte de visite. (Laughter.) He thought it would be a good thing to publish in the principal journals of Europe the names of those who acted in this barbarous and senseless fashion.

Dr. Ebers and Mr. Moncure Conway spoke on the question, which, however, was felt to be one to be left to the rulers of the countries rather than one for the Congress to interfere in directly.

Mr. James Ferguson read a letter received that morning from General Cunningham, who declared that he had no doubt of the correctness of his view as to the age of the ruins alluded to in the President's address. He also produced photographs of the principal sculptures, which were highly interesting. One of the great points of interest in the matter was the rail. We now had a series of these Buddhist rails extending for a period of seven hundred years from the time of Asoka, which enabled us to trace the history of the system, and showed that the Jatakas or legends were as old as Christianity.

Dr. Leitner said he had several specimens of sculptures excavated in 1870, which showed the influence of Greek art on Buddhism. Many persons had been astonished on observing the similarity existing between things obtained at Cyprus, and others excavated on the frontier of the Punjaub. He would be glad to exhibit these things to the members next day at half-past eleven in the Albert Hall.

The President said there was a valuable paper on the Great Pyramid by Mr. Boyle, but there would not be time to read it. Professor Leone Levi read a portion of a paper on "The Distinctive Characters of Oriental and European Jurisprudence." A vote of thanks to Mr. Grant Duff was passed unanimously, and the section terminated, the members proceeding to Enfield to attend Mr. Bosanquet's garden party.

Mr. Frederick Drew writes to The Times, calling attention to what, in his opinion, appear to be four conspicuous points of mismanagement in connection with the Oriental Congress. These are—Firstly, the want of one central spot as a rendezvous for the members; secondly, want of time for the consideration of the subjects; thirdly, absence of early published information as to the course of the proceedings; and fourthly, the absence of any definite procedure for the origination and consideration of proposals to be dealt with by the administration of the Congress. Mr. Drew suggests that an aid to secure the success of future meetings of the Congress would be found in Standing Committees to be appointed in every country, which should be channels of communication between the public of each country and the central administrative body of the Congress.

The Times, in an article upon the Oriental Congress, remarks, what is the good of an International Congress of Orientalists? This is the unpleasant question which Professor Max Müller has more than once been asked; and, accordingly, in his opening address as President of the Aryan Section of the Congress, he finds a two-fold answer for it. Such a Congress is useful, he says, because by bringing together from all quarters those who are engaged upon the various parts of a great common work it enables them both to compare notes on what they have done already and to make the best arrangements among themselves as to the separate converging lines on which they are hereafter to proceed, each in his own way, towards the fulfilment of their common purpose. It is useful, too, because it shows the outside world what progress has been made in Oriental studies, and at the same time gives their Professors an opportunity of advancing their special claims to general sympathy and support. The former of these objects has, we learn gladly from Professor Max Müller, been already in part attained. The field of Oriental labour has so indefinitely widened out that by no possibility can the whole of it be gone over with the same minute attention. Places must therefore be marked off in it, and assigned to each one of the little band of Oriental students; and these places, which Professor Max Müller very aptly compares with the stations of a trigonometrical survey, must be so chosen that the toil bestowed upon them may be, in the fullest sense, co-operative. We join heartily in Professor Max Müller's hope that the tangible results of this arrangement may be produced at the next Congress, but we feel, as he does, that the details of it are a private matter, of which the world at present would scarcely care to be informed. The Orientalists just now are filling a large space in our sphere of vision, and even from a more distant point of view they will really have a great deal to show as proof that they have not been idle. Nor have we any right to demand that those who are engaged in digging the metal from the mine should also fashion it for use. The use will assuredly come later; indeed, in some part it has come already. Both Maine and Grote have employed the results of Oriental research with splendid effect to explain and illustrate the nature of the slow evolution of legal and philosophical conceptions. We will ask no excuse for attaching less present importance to the proved connection between the fables of the East and of the West, or to the unproved assertion that the divine spirit of all religion is the same. But we must not grudge a little both of amusement and of freak to our hard-working Oriental students. They have recovered for us relics from a buried world which are interesting in the very highest degree, and though these, we must admit, are mostly unarranged at present, they will supply, doubtless, abundant material for future scientific use.

The Morning Post has the following on our relations and prospective trade with Western China:—"Of late a strong desire has been evinced to open up trade with the Shan States and Thibet, and the reports under notice afford some valuable information respecting the latter territory. The question is simply whether the Chinese or Thibetans will let us in. If they will only remove the embargo at present imposed upon the entry of our trade, there are no serious difficulties to be met with on the short intervening routes, and none of the risks of collision that exist elsewhere. Thibet is a perfectly civilised and well-regulated country, with which the hill people of India are in constant communication, and which they know about as well as Englishmen know France. When Europeans go to the frontier and try to cross it there is no display of violence or disturbance. They are simply turned back with an intimation that there are orders not to admit them. The fact appears to be that the prohibition to intercourse with Thibet which now exists is simply part of the Chinese policy of exclusion, imposed on the Thibetans by Chinese officials, and enforced by Chinese troops stationed in the country. If by using influence or pressure at the Court of Peking the prohibition were withdrawn the means of carrying on trade would be abundant, the goods of Leeds, Manchester, and Birmingham, and other English centres would find a ready sale, and in return we should get back much wool, sheep, cattle, walnut, Thibetan cloths, and other commodities. From the reports before us it is evident that the Indian Government is bestirring itself most heartily in the matter. It remains for the merchants of India and England to take prudent advantage of the opportunities for trade already afforded, and of those which may be presented in the future through the assiduity of the Governor-General and his colleagues and subordinates.

INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF ORIENTALISTS.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

Although an improvement has been established in several articles, the general tone of the Produce Markets has remained inactive, and prices have continued to follow a downward course. Tea has been quiet but firm. The Silk market has improved, and a fair business is doing in the new Chinas. Sugar has been active, and prices have advanced with some rapidity. Coffee, after a very depressed state has fully recovered. Rice has declined about 6d. per cwt. Sago is lower, Tapioca steady, Black Pepper has fluctuated, closing steadily: White is again cheaper. Hemp is quiet, but steady. Straits Tin continues to improve in value.

TEA.

Messrs. Capel and Co.'s Circular says:—The market still continues very firm, with a fair amount of business doing, at prices which, on the whole, show but little alteration on last week, the very large Deliveries in progress giving increased confidence both to buyers and sellers. Congous.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings have sold ½d. to 1d. per lb. lower, at public sale from 6½d. to 8d. per lb. Broken-leaf kinds are also a shade easier. Fair to good common, of old import, have been firm at last week's rates. Fair Kaisow kinds have been taken to some extent at ½d. to ½d. per lb. decline. Good Saryune kinds have been enquired for at an advance of about ½d. per lb.; good to fair Kaisows have sold at former prices, but the demand has been inactive; finest have been only in moderate request, without change in prices. Pak Lin kinds remain firm at fully previous rates. Black-leaf kinds: The sales of common to fair have been rather under last week's prices; fair to good medium have been steady; good to fine have also sold at previous prices; finest remain firm for Export. New-make kinds: Common to fair have sold from 11½d. to 1s. 1d., good from 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 3d., showing no change. Souchongs remain much as last week, the demand being moderate. Oolongs: Further sales at auction have been made, establishing a decline of ½d. to 1d. per lb. Scented Teas: Canton Capers have been saleable from recent arrivals at previous prices. Foochow kinds have sold ½d. to 1d. per lb. lower. Canton Orange Pekoes remain much as before, the demand being rather dull. Foochow kinds have sold readily, but prices have given way ½d. to 1d. per lb. Green Teas: The principal business continues to be at public auction, without reserve, and prices generally have again been lower, the supplies being in excess of the immediate requirements of the Trade and Exporters. The Deliveries for the week as compared with last year are as follows:—

Coastwise	871,000	803,000
Exports	860,000	826,000
	3,879,000	3,550,000

SILK.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co. report that a good steady business has been doing in the new China Silk, manufacturers generally buying more or less freely; the market is perhaps a little quieter within the last day or two, but business is still doing, and prices are firm at the full rates of a fortnight ago for best Tsatlees, and at a good 6d. advance upon sale week for common and medium, as also for Kahing Taysaams. Canton Silk is a shade better, and 11s. has been paid for No. 4 Tsatlee, new Silk. Japans show an improvement of 6d. to 1s., but in Bengals there is no change. Deliveries have greatly improved, and show satisfactory figures, say from 1st to 16th inst.:—China, 2,480; Canton, 376; Japan, 340; Bengal, 142; total, 3,338 bales. The total quantity of new Silk arrived to date is:—8,000 bales of China, and 1,000 bales of Canton.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

No family should be without these Pills, when wet, gloomy weather predisposes to fevers of all kinds, more especially remittent, typhus, typhoid, or, as the last is now newly named, enteric fever. Their long tried efficacy in removing indigestion, stimulating the bowels, and purifying the blood, has secured for them imperishable praise throughout the globe. Whatever the disease a few doses will relieve the more urgent symptoms and thereafter completely control all disordered action, rouse the torpid liver, empty the engorged spleen cleanse the obstructed kidneys, assimilate the food, improve the blood, and thereby confer on the brain and every function healthful vigour, natural activity, and wholesome regularity. In trying seasons this Medicine will save many lives.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

TIENTSIN.

A correspondent of the North China Daily News writes as follows:—

The Japanese Minister and suite took their departure for Peking on the 27th July, after a stay of six days. From the 25th July until his departure the Minister stayed, by invitation, at the American Consulate. The sojourn of his Excellency in Tientsin was as interesting as it was brief. The day after his arrival he notified the Viceroy of his presence, and on the 24th July an interview took place between them at the Viceroy's yamen. It is well understood here that Li has on several occasions declared his intention not to permit the Japanese Minister to go to Peking until satisfactory explanations were made for the recent operations in Formosa. But the Viceroy reckoned without his host; the Minister from Japan has had a good schooling in diplomacy — of the Oriental kind. He was very gracious and civil, but said never a word about Formosa. He coolly informed the Viceroy that he had been appointed by the Government of Japan to reside at Peking as Minister, and that he was now on his way to that delightful city. The Viceroy began at once to discuss the Formosa difficulty, and gave vent to his feelings by handing the Minister a slip of paper, on which was written a favourite quotation from the Chinese classics, regarding the "lawless encroachments of one State upon the territory of another." The Minister received it with the greatest sang froid possible, and after the Viceroy had wasted his breath in high-flown rhetoric, quietly informed him that he had only called to pay his respects, not to discuss international affairs; that he had been accredited to the Chinese Government at Peking, and that he was now on his way thither. Having said this much he made a pleasant bow, and left his host in a state of mind bordering on distraction. The declared intention and great aim of the Viceroy was to engage the Minister in a discussion, and so prevent his going to Peking. He failed signally. So keenly did he feel the mortification of his failure that he did not return the Minister's call, but sent a deputy to say that he had been taken suddenly indisposed. The helplessness of the Chinese in the present state of affairs between themselves and the Japanese is pitiable. They feel their humiliation, but of course are too proud to acknowledge it.

There has been an unpleasant rumour here of another massacre of foreigners, which it is reported will occur on the 8th of August. This rumour has taken its rise in the interior. Little attention is paid to it so far, and it is believed to be a false alarm; but one never knows just when to expect the wolf. The matter has been officially brought to the notice of the local authorities, but the general belief is that there is no danger to be apprehended from the mob at present.

Chên, the Customs' Taoutai of Tientsin, has retired from office, and is succeeded by Sun, an expectant Taoutai, who takes charge of the office temporarily. Everybody is glad to see Chên retiring from office. He is not wanting in ability, but his obstructiveness and avarice have rendered him obnoxious to both Chinese and foreign residents. He is reported to carry with him in his retirement from office the neat little sum of Tls. 300,000. The squeezing among the inhabitants of the district under his administration will be remembered for a long time to come.

The Chinese officials here have been taking active measures recently to prevent a recurrence of the floods this year. They have prohibited the slaughter of cattle for beef, and interdicted all theatrical performances for the space of three days! Let us hope that this well-timed and sensible action will afford us ample security from the inundation!

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 9th August; the P. and O. mail from London, 26th June, arrived out on the 5th August. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald:—

Rumours have been abroad during the past few days that the Chinese had concluded a loan for several million taels. So far as we can learn, nothing of the kind has been done in Shanghai. The only foundation for the statement seems to be that the Viceroy of Fohkien has been negotiating in Foochow for a loan, but it is said without any actual result as yet.

We hear upon pretty good authority that the Chinese, if they have not already done so, are about to stop the coal trade at Keelung, with the object of retaining the whole supply for Government use, and that the Japanese are taking a similar course in relation to the Takasima mines. If this be true, it looks as if each side were reckoning its resources with a view to the eventuality of war.

The screw steamer Yengpau (No. 12 of the Foochow fleet of war-vessels), a transport of 800 tons and 150 horse-power, commanded by Captain Aft, came into port a few days since and took up an anchorage below the shipping, to wait orders. The Yengpau is the third troopship that has arrived within the past fortnight, and is the handsomest vessel of the three. She is, we believe, bound for the Yangtsze ports. Like the two that preceded her, she has had temporary galleys constructed, in which are fixed five large rice-steamers, capable of cooking for 600 or 700 soldiers. In connection with the present rendezvous of Chinese troopships in the Yangtaze waters, we may mention a rumour which is afloat, to the effect that orders have been issued to the officials of the C. M. S. N. Co. to have their vessels ready to act on Government orders.

The French mail steamer Meikong, on her way down river on the 2nd Aug., after clearing the Bar, had her stem caught by the flood tide, and was swung out of the channel on to the North bank, near the French godowns. Here she stuck fast, and though she had the assistance of two tugboats, she was unable to get off. Hopes were entertained that as next morning's tide would be somewhat higher, she would then succeed, but she again failed. At low water she had only thirteen inches under her stem and thirteen feet aft. The firm hold the steamer took on the bank is accounted for by the fact that she was going at ten knots against the tide, to give her steerage way round Pheasant Point, and when the upward current caught her, as she had to come to some extent athwart stream, after clearing the narrow bar channel, her way could not be stopped in time. Boats were at work lightening her, and the mails and cargo were being transferred to the Mensaleh, for conveyance to Hong Kong, when on the 4th Aug. the Meikong got off quite unhurt, and proceeded on her way homeward, with the mails and cargo. The Mensaleh proceeded on her voyage to Hong Kong the same evening.

About 9 P.M. on the 2nd Aug. a fire broke out in the southern suburb of the city, near Tunkadoo. The fire originated in a coal and wood store, which, with numerous other buildings, including a large Canton josshouse, was completely consumed, the contents of sandal and oil stores feeding the flames. It covered an area of about 100 square yards. The locality was of course inaccessible to engines from the Settlements, but valuable advice and aid were given by a few foreigners, prominent among whom we noticed Messrs. Tyler (Gilman and Co.), Burrows (Butterfield and Swire), and More, Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank. These gentlemen had their attention attracted when coming down the river in a houseboat, and having landed they made their way to the place and directed the operations of a Chinese fire company. A party was landed with an engine from a gunboat in port, but, with a large number of foreigners who went to the East Gate, returned on discovering the almost inaccessible nature of the situation. There was a good supply of water, which was carried to the spot in buckets by coolies, who were careful to get a sort of check for each bucket, presumably to secure payment afterwards. About midnight the fire had been brought under, but hundreds had been rendered houseless. Up till the following afternoon coolies were employed throwing water on the still smouldering ruins. There were upwards of one hundred houses destroyed, or much damaged. It was reported that one native was killed, and several severely injured by falling debris. The property destroyed amounted to many thousand dollars in value.

At the Mixed Court, the other day, a case came up admirably illustrative of the high social civilisation of the Chinese. A Soochow woman was sold by her husband to a brothel, and with her was given the usual body deed (shén-chee) signed by the impress of her husband's hand, under which sign manual the enlightened Chinese administrators of law recognise this vile system of bondage. Disliking the position into which she was thrust without power of resistance, the woman got some friends to advance money for her release, and having earned sufficient to pay them back, went to live in the French Settlement with a Chinese constable of the English municipal force, to whom she entrusted the document which represented her liberty. In due time they quarrelled, and the woman demanded the return of some money she had lent the man, together with the deed, but he refused to satisfy her as to either request. The woman appealed for redress to the Acting Superintendent of Police, who ordered the policeman to give up the paper, and took him before Chên, with a view to dismissing him from the force if the charge should be proved. The man produced a deed, which he declared to be the true one, but which the woman averred was a forgery, the impress of the hand being no larger than a child's. The magistrate said he could not recover the money the man was alleged to have got; and, as to the deed, if the one produced were not the true one, he could only compel the man to lodge an indemnity in Court in favour of the woman, against the possible production of any other deed. We believe the man's dismissal from the police force will follow upon the disclosure. The extraordinary thing about such cases is the deliberate recognition of those slave-dealing instruments, "body deeds," by the Chinese authorities. Custom is sacred in China, however, even when the custom is disgraceful; and probably the worthy magistrate could cover over such iniquities with a misty quotation from the Classics.

Our Chefoo correspondent mentions that a row has occurred at the new lighthouse works on the Shantung Promontory, in which one man was killed and one wounded. From another source we are told that the row probably arose between the Chefoo and the Ningpo coolies, about thirty of each of whom, with two Europeans, had been left to go on with the works. Captains of steamers are requested to look out specially for signals when passing the Promontory, and to note whether the temporary light is at work.

Steps are being taken towards the institution of a lodge of Good Templars in Shanghai. The necessary petition has already been drawn up, and signed by some influential members of the local Temperance Society, and will be forwarded to the Rev. J. S. Barradale, at Tientsin, the district deputy for China.

Mr. Avery, the new United States Minister to China, is expected by next American mail.

The Herald publishes the full text of the Convention and Treaty between China and Peru, the leading stipulations of which have already been noticed in our columns.

The assessment of damages in the collision case between the Golden Age and a junk has been begun by the examination of witnesses at the U.S. Consulate-General.

The U. S. S. Ashuelot has left for Nagasaki, her place being taken by the Monocacy, which came out of Tunkadoo Dock, where she had undergone cleaning and painting, prior to proceeding to Japan in a few days.

At the Mixed Court, before Chên and Dr. Yates, a well-known Chinese chief was charged with having entered a house in Portland-place, Hongkew, with intent to commit a robbery. He was sentenced to receive one hundred blows with the bamboo, and to undergo a fortnight's cangue.

In the Supreme Court Sir E. Hornby has given judgment on the appeal from the Court at Nagasaki, in which the master and owners of the barque Misletoe were the defendants and appellants, and Mr. W. L. Malcolmson plaintiff and respondent. The appeal arose out of a charter-party of the barque

Misletoe, and the case was very simple. It was an action for damages for breach of charter-party for not repairing the Misletoe within a reasonable time. The decision was in favour of the appellants, and consequently reversed the decision of the Nagasaki Court.

FOOCHOW.

The Herald has the following :—

H.E. the Futai has returned to this port from the North. In view of the Formosa difficulty the Lekim and other arbitrary exactions will now doubtless be fully enforced. Troops are being rapidly pushed forward to Formosa, several thousand men having embarked at this port and Amoy during the week.

A Court of Enquiry into the conduct of Captain MacNabb, of the late s.s. Canton, has honourably acquitted the captain of all blame in connection with the loss of his vessel. The wreck of the steamer has entirely disappeared, and is now lying in about ten fathoms of water.

We believe that the Provincial authorities have succeeded in negotiating a loan with one of the local banks. Customs duty bonds will, we understand, be given as security. Preparations for war with Japan continue with unabated vigour. Large orders for firearms and munitions of war are being executed, and the Provincial Militia have been called out.

FORMOSA.

THE JAPANESE EXPEDITION.

A correspondent of the Hong Kong Daily Press writes as follows, under date Takow, 22nd July :—

It may now be regarded as an accepted fact that the Japanese have offered to evacuate Langkiaou on the payment of their expenses, amounting to something between a million and a million and a-half of dollars, and that the Chinese Commissioners have referred the demand to head-quarters. As, however, forty thousand foreign armed troops from the neighbourhood of Tientsin are under orders for Formosa, and many other warlike preparations, too numerous to mention here, are being made, there is very little probability that the Chinese contemplate agreeing to the Japanese terms. They have very much the appearance of trying to avail themselves of this proposition as a means of gaining time, and of delaying till they are more ready to take decided action. Nothing new has been heard very recently from Langkiaou ; but a most unfortunate occurrence has happened at Hong Kong, the little village north of Langkiaou, whose inhabitants invited the Japanese to come and defend them against the savages. One of the villagers there has been cut down and killed by a Japanese, from whose lust he was trying to protect his wife. The Chinese inhabitants, as they have been unable to obtain any redress, have closed their market against the Japanese, and will have no dealings with them. The temper of the two parties is such as to be a serious cause for apprehension.

Pan-ta-jen, the Assistant Commissioner, arrived here on the 20th July, with Mr. H. O. Brown, and has since left on his way South. A body of two thousand troops is shortly to be encamped at Takao. As there is nothing in the immediate neighbourhood of this little town but water, swamp, and hill, and barely room for the present population, the troops will have great difficulty in finding camping-ground. They are sure to be a source of annoyance to both the native inhabitants and the foreign residents.

The special correspondent of the China mail writes under date Amoy, 7th Aug., as follows :—I hear from a reliable source that the Japanese will not evacuate the island except on receipt of an indemnity for the expenses of their expedition. On the other hand, the Chinese laugh at the demand, and have sent an ultimatum to the Japanese to leave within 100 days from the 21st June. The Japanese have cut a road from Liangkiau in a direct line to the eastern coast, and have occupied the coast this side (west) to the north of the new road. Such being the case, a war is almost inevitable, and China is making every preparation for such a contingency. They have contracted, it is said, to have a cable laid from Taiwan to Amoy at a cost of $800,000. Whether this amount is correct or not it is impossible to say. The Chinese are concentrating their troops in Formosa, and every town in the island is to be strongly garrisoned. At Taiwan alone they have about 10,000 soldiers. Some 7,000 or 8,000 of Li Hung Chang's disciplined troops are coming down ; 5,000 or 6,000 from Canton, and about the same number from Chang Chowfoo. The last mentioned force will be despatched to Takow in few days. Large guns have been bought and Amoy is to be strongly fortified.

China is evidently determined to have it out, and is showing altogether a very strong front. She has one paramount advantage over Japan, and that is her great wealth. Her credit is ten times better than that of Japan, and in modern warfare money will to a great extent carry the day one would think ; for what can a country with an impoverished exchequer, and with her credit shaken, do? It is fool-hardy on the part of Japan to engage into a war with China. In her eagerness to bring herself into the comity of nations, she has gone mad, and the Formosan expedition is a clear illustration. She is going headlong to work without remembering that a nation is not to be made in one day. She would have done far better in looking after her internal affairs than meddling with other people's business. Let her rule her people properly first before she aspires to colonise other people's territory. Let the rebellious spirit of the Samourai be put down first before she seeks to civilise the savages living within the dominion of a friendly Power.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 15th August ; the P. and O. mail from London June 26 was received on the 31st July, the following French mail of 3rd July arrived out on the 10th August, and the P. and O. mail of 10th July was received on the 12th August. We take the following items of news from the China Mail :—

A meeting of the Legislative Council was held on the 1st of August, present, his Excellency the Governor, the Hon. J. G. Austin, Colonial Secretary ; the Hon. Sir John Smale, Chief Justice ; the Hon. C. C. Smith, Colonial Treasurer ; the Hon. J. Bramston, Attorney-General ; the Hon. P. Ryrie, the Hon. Jas. Whittall, and the Hon. R. Rowett.

The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed,

His Excellency introduced the business of the meeting by proposing the first reading of "an Ordinance to Consolidate and Amend the Laws Relating to Merchant Shipping, the Duties of the Harbour Master, the Control and Management of the Waters of the Colony, and the Regulations of Vessels navigating the same." The Ordinance was one of great importance, and the necessity for its passing now induced him to ask the Council to fix the earliest convenient day for getting it put through.

After some discussion the Governor then put it to the Council to fix the earliest convenient day for the second reading, and Monday week was agreed to for that purpose.

The Colonial Secretary submitted an Ordinance to authorise the appropriation of a supplementary sum, not exceeding $32,000, to defray the charges of the year 1873, which was read the first time. The Council then adjourned.

AUGUST 10, 1874.—Present : H.E. the Governor, the Hon. the Chief Justice, the Hon. the Attorney-General, the Hon. the Colonial Secretary, the Hon. the Colonial Treasurer, the Hon. P. Ryrie, J. Whittall, and R. Rowett.

Punctually at 2.30 P.M. the members assembled in the Council Chamber, when, his Excellency having taken the chair, the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. His Excellency said that there were only two Bills to be brought before the Council, and that he thought the best plan would be to consider the second one first ; namely, the Bill to appropriate a sum not to exceed £32,000, whose provisions we noted in our last summary of proceedings. While the clerk was reading this Bill, the Colonial Secretary said that the increase to the Puisne Judge and others was sanctioned by a Home Ordinance.

Some conversation ensued on a question in relation to the fire department, put by the Hon. P. Ryrie, who was asked by the Governor to bring forward his question on another occasion. The questions were noted, and will be in due course responded to. The Appropriation Increase Bill was read and passed.

On the motion of his Excellency the Governor, the Shipping Ordinance Bill was read a second time and discussed.

Some discussion arose during the consideration of the third chapter, as to the salary to be paid to the members of the Marine Court, the number of members composing the Court, and the qualifications of the gentlemen of whom each Court should consist. The amount to be paid was agreed to, the opinion of the Council being evidently that $5 a day to the unofficial members was not too much. The Court is to be composed of five persons, and to be called the Vice-Admiralty Court of Hong Kong. At 5.10 P.M. the Council adjourned for further discussion till 2.30 P.M. on the 11th.

On the 11th and 12th., the discussion on the Mercantile Shipping Consolidation Ordinance was resumed, and the meeting afterwards adjourned until the 17th.

An extraordinary meeting of shareholders of the China Fire Insurance Company, Limited, was held at the Company's office on the 11th August, pursuant to a notice dated May 18, 1874. The following gentlemen were present.—Mr. H. Lowcock, Chairman ; Messrs. Jensen, S. D. Sassoon, Cairns, Dr. Dodd, R. Deacon, Boyd, Karberg, Russell, E. Sharp, G. Sharp, Burrows, Dr. Young, A. Andre, C. M. Kerr, Hall, Nelson, H. Smith, Nicaise, Wotton, A. Smith, Lyal, Hon. J. Ryrie, Heaton, Forbes, Hoppius, McIver. The notice of meeting was read by Mr. Jas. B. Coughtrie, the secretary, who then read the proposed alteration in Paragraph No. 1, Art. No. 104 of the Company's Articles of Association, as follows :—

"It may, except as by these presents is otherwise provided, invest the funds of the Company in or upon English, Indian or Hong Kong Government Stocks, Bonds, and Funds, or in or upon the Stocks, Bonds, Funds, and Securities of any foreign Government, Country, or State, upon mortgage on property in Hong Kong or elsewhere, and in or upon deposits or loans at interest to the banks established at Hong Kong or elsewhere, and may from time to time, subject to and in accordance with the provisions of these articles, convert or realise and re-invest the same as occasion requires."

Digitized by Google

The Chairman explained the reason why the alteration was proposed to be made. He said that if the Company continued as prosperous as it had heretofore been, more funds would be in hand than could be invested in Hong Kong. The Directors wished to have power and authority to invest in other securities than these now permitted, and which would give a rate as good and profitable as the present securities.

Mr. S. D. Sassoon thought it was quite unnecessary to alter the articles. The present security was, he thought, as good as could be found; the capital was small—$1,000,000—and that was not too much to have invested here without going abroad for stocks, bonds, funds, &c. He thought that if the money was locked up abroad it would be difficult to get money when needed.

Mr. Sassoon proposed, and Mr. Deacon seconded that the proposed alteration was unnecessary. Mr. André sustained Mr. Lowcock by a few remarks, saying that it would be wise to allow the directors to invest their money in other securities than those at present specified. The proposition of Mr. S. D. Sassoon was then put and lost, and the original motion was declared carried.

Mr. Lowcock thanked those present for their attendance, and declared the meeting adjourned until Aug. 25.

The Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce have held a meeting relative to the blockade of the port by the Chinese Customs Cruisers, and have drawn up a memorial upon the subject for transmission to the Secretary of State, in which they strongly urge the Government to take some steps with regard to this evil, which most seriously interferes with the trade of the colony. One of the speakers stated his belief that if it had not been for the steamers, which cannot be touched by the Revenue cruisers, the trade of Hong Kong would long ago have been completely ruined. Some allusion was made at the meeting to the question of the revision of the P. and O. mail contract, but, as it appeared that this revision was only to be with reference to the steamers passing through the Suez Canal, it was decided not to take any steps in regard to the matter at present.

The China Mail says:—We are glad to see that the alteration and repairs of St. Stephen's Church (C.M.S.), Tai-ping-shan, are completed. A great improvement has been effected in the arrangement of the interior, the whole floor below the chancel being now level, and composed of red tiles and marble, whilst the chancel, approached by two steps of granite, is entirely of marble. A new pulpit of exceedingly chaste design adds to the attractive appearance of this interesting place of worship. The building is surmounted by a handsome cross, the gift of a well-known resident, and the whole of the work has been most substantially executed under the superintendence of the hon. architect, R. S. Alford, Esq. It is satisfactory to know that over one-third of the requisite funds have been given by Chinese Christians, members of the congregation assembling every Sunday for Divine worship.

The side-wheel steamer Yotsai, recently built by a Chinaman in Whampoa, for Mr. Acheong, of this place, went on her first trial trip on the 10th, and although she has in her only the old engines of the Prince Albert (a boat about half her size), she attained a speed of 10 knots an hour. She has a large airy saloon aft and an awning deck fore and aft, so that she will accommodate a great number of Chinese passengers.

SIAM.

BANGKOK.

The steam rice mills are at work, though the amount of foreign shipping in port has been meagre in the extreme. Two steamers are now on the line to run regularly between this port and Hong Kong. They make some business. Another steamer, the Asia, independent of that line, left here last month for Hong Kong. Between this and Singapore the steamers Ban Yong Seng, Paknam, Kromahtah, Bangkok, Chow Phya, and Kalahome, run quite regularly. The two latter steamers, in addition to visiting the city of Bangkok, are engaged in commerce in the Siamese territory on the Bay of Bengal.

BORNEO.

SARAWAK.

The Hon. J. B. Cruickshank has just returned from a tour of inspection of the stations under his jurisdiction. At Bintulu he found everything quiet and trade brisk. Here he heard that the fines imposed on the Kyans of Barram and Tinjir by the Sultan of Brunei relative to the murder of Sarawak subjects have been paid in full. At Muka the excitement caused by Haji Adil's disturbance has entirely subsided. The sago trade is being carried on with great spirit, owing to the high prices obtainable. Rejang news is satisfactory. At Kalaka he visited the Resident at Siratok (where he has built a fort). This place promises to become more populous than the town at the mouth of the river. Affairs at Simanggang give less reason for congratulation. Head-taking continues amongst the Dyaks near the border.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 22nd August; the French mail from London 17th July was received on the 16th August. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times:—

Though no residents have yet been appointed to the Malay States, the Government deem it prudent to send Mr. F. A. Swettenham—who has shown considerable aptitude for such duties in recent missions to Laroot and Perak—to watch over British interests at Salangore pending the appointment of a resident to that territory. The chronic disturbances arising out of petty jealousy between the chiefs in Salangore render this step necessary to prevent complications that, without any permanent benefit to the turbulent leaders, would paralyse the trade and retard the development of the country, and be seriously detrimental to the interests of British subjects, by whose enterprise and capital that trade is being conducted. It is, however, urgent that a resident, clothed with the necessary authority for the conduct of the business pertaining to his office, should be appointed to these states at an early day, in order that confidence in the stability of their government may encourage the embarkation of capital in the development of their fertile resources and the promotion of an untrammelled commercial intercourse with their people, which, while greatly benefiting the trade of this colony, must also exert a civilising influence upon the native population.

In accordance with instructions from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, when returning the Chinese Immigrants Ordinance of 1873 for amendment, a new Bill has been drafted on this subject, which, previous to being brought before the Legislative Council, has been submitted to the Chamber of Commerce for the opinion of that body on its practicability and probable effects. The Chamber have not yet concluded the discussion of the Bill, but so far as can be learned, the feeling among mercantile men and even among the leading Chinese residents, is adverse to any measure of this sort, as likely to check the immigration of coolie labour into the colony, without affecting the object in view, which is simply to protect the coolies from imposition on arrival, and would be better attained by exercising supervision over the engagement and shipment of emigrants from the colony, wherein lie the abuses complained of in the Chinese petition that gave rise to legislation on the subject.

The Criminal Sessions concluded at the end of last month, and the prisoner Moorbarrack, who was sentenced to death for the murder of his wife, underwent the extreme sentence of the law at the usual place behind the jail. He seemed much more concerned about venting his spleen on some of the officers of the Police who had had charge of him than in the adjustment of his temporal affairs or the preparation for his hereafter. He met his death with perfect coolness. It has been determined to hold an Autumn Race Meeting, and the programme is already published, showing three days' sport on the 20th, 22nd, and 24th October. The prizes offered are good, and as we have lately had numerous arrivals of superior horses from Sydney, uncommonly good racing is anticipated. Invitations have been issued for a Ball at Government House on the 3rd proximo in honour of Her Majesty's Birthday. It will be remembered that at the customary season for this festival, his Excellency and Lady Clarke were away at Penang and Perak. On the 12th inst. Captain Smith and officers of H.M.S. Charybdis gave a ball on board that vessel as she lay at the Tanjong Pagar Dock—which was attended by the Governor and Lady Clarke and the principal residents.

The presence of a man-eating tiger on the little island of Pulo Obin (the granite quarry of Singapore, first made known by the discovery of the mutilated bodies of two of his victims on two successive days, occasioned considerable excitement here about a fortnight ago, and a number of gentlemen proceeded over to the island to endeavour to dislodge him from his hiding place. Heavy rains, however, which made operations in the jungle impossible, prevented the execution of their design, and after two days they were obliged to return without having accomplished anything. Nothing has since been heard regarding the tiger, and though he may still be hidden on the island, it is quite as possible he has recrossed the straits to Johore; if not, however, the natives will, for their own safety, no doubt soon entrap him, the small area of the island rendering this comparatively easy.

The steamship Alexandra, Capt. W. J. Stuart, from Sydney and Queensland via Torres Straits and Samarang, with the Australian mails, arrived at Tanjong Pagar wharf. The following is the Alexandra's report:—

"Left Sydney on 17th of July, and Brisbane at 4 A.M. on Wednesday, the 22nd inst., called at the Northern Queensland ports, leaving Somerset at 6.20 A.M. on Thursday, the 30th inst. Passing to the Northward of Timor and through the Flores sea, arrived at Samarang at 2 P.M., on Saturday, the 8th of August; left again at 5.30 A.M. on the 9th, passed through the Carimata Straits on the 10th, and arrived in Singapore at noon on the 12th. Experienced light airs and calms with fine weather to Samarang, light variable airs and head winds with cloudy weather and rain at times, from thence until arrival."

It affords us pleasure (says the Penang Gazette) to be able to announce that his Excellency the Governor in Council has appointed Mr. Walter Scott, of the firm of Messrs. Brown and Co., to be a member of the Legislative Council, vice the late Hon. F. S. Brown. The appointment is one which will receive the unqualified approval of all classes of the community in this settlement.

The Spanish frigate Carmen, Capt. Manuel Carvalho, anchored in the roads and saluted the British flag, the salute being returned from Fort Canning. The Carmen is from Bar Bcelona, bound to Manila.

IMPORTS.

CHEFOO.—Messrs. Wilson, Coruabé and Co. report:—During the past month business in Cotten Goods has been very languid, and the only fabric for which there has been any enquiry has been Mexican T-Cloths, and for this article of medium quality Tls. 1.40 to 1.42 has been readily paid. Grey Shirtings have been saleable, but only at very low prices. Other Fabrics, both plain and fancy, have been neglected. Iron—both Nail Rod and Bar—has been in fair enquiry, but Lead has not been asked for.

HANKOW.—The business of the fortnight had been of a limited nature although for the time of year it had been up to the average. No article had been in special demand and rates generally were unaltered.

SHANGHAI.—With the exception of common Grey goods, the market had been quiet throughout the fortnight, and there was little or no change in quotations. Cotton Goods: Rather a large business had been done in common 8¼lbs. Grey Shirtings, and the demand still continued. Common T-Cloths had also been in request, and showed a small advance. White Shirtings were without alteration. Drills were quiet again, and the natives had been offering to re-sell their late purchases at a decline. Fancy Cottons were unchanged. Woollens: There was little change to note, and business had been on a very limited scale. At the weekly auctions, Camlets showed a decline, but with this exception, prices remained unchanged. Market for Metals and Coals very quiet.

FOOCHOW.—Sales had been: Grey Shirtings, 8¼lbs., 500 pieces at $2.50 per piece; T-Cloths, 7lbs., 500 pieces at $1.85 piece; Do., 6lbs., 400 pieces at $1.65 per piece; Lead, 2,000 pigs at $8.00 to $8.25 per picul.

HONG KONG.—There had been very little doing in imports during the fortnight, and quotations showed little or no alteration. Prices, however, were weak and the dealers showed no disposition to buy, except to satisfy their most pressing wants.

BATAVIA.—There had been a quiet market for piece goods, though on the whole there had been a somewhat better general demand than existed at the date of our last advices; values, however, were without improvement, and in some instances a further decline had been established.

CANTON.—Lead has not been in much demand; LB was quoted $8 to 8.03 and WB $8.05 to 8.18 per picul. Quicksilver was enquired for at $191 to 192 per picul.

SINGAPORE.—During the fortnight, the market for all imports has been quiet; there had been little change in prices, the demand had been dull, and only a limited business had been done.

PENANG.—During the fortnight the market had been excessively dull, and prices had decidedly ruled in favour of buyers. Transactions in all classes of goods had been on the most retail scale, and prices were at the close extremely weak.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

HANKOW.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer, and Co.'s Report says:—Tea has continued to come forward freely since our last, arrivals for the week being 23,000 chests. The last two days there have been scarcely any fresh Teas put on the market, and we think the second crop leaf may now be considered all to hand. We make total arrivals to date, forty-four millions, or as nearly as possible the same as last year, so that the deficiency in the first crop, generally estimated at about two millions, has been fully made up. Two or three so called third crop Teas were shown a day or two ago. Not being liked here they have been forwarded to Shanghai, and it is said other parcels have been sent there direct. The quantity, however, will be very small, and scarcely worth noticing. We look for arrivals in quantity during the coming week. There is but a small business to report, settlements since 27th July amounting to only 3,053 chests and 4,320 half-chests. Prices show no appreciable change. Settlements have been assisted by the low freight and exchange, the former being reduced 10s., while credits have been settled as low as 5s. 11d. Sales are chiefly of Oonfars, ranging from Tls. 16½ to 19½. One or two Lee-lings have been settled at Tls. 17¼, and Shuntam packed at Tls. 15 to 15½ per picul.

KIUKIANG.—With the exception of a few small settlements all arrivals had gone forward to Shanghai on native account. Black Teas: Five chops had been settled at Tls. 21 for Ningchow, Tls. 17 to 20 for Kiukiang packed, and Tls. 21.3.0 for Hohow; total arrivals, 142,085 chests. Of Green Teas one chop of 511 half-chests had arrived and been shipped to Shanghai.

SHANGHAI.—Black: Purchases had again been very large, and showed quite as poor value as those of the previous fortnight. Previous prices had been fully maintained, and the liberal supplies which had come to hand had been hardly more than sufficient for the daily requirements; at the close there was no sign of the demand slackening. Many of the settlements had not been shipped, and the cargoes of the Norman Castle and Kaisow were already bought. The bulk of the business had been in Teas ranging from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 5d. The second crop had been very full, and had been remunerative to the natives. Third crops were beginning to arrive. Settlements for the fortnight, 54,200 chests; reshipments, 1,750 chests; stock, 36,000 packages. Quotations: Hohow, fair to finest, 1s. 1d. to 2s. 1½d.; Oonam and Oanfas, common to good, 11½d. to 1s. 5¾d.; Ningchow, fair to fine, 1s. 3d. to 1s. 11d.; Oopack, fair to good, 1s. 1¾d. to 1s. 5¾d. Green: The chief feature of interest during the fortnight had been the opening of the market for country Teas at Tls. 47. After all that had been said about low prices in New York, and the heavy losses which importers were making, Teamen must have been very agreeably surprised to find their produc fetching 4 to 5 taels above prices of last season. The cup quality of the Tea seen thus far was rather above the average, but no improvement had been made in their appearance. Pingsueys had been in some demand, at lower prices. The late arrivals, although of good make and colour, had little to recommend them in favour. The following were about the prices paid:—For country Tea, Tls. 34 to 47 per picul; Pingsuey, Tls 21 to 44 per picul; Local-packed, Tls. 30 to 42 per picul. Settlements, 18,625 half-chests; stock, 61,410 half-chests.

FOOCHOW.—Messrs. Westall, Galton, and Co.'s Weekly Letter reports as follows:—There has been less doing in this market since 1st Aug., yet purchases during the week have been considerable. A large proportion of the settlements appear to have been made for the Colonial markets. Teamen have been keeping supplies short of the demand, and settlements during the week exceed the arrivals. Congou: Business has continued on the same terms as last quoted, no noticeable alteration in prices having taken place; good common and flavoury kinds have been dealt in to a considerable extent, whilst large purchases of dust and low broken kinds have been made, rates for these latter descriptions must still be considered as very full. The second crop is now nearly all to hand, and the third is arriving. Souchongs: A fair business has again passed in this description, prices showing no change. Oolong: Several parcels have been taken at Tls. 20¾ to 23 short, fully maintaining previous rates. The fine lines will now shortly be generally shown, as yet but one or two have been placed on the market, and it would be premature to judge of the quality. Flowery Pekoe: Only two chops have been taken, showing a considerable drop on last week's rates. Scented Teas: This description has met with less inquiry during the week, and prices are easier.

AMOY AND TAMSUI.—During the fortnight about 5,000 half-chests of Amoy Oolong, grading good to superior, had been bought for America on a basis of about $26 for good cargo, or say $4 over prices of first purchases last season. Operations had been confined to one buyer, and as no other offers were reported it was thought that further settlements were not likely to be made immediately. The arrivals aggegated 115,200 half-chests, and the total settlements to date 10,340 half-chests, leaving a stock of nearly 105,000 half-chests. At Tamsui a moderate business had been done, principally in Teas grading superior and under, at a decline of $3 to 4 per picul on rates previously current; finer grades were however very scarce and commanded fully previous quotations. About 3,000 half-chests had been shipped to Foochow for sale there, the quality of which was thought to be inferior, though no musters were shown by the Chinese before the Teas left Formosa. The total export of Formosa Ooloongs to date to all quarters was 1,378,147lbs., against 268,988lbs. last year.

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon and Co's Report says:—The transactions in Tea, during the past fortnight, have been to a fair extent, and prices paid show scarcely any change from those quoted last mail. Latterly the stock of desirable Scented Teas has become somewhat reduced, and Teamen, unable to lay in fresh supplies of raw leaf on the same favorable terms as previously current, have been less eager to make contracts. Congou: A few purchases have been made in the medium class at Tls. 18 to 21 per picul. Scented Teas: Of Capers, about 3,000 boxes common to good common and clean have been taken at Tls. 11½ to 13 per picul, but the bulk of the business has been in the fair to medium description at Tls. 16 to 21, the general run being much on the same basis of value as current previously, though the prices reported for some parcels indicate great irregularity. In Orange Pekoes, there is no change to quote, and supplies continue very moderate; some rather common "new makes" have been settled as low as Tls. 12 per picul. The fortnight's business is summarised as follows:—Congou, 2,100 boxes, at Tls. 18 to 21 per picul. Scented Orange Pekoe, 5,000, at Tls. 12 to 25. Scented Caper, 21,000, at Tls. 11½ to 21.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—The business for the French mail was done at a decline of Tls. 2½ on Chop Silks; "Chicks," Nos. 3, 3½, and 4, being bought at Tls. 397½, 375, 345, and "Gold Lions," Nos. 1 and 2, at Tls. 365 and 345. The market had been much quieter since, but these prices remained unaltered, owing to fictitious quotations being maintained, by a large proportion of the shipments being on Chinese account. Common grades of Tsatlee were Tls. 10 to 15 cheaper; but there was little change to notice in other kinds. Included in settlements were 300 bales for America, consisting chiefly of Re-reels; Tsatlees at Tls. 300 to 390, and Hainings, Tls. 320 to 420. Settlements for the fortnight, 3,500 bales. Total settlements since 1st June, 22,000 bales; against 1873-74, 16,500 bales; 1872-73, 25,500 bales. Comparative unsold stock, 1874, 18,000 bales; 1873, 8,000 bales; 1872, 9,000 bales.

CANTON.—Prior to departure of the French mail there was some demand, and 260 bales were taken, most classes of Tsatlee reel being dealt in, since then, however, the inquiry had subsided, and although Chinamen had been inclined to accept somewhat lower prices than were ruling previously, only a few bales of Loongkong were reported to have been purchased. Advices from home showed no improvement, and as stocks in Canton were considerable, a decline in rates were expected to take place. Loongkongs of best quality had been wanted to some extent, and as usual were in scant supply, and obtainable only in small parcels; 30 bales were said to have changed hands. Long-reels to extent of 150 piculs had been sett'ed for th

Indian market. Re-reels continued in limited request. Stock estimated at 900 to 1,000 bales Tsatlee, 200 bales Loongkong, 150 bales Cumchuck and Lacklow, 100 bales Kowkong, and about 200 bales of inferior sorts.

Stewart Cannon; Surgeon (in charge), R. A. Mowll, M.D.; Gunner, W. Ricketts; Engineers, R. Sutherland and G. Triggs; Assistant-engineer, G. H. Hearson. The ship's complement is seventy-three officers and men.

The Lapwing, 3, gun-vessel, Commander Sir W. Wiseman, has been commissioned with a complement of ninety men for the China station. She is to relieve the Thistle.

The report of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, a telegraphic summary of which has already appeared, will be found in full in our Advertising columns.

THE P. AND O. STEAMER "SURAT."—This vessel, which has been lengthened, was tried at the measured mile in Stokes Bay on the 26th, before resuming her position in the mail service with the East. The alterations have been effected by her original builders, Messrs. Day, Summers, and Co., of Southampton, by whom the ship was cut in two in the west graving dock and lengthened 40ft. 4in. Her original horizontal engines have been superseded by compound engines of 530 nominal horse power capable of indicating 2,900-horse power, and calculated to drive her at a speed of 13¼ knots per hour. The cylinders are 48 and 96 inches in diameter respectively, with 4ft. 6in. stroke, and she is propelled by one of Griffiths's three-bladed screws, 18ft. in diameter, and with a pitch of 22ft. The present dimensions of the vessel are—Length between perpendiculars 356ft. 6in.; breadth of beam, 41ft. 6in.; depth from top of floor to spar deck, 30ft. 3in.; tonnage, builders' measurement, 3,057, and gross, 3,141 tons. She is elegantly fitted throughout with every arrangement for the comfort of passengers. At the trial on Saturday, with an average pressure of 61½lb. of steam, vacuum 24½ inches, and 64¾ revolutions of engines per minute, the vessel attained a mean speed of 12.247 knots per hour, which would have been considerably higher had the ship been in better trim, she having only 700 tons dead weight on board, and the fans of the screw working eight or nine inches out of the water. Her draught was 15ft, 6in. forward and 17ft. 11in. aft. Owing to the recent alteration, the Surat is now capable of carrying over 800 tons of cargo more than before on the same draught of water, and it is fully expected that she will regularly make 10 knots per hour at sea on a daily consumption of 28 tons of coal. The Surat arrived in the Victoria Docks at two o'clock on the 27th, and she will leave Southampton on the 8th October, with the heavy India and China mails.

DEPARTURE OF MISSIONARIES FOR CHINA.—On the 18th inst. a meeting was held in St. George's Presbyterian Church, Liverpool, to commend to God's gracious care the band of missionaries who were to sail the following day in the Glaucus. Mr. and Mrs. Macgregor, Mr. Gibson, Mr. Barclay, Miss Ingram, and Miss Dickson were all present. A large number of friends were present to bid them farewell, including the mother and two sisters of Mr. Gibson, and the mother, four brothers, and one sister of Mr. Barclay. A few minutes of quiet were secured after the luggage had been all taken on board, and a brief prayer-meeting was held in the saloon, the devotions of the meeting being led by the Rev. Jno. Gordon, brother of one of our missionaries, and the Rev. R. H. Lundie.

THE P. & O. COMPANY'S FLEET.—The new steamer Thibet (sister ship to the Teheran), will leave Dundee on the 3rd, and shortly take her place on the line. The Deccan, Sunda, Poonah, and Avoca, now under repair, will all be ready for service before January. The trial of the Surat, after lengthening, will be found in another column. The vessels in the Victoria Dock are the Surat, Thibet, Cathay, Peshawur, Malwa, Khedive, China (under repairs); and at Southampton, the Hindostan and Tanjore (under repairs).

A MAN calling himself Julius Mendelsshon, but whose real name is supposed to be Julius Lisser, has just committed suicide in a New York prison. He is believed to have been formerly an interpreter at Yokohama, and was recently convicted of forgery, and sentenced to five years imprisonment in States Prison, New York.

THE launch of the Lighthouse steamer Meiji-Maro, for the Japanese Government, took place on the 26th inst., from the yard of Messrs. Napier and Co., Glasgow. She is a spar-deck iron screw 225 ft. long, 30 beam, depth of hold to spar-deck 22 ft. 6.

Literature.

Translations from the Hakayit Abdulla. With Comments by J. T. Thomson. Henry S. King and Co.

"As I compose this work on myself, so I shall call it the Hakayit, or Autobiography of Abdulla." Such is the explanation given of the title by the author, and Anglicised by the translator. From the preface of the latter—who addresses it, Otago, New Zealand—we learn that the MS. was handed to him eighteen years ago, and written in the Malay language, though the characters are "essentially Arabic"—a specimen of which faces the title page. In performing his task Mr. Thomson has done full justice to the memory of the author, in bringing it before the English reader with profuse comments on each passage, which amount to nearly as much subject matter as the text itself. By this means a great deal that would be otherwise obscured is explained. Indeed, if any fault is to be found with the commentary, it is being too diffuse, and containing personal remarks upon some eminent characters mentioned in the narrative that would have been much better expunged. A generation has passed away since the events occurred in the Indian Archipelago to which the autobiography of Abdulla relates, and though a humble witness of the foundation of what are now designated the "Straits Settlements," nevertheless his descriptions of the leading men in these transactions, and their consequences, are graphic and truthful. Without entering into details, the chief interest of the book centres in the account given of Singapore and its successful establishment by Sir Stamford Raffles and Colonel Farquhar, after the British had abandoned Malacca on the 18th September, 1818, when it was transferred to the Dutch, according to a European convention. Abdulla was a native of that city, where he was first taken notice of by Sir Stamford as an expert and intelligent Malay writer, some ten years previously, when he was about twenty-one years of age, and afterwards employed as a translator. It was in this capacity that he saw so much of his master and other British officials; at the same time his own natural shrewdness and powers of observation, as evinced in these translations, show that he was more than an ordinary observer of events and their leading characters. When the island of Singapore was occupied by treaty with the Tomongong of Jahore, on the 9th February, 1819, the site fixed on for the settlement was a marsh and it became an important matter how to fill this up, and extend the town. On this head Abdulla has the following:—

Now Mr. Raffles and Colonel Farquhar consulted about extending the town of Singapore, when the latter thought that Campong Glam was the direction for the mercantile part and the bazaars; but Mr. Raffles opined that the other side of the river was the proper site. To this Colonel Farquhar objected, the place being nothing but swamp, with bad water; and, besides, the cost of raising the land would be great. To this Mr. Raffles replied, that if Campong Glam were made the place for merchants, the other side would be a mere waste for hundreds of years, and not even then improved. Thus they were full of thought, one saying this and the other that; each devising plans. So they thought over this for three days, when it struck Mr. Raffles that he might cut down the hill near the Point, and spread it on the marsh. So Chinese, Malay, and Kling coolies, to the number of two or three hundred, were set to dig and carry the earth; others were set to break the rocks, which were here very plentiful and large. So each set to their special work as if a battle were raging. Now at this time the price of labour was high, viz., one rupee a day. So at night a bag was required to carry the money for the payment of the labourers, and Mr. Raffles visited the works, to give directions to the overseers who had charge of the men. Nor was Colonel Farquhar idle, being on horseback every morning, seeing that the land was sectionised far and near, which he sold by auction, or else gave away; for all was under forest,—the object being to get it cleared. Now Colonel Farquhar suggested that I should take a bit for myself at Campong Glam, as he thought it would be the mercantile quarter; so I took me to a place thereon with plank walls, but I remained there under constant fear, as I was surrounded by forest.

Abdulla was a Mohammedan, but in the course of his experiences among the British he became indoctrinated into the tenets of Christianity, and he frequently enters upon the subject in his autobiography, but his commentator mentions that he never became a convert. There are many other matters of interest connected with Malaysia and its people, which are well worthy of perusal, and we commend the book to all who take an interest in the Straits Settlements.

Dr. J. Forbes Watson, M.A., M.D., has just written a pamphlet on the "Establishment in Connection with the India Museum and Library of an Indian Institute for Lecture, Inquiry, and Teaching, and on its Influence on the Promotion of Oriental Studies in England, and on the Progress of Higher Education among the Natives of India, and on the Training of Candidates for the Civil Service of India." Dr. Watson urges the necessity for the establishment of an institute for the advancement of our knowledge of India, and he advocates the project upon other than political grounds, believing that an establishment of the kind indicated would promote many objects which are in themselves of interest to both countries, quite apart from any political significance which they may possess. Dr. Watson's views on the subject are so clearly put forth and so excellent in their object that his scheme ought to obtain support from all those who are interested in the development of Oriental studies, and who desire to see a closer connection existing between our own country and India.

Trübner's Oriental Literary Record informs us that it is proposed to establish at Newburyport, United States of America, a University of Modern Languages, each language to be imparted by a native of the country where it is spoken; but the most notable feature of the scheme is to lodge each student in a family speaking the language he is studying, and so materially aid his progress. It is reported that applications for admission have already been received from many Brazilian, Cuban, Japanese, Chinese, and Mexican young men. With regard to the science of religion we are also informed in the same periodical that Messrs. Trübner and Co. have issued a catalogue of nearly three hundred volumes, treating of the religions of the American Indians, the ancient classical countries, Scandinavians, slaves, Teutons, Brahmans, Buddhists, Confucians, Tauists, Mahommedans, and Zoroastrians.

We further learn from the Monthly Record that Mr. Charles Rudy has published an English and Chinese Grammar (Mandarin language), on the Ollendorffian method, in three volumes. This grammar is so arranged that it corresponds, page by page, with the Ollendorff grammars of other languages; so that a German or Russian, by the aid of his own grammar, can study Chinese, although he may not be able to read the English sentence placed opposite the sentence in this grammar. This plan will be of immense use to Chinese who wish to study European languages, as it will give them the opportunity of learning any language of which Professor Ollendorff has published a grammar.

In the September number of the Oriental there are several papers of especial interest to our readers. "Notes from the Journal of a Tour in the North of China," by Dr. Legge, is sure to attract attention; while a continuation of the paper called "Japan Visited by an Old China Resident" (Mr. Edkins) is well worthy of note. "An American's Travels Round the World" describes a visit paid to China and Japan by the late Mr. W. H. Seward.

A work entitled "The Straits of Malacca, Indo-China, and China, or Ten Years' Travels, Adventures, and Residence Abroad," will shortly be published by Messrs. Low and Co. It is from the pen of Mr. J. Thomson, the photographer, and will contain a narrative of the writer's personal experience and adventures in the Straits of Malacca, Siam, Cambodia, Cochin China, and China.

The current number of the Oriental Magazine contains an article entitled "Notes of a Tour in North China," by the Rev. Dr. Legge, also one on "Japan from a Chinese Resident's Point of View," by the Rev. J. Edkins.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, SEPT. 22.

The assassination of Herr Ludwig Haber, Acting Consul for German at Hakodadi, has made a painful sensation in this country. The unfortunate gentleman was a native of Brieg, in Silesia, and the intelligence of his death was first received in a telegram from the Japanese Government to the Foreign-office at Berlin. In the absence of Prince Bismark the news was communicated by the Director of the Foreign-office, Baron von Philipsborn, to the brother of Herr Haber, adding that the sad event was confirmed by a despatch from the German Embassy at Japan. The assassin is a Japanese Samirai, who has been arrested, but the motive for the murder is not known yet. Herr Kempermann, the interpreter to the German Embassy, has been sent off in the corvette Elisabeth to Yesso to obtain the necessary information.

From the official returns published by the Statistical Department of our Board of Trade here, it appears that the number of vessels that arrived in this port in the first eight months of the present year was 3,477, of 1,391,520 register tons, against 3,614 vessels and 1,332,980 tons in the corresponding period (from January 1 to the end of August) of 1873, showing a falling off in the number of ships, but an increase of 60,000 tons of carrying capacity. The number of steamers arrived was 1,758, against 1,668 last year.

As I intimated in my last letter, the Danish Government have now decided to appoint an Envoy to the Courts of Peking and Yedo, and have selected for that mission a military diplomatist in the person of Major-General Raasloeff, who was at one time Minister for War, and formerly accredited as Danish Ambassador with the Government at Washington.

With reference to the sale of the armour-plated frigate Danmark, the Copenhagen semi-official Dagbladet says that the cancelling of the contract was carried from considerations of a political nature, as it was ascertained that the English purchasers, Messrs. Baring Brothers and Co., of London, intended to sell the vessel to one of the two East Asiatic Governments, between whom hostilities were then about to break out, but with both of whom Denmark was in a state of peace and amity. It was thought that the sale might be looked on as a breach of neutrality, and lead to complications that had better be avoided. The Danmark was built in England just before the Danish war with Germany, but did not take part in it, as she was not allowed to go out o the country till the war was over. f

The German Transatlantic Steam Company of this city—the so-called "Eagle line"—have convened a special general meeting of the shareholders for the 24th inst. at the Exchange Rooms, to report on the state of the company's affairs and prospects (which latter are not very brilliant, seeing that the shares are now worth 27 for 100 thalers), and to ask leave to authorise the directors to raise 750,000 thalers by a second preference loan. It is expected that at the meeting a proposal will be made to sell the ships and wind up the concern, as they are unable to compete with the old Hamburg-American Steam Company (whose shares, notwithstanding the competition, are quoted 2 per cent above par).

HOLLAND.

AMSTERDAM, SEPT. 23.

The day before yesterday the Session of the States-General was opened with a Speech from the Throne. The ceremony was of the usual character, and those who were of opinion that the speech would contain a programme of the Ministerial intentions are certainly much disappointed. The Ministers make many promises; but on the chief questions of the day they maintain a complete reserve. "The news from Atchin—his Majesty says—leads me to expect that by prudence and perseverance the resistance now offered to the Dutch authority will be vanquished." This means that the war will be continued—which is certainly not what we wished. "The state of the Indian Archipelago is otherwise satisfactory. The crops give promise of a good produce. It is my intention to lay before you shortly proposals for new railways in Java." These are the most important, but very meagre clauses of the speech which refer to Java. As a matter of course, we were greatly disappointed to find that not one word was said about the Reform Bill; but, on the other hand, it is regarded as satisfactory that the Cabinet intend to make dry land of the Zuydersee, and to assist the company, which has undertaken to make a canal from here to the North Sea. For the rest a great many Bills are promised, as they have been promised for several years past, and of course there is not the least chance of these promises being fulfilled. We know only this, that the Ministry means to work, and let us hope that the Second Chamber will not make their labours of no avail.

The election at Tiel has had no definitive result, and another election must take place between Messrs. Van Rappard and Dyckmeester, neither of whom obtained an absolute majority. In Amersfoort Mr. Van Asch van Wyk, the anti-revolutionary candidate, was elected. At Harlingen Mr. de Roo van Alderwerelt, a radical, was elected without opposition, the ex-Minister, Fransen van de Putte, declining a request to become a candidate. Another election must take place at Hoorn, Mr. Van Akerlaken being elected member of the First Chamber.

In the First Chamber the newly-appointed President, Mr. Vos Van Steenwyk, has delivered his speech, which had no political significance. The Second Chamber has re-elected Mr. Dullert as President, but their choice has yet to be approved of by the King.

THE NEW STEAMERS FOR THE PACIFIC MAIL STEAMSHIP COMPANY.

The American papers say :—The City of Peking and the City of Tokio, the twin steamships recently built for the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, possess a peculiar interest as experiments in American naval architecture. Considering the long period for which we have been out of practice in steamship building, and that Great Britain, for many years past, has been doing four-fifths of the whole of this kind of construction that has been done in the world, we stand at an important disadvantage, so far as respects experience, in competition. Our work, however, is now before the world, and the results of these two vessels, when they come to be fairly tried, must go far towards determining the future of iron steamship building in the United States. The cost of these vessels comes so near that of construction in Great Britain that it may be conceded we have conquered that obstacle to competition with our chief rival. The points that remain to be tested are strength, speed, and economy of working. As to strength, there is perhaps but one point that remains open to doubt. The builder has not adopted the principle of underlaying the upper deck with a coating of steel riveted to the sides of the vessel, constituting the ship virtually an iron tube, which has been incorporated by some of the Atlantic companies in the structure of their ships, with a vast acquisition of strength ; and it remains to be seen how the City of Peking and the City of Tokio will stand the powerful strain to which they will be exposed in the rough waters on the eastern and southern shores of Japan and in the Yellow Sea. They may prove strong enough for their purposes, considering that they carry light cargo ; but it is certain they would have been stauncher with this modern improvement. It has long been a question between American and British steamship builders whether wider beam and greater depth, and consequently superior carrying capacity, cannot be reconciled with the attainment of the highest speed. Our builders have taken the affirmative side of this problem, the British the negative. The City of Peking has been constructed upon the American idea ; and her performances will go far towards settling this disputed point. She is 423ft. in length, which is somewhat below the length of the recently-built English iron steamers ; but her breadth, being 48ft., is 4ft. greater than theirs, and her depth being 38ft. is from four to six feet more than theirs. But, so far, we have had no means of testing the two principles ; nor could we have a satisfactory trial except under the circumstances of the two classes of vessels running in the same waters and with the same kind of cargo. The run out of this harbour and outside of Sandy Hook made by the City of Peking on Saturday last affords no criterion whatever of her speed as compared with several Liverpool steamers which were leaving the port at the same time. It was no race. At the same time, it must be allowed that the tests of speed have thus far proved very satisfactory, and leave room for hope that Mr. Roach has at length demonstrated the truth of the American principle. She makes 14½ to 15 knots an hour, with 53 revolutions per minute, and 57lb. of steam. On returning to New York from Boston on the 9th of September she sailed from Sandy Hook Light to Governor's Island, 18 knots, in one hour and four minutes, the tide favouring her. The belief is that she can make at sea 15½ knots an hour, with a consumption of 70 tons of coal a day. In respect to capacity, the City of Peking, being of 5,080 tons, has a larger tonnage than any of the steamers at present plying between this port and Europe, the New York Custom-house register being in each case accepted as the standard. We have not the means at hand for comparing her with the large new vessels of the Peninsular and Oriental and other European-Asiatic lines, but she probably exceeds the capacity of any of those steamers.

THE SIMONOSEKI INDEMNITY.

(BOSTON ADVERTISER.)

The first instalment of the indemnity became due and was paid August 22, 1865. The second instalment became due November 17, 1865, and was paid January 8, 1866. The third instalment became due February 15, 1866, and was paid. It is to the fourth, fifth and sixth instalments, which became due on the 15th of May, August and November, 1866, and which were not then paid, that the recent despatches refer. They amount in the aggregate to $1,500,000, of which one-quarter is due to the United States. The sum received by the United States from the three instalments that were paid in 1865 and 1866 was $375,000, which was computed in Mexican dollars, and the avails thereof invested in United States registered 10-40 bonds. The interest, as received, has been invested in the purchase of similar bonds, and the amount of the fund, as stated in an official paper by the Secretary of State, under date of 13th March, 1872, was $780,354, the fund having nearly doubled in less than ten years, from the gain in exchange at the time of the original investment and the addition of interest. We are unable to state what disposition has been made by the Governments of France, Great Britain and the Netherlands, who received their respective shares of the instalments paid by Japan at the same time with the United States ; and it may be that those Governments have felt justified in pressing for the payment of the residue by reason of serious demands upon them from persons morally entitled to share in its distribution. But so far as the United States are concerned, there has been, we believe, no claim made for compensation for any injury to commerce resulting from the erection of the batteries in the Simonoseki Straits.

The inconsiderable expenditure of money which was incurred by the United States in the naval operations which gave rise to the convention of 1864 is indicated in an official letter from the Secretary of the Navy to the Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives in 1872, from which it appears that four men were killed and seven wounded on board the Wyoming ; that $5,000 would cover the expense of repairing damages to that vessel ; that the estimated cost of ammunition expended was $5,169 ; that the chartered steamer Ta-Kiang cost less than $9,500 ; and that the cost of the ammunition used by her was about $260. The total cost in money to the United States was $19,929. It is worthy of remark that the fall in the price of coin and advance in the value of the securities purchased, since the time when the indemnity was received, are probably enough to enable the fund to bear the full amount of the charges indicated, and still permit the return of as many Mexican dollars (with interest added) as were received from Japan should Congress determine upon this policy. It is to be hoped that the matter will receive attention before the case becomes involved by any question connected with the receipt of the residue of the indemnity.

THE PACIFIC MAIL COMPANY AND THE RAILWAY COMPANY.

(NEW YORK TIMES.)

Shortly after the completion of the Pacific railroads across the continent in 1869, two contracts were entered into with the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. One of these was with the Central Pacific Railroad Company, regulating the China and Japan trade ; the other was with the Union Pacific, regulating the business between New York and San Francisco. The first contract came into operation in January, 1871, and seemed to work satisfactorily to both parties and the public until last year, when the management of the Pacific Mail Company changed, and a repudiation of the contract followed. The managers of the Pacific Mail Company claim that the contract was illegal, inasmuch as it was connected with procuring the subsidy from the Government to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, as appears from an alleged section in the agreement. as follows : "In consideration of the friendship and assistance of the Central Pacific Railroad Company in promoting the passage by Congress of an Act giving to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company increased compensation for a semi-monthly mail service between San Francisco and China, and providing such increase shall be made during the forty-first Congress or forty-second on terms acceptable to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, this contract shall be binding and shall continue in force during said semi-monthly contract between the Post-office Department and the Pacific Mail Steamship Company for such increased service."

The managers of the Central Pacific are very reticent as to what, if any, steps they will take against the Pacific Mail Company for the damages growing out of the violation of this contract. It is rumoured, however, that an action for $1,000,000 damages will be brought in the California Courts, and that an effort will be made to attach the vessels of the company. It is, however, extremely doubtful, in view of the nature of the contract, whether any such action will be taken. Under the second contract the Union Pacific guaranteed the Pacific Mail $24,000 per steamer on freight, on two steamers per month between New York and San Francisco. The late Horace F. Clarke, then President of the Union Pacific Railroad, believing this contract disadvantageous to the railroad, availed himself of one of the provisions contained therein, and terminated it. A litigation is now pending in the Courts between the Pacific Mail and Union Pacific in reference to this contract. Since the termination of these contracts a ruinous competition has sprung up, and all attempts at compromise and settlement have proved fruitless. Where the blame attaches it would be difficult to say, but certain it is that the stockholders of both companies are severe sufferers for the want of a little common sense and sound judgment. The latest phase of the controversy is a rumoured combination of no small magnitude, embracing the railroads between Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, and San Francisco, for a new and powerful line on the Pacific Ocean, to run exclusively in the interests of the railroads and their European connections. The name of Governor Leland Stanford, of California, has been prominently mentioned in connection with the contemplated enterprise. A Times reporter had an interview with Governor Stanford in regard to the matter at the Windsor Hotel. The Governor stated that he was not prepared at the moment to give to the press any specific information on the subject. The report that any negotiations were on foot between the Pacific Mail and the Central Pacific was without foundation. He believed that, until the establishment of an independent line of steamers, the railroads would be unable to command the China and Japan trade. An independent line was essential to the full development of the resources of the railroads. The execution of the project had been hastened by the action of the Pacific Mail Company in discriminating against freight carried over the Pacific railroads. In regard to the meetings alleged to have been held by the officers of the railroad companies he was not then prepared to say anything. If negotiations pending were successfully concluded, he thought it very likely that he (Governor Stanford) would visit Europe to make arrangements for the purchase of vessels. At present it was premature to say anything positive in relation to the affair.

In an interview subsequently had with Mr. Russell Sage, President of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, that gentleman expressed regret at the present competition between the Pacific Mail Company and the Pacific Railroads, which, he said, was injuring all parties. He claimed that the Pacific Mail Company were willing to do anything in reason to put an end to existing difficulties, but the efforts to induce the railroads to agree upon fair terms had proved abortive. The Pacific Mail Company had offered to make a contract, subject to revision at the expiration of three months, in case it was found not to work satisfactorily, but the offer was rejected. He attached little importance to the reports in regard to the establishment of a rival line. If the railroads attempted anything of the kind they could be at once enjoined for violation of their charters. It was quite likely, however, that Governor Stanford and others would try to establish a line in connection with the Pacific Railroad.

MR. WILLIAM HEPBURN RENNIE, C.M.G., Lieutenant-Governor of St. Vincent, died in the forty-sixth year of his age, at the residence of his father-in-law, in Surrey. Mr. Rennie entered the Colonial service in 1851, was appointed Auditor-General for Hong Kong in 1858, and Lieutenant-Governor of St. Vincent in 1871.

THE PRESENT CONDITION OF CHINKIANG.

IN our issue of June 29 we took occasion to comment on the folly of withdrawing a superior Consular official from Chinkiang, and we pointed out that the withdrawal was ordered in 1868 in the face of the fact that the port was gradually, but surely, increasing in importance. The remarks which we then made have been more than confirmed by recent advices from China; and though it has been the fashion with many, notwithstanding favourable trade statistics, to speak disparagingly of the port in question, we are still of opinion that it has been unjustly treated, and that it is high time for it to receive more attention in official quarters. Chinkiang of yore—nay, less than twenty years ago—was a place of great importance as a centre of trade, from which vast districts to the north and south of the great river were supplied with native and foreign goods; and its position at the very point where the Grand Canal crosses the Yang-tsze, if we may use such an expression, is for a river port an unrivalled one. The Taiping rebels captured and held the city for some time, and, we need hardly say, left it a mass of broken bricks, and after their disappearance its trade was for years frequently paralysed by threatened attacks from marauding bands of Nienfei on the north side of the river. What wonder, then, that its resuscitation has been a work of time? In 1864 and 1865 its appearance was wretched and woe-begone in the extreme, although even then a good trade was being done; but in ten years revivifying influences have had time to work, and they have worked, as will readily be seen from the following sketch of some of the improvements of recent years. The British Concession at Chinkiang is but a small one, comprising some sixteen or seventeen lots of irregular size. Six years ago it boasted but one foreign hong, an ugly building known as "———'s Folly;" and all the hulks were anchored on the north side of the Yang-tzse,—a matter which was always a bone of contention between foreigners and the Chinese authorities. Things are now changed, and changed considerably for the better. The chief American merchant and steamer agent, two years since, moved his hulk to the south side of the river,—a little below the creek at the Custom-house,—bought up all the property there, cleared it of the wretched native shanties, and built a two-storied house and godowns; he has also planted trees and actually laid out a garden. Concession Lot No. 1, a large, double lot, formerly belonging to Messrs. DENT and Co., was built over with semi-foreign houses four years ago. A British merchant has purchased lots 2 and 3, and on the former now stand two godowns with a dwelling-house above, and on the latter has been erected a fine dwelling-house, together with a godown, compradore's house, and other offices; the surrounding compound contains a lawn, trees, shrubs, strawberries, grapes, figs, &c. Three years back another British merchant built a two-storied house and godown on lot No. 5; "———'s Folly" stands as it was, and four other lots are built over, two on the middle, and two on the back roads of the Concession. Behind the Concession again, almost all the land, which but yesterday was a mass of shapeless ruins and broken bricks, is now covered with good brick Chinese houses, and is all occupied westwards even up to the lofty hill, on the southern side of which is perched the British Consulate. Clearly Chinkiang is prospering, and so much so that its old friends would hardly know it again.

But there is another side to this picture. For a year or two back the Chinese authorities have had it all their own way, as for some incomprehensible reason the British Consular officials ignore the Treaty, when the Chinese are stubborn, and refuse to do anything for British subjects; in point of fact, it is considered a serious loss to be a British subject. Title deeds for land, made out to foreigners, and stamped in due form by both the Chinese and British authorities, are ignored when native squatters choose to erect their houses on foreign-owned ground, and Chinkiang is subject to constant inroads from large numbers of squatters, many of whom are driven from their houses by floods in the districts to the north of the Yang-tsze. We will give but one instance of the manner in which the undoubted rights of British subjects are ignored. A British merchant purchased from a fellow-countryman a corner plot of ground at a short distance from the Concession, and some underlings in the officials' yamens have built upon the most valuable portion next the corner of the two streets; they refuse to move, and though one of the merchant's title deeds gives the boundaries on one side by West Gate-street, and on the other by Fish-lane, yet the junior Consular officer, charged with the duty of protecting and watching over British interests, declares that the appropriated piece of ground does not belong to him, because the Taoutai will not surrender it. Truly, this is a valid and indisputable reason! Surely it is time to put a stop to the disgraceful state of things at which we have thus briefly glanced, and it can only be put a stop to in the manner which we indicated in our previous article. Chinkiang, as far as British interests are concerned, has one great want in order to make it a thoroughly prosperous outport; it wants the presence of a Consul or a Vice-Consul of proved ability and energy, to enforce respect for the rights of property, and, as far as in his power lies, the fulfilment of treaty obligations generally.

THE INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF ORIENTALISTS.

THE philological transactions of the Congress reached their culminating point on Thursday, the 17th, when the Aryan Section, under the presidency of Professor MAX MULLER, held its sitting in the afternoon at the Royal Institution. The fame of the learned Professor brought together the largest meeting of the session, so that the commodious lecture room was nearly filled by an appreciative audience, among whom were some twenty ladies. Their expectations were not disappointed, and although the address occupied an hour and a quarter in delivery, the attention of every person was engrossed by the eloquent and trenchant passages it contained throughout to its peroration, their approbation being expressed by repeated plaudits. Without entering into the details of this brilliant address, it may be said that its chief attraction was the liberal-minded cosmopolitan spirit in which the leading features were couched. This was no dry discourse upon Sanscrit and the earliest Aryan languages, such as severe philologists would confine their studies of them to. Professor MULLER traced his theme back to the days of the Vedas, and placed before his audience a graphic sketch of the primitive nature of these hymns, showing that if they were rude in composition, as compared with the Psalms and other later religious stanzas, nevertheless they are vigorous in conception, from which may be inferred that the people who composed and sang them were among the worthiest progenitors of mankind. When he concluded by repeating his English translation of the latest known hymn of the Vedas, the imagination was carried back to Aryan antiquity as if restored again to life, and we could hear the priests and people singing to the praise of the gods:—"Come together! Speak together! Let your "minds be concordant. The gods, by being concordant, "receive their share one after another. Their word is the "same, their counsel is the same, their thoughts are at "one. I address to you the same word, I worship you "with the same sacrifice. Let your endeavour be the "same! Let your hearts be the same! Let your mind "be the same, that it may go well with you." Copies of this hymn from the Rig-Veda, in the original Sanscrit, with a translation in German, were distributed, but not in sufficient numbers.

Last, but not least in importance, the Ethnological Section, President, Professor OWEN, C.B., Secretary, RICHARD CULL, Esq., F.S.A., held their sitting on Saturday, in the Lecture-hall of the Royal Institution. There was a large attendance of members and their lady friends. Behind the lecturer's chair were diagrams and drawings, and on the table in front numerous photographs illustrative of the subject to be expounded in the address. From what followed that might be designated the Typical Races of Mankind in the Earliest Civilised Ages of Egypt. The learned Professor accounted for his appearance at the Congress of Orientalists—which he deemed almost apologetically beyond the sphere of his studies—to the desire of Dr. BIRCH, who was aware of some researches he had recently made in Egypt among the catacombs on the Nile. Modesty is proverbially said to be one of the true characteristics of great men, and in this instance there was no exception to the rule, for the President riveted the attention of his audience by the profound and masterly manner in which he treated his subject. An outline of its general scope will be found in another column, but we cannot pass it over without adverting to some of the photographs exhibited, and the accompanying explanations of Professor OWEN. These photographs were obtained after considerable difficulty during three separate visits to the tombs of the ancient Egyptians, where the coffins and wooden sculptures had not suffered from the vandalism of European collectors or Arab desecrators. They are of the ordinary cabinet size, yet the forms and features of the defunct as represented on the coffin lids in alto relievo, and statuettes, are as clearly defined as on any marble sculpture. Some of them are double figures, as those of husband and wife, while others represent male and female persons singly. On every sarcophagus there were hieroglyphic inscriptions in such a perfect state of preservation that the learned Professor had no difficulty in having them copied and deciphered, so as to ascertain who were the individuals embalmed in them, their status in primeval Egyptian society, and the ages in which they lived. These were all persons of rank, and the artists who had sculptured their features had evidently preserved exact likenesses of the deceased, as they varied considerably in detail, although generally exhibiting a high type of civilised mankind. Indeed, what struck the Professor was the remarkable similarity between the expression of their faces and those of highly intelligent Europeans of the present day. This statement was fully borne out by the photographs exhibited, which are marvellous in depicting these sculptures, and when the President informed the members by referring to a chronological diagram, that they dated from three thousand to four thousand years before the Christian era, one could not help looking at these effigies with a feeling of awe. One was specially referred to, as the likeness of a lady in the prime of womanhood, whose features must have been so thoroughly European in their mould that Professor OWEN remarked if she had lived at the present day, with the exception of a darker complexion, she could have appeared in English society of the highest type, as a rival to the belles of the ball-rooms. "Yet," he remarked, in his gravest manner, "she died nearly six thousand years ago."

On Friday, the fifth day of the gathering, the receptions and social entertainments al fresco reached their climax at Enfield, where a considerable number of members were invited by J. W. BOSANQUET, Esq., of Claymoor House, to a garden party. That gentleman is honorary treasurer of the Congress, and known as an able member of the Society of Biblical Archæology. He received his visitors with great cordiality, and entertained them within the venerable walls of his banquet hall in a most hospitable manner. Outside on the lawn the band of the 4th Middlesex Volunteers performed a selection of pieces in a most creditable manner. Besides members of the Congress, there were a number of the neighbouring gentry present, many ladies having graced the occasion with their presence, all of whom conversed freely with the learned savants. A toxopholite party, consisting of five ladies and five gentlemen, added to the Watteau-like scene on the bowling green, by competing for prizes in archery. These prizes were given by the host and hostess, and consisted of elegant articles of vértu. A photographer was on the grounds taking negatives of groups, so as to retain permanent portraits of the visitors on such an auspicious occasion, for which the clerk of the weather had provided a sunny day. The dinner at the Mansion House on Saturday, which is fully reported in another column, was well carried out by the LORD MAYOR.

WE have received two volumes, published by order of Mr. HART, the Inspector General of Chinese Maritime Customs, which cannot fail to prove very useful. One is a collection of port catalogues of the Chinese Customs collection at the Vienna Exhibition of 1873, compiled to illustrate the international exchange of products; and the other is a statistical statement of trade of the Treaty Ports for the last ten years, also compiled for the Vienna Exhibition. As reference was made to these books at the time they were first issued, we have only now to add that their arrangement under the present form is a great advantage. A special feature, however, in connection with them is the fact that they were printed at the Imperial Maritime Customs press at Shanghai, and the work of native compositors and printers. For excellence of workmanship they certainly would not suffer by comparison with the work of any of the best London printing-offices, and the care shown in their arrangement reflects great credit upon everyone concerned in their compilation.

IT is rumoured that the revenue cruisers on the China coast, several of which are most effective, well-built, and well-found twin screw gunboats, are to be transferred from the Customs' service to the provincial Government of Foochow. This step is taken, we presume, with a view to their employment in the case of active hostilities between China and Japan.

WE hear that Mr. EDWARD SOLBE, Interpreter in the Consular Service, and now on leave, has retired, owing to ill health. Mr. SOLBE joined the service in 1863. His pension will be calculated on the new scale of ten years' service, counting as fifteen for retirement.

A PARAGRAPH has appeared in the papers to the effect that Sir HARRY PARKES, our Minister in Japan, has been urging on the Japanese to war against China. We need hardly say that the statement is a pure invention without foundation.

CUSTOMS REPORT ON THE TRADE OF CHINA.

The Customs Gazette for the quarter ending March, 1874, supplies the following statistics of the trade at the various ports as compared with the corresponding period in 1873:—

NEWCHANG.—The tonnage figures show no alteration of importance. The imports and exports this quarter are nil.

CHEFOO.—The tonnage figures are rather higher. In imports cotton goods show a falling off, metals an advance, while many native sundries are also higher. The revenue is higher, the figures being this quarter Tls. 78,052, against Tls. 62,559 last year.

TIENTSIN.—The tonnage entered and cleared is more than in 1873, the figures being entered 17,694 tons, against 13,656 tons in last year, while that cleared is 15,763 tons, against 10,075 tons 1873. The import of cotton goods is lower, while that of most native sundries is higher. The revenue is higher, the figures being Tls. 45,530, against Tls. 36,477 in 1873.

HANKOW.—The tonnage figures, both "entered and cleared, are considerably higher. The imports of cotton goods is slightly lower, as is that of sundries. The revenue is Tls. 85,364, against Tls. 81,025 in 1873.

KIUKIANG.—The tonnage has increased. With the exception of metals and sundries, nearly all the imports are lower than in 1873, while the revenue is higher, the figures being Tls. 18,480 in 1874, and Tls. 14,514 in 1873.

CHINKIANG.—There is a slight increase in the tonnage figures, and a marked decline in the import of cotton goods. Native sundries show no particular alteration. The revenue shows a decrease, the figures being Tls. 20,450, as against Tls. 29,242 last year.

SHANGHAI.—The tonnage entered this quarter is 216,123 tons, as against 212,658 tons in 1873; while the cleared is 221,754 tons, against 211,008 tons last year. The imports of cotton goods are higher, as a rule. The other items show no marked alteration, although native sundries are rather lower. The exports are nearly all higher. The revenue figures are Tls. 656,482, as against Tls. 649,910 last year.

NINGPO.—The tonnage figures are lower than those of last year. The imports, as a rule, are are lower. The revenue figures are under those of last year.

FOOCHOW.—There is scarcely any difference in the tonnage figures. The imports are higher, as a rule, opium proving an exception. The exports are nearly all higher. The revenue figures are, 1874, Tls. 161,348, against Tls. 135,454 in 1873.

TAMSUI (FORMOSA).—The tonnage shows a large falling off. The import of cotton goods is lower, that of woollen, however, is higher. The revenue is behind that of 1873.

TAKOW (FORMOSA).—The tonnage figures are higher. The imports and exports show an increase, and the revenue is in excess of last year.

AMOY.—The tonnage figures are below those of last year. The imports show no very great change, and the revenue figures are Tls. 87,831, as against Tls. 94,085 in 1873.

SWATOW.—The tonnage is higher, and the imports show a decided increase. Many of the exports are higher, while the revenue shows an increase, the figures this year being Tls. 146,876, as against Tls. 117,971 last year.

CANTON.—The tonnage entered is 70,864 tons, against 50,003 tons last year, while that cleared is 72 645 tons, against 52,867 tons. The imports are not altered to any extent. The exports are rather lower, as is the revenue, the figures being Tls. 157,091, against Tls. 168,645.

INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF ORIENTALISTS.

SATURDAY, 19TH.

At ten o'clock the members assembled at the South Kensington Museum, where they were received by Mr. Cunliffe Owen, the director, and other gentlemen officially connected with the institution. From the Museum they repaired to the Albert Hall, in the gallery of which Dr. Leitner gave a learned and eloquent exposition of the collections, which occupied four large cases, and which comprised nearly five thousand objects illustrative of the art, natural history, literature, and numismatology of Western and Central Asia and Northern India. These collections had been partly exhibited at the Vienna Universal Exhibition of 1873, and had there been regarded with much interest; and may be classified as (1), a collection of Greco-Buddhistic, Indo-Scythian, ancient Hindu, and other sculptures; (2), a collection of manuscripts, Persian, Turki, Arabic, Sanskrit, Thibetan, Kashmiri, and other languages; (3), a miscellaneous collection, illustrative of mining, quarrying, metallurgy, agriculture, horticulture, forestry, raw products for pharmacy, substances of food as products of industry, textile industry and clothing, leather industry, metal industry, wood, stone, glass, and earthernware industry, small ware and fancy goods, graphic arts and industrial drawing, and art applied to religion; and (4), a collection of Lhassa, Ladaki, Balti, and Dardu curiosities, and of articles of industry from Yarkand, Khotan, Bokhara, Kafiristan in the Hindu-Kush, and other districts. Amongst the Kashmiri manuscripts, the first, it is believed, which have ever been brought to Europe, occur "Hassan Makash: a Treatise on Love," by the Kashmiri Ahmad Baba; "Sikander Nama, or Life of Alexander," a Kashmiri poem, written by Pandit Ram Lachman; a poem on the subject of Joseph and Zuleika (wife of Pharaoh); together with "The Patience of Saints," the first Kashmiri specimen translated into English by Dr. Leitner, and called "Dastan Shibli; or, Story of Shibli, one of the patient Saints." The numismatic collection consisted of about 1,000 coins—Bactrian, Parthian, Arsacian, Kashmiri, Indo-Muhammadan, Kufic, and others—in gold, silver, and copper; and the natural history collection comprised between three and four thousand Himalayan butterflies and beetles (Kulu, Dharmsala, &c., &c.). The sculptures, to the number of 184, represented religious, social, and historical scenes, architectural forms, statues of Bhudda and his disciples, and of the protectors of his religion, and fell under the heads of (1) Græco-Buddhistic, which showed the influence of, presumably, Greek art in the representation of early and pure Buddhism; (2) Indo-Bactrian (closely connected with the foregoing) which showed the relations of the Bactrian satraps with either Buddhist or other north Indian princes; (3) Indo-Scythian; (4) Ancient Hindu, such as the Sati figure, representing the poetical conception of the burning of widows; (5) Indo-Buddhistic, as showing the gradual corruption of Buddhism by re-absorption into Brahminical forms; and (6) Barbaric. These sculptures elucidated a period of from 300 B.C. to A.D. 800; and their study would throw much light not only on ancient Indian history, but also on the history of art and religion, and on universal history, whilst the variety of types found on the Græco-Buddhistic carvings possessed great ethnological importance. The material of which the sculptures were made was various, but consisted chiefly of slate, mortar, lime, and red sandstone. Various specimens were indicated to show that if ancient Buddhistic and Indian had been affected at all by foreign elements, it could only have been by the Greek at, and a few centuries after, the invasion of Alexander the Great. On the frontier of the Punjab Greek art was strongest in India. As we went south this influence grew weaker. Bizarre and grotesque imitations of Greek tradition, and want of knowledge of proportion, characterised the productions of each successive century. The simple halo became converted into the seven-headed serpent; serpents became hideous dragons; arms, eyes, and feet multiplied on the human body; drapery ceded to ornament, and, except in the richness and arrangement of colours, as well as in the minuteness of elaborate carving and tracing (re-invigorated by Mohammedan influences), a period of degeneracy in art was foreseen, which, unfortunately, the present state only too completely fulfilled. It will be seen that Dr. Leitner's exposition of his collections, presenting as they did an epitome of the ethnography of immense regions of the East, formed a very important extra-sectional department of the Ethnological Section, which met in the afternoon in the theatre of the Royal Institution under the presidency of Professor Owen, C.B., F.R.S.; Mr. R. Cull, F.S.A., acting as secretary.

ETHNOLOGICAL SECTION.

Professor Owen, after a graceful deprecation of his claims to occupy the position of President of the Ethnological Section of the Congress, proceeded briefly to allude to the more important contributions to ethnology by French, German, and Russian authors. The scientific staff attached to the expedition in Central Asia had enriched the "Transactions of the Imperial Academy of Sciences of St. Petersburg, with a succession of philological contributions, especially on Finnish dialects, which made those volumes a mine of wealth for the ethnological student. A like association of the peaceful conquests of science with those of war characterised the British Career in India; and in illustration of contributions to the physical elements of ethnology the President pointed to the five quarto volumes of photographic illustrations, with descriptions, of the various castes, outcasts, traders, artisans, soldiers, outlaws, and primitive hill tribes of Hindustan, issued by the India-office, under the editorial care of Sir John William Kaye and Dr. Forbes Watson. To Dr. Mowatt, when in the Indian service, Professor Owen had first been indebted for the materials of a "Report" on the natives of the Andaman Islands, published by the British Association in 1861. The language of that dwarf Nigrito race had been well studied by Mr. Homfray; and additional information had been recorded by other scientific Indian officers, as by Surgeon Francis Day and the lamented P. Stoliczka. In a brief summary of present knowledge of the Nigrito and Papuan tribes, the President laid stress upon the geological and collateral evidences of their origin on land tracts related in time to recent geological changes, and to a period vastly remote in relation to historical time. Their interest to the ethnologist lay in their retention of many of the characteristics of some pre-historic races in Europe. The Nigritos of the Andamans, like those of New Guinea, waged an unmitigated, uncompromising hostility by force and fraud to invaders, and such a disposition was comparable to that which the brute species in the wild state bore to man. These Nigritos seemed to realise instinctively their fate through contact with a higher race. The men amongst them girt the abdomen against pangs of hunger with a flexile tendril; but in other respects they showed a quite prelapsarian, or quadrumanous, unconsciousness of nakedness. The President proceeded to summarise the observations on which he founded a recommendation to ethnologists to pause before concluding that the present disposition of land and sea was necessarily associated with the origin of such low forms of humanity, and to admit the possibility, if not the probability, of its contemporaneity with the latest geological changes on the earth's surface.

He then passed to the consideration of the origin, antiquity, and race-characters of the first scientifically-known civilised people. This part of the discourse was illustrated by a diagram of the dynasties and reigns of Egyptian kings, and enlarged views from photographs of portrait sculptures of individuals of the third and fourth dynasties, of a Hyksos-Pharaoh of the sixteenth dynasty, of a monarch of the twentieth dynasty, of the native race after the expulsion of the "Shepherd Kings," and of Pharaoh's of the Greek race, including one of Cleopatra which, from the circumstances of its discovery, supported the belief of its being a true likeness of that queen. The physiognomies of the race that founded the civilisation of ancient Egypt were supplied by numerous statues, of which the noblest was that of Cephren, the Phra, or Pharaoh of the fourth dynasty, who built the second of the great pyramids of Ghizeh. Photographs of this statue were exhibited; the refined, intellectual face, with its calm and dignity, was worthy of a modern typical European, whilst the anatomy of the frame was as true as if from the chisel of a Michael Angelo. According to the "table" exhibited, this king lived 4,200 years B.C. The sculptor worked 2,000 years before the time of Phidias. What was the period of incubation reaching to such perfection in both the creative and mechanical parts of that noblest of the arts! From the best testimonies bearing on the chronology of Manetho, the President inferred that, if the Sebbenyte priest had erred, it was by omission, rather than commission; and he expressed his conviction that the chronology set forth in the "diagram" bed squared with the sum of scientific evidence on this important question. In the present palæontological evidence of the antiquity of the human race, 7,000 years seemed but a brief period to be allotted to the earliest civilised and administratively-governed community; it seemed natural that such conditions should first have arisen in a land with such unique blessedness of soil and climate as Egypt, and with the high racial characters of the people flourishing under its ante-diluvian Pharaohs. The question as to the origin of this race was then discussed; followed by remarks on the evidence of the periods required for the origin of the leading varieties of the human species. Some remarks on the evidences of the respective antiquity of Egyptian and Chaldean civilisation followed, and the President concluded by appealing to his fellow Orientalists to cast aside pre-possessions as to time, place, affinity, race, for which there might not be a groundwork of rightly-observed, well-determined data, and to bring to bear on the dark vistas of the past the pure daylight of science.

Several papers which had been prepared by members of the Congress were, owing to the pressure on the time of the section, taken as read. One of the most important of the papers thus offered to the section was that by Dr. Forbes Watson, reporter on the products of India and keeper of the India Museum, "On the Establishment, in connection with the India Museum and Library, of an Indian Institute for Lecture, Inquiry, and Teaching; and on its Influence on the Promotion of Oriental Studies in England, on the Progress of Higher Education among the Natives of India, and on the Training of Candidates for the Civil Service of India." Dr. Watson has published a pamphlet on the subject.

The other papers were:—"On the Most Ancient Chinese Palæography," by Professor Leon de Rosny; "On Pasigraphy," by Herr Bachmaier, Director of the Munich Gallery, inventor of the system. Pasigraphy is the system of universal writing by means of numbers, which do duty for words, the same numbers standing for the corresponding words in all languages. Dr. Bachmaier, through the pro-President of the Section, presented 300 copies of each of three Pasi-graphical Dictionaries, German, French, and English, to Congress for distribution among the members.

Professor Oppert then returned thanks for the kind reception which he and all foreign members had experienced, and the notice which had been given by the Press and the scientific world of London in general.

The last business of the Congress was the selection of the place of meeting for next year, and, on the recommendation of the Council, Russia was fixed on, although not by a unanimous vote. Comte Woronzoff Dashkow was nominated President, with an acting committee, consisting of W. W. Grigorieff, Professor of Oriental History and Dean of the Faculty of Oriental Languages in the University of St. Petersburg; K. P. Patkanoff (an eminent Armenian scholar) and D. A. Chwolson (a distinguished Hebrew and Arabic linguist), both Professors of the same Faculty (the only one known throughout Russia for Asiatic Languages and Sciences), and H. A. Kuhn, who is charged with the explanation of antiquites in Central Asia. Thus closed the London meeting of the International Congress of Orientalists.

BANQUET AT THE MANSION-HOUSE.

In the evening the Lord Mayor entertained the members at dinner at the Mansion-house; the guests numbering about 130. A novel interest was given to the Banqueting-hall by the appearance of many of the guests from Oriental countries in native or official costume; but this portion of the company, though the scene was to many perfectly new, appeared quite at home at the table in the Egyptian-hall. Among the guests were—His Royal Highness Prince Charles of Roumania, his Holiness the Patriarch of Syria, the Syrian Bishop of Jerusalem, Professor Leon de Rosny, Dr. Samuel Birch, Sir Bartle Frere, General Sir H. Rawlinson, Professor and Mrs. Max Muller, Sir Walter Elliot, Mr. Grant Duff, M.P., Professor Owen, Professor Lepsius, Mr. J. Winter Jones, Sir J. P. Grant, General Marriott, his Excellency Brugsch Bey, Baron Texter de Ravisi, Professor Andreas, Mr. E. Arnold, Mr. F. J. Angier, Professor Brockhaus, Mr. Joseph Bonomi, Colonel Tobin Bush, Professor Chwolson, Rev. R. Caldwell, Mr. Moncure D. Conway, Mr. Alderman Allen, Mr. Alderman Cotton, M.P., Mr. W. R. Cooper, Mr. Cernuschi, Mr. Alexander H. Grant, Mr. Manockjee Cursetjee, Professor Dillman, Mr. Drach, Professor and Mrs. Douglas, Mr. E. B. Eastwick, Professor Feer, Professor Ebers, Professor Eisenlohr, Dr. Eutin, Mrs. Edelman, Mr. James Fergusson, Mr. Finn, Mr. Cyril Graham, Professor Grigorief, Professor Gosche, Colonel Seton Guthrie, Don. C. Guyanauos, Mr. Greed, Dr. and Mdme. Hans, Professor Haug, Professor Houdas, Professor Hunfalvy, Mr. J. Henderson, Dr. De Koun, Professor Krehl, Professor Leone Levi, Dr. Lieblein, Dr. Leitner, Professor Lupton, Professor Merx, Rev. J. B. McCaul, Rev. D. S. M'Clean, Mr. James P. Allen, Mr. J. T. Platts, Professor Noldcke, Professor Oppert, Professor Pertch, Mr. P. le Page Renouf, Mr. Rassam, Rev. J. M. Rodwell, Shunker Punderung, Professor Spiegel, Professor Stenzler, Dr. Ludwig Stern, Sir M. Coomara Swamy, Professor Dr. Schrader, Major Wilson, Professor Wright, Professor Dr. Wustenfeld, Professor Weber, Professor Weil, Professor Dr. Windisch, Imamura (Japanese delegate), Mr. and Mrs. Davenport.

After the completion of the ceremony of presenting each guest to the Lord Mayor, Sir Andrew Lusk, Bart., and the Lady Mayoress, the company proceeded to the Egyptian Hall and took their seats, grace being said by the Chaplain. The dinner, which was supplied by Messrs. Ring and Brymer, commenced with the far-famed aldermanic "turtle soup."

After the banquet the loving cup passed round, the guests having very soon acquired, by observation and through friendly explanation, the necessary information on the subject. During the banquet the band of the Coldstream Guards played several pieces; and during the evening Miss Leonora Braham, Mr. Ker Gedge, Mr. Warwick Jordan, Mrs. Bae, and Mr. R. De Lacy sang a selection of part music, Miss Braham giving, in addition, two or three solos.

The Lord Mayor, in proposing the first toast, said,—In this ancient City, after dinner, on occasions like the present, we give expression to our kind thoughts and feelings in a few short complimentary sentiments; and we first of all invariably drink to the health of her Gracious Majesty our Sovereign. (Cheers.) I have no hesitation in saying to the distinguished and learned strangers present that we are proud of our Queen. (Renewed cheers.) She is a most exemplary and most constitutional Sovereign. The purity of her life the simplicity of her tastes, and the practice of so many social virtues endear her to the people of this fortunate and free land. I hope that you gentlemen from abroad will always respect her as much as we Englishmen love her. In the response to the toast the foreign guests joined with the English ones with marked cordiality.

In giving the next toast, "The Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," his lordship said he was certain that if the Prince had been in this country during that week he would have manifested an interest in the proceedings of the Congress of Orientalists; adding that they all knew that the attainments of the English Royal Family as linguists were of no mean order, and the Prince of Wales was no exception to the rule.

The Lord Mayor, in then proposing "Prosperity to the International Congress of Orientalists," said:—Many great and distinguished persons have dined in this old hall, but I question if, having regard to our numbers, so many eminent and learned men ever met together in this historic place at one time as do this evening---men not only remarkable in England, but in Europe, nay, in the world. I verily believe that since the day when that great and motley assemblage gathered together at the building of the Tower of Babel, and got confounded, there has been no gathering where in so small a place so many languages could be heard and spoken at one time. I am proud to have the opportunity of entertaining such a distinguished company. I ought to be so, for it is as remarkable for its ability as it is distinguished for its learning. I am the nominal representative of the greatest community that the world has ever yet seen, Babylon and Nineveh included; I represent a shrewd, an'active, and an intelligent people, able to appreciate, from learning and experience, any progress of thought or knowledge that may come in their way. They and I hail with pleasure the presence of the Congress of Orientals in London at this time, and in our City language, I, in the name of these citizens "bid you a hearty welcome." (Cheers.) Now, permit me to say that people are continually asking me, "Who and what is the Congress or Orientalists?" Well, I tell them, and I think it is good advice, read your newspapers regularly every morning and evening and you will understand. I believe, and I shall be put right if wrong, that this learned body tries not to bring about confusion but harmony among the peoples of the world. They try to learn and teach us what has been in the past, particularly in that interesting quarter of the globe called the East—yes, the very place whence the fountains of civilisation began to spring, whence so many blessings have flowed to the West. The questions they discuss are interesting not only to London but to all mankind, wherever progress, art, science, and knowledge have obtained a footing. I know that some of these questions touch our old and our cherished opinions; but we are ready to hear, and expect to be confirmed more and more by their discussion in the truth. Now, I should like to talk a long time about learned men and their works, for I do like and admire them. They are the lights set on the hill of the world to guide us; they are the fountains whence flow the waters from which we receive refreshment. But you did not come here this evening to hear me speak, but to see or to listen to some

"Orient pearls at random strung."

You came to listen to some of those great men who illuminate this age. I am going to call on Professor Leon de Rosny to reply to this toast. He is a great French scholar; he is a Japanese scholar; he is the author of several books on that people and their language; and, moreover, he is Professor in the School of Oriental Languages at Paris.

Professor Leon de Rosny, who replied in French, thanked the Lord Mayor for the interest he had manifested in the labours of the Oriental Congress. In the course of his remarks, the speaker paid a high complement to England for her investigations and discoveries in the East, and also for the manner in which she had disseminated the benefits of civilisation in Asia. He added, in conclusion, that he should always have a grateful recollection of the cordial welcome which he and his colleagues had met with.

The Lord Mayor then gave "The Health of the Members of the present International Congress of Orientalists," as follows:—I have, in speaking of the International Congress of Orientalists, referred chiefly to the past—to its aims and objects. I now ask you to drink to the health of the members of the present Congress, that which has been so usefully labouring in London during this week. Its members have called our attention to many questions that will cause us to think and consider—for with all our faults we are a thinking people—not only of Shem, Ham, and Japhet, but of the works of their successors—our fathers. I myself prefer to claim relationship to them rather than to those fellows with rough mouths, tender eyes, and prehensile appendages behind, which abound in the woods and forests of Africa and other places. (Laughter.) With this toast I am going to couple, first, the name of Dr. Birch, President of the Congress—a gentleman who has not only shown his aptitude in organising in relation to this Congress, but has also shown his great learning and abilsts in that inaugural address which he delivered the other day. He is well known from his many labours in various branches of archæology. He is one of the first Egyptian scholars in this country, and he is also president of the Society of Biblical Archæology. The French Government, I see by this day's paper, have conferred on him a great honour. I shall ask also Professor Lepsius to respond. We are glad to see among us one who is a privy councillor of Prussia as well as the editor of many well-known and learned works on Oriental subjects, and, moreover, one of the delegates sent over by the German Government to this Congress to represent it. We are likewise glad to see here Shunker Pundurung, a learned Pundit of the Deccan College, delegated by the Indian Government to attend the Congress. I have not much learning myself, but, then, my experience has led me to have great sympathy and veneration for those who are learned, which, perhaps, answers me as well. My esteem is always on the side of a great man who gives his time and ability for the public good, even though I differ from him. I am one of those who like to inquire, and, in the words of the learned professor the other day, want to know whence we came, where we are, and whither we go. It is the duty of a Lord Mayor to be charitable, to be just and to be hospitable. If I have this evening been the means of cheering any pilgrim, helping in the smallest degree the cause of sound thought, of wisdom, and of science, I have had an ample reward. (Cheers.)

Dr. Samuel Birch, who responded first, said the success of the present Congress had been most gratifiying to the English members, who had experienced the great pleasure of meeting and seeing for the first time those distinguished Orientalists who had come to this country to be present on the occasion. It should never be forgotten that the revival of Oriental learning commenced in the City of London, and that the princely munificence with which the late East India Company encouraged the efforts of their talented servants in their researches led the way in that development of the knowledge of Oriental languages which was now witnessed in Europe. He thanked the Lord Mayor, in the name of the Congress, for the kind reception he had given it, and for the hospitality they were then enjoying.

Professor Dr. Lepsius responded in English as follows:—My Lord, Ladies, and Gentlemen: I feel it a great honour to be called upon as one of the representatives of the present members of the Congress; but certainly the honour to respond to the toast which has been proposed is much greater than is my power to do it justice before so illustrious an assembly. In fact, I am not able to make a speech in your own language worthy of this spot and of this moment. May I, therefore, be allowed to express in a few words the warmest thanks of myself and of my countrymen for the very gracious reception and the hearty welcome which we have found in this country on this occasion? All Orientalists in Germany know that they owe more to England than to any other country for their studies. England possesses all the treasures of the East in a quite inexhaustible abundance of monuments, books, inscriptions, and all other materials for Oriental studies. England has, and ever will have, the greatest power in the East; it knows the way how to secure every part of the East to study Oriental languages and nations on the spot. We have to follow in this respect the footsteps of England. Our point of departure to the East lies in the West. For this reason it is very natural that we have come over from Germany in a greater number than was perhaps anticipated, because we are in general not a travelling people as you are, and because our learned men prefer to stay at home and to quietly work amidst our books, which we obtain from all the world. We came on the occasion of the International Congress to bring you personally our thanks and our acknowledgments for all you have done for Oriental studies. And now let me state that not only have many individuals come over to shake hands with their Oriental friends, whose labours and works they knew long before, but a great part of them were sent expressly by our German Governments, as your lordship has already stated. Almost every German university is represented here by one or several of our best Oriental scholars sent over as official representatives by their respective Governments. Now, all science is more or less historical, the science of nature not excepted. Science is the answer, or at least the attempt to answer, the old commandment, "Know yourself," directed not only to every individual, but to all mankind. We are occupied with ourselves in every study. But Oriental studies have this important position, that they are connected with the languages and nations of the oldest countries of the civilised world. The Indian languages are, if not the origin, at least the key, of our own European languages. The Semitic people ascend much higher in their history and chronology. The Egyptian people will always be the oldest which we know historically in its proper seat; we trace it back to more than 5,000 years with the monuments in our hands. But beyond these three great branches, which were particularly privileged in human civilisation, there is the much older common Arabian, of what is called the Turanian nations and languages. Now this peculiar and important position of the Oriental sciences which takes every day a greater extent in Germany, is also acknowledged by the German Governments as of great importance. The proof is in their sending out so great a number of learned men, and I think it is a pleasing instance of their encouraging these studies, not only for us, but for all Oriental scholars. Now they will hear with satisfaction how well their intentions were taken up, not only by our fellow-labourers in this country, but also by such a high and noble authority as your lordship, the representative of English hospitality, of English love of science, and of the peaceful advancement of general cultivation of the human mind. (Cheers.)

Shunker Punduring, who also spoke in English, and with a pure accent, in completing the response to the toast, after speaking of the brotherly feeling shown by the English nation towards India in the subscriptions to the Bengal Famine Fund, remarked that the natives of India were not only connected with those of England as members of the same empire, participating in the benefit of the benign rule of Her Majesty the Queen, but also connected with them by ties much closer —the ties of blood. They were members of the same Aryan family as the natives of this country; and he was sure he expressed the sense of that distinguished assembly when he said that one reason why the International Oriental Congress was entitled to that encouragement which the people of this country had accorded to it was, that the labours of the illustrious scholars that adorned its roll tended to demonstrate that we are all brothers of the same family, though separated by distance, colour, and creed.

Sir Bartle Frere, in proposing "The Health of the Lord Mayor," said: There is probably no chief magistrate in the world, in times ancient or modern, whose health I might have proposed who would not have found here some representative to respond for him in his own language. Had I proposed the health of an ancient Pharaoh, Dr. Birch or Professor Lepsius would have been able to do full honour to it in hieroglyphical language; had I, again, proposed the health of Sennacherib or Nebuchadnezzar, I am certain Sir Henry Rawlinson would have replied in the best Assyrian; and had I gone further East, and proposed the health of King Rama, Professor Max Müller, or some of the many Sanscrit friends I see around me, would have done honour to the toast in the best Sanscrit. And so with Chinese, Persian, and every other language which could be possibly named. But I doubt whether any of us could have proposed a toast which would be so unanimously well received as "The Health of the Lord Mayor." (Cheers.) Sir Bartle concluded by remarking that his lordship had only just returned from a visit to the country, and that even at that period of the year he would not forego the pleasure of entertaining, though with short notice, the representatives of ancient literature assembled from different parts of the world. (Cheers.)

The Lord Mayor, after responding, said he was now going to propose a toast which all would heartily receive, namely, "The Health of the Patriarch of Syria," who was a high ecclesiastic of the East and a landmark of the past, being the head of a Christian Church founded by St. Peter in the house of Cornelius, as they would find by reference to the Acts of the Apostles, and therefore the head of the oldest Christian Church in the world. The Patriarch had previously fraternised with the head of our own Church, who received him kindly, and now he had fraternised with the Lord Mayor of London, who was very pleased to see him.

The Patriarch of Syria responded with great earnestness of manner in his native tongue, his address being afterwards translated to the company by Mr. E. T. Rogers, late Consul at Cairo. This gentleman said that the Patriarch had commenced his speech by expressing his thankfulness to God for having conducted him, at his advanced age, to this wonderful country of England. He proceeded to say that he was immensely surprised by the grandeur of everything he had seen here, by the knowledge, by the solidity, and by the hospitality of the people. He had been very much impressed by the learning of the people, so many of them knowing how to read and write. All this, and the riches of the people, he attributed to the beneficence of the good constitutional Government under which the English people were existing. At the same time he deplored the fact that the learning now seen in the West, though it formerly existed, had now almost disappeared in the East. He hoped, however, that through the kindness of European Governments there the sciences once in their glory in the East might be restored to the East, whence they originally came. He considered himself highly honoured by having been received at the Mansion-house, and by having met so large a concourse of Oriental savans from all the nations of the world, and he begged that they would all accept his thanks for the way in which he had been received. (Cheers.)

The Lord Mayor next gave "The Presidents of the Sections of the Congress," combined with the names of Sir Henry Rawlinson, Mr. Grant Duff, and Professor Max Muller, speaking of the last-named as a gentleman and a scholar with whose works they were all familiar, and who was deservedly looked up to as an authority on Eastern matters.

Sir Henry Rawlinson, in responding, said he was proud of having been selected as one of a triad in a hall representing so much Oriental learning, and observed that it was the close connection of the English people with the East which had caused such a practical nation, which felt that it was now a semi-Oriental nation, to take such interest in the Oriental Congress. He went on to say that there was one point which had not been noticed, and which was deserving of notice. None of those assembled there had passed literary lives without having given or received various hard blows—(hear, hear)—but personal intercourse softened the asperity of literary controversy, and he believed that gentlemen who had been opposed to each other in literary subjects would find, on making acquaintance with their antagonists, that though they might differ with them on certain matters, still they were gentlemen and scholars, and in their future controversies would adopt towards each other a more kindly tone from having met at that festive board. (Hear, hear.) That might be a mere social advantage, but it was one of the great advantages of bringing large bodies of scholars and Orientalists together, as was done on that occasion.

Mr. Grant Duff, M.P., in acknowledging the toast, observed that he might say a good deal with regard to his working connection with India in the House of Commons, and on several other subjects; but, as it was then late, he would not stand longer between them and his distinguished colleague the President of the Aryan Section, who, after having received so pointed a challenge from the Lord Mayor, would, he doubted not, prove that he could make himself intelligible on that occasion, and that he could make as good an after-dinner speech as he made the other day a presidential address.

Professor Max Müller said—I rise as representative of the Aryans to return thanks in the name of my section for the splendid and truly princely and truly Oriental hospitality with which you, my Lord Mayor, have honoured our Congress. (Cheers.) You mentioned to-night, my lord, that hospitality in the East is a sacred duty. It is recognised as such in the Veda and in the laws of Manoo. A man who comes to your house is to be received with hospitality, and should he go away from your house disappointed, he carries away the blessings which you may have accumulated during many years by good works. In the West, hospitality is no longer a sacred duty; but it has become a valued duty and virtue, and in England most particularly it is a predominant element in the English character. (Hear.) My lord, when we compare the East and the West, we find on both sides the duties which hospitality entails. In the laws of Manoo, so far as I remember, there are four things which are enjoined in the hospitality a man is to show. He is to supply a piece of ground to sit upon, a bundle of hay to sleep on, some water to wash the feet, and kindly and affectionate speech. Comparing the West with the East, we have not seen to-night a bundle of hay, nor have we received water to wash our feet; but we have received a place to sit down upon, and kindly and affectionate speech; and, gentlemen, we have received something else. On its being proposed that the meeting of Orientalists from all parts of the world should take place in London in the second week of September we were politely told we were mad, every one being away shooting or sea bathing. I know, however, that when London is empty it contains more inhabitants than the whole of the Kingdom of Saxony, and I felt certain that men would be found who would give up a week's shooting or sea bathing in order to meet some of the most distinguished scholars from all parts of the world. In that expectation I have not been deceived. Sir Henry Rawlinson, Sir Bartle Frere, Dr. Hooker, and Mr. Bosanquet have all done whatever they could to maintain the reputation of the Government of the Indian Councils and of our royal and literary societies for the old noted English hospitality. Besides, gentlemen, I knew who was Lord Mayor. (Cheers.) I felt perfectly certain he would not let it be said that what every small or big burgomaster of Continental cities has done for this meeting, the greatest burgomaster in the world, the Lord Mayor of London, whose power, wealth, and reputation have assumed in the eyes of Continentals almost mythical proportions, had allowed this meeting to be ignored in the City of London. I am far from saying, my Lord Mayor, that we have any right to expect this princely hospitality, but I am able to say that we Orientals have certain claims upon you, my Lord Mayor. The learned professor proceeded to analyse the legend of Dick Whittington and his cat. The word "cat" was, he remarked, derived from "acat," or "achet," all that was bought and sold, and the English Whittington story came from a similar legend existing in the works of a famous Eastern historian living in the beginning of the 14th century; so that the Whittington head of the Lord Mayor dynasty had an eastern origin, and on that ground he claimed the Lord Mayor as an Orientalist. (Laughter.) He knew, however, that there were sceptics in the world —and he was afraid some were present—men who shook their heads, and did not believe in the explanations which comparative mythology and Oriental scholarship offered to them; but notwithstanding such objections he confidently claimed the Lord Mayor as an Oriental. (Laughter.) After that truly Eastern banquet, which would hereafter be a one thousand and second "Arabian Night," he would be remembered, not only by Orientals, but by the whole world, as a truly hospitable, truly magnificent, and truly Oriental Lord Mayor of London. (Cheers.)

Prince Charles of Roumania, who spoke in French, proposed "The Health of the Lady Mayoress;" and, in doing so, expressed the pleasure which he felt at being in London during the session of the Congress, and in sharing the hospitality of the Lord Mayor. The Lord Mayor briefly returned thanks, and the company then retired.

CASUALTIES.

Advices from Cape Town, 25th Aug., state that the Emma (Dutch barque), Deckerlin, from Newcastle to Batavia, put into Simon's Bay, 16th, for repairs to bulwarks and rudder-head, having encountered a gale, 2nd, off Tristan d'Acunha.

MANILA.—[Singapore, Sept. 21, 4 P.M.]—The Ida (barque), from Saigon to Zebu, with rice, has been totally lost on the coast of Mactan; all hands saved.

The Cleta, Whyte, which arrived at San Francisco, 1st Sept., from Bangkok, reports having encountered a gale from the E. on the 22nd July, in lat. 33 N., lon. 127 E., lasting three days, during which she shipped large quantities of water, and had cabin flooded and cargo shifted.

Bertie, barque, Singapore to Liverpool, has put back, having struck on a sunken rock or reef in Gaspar Straits 11th Sept. She will discharge for repairs.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Telegrams from Shanghai state that the damage to the Estepona (str.) was much more extensive than was originally inferred from the report of the divers at Nagasaki.

The Gordon Castle left Lisbon on 21st; all well. Total disbursements, £4,500.

A telegram from Shanghai states that the Union (French barque) cannot be got off, and is to be sold as she lies.

At TABLE BAY, AUG. 17.—Her Royal Highness, King, and sailed for Galle.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

Malay Peninsula.—Malacca Strait.—North and South Sands.—Alteration in Light at One Fathom Bank.—The Master Attendant of Singapore has given notice that on the 15th day of May, 1874, the following alteration was made in the light at One Fathom Bank, viz.:—The light-vessel moored off One Fathom Bank was removed, and that from a screw iron pile light tower which has been placed on the bank in fifteen feet water, half a mile S. by E. from the position previously occupied by the light-vessel, a light was exhibited. The light is a revolving white light attaining its greatest brilliancy every minute; it is elevated sixty-one feet above the level of the sea, and in clear weather should be seen from a distance of thirteen miles. The light tower is painted in belts of red and slate colour. Position, lat. 2 deg. 52 min. 8 secs. N., lon. 100 deg. 59 min. 2 secs. E. A red buoy is moored in fourteen feet at the north end of One Fathom bank.—Hydrographic Office, Admiralty, Sept., 1874.

SHIPPING DUES IN PORTUGESE COLONIES.—The Board of Trade have received a despatch from Her Majesty's Chargé d' Affaires at Lisbon, transmitting a copy of a Royal Decree issued by the Portuguese Government fixing the amount of sanitary dues and fees payable by ships anchoring or performing quarantine in any port of the Portuguese Colonies in Africa, and at Macao and Timor.

Messrs. John Elder and Co. have launched from their shipbuilding yard at Fairfield, Govan, an iron paddle steamer of 3,590 tons B.M., and 300-horse power nominal. Her dimensions are—length between perpendiculars, 300 feet; breadth moulded, fifty feet; breadth over sponson, eighty-three feet; depth moulded, thirteen feet. She is named the Chusan, and has been built to the order of Messrs. Baring Brothers and Co., of London, for the S.S.N. Co., and is intended for service on the Yang-tsze.

THE steamer building at Aberdeen by Messrs. Hall, Russell, and Co. for the line of Messrs. Russell and Sturgis, Manila, will be ready to launch in about six weeks. The one building for the same firm at the yard of Messrs. A. and J. Inglis, on Clyde, is also in a forward state.

HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION.

EIGHTEENTH REPORT of the COURT OF DIRECTORS to the ordinary HALF-YEARLY GENERAL MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS, held at the CITY HALL, HONG KONG, on WEDNESDAY, the 19th August, 1874.

The Directors have now to submit a general Statement of the affairs of the Corporation, and Balance Sheet for the half-year ending 30th June last.

The net profits for that period, including $26,290.53 brought forward from last account, after paying all charges and deducting interest paid and due, amount to $130,484.02, of which, after taking out Rebate on Bills not yet due, and Remuneration to Directors, there remains a balance of $116,042.19.

The Directors regret that on this occasion they cannot recommend the payment of any Dividend to the Shareholders, for, not only has the result of the half year's working been very unsatisfactory, but they are sorry to have to announce that heavy losses have been incurred, and, to provide for them in the fullest possible manner, no less a sum than $334,000 will be required. This sum they propose to provide by withdrawing $225,000 from the Reserve Fund, and by appropriating $109,000 of the available balance of Profit, which will leave $7,042.19 to be carried to the credit of New Account.

The Directors regret further to tell the Shareholders that the position of some other accounts in the Bank's books has become such, that provision may have to be made for losses on them in the future, and they seize upon the present opportunity to state, that although there may be losses on these accounts, they will not, in the worst possible event, exceed $275,000, while at the same time only a portion of that amount may be required. In any case, whether all or any part of the amount is required, it will be chargeable to the Reserve Fund, leaving the future profits of the Bank available for Dividend and for gradually again making up the Reserve Fund to One Million of Dollars.

The small profits made during the past half-year are attributable to the very adverse turn taken by the Exchanges almost at the opening of the export season in China, to the unremunerative nature of Banking business in China and Japan during the six months, and to the prolonged dulness in trade generally in the East.

Though, in consequence of a combination of unfortunate circumstances, the Bank has been unsuccessfully worked during the past six months and suffered severe and some totally unexpected losses, the Directors consider its general position is quite unimpaired, and when trade in China and Japan reverts to its former healthy state, they see no reason why the Bank should not be as successful in the future as it is known to have been in the past.

MARINE INSURANCE ACCOUNT.

There is a balance of $26,069.43 at the credit of this account, the accumulation of three years, during which period the Bank has taken a risk on each of its treasure shipments by first class steamers—to the extent of, at first $20,000, but now $30,000. The Directors look to the account becoming very remunerative in the course of time.

DIRECTORS.

Mr. Wm. Lemann has resigned his seat at the Board, and Mr. H. Hoppius has been elected in his stead.

Hong Kong, 12th August, 1874. W. H. FORBES, Chairman.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

AND PILLS.—SECURITY AGAINST BAD HEALTH.—With damp, dull days of Autumn maladies are made manifest unless the blood be pure and the skin active. Eruptions, blotches, and more formidable skin affections may be successfully subjugated by the use of Holloway's detergent Ointment, aided by moderate doses of his purifying Pills. Hoarseness, sore throat, chronic cough, enlarged glands, and stiff neck will be at once relieved by rubbing this cooling Ointment upon the skin overlaying or adjacent to the afflicted parts. Rheumatism and its allied ailments, which, when once contracted, were wont to torture to the end of life, can now be readily and completely cured by using these resistless remedies.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present French mail brings advices from this port to the 12th August; and by the Pacific mail we have two days later news, viz., to the 14th August; the French mail from London, 19th June, arrived out on the 4th August, and the following P. and O. mail of 26th June was received on the 11th August. The advices have been to a great extent anticipated by the copious telegram which appeared in our issue of the 21st ult.

The Japan Herald says, we are still without any news from Formosa, and the China papers state that the Japanese remain there inactive, whilst China (according to the same source) is biding her time, and is determined not to strike until she can do so with irresistible force. Knowing by old experience with European nations the advantages of a small but well-drilled and well-armed body over an undisciplined mob, she has resolved not to risk an attack until she is in every way prepared. Meanwhile the Japanese are evidently uncomfortable at the prospect before them. We mentioned in our last that Mr. Le Gendre had been sent to China to attempt to negotiate a settlement of the affair. It however appears that even the talents of that gentleman, added to those of Yanagiwara, the regularly accredited Envoy, are thought to be unequal to the emergency, for Okubo, the Minister of Finance (who is thought to be one of the ablest men in the present Government), left here by the last steamer en route to China, on a special mission, accompanied by M. Boissonade, a French legist attached to the Shihosho, who is to act as adviser. In connection with Mr. Le Gendre we may mention that a telegram received here states that he was arrested at Amoy by marines from a U.S. gunboat. There has not as yet been time to receive letters in confirmation of this intelligence. It has also transpired that the Japanese Government despatched one of the foreign employés of the navy under an assumed name to China to collect intelligence as to the strength of the Chinese fleet, &c. Meanwhile, reinforcements are being forwarded from Nagasaki to the support of the expedition.

The following items of intelligence are from the Japan Mail:—

The attitude of the Japanese and Chinese Governments with reference to the Formosa question is, so far as we are able to learn, unchanged, although the activity exhibited by the former in the purchase of ships, arms, and munitions of war would seem to indicate the possibility of a final resort to a warlike solution of the difficulty. It is to be hoped, however, that an arrangement, fair to the Government of this country and honourable to both, may result from the mission of Okubo, who has proceeded to China with the view of conducting negotiations at Peking.

Passports are now issued by the Japanese Government for persons who for purposes of health or business may require them, on the demand of the representatives of the different nationalities. Foreigners in Japanese employ are subject to the same restrictions as other foreigners.

The American Consulate of Yokohama has been raised to a Consulate-General. General T. Van Buren has been commissioned to the post by his Goverment, and Mr. Mitchell, who for several months past has discharged the Consular duties with much ability and credit, has returned to the office of Vice-Consul, which he had previously occupied.

The line of telegraph between Awomori and Yedo is rapidly approaching completion, and before the fine season closes it is hoped that the deep-sea cable will have been laid across the Straits of Tsugar. The laying of a third line of wire to Nagasaki is also nearly completed.

General Myers and Colonel Lyford, of the United States army, have been presented to the Mikado by Mr. Bingham, and have delivered the presents which the President had forwarded for his Royal Highness.

The following Ministers have been promoted to the rank of Sangi:—Kuroda Kiyotaka, Chief of the Kaitakushi Department; Yamagata Aritaki, War Minister; and Ijichi Masuharu, the Chief of Sa-In.

A considerable reduction in the rates for telegrams to Europe has been recently made by Messrs. Reuter and Co. and the Oriental Telegram Company; ten words can now be sent for $20.

The past fortnight has been unusually cool. The hill country in the vicinity of Yokohama has been visited with heavy rains, and some fears are entertained for the safety of the crops.

Mr. Morris Jenks, charged with having a gambling establishment at No. 38, Water-street, has been fined by Mr. Mitchell in the sum of $500, the extreme penalty according to statute.

H. B. M. ships Iron Duke, Midge, Ringdove and Mosquito left Nagasaki on the 6th August for Vladiwostock.

HIOGO-OSAKA.

Our advices extend to the 17th August; the P. and O. mail from London June 26 arrived out on the 16th August.

The statistics of trade for the six months ending June 30th, 1874, compiled by the Hiogo and Osaka Chamber of Commerce, show the value of the deliveries of goods as compared with stocks last half-year to be as follows:—Grey Shirtings delivered this half, $448,774; stock last half, $357,369. T-Cloths, $19,776, against $2,987. Cotton Yarn, $199,226, against $174,054. Mousselines de Laine, $293,480, against $290,610. Lustres and Orleans, $293,480, against $290,610. Sugar, $59,477, against $105,615. Sundries, $427,426, against $594,115.

Several rumours (says the Hiogo News) having been afloat during the last few days as to travelling in the interior—one of them we think went the length of saying that "the country was open"—it may be as well to state what is really the case. It has been arranged, then, that anyone wishing to take a jaunt beyond Treaty limits for health or pleasure may apply to his Consul, when the application will be forwarded to his Minister, with the Consul's opinion endorsed on it. The Minister will then in due course issue a pass if he see no sufficient reason for refusing it. It will thus be seen that this concession is all very well—though accompanied with cumbersome details—as far as it goes, but that the main question of the opening of the country to foreigners is scarcely touched by it.

The Municipal Council has held its regular monthly meeting, when Mr. Annesley was elected President, in place of Mr. Gower.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 16th August; no later mail from London had arrived out, but the French mail of 3rd July was expected the day this mail left. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald:—

Local news has been scarce during the week, and floating rumours of complications between China and Japan, arising out of the Formosa Expedition, have engaged a great deal of attention. The P. M. S. S. New York has been purchased by the Japanese Government for $240,000. The property on the Pootung side known as Lindsay's Wharf has also been sold to the Japanese for Tls. 10,000. It will probably be used by Government vessels as a naval yard.

We hear that the "Takee" property, on which the present General Hospital stands, has been bought by Messrs. Butterfield and Swire. The price is reported as $190,000, and the brokerage on the transaction is said to have been something handsome. Apropos of the sale, we hear also that the lot of land immediately beyond the S. S. N. lower wharf, Hongkew, is likely to be the site of the new hospital.

A meeting of subscribers to the Shanghai Library has been held, to consider the report of the committee appointed to solicit pecuniary aid from the Recreation Fund. The report stated that the trustees of the Recreation Fund could not grant the required assistance, and resolutions were therefore passed to the effect that unless a larger number of subscribers were obtained, or subscriptions raised in some other way, the library must cease to exist and the books be sold. The Rev. Canon Butcher and Dr. Macgowan, however, took a more hopeful view of the matter, and believed this long-established institution to be capable of complete resuscitation and enhanced utility. The residents generally are to be canvassed in that hope.

A serious case of wounding with a knife happened on the 7th August, the sufferer being Sergeant Bird, of the English Municipal Police, and the assailant a man named Hanssen, formerly a member of the same force, but now serving on board the United States gunvessel Monocacy. Notice had been given that Hanssen and others of the crew were absent without leave on the night named, and Sergeant Bird and P. C. Jensen were looking out for them, having a warrant for their apprehension. They traced Hanssen and another man to several places, and at length Bird endeavoured to apprehend the prisoner, Jensen having left him to go for a French constable, as they could not execute the warrant on the French side. They had a tussle together, and both fell, when Bird felt a numbing sensation in his left wrist and arm, and saw blood flowing in a stream from his wrist. Hanssen got up and ran away again, and Bird, wrapping a handkerchief round his wrist, got into a jinricksho, and hastened to the Central Police Station, where he had no sooner arrived than he fainted from loss of blood. Dr. Henderson and Dr. Johnson were sent for, and it was found that Bird's wrist was so deeply cut across the inner side that the main artery was severed, and there had been great probability of his bleeding to death. The artery was, however, successfully taken up, and the wound dressed, but it is doubtful if the hand will ever again be serviceable. The prisoner was captured and taken before Mr. Bradford, at the U.S. Consulate-general. He was remanded until the wounded man is able to appear against him.

The S.S.N. steamer Hupeh has arrived late from Ningpo, having been detained by running on the Blockhouse spit. The mishap we understand was occasioned by the difficulty of determining the position when running on a dark night between the lightship and the Woosung light, with only the Kintoan beacon abeam to steer by, while the tidal current influences the course of the vessel, and the lead forms but an uncertain guide. It has been suggested that a light where the Blockhouse buoy is placed would be an improvement on the present arrangement in running up to Woosung. The Hupeh held the spit for some six hours, till the tide rose, when she backed off and proceeded. While on the shoal, a movement of the vessel caused her rudder to strike the ground, and the wheel flying round with a jerk, hit a Chinaman who was in charge of it. The man's arm was also caught in the rotating wheel and broken in four places. The doctor of the M.M. str. Sindh was fortunately on board as a passenger, and attended to the man's injuries. The force of the jerk, we are informed, snapped the rods uniting the rudder quadrant to the rudder, on the passenger deck, and the steamer had afterwards to be steered from the cargo deck. The Customs' steamer Kuahsing brought up the passengers to Woosung, whence they reached Shanghai in the launch of the Telegraph Company's steamer Joseph Dodds, the captain of which readily and courteously acceded to a request preferred by Mr. O. B. Bradford, one of their number. The Hupeh got up the same evening.

We hear that the Chinese authorities at Foochow have accorded permission to the Great Northern Telegraph Company, under certain restrictions, to erect a landline between Foochow and Amoy, a distance of about 130 miles. We have not heard details of the concession, but we believe the Formosan affair has urged the Chinese to the step, and that though the line is to be mainly for commercial purposes, special facilities for official business are to be given.

The proposal to found a lodge of Good Templars in Shanghai has been met with such lukewarmness by the chiefs of the local Temperance Society, that only four signatures are as yet attached to the petition, and at least ten petitioners being required by the rules of the Order, the proposal remains in abeyance.

A Chinese bumboatman has been drowned by falling from the gangway of the U.S.S. Monocacy. His boat it appears was not the one which regularly supplied the ship, but he had been on board offering his wares for sale, and was leaving the ship, when from some unexplained cause he fell into the water and never rose again. The man's mother came to the U.S. Consulate short afterwards and claimed redress, alleging that blame attached to some one on the ship.

It is stated that on his last visit to Ningpo, the Futai, or provincial governor, of Chekiang, ordered an inspection of the Chinhai forts, and expressed great anxiety to have them put in a thoroughly efficient state of repair. Bomb-proof chambers and other means for strengthening them were also suggested, but the means were not forthcoming for the work, which seems likely, therefore, to stop short at cleaning and clearing up the existing fortifications. It must be satisfactory to the Imperial Government, with the prospect of a war on its seaboard, to have the assurance of the same high functionary that he was well satisfied, on his late tour of military inspection, with the efficiency of the troops in the good old Chinese formulas of land and water drill. But the surprising thing is, that we should find the Chinese reporting on the satisfactoriness of their own system, and at the same time anxiously endeavouring to get their forces on a foreign war footing.

The brig Laughing Wave, from Freemantle, which has arrived here, with a cargo of sandalwood, reports that, on weighing anchor on the 9th August, six miles inside the Lightship, she hooked and brought to the surface sixty fathoms of telegraph cable, which it is supposed must have been stolen and afterwards dropped into the water again to prevent detection. The Laughing Wave brought the wire to Shanghai. It is of seventeen strands and one inch in diameter.

A court-martial has been held on board H.M.S. Iron Duke, at Nagasaki, to try the sailmaker of H.M.S. Thistle, for being absent from his ship without leave, and also for refusing to work under the orders of the boatswain. For the double offence he was sentenced to nine months' hard labour at Hong Kong.

One of the escort men of the British Legation at Peking, named Quarry, met with a fatal accident on the 28th July. He had been attempting to shoot foxes in the Legation grounds, and fired at a black cat, taking it for one. Finding that he had only wounded the animal, it is thought he incautiously struck at it with the butt of his gun, when the second barrel went off and the contents lodged in his heart. The body of the unfortunate man was only discovered next morning, lying near the mound.

A correspondent writes from Newchwang on 5th August that "there seems no doubt the trade between Korea and China has been resumed as formerly, though it is doubtful how long it will last. The policy of the present Government of Korea is likely to lead, also, to a friendly intercourse with the Roman Catholic Missionaries, who are very sanguine about it."

An alligator has been caught in the Yangtsze, opposite Chinkiang. The alligator appears to have drifted down with the stream until opposite the Consular Bluff, when it was caught by the up current and floated up to the hulk of the S. S. N. Co. Here Mr. R. Talbot Williams espied it, and getting together some of his boatmen, gave chase in a gig. The noose of a rope was made fast to his tail, when he immediately dived, but being caught up with a round turn, came again to the surface, and made strenuous efforts to burst his bonds. But all was in vain, and the prize was dragged ashore in triumph. From the tip of its nose to the extremity of the tail it measures six feet four inches, and its weight is close on 200 lbs. It was placed in a small artificial pond in the American Consulate, where it lies apparently contented, for it makes no effort to escape.

The purchase of ten Armstrong guns of 120 lbs. calibre, with 200 rounds of shot and shell to match, on behalf of the Chinese Government, is reported as having taken place here. The price is variously stated at $100,000 and Tls. 100,000.

FOOCHOW.

The subjoined items of news from this port are from the Foochow Herald:—

The negotiations for erecting a telegraphic wire between this port and Amoy have been finally settled. By the steamer Nanzing, from Shanghai, the arrival is noted of V. Hoffmeyer, Esq., the chief electrician of the Great Northern Telegraph Company. He has been busily engaged with the native authorities in arranging the preliminaries of what it is hoped shortly to record as an accomplished fact. This gentleman has been ably assisted by Mr. Delano, U.S. Consul at this port. He will start overland for Amoy shortly, with a view to making a survey for the proposed land line of telegraph to the above-named port, and will be accompanied by Mr. Henningsen, of the Great Northern Telegraph Company, and also by a number of Mandarins and soldiers. The construction of the line will, it is understood, be commenced at once.

We understand that an investigation has been held at H.B.M.'s Vice-Consulate, Pagoda Anchorage, into the mutinous conduct of the crew of the British ship Undine, whilst on her voyage from the Colonies. We have not as yet received a copy of the finding of the Court.

The Buddhist monastery of Kushan is at present, and has been for some time past, the pleasant resort of a number of Christian missionaries, anxious, no doubt, to convert the Buddhist Fathers, by precept, as well as by example.

The Chinese Government are inviting tenders for the purchase of large quantities of gunpowder, and it is rumoured that the Arsenal will be re-opened very shortly.

H. B. M.'s gunboat Kestrel left for Tamsui on the 11th August.

FORMOSA.

The Japanese Expedition.

The Foochow Herald states that it is authentically informed that the Japanese fleet lately cruising in Formosan waters have disappeared for the present, but there still remains a force of about 3,000 Japanese troops on the island. We can but conjecture that the ships have gone to Japan for reinforcements. Pending the results of the diplomatic interviews between the Chinese and the Japanese officials at Peking, the entire expedition may be said to be in abeyance. The surmise has been hazarded that, if war ensue, the Japanese, with their usual astuteness, may leave their small army in Formosa, securely posted by this time no doubt, to divert the celestial hosts, and turn their attention to the mainland, the coasts of which will have been drained of effective soldiery! We believe it is a fact that they have been large buyers lately of charts of the Yangtsze and the Coast waters of China. The Chinese, on the other hand, have been restricting their inquiries to charts of Formosa. There can be no doubt that if the countries come into collision at an early date China will be badly off, with her present naval and military disorganisation.

From Chinkiang we learn that preparations were being proceeded with there for the embarkation of troops for Formosa. From 10,000 to 20,000 Chinese troops are reported to have reached Tsing-kiang-pu, above Yangchow, on their way via the Grand Canal to Chinkiang, where it is expected part of them will embark on board the transports now lying there, and proceed to Formosa. A correspondent writes:—I am credibly informed that fully 20,000 men from Li Hung Chang's camp at Pao-ting-fu and its neighbourhood are on their way here, and that they will shortly be sent South. There are four Chinese steam-gunboats and the screw-steamer Aden here, waiting their arrival. The renowned Admiral of the Yangtsze, P'eng Yu-lin, is here now, and on dit he is also bound Formosa-wards. I have just heard, however, that he has left for Peking.

A correspondent of the Hong Kong Daily Press writes as follows under date, Taku, 13th Augut:—

Nothing whatever is going on at Lang-kiaou. Such at least is all that the corvettes and gun-vessels—British, Russian, and Chinese—that have been running up and down the coast and haunting the Pescadores can learn. The weather here, indeed, for some time past has not been fit for operations of any kind, and would have put a stop to anything that might have been intended. The Chinese have not done much more than the Japanese. They have armed a fort at Anping with a few old eighteen-pounders, and have landed a large battery of Krupp guns, which they have stored away in Taiwanfoo. There is no sign yet of the soldiers from the mainland. I am glad to say that those destined for Takoa will only be brought down here if it becomes necessary to defend the port. Till then they are to be stationed about three miles inland, where they will have a little more room to breathe. A camp is already being prepared for them under the superintendence of Mr. H. O. Brown.

A party of savage chiefs from Pelam, a place or tract on the East Coast, have been disporting themselves at Taiwanfoo. They have come, or have been brought, for the purpose of acknowledging in some way their allegiance to China. And I believe that they have given most satisfactory assurances of their loyalty and fidelity. Ever since the first arrival of the Japanese, whether from fear or from hope of receiving presents, the savages seem one and all, with the exception of the Bawtans, to have been only too anxious to Ko-tow to, swear obedience to, or join in alliance with, anyone who asked them. But I should think that there was equally little chance of their professions being sincere, or their promises lasting. The Pelam chiefs wore a mixture of Chinese and savage dress, and were resplendent with barbaric ornaments, leopard skins, scarlet embroidery, and the like. One or two of them even had infantine pigtails under cultivation at the back of their heads, appearing incongruous enough by the side of their savage finery.

HONG KONG.

HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION.

(Daily Press.)

The ordinary half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the above Corporation was held at the City Hall, Hong Kong, on Aug. 19. Present: Mr. W. H. Forbes (chairman), Hon. R. Rowett, Messrs. E. R. The Chairman, having read the notice calling the meeting, said the report had been in the hands of the shareholders for several days, and he thought it was not necessary for him to read it. Before he asked them to accept it, however, he wished to make a few remarks:—

The Chairman then said: Gentlemen,—I am in a less fortunate position than my predecessors in this chair, as on this occasion I have to present you with an unsatisfactory report, but I hope the next time we meet that it may be my pleasant duty to reverse the situation, and announce the welcome news of a fair if not a handsome dividend. Our misfortunes during the past six months may be said to have commenced with the famine in India, which caused a sudden advance in exchange of 6 to 7 per cent., which did not result satisfactorily to the Bank on the whole. In addition to this the demand for money has been small, owing to the general contraction in trade. In Shanghai, too, our anticipations of high exchanges this season were not realised, though at one time the tightness of the money market there looked as if our opinion would be verified, but you are all aware of the collapse that took place in that market almost before large shipments of produce began, and in consequence much of our money, laid in at comparatively high rates, had to be remitted at a considerable loss. Such an unfortunate event is not likely to occur again. Furthermore, in Japan we met with a similar unexpected result in an operation that had heretofore proved remunerative to the Bank. In the early part of the year the Japanese metallic currency is usually cheap and forms a good investment, and acting upon our past experience we bought a considerable amount of this currency, expecting to realise a good profit upon it about May or June, but the Japanese Government entirely upset our calculations by making large issues of paper currency—so that the result of our operations was anything but satisfactory. It may be as well to state that the present manager in Yokohama is in no way responsible for this transaction. All these matters combined have caused our small profits, and are not likely again to occur. We now come to the losses, which, as already stated in the report, have been very severe, and some of them wholly unexpected. I may mention here that not one of the losses now provided for was known at the date of our last meeting. Unfortunately they have all come upon us since. The most severe comes to us from London. Our manager there had, on his own responsibility and without our knowledge or consent, made some considerable transactions in bonds and securities outside of English and Indian Government paper, and the result has been a heavy loss. We have considered it advisable and best in your interest to provide fully for this loss, though we do not accept it on account of the Bank, and in the meantime we have asked for explanations. It is possible a portion of the loss may be recovered.—Sugar Refinery.—I have now to speak of the Sugar Refinery. We thought we had already fully provided for all deficiencies on this account prior to our last meeting, but unfortunately severe losses have occurred in some shipments of sugar to California and Australia, which were made before the Chinese began to buy the produce of the Refinery so freely. These we thought had already been fully provided for, but the several markets have become still more unfavourable, and a further deficiency upon our last valuations had to be made good. This estimated deficiency has now been provided, and, as it may be some satisfaction to shareholders to see how the account with the Refinery stands at present, a statement of it will be open to inspection in the chief manager's office for a few days. It may interest you all to known that the Refinery continues to work satisfactorily, nearly all the sugar manufactured being taken by Chinese at prices which leave a fair profit. The present position of the Refinery, we think, fully warrants us in the belief that it can either be sold at our valuation or that, when better times come round, a company can be formed to take the place over.—The Pier and Godown.—This account also fully provided for. We have tried to sell the property, but nobody would come forward and pay anything like a fair price for it. However, we have made arrangements, subject to the approval of Government, for leasing the property, and we hope it may eventually lead to its sale.—Sterling Bills, &c. —We have sustained some losses on sterling bills and also on account of some failures in England and China, but these have also been provided for in the fullest possible manner; and indeed so careful have we been in this respect that it is quite likely that a portion of our estimated losses may be recovered.—Possible Losses.—The last item calling for remark from me is the further possible losses, which will not in the worst event exceed $275,000, as stated in the report, and may not be so much. Whatever it is, however, it will be charged to the reserve fund. The account to which we chiefly refer is that of the Indo-Chinese Sugar Company. This company has been worked unsuccessfully in the past, the result of one misfortune after another, but now that all its calls have been made, and most of the good ones paid up, we think it is time to inform you of the possible loss that may be sustained by it. In the event of the company working unsuccessfully for another season, we shall be obliged to call upon it to refund our advances, which it will probably be unable to do. We have had our own special agent at the company's factory during the past season, and on his recommendation the place is being put into first-class condition at small expense. He has given us his opinion that with good management he sees no reason why the property should not be profitably worked, and should this opinion be realised by next season's working, we may yet suffer no loss on this account. I hope, therefore, at our next meeting to be able to remove our present apprehensions in regard to this account. You will notice a new feature in the Bank statement, the Marine Insurance account, which on the 30th June last was $26,000 to the good, and is gradually increasing. Gentlemen, before resuming my seat, I would add that you need have no fear for the future of the Bank. The directors give their most careful attention to your interests, and I don't think there is a staff in any establishment who have the interests of their employers more at heart than ours. We have been unfortunate during the past half-year, but such a combination of misfortunes is not likely to occur again, and your directors are confident that better times must soon return, when no doubt this Corporation will show as good reports as in the past. There is no reason whatever for our shares being so low, for at the very worst there is still half the reserve fund left, and this alone is equal to 10 per cent. on the capital, without taking into consideration at all the excellent constituency and first-rate business connection of the Bank, which is certainly worth a great deal more. However, this is a matter for you to decide for yourselves, though I am certain with better times our shares will rapidly advance in value. (Applause.) I shall be happy to answer any questions that the shareholders may wish to ask.

None of the shareholders asked any questions.

The Chairman moved that the report and statement of accounts be passed. Mr. Burrows seconded, and it was carried unanimously. Mr. Rowett said he had much pleasure in proposing the confirmation of the election of the new member of the Board, Mr. Hoppius. Mr. Belilios seconded, and it was carried unanimously.

Mr. Pyke: In anticipation of my departure from China I beg to tender my resignation as a member of the Board from this day. Mr. W. Morgan begged to move that Mr. Pyke's resignation be not accepted, as he was one of the best men on the Board. (Laughter.)

The Chairman then said that concluded the business. He hoped that the next time they met they would be more fortunate, and that the directors would be able to hand the shareholders a better report. (Applause.)

The meeting then terminated.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 29th August; the P. and O. mail from London 24th July was received on the 23rd August, and the following French mail of July 31 on the 29th August. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times:—

At the Executive Council, held on the 27th August, an inquiry was commenced into the condition of the public service. This inquiry has been appointed by the Governor, to investigate the relation of the different office-bearers under Government to their offices, and to afford an opportunity for the substantiation of any charges of maladministration on their part of which evidence may be tendered. The Council is an open one, to which the public will be admitted during the taking of evidence, and the days of sitting will be duly notified.

Captain Walshe, police magistrate, is about to go home on six months' leave of absence. It is reported that his place will be filled, at least for the present, by Mr. C. B. Waller, in which case Mr. Hayward will continue in his acting appointment as superintendent of police at Malacca.

A meeting of the Tanjong Pagar Dock Company, Limited, was held on the 25th August, Hon. T. Scott in the chair. The following shareholders were present:—H. W. Wood, Esq., R. I. Harper, Esq., J. R. MacArthur, Esq., T. Cuthbertson, Esq., W. Mulholland, Esq., F. C. Bishop, Esq., G. J. Mansfield, Esq., J. Brinkmann, Esq., C. Wilkinson, Esq., M. F. D'Souza, Esq., J. Meldrum, Esq., M. Suhl, Esq., C. Glinz, Esq., F. Armstrong, Esq., H. Buchanan, Esq., R. O. Bryce, Esq., T. C. Bogaardt, Esq., H. T. Powell, Esq., J. C. F. George, Esq., T. S. Thomson, Esq., Hon. T. Shelford.

The Chairman read the minutes of the extraordinary general meeting of shareholders held on the 10th January last, and of the twentieth ordinary general meeting held on the 23rd day of February, 1874, both of which were confirmed. With reference to the absence of the Chairman from the general meeting of the 23rd February, it was explained that it arose from his having met with a severe accident the previous day.

The circular and advertisement calling this meeting having been read, the directors' report, balance-sheet, and profit and loss account to the 30th June, 1874, having been the prescribed time in the hands of the shareholders, were taken as read.

It was then proposed by the Chairman,

Seconded by H. W. Wood, Esq.,

That the directors' report and accounts as now presented be passed. To this an amendment was proposed by H. T. Powell, Esq., seconded by G. J. Mansfield, Esq.

That the directors' report and accounts, as now presented, be adopted, with the exception that the words "an ad interim dividend of 4 per cent." be expunged, and the words "a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum" be substituted.

The amendment being put to the vote resulted in a show of hands, for the amendment 10, against it 10.

The chairman gave his casting vote against the amendment.

A poll was then demanded by five shareholders, and on votes being taken, 152 votes were recorded for the amendment, and 331 against it. The Chairman then declared the amendment as lost.

It was then proposed by the Chairman,

Seconded by M. Suhl, Esq.,

That an ad interim dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. for the half-year ending 30th June last be declared.

On a show of hands the Chairman declared the proposition carried.

It was then proposed by H. W. Wood, Esq.,

Seconded by R. I. Harper, Esq.,

That it being considered desirable to construct a new graving dock, the directors be empowered to take such steps as may be necessary to ascertain the cost of such a work.

A Shareholder objected to the proposition, on the ground that there was no necessity for another dock. After discussion, the question being put to the vote, showed, for 9, against 33. The Chairman then declared the resolution carried.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman and directors for their exertions in the interests of the company.

A correspondent in Malacca, under date 25th Aug., says:—

The Hon. Captain Shaw, Lieutenant-Governor, embarked on board the Pluto on Monday, the 17th Aug. (under the salute due to his rank, and a guard of honour of H.M.'s 110th Regiment), for the various Malay States which are in a disturbed condition at present. The Pluto returned to this port with the Lieutenant-Governor, leaving Mr. Isemonger, Sergeant Kiernan, two native corporals, and forty-three constables at Linghy or Langkat. She proceeded on to Singapore the same night, taking on there the Hon. the Lieutenant-Governor, and returned to Malacca with the same official.

A large boa constrictor has been brought into town from the country districts. It measured about twenty feet, was purchased by a Chinese eating-house keeper, and cut up, and its flesh (which is considered a delicacy among the Macao Chinese) sold at the rate of thirteen cents per catty.

EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—After issue of last report, the business in Tea continuing active, prices became more buoyant, and a perceptible advance ensued on classes most in demand, viz., medium to good medium grades. Settlements during the fortnight had amounted to piculs 9,500, against arrivals for same period of barely half that amount; parcels coming in consisted mostly of medium to good medium, with a few lots of lower grades very common in leaf. Choice parcels continued scarce, and were firmly held. The P.M. Str. Japan, on the 3rd Aug., carried from this port—For New York, 253,190 lbs., and for San Francisco, 34,550 lbs. The ship John Rennie had sailed with 103,328 lbs. for San Francisco. The Tartar (str.), previously advertised for New York, had been withdrawn from the berth. Quotations :—Common, $25 to 27 per picul; good common, $29 to 31 per picul; medium, $32 to 35 per picul; good medium, $36 to 38 per picul; fine, $40 to 42 per picul; finest, $45 to 48 per picul; choice, $50 per picul. Export from 1st May to date—4,933,574 lbs., against 2,923,593 lbs. in corresponding period last season.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—Business had continued on an active scale. The market during the month had fluctuated considerably, and for a day or two after the departure of the mail steamer of the 27th July showed a decline of $2 to 3, chiefly owing to absence of buyers, but quickly advanced again, and at the close was firm at quotations. Settlements for the month were reported at 9,100 piculs, and stocks were about 2,500 piculs. Settlements for the season to date 28,450 piculs, against 10,775 piculs for the same period last year. By the mail steamers of the 27th July and 8th Aug. 381,646 lbs. went forward. The present mail steamer took 160 tons direct for America. The Ambassador was loading for New York, via Yokohama, at £3 10s. Quotations: Common $22 to 25, good common $27 to 29, medium $31 to 34, good medium $36 to 37, fine $39 to 41, finest $43 to 46.

SHANGHAI.—Black: There had again been an active business in Congou, but with heavy arrivals teamen had been willing sellers at rather cheaper rates, some chops showing a decline of Tl. 1 per picul. Stock, 40,500 chests; settlements, 26,708 chests. Prices paid :—Oopacks, &c., Tls. 21 to 24; Hohows and Ningchows, Tls. 18¾ to 34; Oonams and Oonfaas, Tls. 16 to 23¾. Green: There had been more doing in Teenkais, and all good chops were firm, medium qualities having sold rather cheaper. Some purchases of Pingsuey had been made at Tl. 1 under last mail's rates. Settlements :—Teenkai and Fychows, 29,987 half-chests at Tls. 25½ to 45¼; Pingsueys, 8,957 half-chests at Tls. 25 to 40; Shanghai packed, 79 half-chests, at Tls. 40; total, 39,023 half-chests. Stock, 53,000 half-chests. Export to Great Britain to date (exclusive of lost cargoes) :—

FOOCHOW.—Telegrams had been received during the week advising the arrival of the Braemar Castle, s.s., and sales of new Teas out of her. Business had been on a reduced scale, and the market closed very quiet; buying had been both for England and the Colonies. Large arrivals of third crop Teas were expected. Congou: Settlements had been 17,350 chests at Tls. 5.2 to 23, and Tls. 27 for two lots of boxes. The bulk of the business has been in good common to flavoury kinds at former rates, though in some instances better value was noticeable. Transactions had been principally on Australian and Continental account. Arrivals during the week, 20,500 chests. Current quotations:—Exchange, 4s. 2¾d.; freight, £3 per ton of 40 cubic feet. Dust and siftings, 6¼d. to 7¾d.; broken leaf to common, 8¼d. to 11¼d.; fair to good common, 11¾d. to 1s. 1d.; flavoury to medium, 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 4d.; good medium to fine, 1s. 4½d. to 1s. 7d.; fine, 1s. 7½d. Souchong: Settlements, 1,300 chests at Tls. 18¼ to 34. Prices showed no change. Arrivals, 2,300 chests. Oolong: Settlements, 700 half-chests at Tls. 17 to 22½ for fair to superior cargo. Musters of fine chops had been shown, but teamen were asking extreme rates. Arrivals, 8,000 half-chests. Scented Teas: Settlements, 7,600 boxes at Tls. 20¼ to 31 for Orange Pekoe, and Tls. 19½ to 31 for Caper, medium kinds being rather easier. Arrivals, 14,000 boxes. Flowery Pekoe: Settlements, 150 chests at Tls. 36½ to 54. Arrivals, 300 chests. Export to Great Britain, the Continent of Europe, and the Cape of Good Hope, 29,635,942 lbs., against 25,221,548 lbs.; to America, 154,936 lbs., against nil; to the Colonies, 7,177,894 lbs., against 8,071,337 lbs. (exclusive of the cargo of the R. J. Robertson lost).

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—The dulness alluded to in last report had continued, and settlements had been on the most limited scale. There had been very few buyers in the market, and prices closed weak. Dealers affirmed that they would sell cheaper, but immediately any business was attempted previous rates were asked. Arrivals were about 250 bales in excess of settlements. Settlements from 1st July to date 550 bales, against corresponding period—Season 1873-4, 1,550 bales; 1872-3, 2,950 bales; 1871-2, 1,850 bales; 1870-1, 875 bales; 1869-70, 1,700 bales; 1868-9, 1,800 bales. Stock: 500 bales new, and 300 bales old.

SHANGHAI.—During the week about 2,200 bales had been settled, of which fully 1,200 bales had been purchased by continental houses, making total from 1st June 24,200 bales, against 19,500 bales in 1872 and 1873. A great proportion of the business transacted was said to be on joint account with the Chinese, consequently prices had not declined as they should have done, considering the excessive stocks here and the adverse home advices. Amongst the most notable settlements reported are :—Koo-fong-sings, Chop, Nos. 3 and 3½ Tsatlee, at Tls 385 and 365 per picul; Yah-kee's Chop, Nos. 3, 3½ and 4 do., at Tls, 375, 350, and 320; Gold Lion, Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4 do., at Tls. 357½, 337½, 317½ and 297½; Blue Elephant, at Tls. 305; Red Peacock, at Tls. 297½ (offered); Tchee-un-ee's Chay-shen, at Tls. 245. Arrivals having been on a smaller scale, the unsold stock was slightly reduced, and was estimated at 17,000 bales.

CASUALTIES.—The Batavia, from Australia to Java (coals), has been wrecked in Torres Straits ; crew saved. The P. and O. steamer Kashgar broke her propeller, and is repairing at Suez. Sunderland, Oct. 2.—A telegram from Hong Kong announces that the Malvern foundered in the typhoon ; all hands lost. Advices from St. Helena state that the Nederland and Orange, Phaff, from Saigon to Rotterdam, which put in there, 20th Aug., with damage, discharged about 300 tons cargo to get at the leak ; it was then stopped, and some slight repairs were then effected, the discharged cargo was reshipped, and the vessel proceeded 9th Sept. The surveyors reported that, so far as could be seen, the cargo appeared to be in good order ; 10th Sept.—The Tennyson, M'Kinlay, from Batavia to Queenstown, which put in there, 4th July, making water, has landed 3,924 baskets of sugar up to the present time. The services of a diver belonging to H.M.S. Barracouta, were obtained 27th Aug., for the purpose of discovering and stopping the leak. The diver examined her and reported a great amount of copper off just abaft the stern post, and many sheets off in other places. A survey was held 28th by two officers and a carpenter of the Barracouta and they recommend the following repairs to be effected, viz., the defective beams to be fished and an iron breasthoop to be introduced in addition to the one broken, the copper to be repaired as far as possible when the vessel is heeled over, the mizenmast to be fished and the caulking when slack to be made good. The surveyors declared that the vessel would then be fit to take two-thirds of her full cargo to England, where she would immediately go into dock.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Off Ascension, Aug. 23, P.C.R.M., from Sumatra, for London ; T.K.N.L. (Eastern Chief), from Nagasaki, for London ; 24, L.K.D.B. (barque), from Java, for Queenstown ; 27, M.D.J.T. (Duke), from Singapore, for London; at St. Helena, 5, Vicenta Bilabaza, from Ilo Ilo, and sailed 7 for Cadiz ; 11, Vier Gebroeders V der Zee, from Padang, and sailed for New York ; Nederland and Orange, Phaff, from Saigon, and sailed 9 for Rotterdam ; 8, Min, from Singapore, for New York ; 10, Ada, from Shanghai, for London ; at Algoa Bay, Aug. 25, Vanadis, Carlstein, and sailed for Batavia.

Literature.

Those of our readers who take an interest in "Chinese Proverbs" will find a brief paper on the subject in the October part of All the Year Round. To quote the writer's own words, he "cites from various sources a few of the numerous aphorisms, maxims, and proverbs current among the Chinese, many of which will suggest parallel sentiments in our own and other languages." His sources of information are probably varied ; we notice at least two or three examples which are drawn from Prémare's "Notitia Linguæ Sinicæ" (Malacca, 1831). From the following simile it is evident that looking-glasses are appreciated by Chinese ladies : "Without a clear mirror a woman cannot know the state of her own face ; without a true friend a man cannot discern the errors of his own actions."

The Geographical for October has nothing relative to the East, with the exception of a paper on Formosa, accompanied by a map of the island. Speaking of the productions of Formosa, the writer (Mr. Ravenstein) says :—"Nature has been very bountiful with respect to the natural productions of the island, and tropical plants, as well as many others of more temperate regions, attain there a high degree of perfection. The cultivation of the tea plant has been introduced from China, and is rapidly on the increase, which is not to be wondered at, as an acre can be made to return £10 without the cultivator being exposed to much risk."

The Anti-Slavery Reporter quotes an announcement from a Lima paper in which 123 Chinese coolies are offered for sale together with mules and oxen. This matter, says the Reporter, is worthy the attention of the Chinese Commissioners. With reference to the proclamation of the Portuguese Government about the Macao coolie trade it states that nine weeks after the date of the proclamation a cargo of 663 Chinese coolies sailed from Macao to Callao.

THE ASSASSINATION OF HERR HABER.

Yokohama, Sept. 28.—The assassin who murdered Herr Haber, the German Consul at Hakodadi, has been sentenced to death, and the Mikado has expressed his regret at the occurrence. The German Minister demands that the wearing of swords near the foreign settlement should be forbidden.

THE NETHERLANDS.

The Hague, Oct. 2.—Yesterday evening the Minister of the Colonies gave a grand banquet in honour of the commanders of the second Expedition to Sumatra, at which the Prince of Orange and Prince Alexander and the chief civil and military authorities were present. The Colonial Minister proposed the toast of the Army and Navy of the Indies, which, he said, had so greatly contributed to the success of the expedition. The Prince of Orange proposed the health of the Generals present, to which General van Swieten replied, and said that an indissoluble tie existed between the country and the House of Orange.

HOLLAND.

Amsterdam, Sept. 30.

Mr. Van der Heim laid before the Chamber last Saturday his exposé of our financial position, which is, I am happy to add, relatively very favourable. The favourable balances of the two former years are certainly not large, but there is no deficit. The total of the estimated expenditure for 1875 is about, 110 millions of florins, that is ten millions more than in 1874. This excess is caused by various items of the national expenditure, railways, public works, navy fortresses, &c. The revenue is estimated at about 103 millions, so that there will be a probable deficit of 7½ millions. This, however, need cause no anxiety. Judging by the results obtained in the last few years, the deficit will be more than covered by the surplus arising from the batig slot, the Java revenue, and the continuous increase of the ordinary receipts, so that it will not be necessary to issue any treasury bonds. As I have stated already, it is not the intention of the Minister to make any partial change in the present system of taxation. As an illustration of the still-increasing prosperity of the country, the Minister said:—"We have been able to provide for all our wants, even our war in Atchin, without having recourse to extraordinary measures, and this is a good augury for the future." The Liberal papers of course complain that the batig slot remains the cork which keeps up the credit of Holland, while the Conservatives, led by the Dagblad, lament that under this Cabinet the Javanese are not more severely squeezed than they are. Varietas delectar. The first meeting of the Chamber and of the new Cabinet proves that the change of Government will occasion but a very small difference in the administrative business of the country. There are remarkable signs that no revolution is to be expected in the affairs either of home or in colonial matters. The new Cabinet is wise enough to refuse to grant pledges of great Administrative reforms; it has not accepted office under promise to distinguish itself by sensational legislation. This, at least, is something to be thankful for.

According to the Colonial report (page 132), the Minister Fransen Van de Putte had prepared a Bill for the construction of a railway over the whole island of Java. If I am well informed, Mr. Van Goltstein will inaugurate a more practical system. He will begin by constructing a railway from Sourabaya and Passaroeang to Malang, which you will remember was the original plan. The Minister of the Home Department has also made some alterations in the scheme of his predecessor in respect to the plan to complete our home railways. Instead of granting the concession to a syndicate of bankers he intends to grant it to several corporations and societies. Other rumours, however, say that the syndicate will be favoured, but on other terms. The Ministry refuses, for the present, to give any decision on the point, Mr. Van Goltstein stating, in answer to Mr. Gratama, that we must wait for further particulars about the Bill to provide Java with railways, until the document is actually laid before the members. It is now under examination by the Council of State.

The "Budget speech" of the Minister has made a favourable impression at the Bourse, and the prices of our national funds have slightly advanced. The general business, however, is, and seems likely to remain, very quiet.

A great festival will take place on Saturday next at Leyden, to celebrate the 300th anniversary of our delivery from the Spanish usurpation.

GERMANY.

Hamburg, Sept. 29.

In the offices of the Chancellor great activity prevails in order to make up the Budget for next year, so as to send it in to the Bundesrath in the course of this week, as it is intended to have it printed and ready for distribution to the members immediately after the opening of the Session, so as to give them as much time as possible to make themselves thoroughly acquainted with its contents when it comes on for discussion. The precise day for the opening of Parliament has not yet been definitely fixed, but it is expected to be somewhere about the 26th of October; nor is it known whether the ceremony will be performed by the Emperor in person or by deputy. The Budget for the Administration of the Imperial Railways is the only one that has as yet been sent to the Bundesrath. In it the receipts for 1875 are put down at 36,030,000 reichs marks, against 36,840,000 marks for 1874, being less by 810,000 marks than last year, in consequence of the reduction in fares and freights. The receipts are composed of the following items:—From passenger fares, 9,974,400 marks; from goods traffic, 23,970,000 marks; and other sources, 2,085,000 marks. The regular and ordinary expenditure is estimated at 28,980,000 marks, leaving a surplus of 7,050,000 marks, against 7,637,979 marks for the year 1874, consequently 587,979 marks less than last year's estimates. Amongst the items of expenditure are the following:—Salaries, 6,845,220 marks; administration, 778,260 marks; repairs and renewal of permanent way, 6,113,130 marks, transport expenses, 6,675,660 marks. The extraordinary expenses for 1875 are only 295,723 marks, of which 282,123 marks are the third instalment of the guaranteed subsidy towards the construction of the St. Gothard Railway and Tunnel, and 13,600 marks as the third instalment of the purchase money for the Colmar and Munster Railway, taken over by the State.

Further accounts have been received from Japan, with details of the murder of the German Acting Consul at Hakodadi, Herr Haber, from which it appears that it was not a premeditated act towards him personally, and still less a political vengeance. It seems that by virtue of an ancient barbarous custom of the Japanese, more honoured in the breach than the observance, when a native feels himself aggrieved or insulted by a foreigner, he is bound to take his revenge by killing that person, or some other foreigner. He therefore proceeds through the public streets armed with his two swords, and attacks the first foreigner he meets, something like the Malay custom of "running a muck." This happened to be unfortunately the inoffensive Herr Haber. The assassin having cleared his conscience by taking revenge on his innocent victim delivered himself quietly up to the authorities for punishment, and will stand his trial before the local Tribunal of Justice.

The new law for compulsory civil marriages comes into operation on the 1st October; and it is a curious fact that as the law requires a fortnight's notice to be given to the registrar, and this cannot be done before the above date, no weddings can be celebrated in the whole of Prussia before the second half of October.

Although we have still three months before the new currency becomes exclusively the legal medium for all transactions, the coins are already coming into use among the retail trade and the public generally and the Post-office gives notice that new postage stamps in the new currency are in course of preparation, and will be issued in December. The public are, however, warned not to buy a larger supply of the present stamps than may be required till the end of the year, as after that period they will have no value. This applies more particularly to those values that do not fit into the new currency. The bakers, brewers, butchers, and other tradesmen of this city have held meetings to concert measures what prices they shall put upon their commodities in retailing them to the public. The new law for weights and measures according to the metrical decimal system has now been in operation for two years, and is fully understood and appreciated, having experienced less difficulties than were apprehended. The length of a metre and the contents of a litre are now familiar to buyers and sellers, the only alteration that has been arbitrarily introduced—and it is not an illegal act, as the law is silent on the subject—is a tendency to buy and sell cloth, silk, ribbons, and other articles of long measure by the half-metre, it being found that the metre, which is more than a yard, is inconveniently long. In the same way the Saxon stocking weavers and wholesale dealers in hosiery have given public notice that from and after the 1st January next they shall no longer sell by the dozen of twelve, but by the dizaine of ten. It cannot be denied that this is strictly in accordance with the decimal system; but unless the French alter their terms in the same way for the sale of their gloves, soap, and other articles of their industry and manufactures—and they are not likely to follow any example set by their late antagonists—I fear it will give rise to much confusion and difficulties. For instance, if champagne and other French wines in bottles are no longer to be sold by the dozen, the size of the cases and baskets hitherto in use must undergo a corresponding alteration.

Arrivals from the Far East.—Herr C. Sturzenegger, from Singapore; P. Kierulf, from China; Consul Erdmann, from Samarang; A. Barleban, from Akyab; Reiners, from Hong Kong; R. Baedecker, from China.

JAMES WEST, PUBLISHER,
2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.

The London & China Telegraph.

LONDON: MONDAY, OCT. 5, 1874.

When Lord Stanley of Alderley brought before the House of Lords the administrative scandals of the late Straits Government, a disposition was observed in some Colonial quarters to depreciate his exertions. A correspondent in our own columns thought lightly of "flogging dead horses," and the first inspirations of the Straits Times, so long the faithful recorder of the Chronicles of St. George, were not so much disparaging as positively hostile. It is fair to add that the later thoughts of our colonial contemporary have been a great improvement on its first; but its columns furnish a stronger testimony to the value of Lord Stanley's interpellation than either praise or invective. They contain an order issued by Lord Carnarvon, putting an end to that practice of appropriating presents given by native Princes which Sir H. Ord introduced into the public service of the Straits; and that order is dated the 6th of June, just a few days after Lord Stanley had called the Colonial Secretary's attention to the subject. The coincidence may be purely accidental, but when we remember that Mr. Alabaster's complaint in reference to Siamese presents to Sir H. Ord dates as far back as 1868, and that the charge of his taking presents, which Lord Stanley read from the Straits Times, was published in August, 1873, it looks as if the views of the Colonial-office not only were slow in ripening, but as if they never would have attained maturity but for the genial heat of Parliamentary publicity.

The bare idea of our Government permitting the emigration of coolies from India to Peru makes one shudder. We have for many years struggled to put down the Macao coolie trade, and our efforts have been rewarded with success. It is therefore with no little consternation that we hear of a proposal by the Peruvian Government to the Government of India that coolie emigration to Peru—which means the Guano Islands—should be permitted. From a letter from Sir Louis Mallet to the Secretary of the Aborigines Society, we are glad to find that no such application has been made. We must however express our disappointment that Sir Louis Mallet's letter is not couched in more emphatic terms, denoting the aversion of the Indian Government to any such proposition. We should have thought that the Marquis of Salisbury would have directed a reply to the effect that no such proposition would be entertained for one moment. While on this subject we wish to point out that the Convention lately concluded by the Peruvian Envoy, Senor Garcia, at Peking, stipulates that a Commission of Inquiry is to be despatched by the Chinese Government to Peru, to inquire into the treatment of the coolies, and on its report it will be decided whether the emigration of Chinese coolies, which is now suspended, will be resumed. It is quite clear that, having brought the Peruvians to almost a dead-lock for want of labour, they will now see that the coolies are treated with humanity.

Another victim has just been added to the list of unoffending persons who have been murdered by fanatical Japanese. We allude to the slaughter of Mr. L. Haber, the German Consul at Hakodadi. Possibly this last straw may break the back of the official camel, and lead to some action on the part of the Treaty Powers by which these crimes will be prevented in the future. So long as the sword is allowed to be the inseparable companion of the Japanese, sane or lunatic, we may look for more of these horrible occurrences at intervals, and as compensation is generally offered and accepted for such atrocities, they have begun to be regarded in the light of an ordinary debtor and creditor account between the parties concerned. But in the case of Mr. Haber, who is the representative of a Government not slow in avenging any injury to its representatives, it is be hoped matters will be different. No monetary consideration should prevent measures being taken whereby the recurrence of a tragedy like the one in question would be rendered impossible, and society in Japan will benefit materially by an edict which would convert the Japanese body swords into ploughshares. With the strides lately made throughout the country towards civilisation, it is an anomaly to retain such a relic of barbarism.

We understand that the Admiralty have received advices from China which state that, owing to the present unsettled state of affairs between that country and Japan, a conference is advisable between Her Majesty's Minister at Peking and the Naval Commander-in-Chief, and from information from Vice-Admiral Shadwell, it appears that a meeting has been arranged to take place on October 3rd at Shanghai. We are informed that in addition to the vessels now under orders for the China station, our fleet there is likely to be reinforced by two or three corvettes.

We must congratulate both Lord Carnarvon and the colonists of Mauritius upon the appointment of Sir Arthur Phayre to the vacant governorship. After a long and distinguished career in India, extending over forty years, Sir Arthur has attained a very high reputation, and he has shown ample proof of his administrative capacity in Burmah. His Excellency will leave by the French mail steamer of the 25th October.

We understand that a scheme is being organised by Messrs. Siemens Brothers for a submarine cable from Queensland to Singapore, and from there on to China and India, as well as a line between Sydney and New Zealand. The proposed project is stated to have the support of the Government of Queensland, New South Wales, and New Zealand, who guarantee £50,000 per annum.

The Journal Officiel of Paris announces that, by a decree dated 30th Sept., the contre-amiral Duperre, chief of the staff of the Admiralty, is nominated Governor of French Cochin-China and commandant-in-chief of the naval division of Indo-China, in the place of the contre-amiral Dupre. The contre-amiral Garnault succeeds M. Duperre.

By the last mail from Singapore we are glad to see that the Colonial-office has given the Governor instructions to refer to the merchants for opinions on the proposed Emigration ordinance. We are still of opinion that legislation will be only mischievous, and will not secure the protection which is sought for.

The mail from India reports—The surviving members of the French Embassy to Mandalay, who left Moulmein with the idea of proceeding overland to Cochin China, have returned, the expedition having met with a series of misfortunes.

The Portuguese transport India, from Lisbon, took out military reinforcements for the colony of Macao, to the extent of 236 men and officers, fourteen wives, and eight passengers.

We hear that further retirements from the Chinese Consular service have been decided on, including Mr. J. P. M. Fraser. Mr. Davenport, Vice-Consul at Shanghai, proceeds to his post this month.

THE HONG KONG MERCHANT SHIPPING CONSOLIDATION ORDINANCE, 1874.

It affords us much satisfaction to see Imperial and Colonial reforms marching hand in hand, as it were, in matters that relate to our merchant shipping, for it is a subject which, having regard for the vast commercial interests of this nation in all quarters of the globe, demands the gravest consideration and attention from those placed in authority. But lately we noticed the China and Japan Maritime Order in Council, 1874, by which Shanghai was made a foreign port of British registry, and we have now to record the first reading by the Legislative Council of Hong Kong. Of the important Ordinance, the title of which we have prefixed to this notice, we heartily congratulate the Acting Attorney-General of the Colony, the Hon. T. C. Hayllar on the energy and care which he has bestowed on this measure, and his Excellency the Governor on the wisdom which dictated its preparation. This Ordinance has been drawn up in order "to consolidate and amend the laws "relating to merchant shipping, the duties of the harbour "master, and the control and management of the waters of "the Colony, and the regulation of vessels navigating the "same." The measure before us is, in consequence, necessarily a voluminous one, occupying twenty-nine pages of The Hong Kong Government Gazette of August 1. We must, therefore, confine ourselves principally to an explanation of its objects and reasons. This Ordinance, which is, in point of fact, a Colonial Merchant Shipping Act, and deals with other matters besides that an Act of the Imperial Parliament would not touch, contains forty-two sections, and these are further subdivided into numerous sub-sections and other subsidiary clauses. The subject-matter of the measure is arranged under four main headings, termed Parts I. to IV., viz., Merchant Shipping and Seamen, Regulation and Control of the Waters of the Colony, and of Vessels Navigating the same, Regulation of Junks and Small Boats, and Miscellaneous; four Schedules of Fees are also annexed.

Part I. provides regulations for British and Colonial ships, regulations concerning safety (a highly important chapter), Marine Courts, and a Board of Examiners, and it further treats of Shipping and Discharge of Seamen, Boarding-Houses for the same, their Health, Medicines, and Medical Stores, Desertion and other offences by Seamen, and Distressed Seamen. Part II. first lays down sundry regulations on various subjects as indicated by its title, and then deals with Lighthouses, Buoys, or Beacons, and the Importation and Storage of Gunpowder. Part III. treats of a subject which in our own country is, we believe, under local, as opposed to Governmental, management, but which in a port situated as that of Hong Kong is, demands special treatment. This portion of the Ordinance under consideration lays down rules with great care for the due licensing and control of Junks, Fishing Vessels, Boats, Cargo Boatmen, &c. Part IV. provides for Penalties and Fees, and repeals certain Ordinances and sections of Ordinances, ranging from No. 14 of 1845 to No. 1 of 1874; certain specified matters, however, are excepted from the operation of this repeal.

Having enumerated the principal points with which the Ordinance deals, we proceed to pass briefly in review the Attorney-General's elaborate "Statement of Objects and Reasons." The Ordinance, he says, has been framed with a twofold object. "With reference to the former of "these, the fact that the local carrying trade has now passed, "in so great a measure, from sailing vessels to steam-"ships has necessitated the introduction here (Hong Kong) "of those clauses of the Imperial Acts which pertain specially "to safety and the prevention of accidents in the employ-"ment of steamers. And as to the latter, the collection "together and rearrangement of the many and frequently "intricate provisions with reference to shipping, which from "time have become law since 1845, have become advisable "as a matter of convenience; the more especially as certain "actual changes in the law are required, which a consoli-"dating Ordinance affords a favourable opportunity of in-"troducing." Chapter I. of the first part contains very material and important modifications of an old Ordinance (No. 4 of 1855); these are required because "the class of "vessels to which it mainly applied, viz., junks and lorchas "trading between this Colony and the open ports on the Can-"ton river, either no longer exists, or does not seek registra-"tion under the Ordinance; and its provisions are now only, "or nearly only, taken advantage of by Chinese residents "within the colony, not being British subjects, who regis-"ter steamers under it; a class of ship to which its provi-"sions were obviously never intended to apply. . . . "The only reason for not repealing the Ordinance altoge-"ther is that so doing would deprive Chinese residents, "not being British subjects, of the privilege of using the "British flag, which they have hitherto enjoyed." Hitherto ships with only a colonial register have not been required to carry certificated masters, mates, or engineers, but "such a state of law is obviously unsatisfactory, and it "is therefore proposed by paragraph II. to place all such "ships (junks, of course, excepted) upon the same footing "as vessels holding Imperial registers." As the Attorney-General very truly observes, "This step is demanded as a measure of safety," and we must own to some surprise at this rule never having been introduced before. Chapter II. is a very important one, and we hope that its provisions for the safety of passengers in a region where shipwrecks are not uncommon will be most rigidly enforced. Section VII., again, which enacts penalties for carrying passengers in excess of the numbers allowed by the certificate, is a very necessary one, in view of the large business which has now grown up connected with the conveyance of Chinese passengers by steamers between the Colony and ports not within the purview of the Chinese Passengers Act, 1855. By par. 3 the Governor (in Council) will, for the first time, have the power of prohibiting the conveyance of deck passengers—a power which during the more inclement season of the year may be usefully exercised. Section VIII. (survey of unseaworthy ships) is the same as Ordinance No. 1 of 1874, except that "in paragraph 3 the "words 'out of the Colonial revenue' have been sub-"stituted, by direction of the Secretary of State, for the "words 'out of moneys to be provided by the Imperial "Parliament.'" Section IX., on a cognate subject, is new to colonial legislation. Chapter III. proposes to make certain useful alterations in the constitution of Marine Courts; and Chapter IV. will extend "the powers conferred on the "Board of Examiners by Ordinance No. 17 of 1860 to the "examination and certifying of engineers," who before were not required to hold certificates. The provisions of Chapter VIII., which relate to Medicines and Medical Stores, are not at present, though they certainly ought to be, in operation in the colony. Chapter IX. paragraph 5 proposes to extend certain provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, relating to the offences of British seamen to men employed on foreign ships within the jurisdiction of the colony. This has been called for by the previously existing difficulty of dealing with insubordinate seamen in foreign ships, which has given rise to complaints from foreign Consuls. By paragraph 7, however, "the "operation of the whole section may be suspended in re-"gard to the ships of any foreign nation at the request of "its Consul."

By Chapter I. of Part II. the regulations, which have hitherto been confined to a certain portion of Colonial waters, defined as the "harbour," are now wisely extended to the whole, for "much inconvenience has been "felt on more than one occasion from vessels anchoring in "Colonial waters outside the prescribed limits, and thus, "while taking advantage of the port, keeping free of its "necessary regulations," and to prevent any misconception as to its meaning, the term "Colonial waters" is very clearly defined in the preliminary portion of the Ordinance. Paragraph 3 of Section XXIII., which requires ships arriving from ports where infectious diseases are prevalent to report the same, is new to the colony, but is very necessary to prevent the introduction of small-pox, &c., into the island. Paragraph 4 of Section XXV. is also new. Its necessity arises from the great increase in the use of steam-launches in the waters of the colony, a class of vessels which at present is not subject to any kind of regulation. By Sections XXVII. and XXVIII., which deal with "Removal of Obstructions" and "Moorings," powers are conferred on the harbour-master which he does not now possess, and which are obviously necessary and useful.

Chapter 2 of Part III. "proposes to place in the hands

"of the Governor in Council the licensing and management "of all the small craft plying in the colonial waters for "hire, and of all that numerous class of boats used by the "Chinese as residences, by means of regulations," the latter being at present under no regulation at all. With regard to the objects sought to be attained under this head, the ATTORNEY-GENERAL observes that "the convenience of the public will, it is thought, be better met by "entrusting the making of rules for the control of all "craft of this class to the Executive than by embodying "the rules for their Government in an Ordinance. As "such regulations must of necessity mainly consist of mere "matters of detail, it is of importance that they should "more readily admit of alteration or amendment than is "possible when they form the subject of legislative enact-"ment."

In conclusion, while expressing a hope that this very useful measure may very soon become law, it may be as well that we should point out that by Section XL. it is provided that "an abstract of such portions of this Ordi-"nance as the Governor in Council may direct, shall be "delivered to the master of every vessel upon her entering "the waters of the Colony" for his information and temporary use, so that none will be able to plead ignorance of the regulations with which they are required to comply.

Monetary and Commercial.

The half yearly report of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China has been issued to the shareholders. The statement of accounts to 30th June shows a net profit of £41,871 13s. 4d., including £1,661 11s. 4d. brought forward from last year's profit and loss account. An ad interim dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum (free of income-tax) is declared, leaving a balance of £11,871 13s. 4d., which is carried forward to next account. The death of Mr. I. I. Mackenzie is alluded to, and Mr. J. N. Bullen will be proposed at the meeting for election as a director, in the room of Sir William Grey, K.C.S.I., resigned.

At the meeting of the shareholders of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China on 21st inst. the directors will recommend an interim dividend for the half-year to 30th June last at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, free of income tax.

The annual report of the directors of Palmer's Shipbuilding and Iron Company (Limited) states that all the departments (except the ship yard, in respect to the old contracts taken before the advance in prices and completed during the year) had given satisfactory results; and but for the unfortunate and annoying losses on those old ship contracts and the bad debt made with a firm in Glasgow, the profits of the year would have been satisfactory, and the directors would have been enabled to declare a liberal dividend. The net profits were £25,103, and the directors recommend a dividend at the rate of 2½ per cent. per annum, which would absord £22,522. The reserve fund remains at £30,000, and the share capital at £900,880.

At the meeting of the Mauritius Land Credit and Agency Company (Limited) the directors' report and statement of accounts was adopted, and a dividend declared for the half-year ended 30th June of 2s. per share, making, with the interim dividend declared in March last, a distribution of 10 per cent. for the year.

The directors of the New London and Brazilian Bank (Limited) recommend the payment of a dividend of 7s. per share, making, with the interim dividend paid in April last, the dividend for the year 12s. per share, or six per cent., free of income tax.

The directors of Reuter's Telegram Company (Limited) have declared the usual interim dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax, for the half-year ending 30th June last.

The P. and O. steamer Teheran, and others to follow, will bring a shipment of Japanese gold coin. It would appear from this that the Japanese Government are compelled to make use of this coin as a remittance to this country for payment of interest on loans and other engagements. It is not long since that bar gold was shipped out to turn into coin, and it can hardly be a paying transaction to send it here to be melted down again. It would also appear that the issue of notes continues in enormous quantities, and the good intention of having a metallic currency is as yet unaccomplished.

The Gordon Castle has brought into dock about 100 tons of damaged tea. Precautions have been taken to prevent its being fixed up and sold for consumption.

The purchase of the steamer Gunga, 800 tons register, and 220-horse power, has been arranged for the service of Messrs. Larrieu and Roque on their contract with the French Government for running steamers in Cochin-China.

The market for Bar Silver continues depressed, and the price at 57⅞d. per oz. exhibits no change. The demand has been chiefly for Russia. Mexican Dollars, brought by the St. Nazaire and West India steamers, about £60,000 in value, have been sold at 56¼d. per oz., showing a rise of ⅛d. per oz. They have been taken principally for China.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

With few important exceptions a dull tone has prevailed in the Produce Markets, and prices are frequently cheaper. Tea has been steady, with moderate business. Silk continues to improve. Coffee after some fluctuation, has taken a decided downward course, and a considerable decline has occurred towards the close. Sugar has continued active, and shows a further advance. Cutch has also improved. The demand for Rice has improved, especially for floating cargoes, which are 6d. higher. Sago and Tapioca are unaltered. Pepper has continued flat, and prices are lower. In other Spices few alterations have taken place. Hemp is unusually inactive. Coir Goods are generally dull, and common sorts of Yarn continue to decline in value. Sticklac and Gambier are lower. The Market for Tin has been dull, and the price for Straits at the close is 10s. lower.

TEA.

Messrs. Arthur Capel and Co.'s Circular says:—Our market has been very steady during the past week, but the amount of business has been only moderate, the fresh samples on the market being few until the 30th ult., when those ex "Indus," "Cassandra," and "Cheops" were placed on offer. Prices on the whole have been well maintained, the market being strengthened by the small quantity offered at public sale, without reserve, comprising only about 13,800 packages, of which 13,100 packages were sold. The deliveries for the week as compared with last year are as follows:—

Coastwise	906,053 ...	638,301
	3,518,680 ...	3,368,241

Congous.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings have sold at last week's rates. Broken-leaf kinds have been firm. Fair to good common remain firm. Fair Kaisow kinds have been taken at about previous prices. Good to fine have been rather more in request; finest show no alteration, the demand being still limited. Pak Lin kinds are in good request at former rates. Black-leaf kinds: Common to fair remain in moderate demand, without alteration in price; fair to good medium kinds have been fairly maintained, but a few sales of Oopak kinds show rather easier rates; fine have been firm with a moderate business; in finest there is no change to notice. New-make kinds: Common have been sold at 11d. per lb.; fair to good from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 4d. have been in demand, prices showing no change. Souchongs show no material alteration. Business in Oolongs has been moderate, the supply on offer being less; the fine Formosa kinds have been enquired for. Scented Teas.—Canton Capers have sold rather irregularly, but on the whole prices have been fairly supported, the finer kinds being most in demand. Foo Chow kinds show no quotable alteration. Canton Orange Pekoes have been rather more saleable, but without improvement in prices. Foo Chow kinds, from recent arrivals, have been freely offered, and sales made have been a shade lower in price. Green Teas.—The demand continues rather limited, and prices for all but the finer kinds of Moyune must be quoted rather easier.

SILK.

Messrs. Durant and Co.'s Circular says:—We have at last to report an improved state of things in Silk. The extremely low range of prices has induced general attention, even of outside speculators to some small extent, and throughout the whole of the past month we have had fair current business with gradually hardening pieces till we find quotations in many cases 6d. to 1s. above the lowest moment. The deliveries show very large figures in comparison with recent years. Japan Silk had scarcely shared in the general doings, probably because little new Silk has yet come forward, and partially also in consequence of the announcement of a large public sale of 800 bales "without reserve" on the 1st inst., but within the last week some large parcels, probably 400 bales, have been sold "for arrival" at full rates. In Canton Silk the market has been cleared of all this season's arrivals, but without improvement in prices. Arrivals in September:—Bengal, 266 bales; China, 8,008; Japan, 260; Canton, 332. The public sale is concluded. The Silk was generally taken freely, the larger portion at an advance of probably 1s. per lb. upon the prices of August.

COFFEE.

Immediately after the close of our last week's report there was an improvement in the market, and prices of Plantation Ceylon advanced 1s. to 2s. per cwt., which afterwards induced holders to bring forward large supplies, but the demand greatly fell off, and sales have been effected with difficulty at daily declining prices, closing 3s. below the quotation given a fortnight ago; middling, after advancing to 113s. to 116s., has declined to 108s. 6d. to 111s. With a good demand the value of good ordinary Native advanced to 88s., but the market closes flatly at 84s. to 85s. Quotations are, Plantation, triage 80s. to 94s., small grey to coloury 100s. to 106s., low middling 104s. 6d. to 108s., middling coloury 108s. 6d. to 110s. 6d., good middling to fine middling coloury 111s. to 114s., peaberry 123s. 6d. to 128s. Native, small 76s. to 81s., good ordinary to fine ordinary 85s. to 88s., bold 89s. to 94s. 6d., peaberry 100s. to 106s. 6d. The only sale of other East India during the week has been 300 bags Manila at 88s. per cwt.

CAMPHOR.—The market has been quiet and easier; there have been reports of sellers at lower prices, but these have been of no avail with large holders. There is more enquiry; but few sellers at the close. Of 66 boxes at auction, a few sold in the room; Japan at 80s.; subsequently mostly quitted at about the same figure.

COCOANUT OIL.—Cochin has continued firm at £43 to £44 for good to very fine. Ceylon has met a fair demand, and about 200 tons have changed hands at £34 15s. to £35 for pipes and puncheons, and at £35 10s. for hogsheads.

COIR GOODS.—Moderate supplies of Yarn at the periodical public sales again went off flatly, and only part was disposed of, ordinary qualities again rather cheaper, medium kinds also easy, but good to fine brought firm rates. 21 bales fine Ceylon chiefly sold at £41 10s. to £43 10s. Of 66 tons ditto only 35 tons sold, ordinary to medium at £22 to £26, fine and superior at £45 15s. to £50. 6 tons Ceylon Brush Fibre sold at £21 10s., low coarse £12 10s.

CHINA PRESERVES.—Of 148 case Ginger (Chyloong brand) offered 48 cases sold at steady rates at 10d. to 10½d. per lb.

CUTCH.—An active demand has prevailed for Pegue, and considerable business has been done at advancing prices, closing 2s. higher than a fortnight ago. The total sales are about 6,000 boxes, commencing at 23s., and closing at 25s. per cwt., with buyers.

CUBEBS have been in good inquiry, and the price has advanced, small sales having been effected at 23s. 6d. per cwt.

COPRA continues scarce and in demand.

COLOMBO ROOT.—Fine quality is in good request; 73 bags in public sale realised 15s. to 17s. per cwt. for fair quality.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—Market steady, of 21 cases lump at auction the bulk has been sold at £7 7s. 6d. to £9 5s. for fine to superior Singapore.

EBONY WOOD.—Market steady, but not active; of 60 tons Ceylon offered 23 tons were quitted at £13 15s. per ton.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed firm, and about 100 cases have been sold on the spot at 9s., afloat 8s. 7½d. to 8s. 9d., closing firm at the latter figure; 10 cases at public sales bought in. Cassia dull, and very plentiful, sales of small lots afloat at 4s. 6d., in retail on spot at 4s. 8d. to 4s. 9d. Nutmegs quiet, 7 cases retired. Cinnamon scarce, and fine much wanted, large stock of leaf. Citronelle quiet, and small transactions at previous value; 75 cases retired. Lemon Grass firm.

GAMBIER.—The market is dull, and prices have further receded 1s. per cwt.; only small sales have been made, consisting of about 1,300 bales, closing at 25s. 9d. ex ship, and 26s. 1½d. ex quay.

GALLS continue scarce, and the upward movement perceptible a fortnight since has made further progress. We hear of no public sales, but privately 200 cases China have found buyers at £2 19s. per cwt., being an advance of 2s. per cwt.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Sumatra higher; of 94 cases offered one-half sold; fine seconds, £10 17s. 6d. to £11; good marbly seconds at £10 to £10 2s. 6d.; seconds rather false packed, £8 10s. to £8 12s. 6d.; good thirds, 71s. to 71s. 6d. Siam steady; of 2 cases offered one sold at £10 7s. 6d., rather dark and drossy block. Copal firm; and some sales have been effected at higher rates. Damar unchanged. Gamboge quiet; and nothing of consequence done.

GUTTA-PERCHA has continued very quiet; but there appear some symptoms of approaching demand.

GALANGAL ROOT has been quiet, but is firm at the previous value, viz., 23s. to 24s. 6d. per cwt.

HEMP.—The demand for Manila has been limited, and sales are therefore light, but no change in prices can be reported. In auction 226 bales good roping Manila sold at £36 5s. to £36 15s. per ton.

HIDES.—Messrs. Dyster, Nalder, and Co.'s Monthly Report says:—The demand for East India Hides has not been active, except for good qualities, which being scarce, have realised extreme prices, whilst other descriptions have barely supported former rates. The sales by public and private reach 173,930 Hides in the hair and tanned. Singapore, Penang, and Rangoon Ox and Cow Hides: There has been a fair demand, and the greater part of the moderate quantity brought forward found buyers at about former rates. The sales of the month include 4,558 Singapore and Penang: Light, 12½d. to 13d.; heavy, 6⅝d. to 10d.; thirds, 7⅞d. to 8¼d.; fourths, 5¼d. to 5½d. per lb. 4,589 Rangoon: Light, 12⅜d.; heavy, 6⅜d. to 9½d.; thirds, 7⅜d. to 8d.; fourths, 5d. per lb. Singapore, Penang, &c., Buffalo Hides: Good qualities have been in demand at full prices to a slight advantage, but other sorts show no improvement and are difficult to sell. 3,457 Singapore and Penang have been sold; slaughtered, first heavy, average 36½ to 36⅝ lbs., 7d.; good, first class, average 18⅜ to 25⅝ lbs., 6d. to 6¼d.; average 11⅞ lbs., 7d.; seconds, 5½d. to 5½d.; fair light, average 15⅜ lbs., 6d.; ordinary, heavy, average 29⅞ to 31 lbs., 5¼d.; light, average 14 to 15½ lbs., 5¼d.; seconds, 4½d. per lb. 61 Rangoon: Light and small, average 7⅜ to 15¼ lbs., 6⅜d. per lb. Java Hides: There have not been any sales of Ox and Cow Hides; Buffalo Hides are in limited demand without material change in price. 3,412 Buffalo Hides have been sold: Shaved, first heavy, average 25 lbs., 8¾d. to 9d.; seconds, 8d. per lb.; unshaved, fair, first light, average 11⅜ to 15 lbs., 6⅞d. to 7½d. per lb.; first heavy, average 24½ to 28 lbs., 7⅜d.; ordinary, first heavy, average 20⅝ lbs., 6d.; light, average, 8 to 12⅞ lbs., 6⅛d. to 7d.; seconds, 5⅜d. to 6½d.; thirds, 4⅛d. to 5d. per lb.

INDIA-RUBBER.—Holders decline to operate except at an advance, and all offers at auction—consisting of 37 baskets Borneo, 17 baskets 5 cases Singapore, and 45 baskets Java—have been retired.

JAPAN WAX is steady, and a fair private business is being done at the advance quoted in our last report, viz., at 56s. to 58s. per cwt.

MUSK is firm, and higher to the extent of 2s. to 3s. for fine quality; 44 tins and caddies Tonquin offered at auction were all sold at 37s. 6d. to 45s. per oz. for good to fine selected well-shaped pods; 16s. to 19s. 6d. fair to good rough and bally, and 19s. wet pickings; 5 tins Cabardine were retired, and of 10 tins Grain offered 4 sold at 50s. per oz. for good quality.

PEPPER.—Black has continued very dull, and is rather easier; moderate sales have been made at 6¾d. to 6¾d. for Singapore, and 6⅝d. to 6d. for Penang; afloat very little has been done. White is quiet at 8⅛d. to 8⅞d. for ordinary dull to fine bold; 88 bags offered in public sale were retired.

PLUMBAGO.—The large supply of 1,580 barrels Ceylon has been offered by auction, and as holders met the market a large portion was sold, viz., 1,200 barrels at a general decline of about 1s. per cwt., fine bold and clean selected lump at 21s. 6d. to 24s., middling dull to good bright small at 15s. to 18s., ordinary earthy to fine bright chips at 9s. to 12s., low earthy dust at 7s. 3d. to 7s. 9d., ordinary to fine bright dust at 8s. 3d. to 9s. 6d. per cwt.

RHUBARB.—China is about 3d. per lb. lower, and of 200 cases in public sale, barely half sold, good bold at 3s. 4d. to 3s. 6d.; medium and bold sun dried fairly trimmed part greyish 1s. 4d. to 1s. 7d.; high dried fair root 1s. 2d.; wormy 9d. to 10d. per lb.

RATTANS.—Of 21,565 bundles at auction, only a few sold at 4s. 2d. to 6s. 11d. for 100 canes, being rather better rates.

STICKLAC.—The market has been very quiet, and prices of Siam have declined about 2s. 6d. per cwt., private sales, amounting to about 500 boxes, having been made at £5 7s. 6d. to £5 10s. per cwt.; 158 cases in auction were bought in at £5 10s. per cwt.

SPICES.—Cassia Lignea: There has been a large demand, and sales to the extent of 4,000 to 5,000 boxes unworked have been effected at 58s. to 59s., closing at the latter price. In auction 207 cases worked second pile were bought in at 65s. Cinnamon: 52 bales Ceylon chiefly sold, first sort at 3s. 1d. to 3s. 4d., second at 2s. 1d. to 2s. 7d., third at 1s. 10d. to 2s. 3d., fourth 1s. 5d., low mouldy 8d. Chips: Of 170 bags Ceylon offered one-half sold, ordinary at 4½d., coarse bark at 2⅝d. Cloves: Penang are scarce and firmly held; of 20 cases offered 1 case sold at 2s. per lb. for good. Nutmegs: The small lots offered went off as follows:—10 boxes Singapore bought in at 3s. 6d., 1 cask lined Java 106's sold at 2s. 11d. Mace is quiet; 30 boxes ordinary dark Java bought in at 1s. 11d.; 4 cases low mixed with wild sold at 1s. 1d.

SHELLS.—The periodical sales were held on the 29th ult. Tortoise: Although a large supply was offered an active demand prevailed for all kinds, and nearly the whole was sold, East India kinds at about 1s. to 2s. advance; 8 cases Singapore sold, shell common to middling at 16s. to 19s. 6d., fine 24s. Mother-o'-Pearl: The supply was small, and with a good demand the bulk was disposed of, Singapore realising 10s. advance; 12 boxes Japan small oyster sold at 15s., and 12 cases Singapore at £11. Ear Shells: There was a better demand, but of 736 cases and boxes 22 tons loose Japan only 300 cases sold at dearer rates; broken at £10, mixed part broken at £20 to £25, good bold at £29 to £35, fine bold £45 to £46, one lot very fine selected untrimmed at £65; trimmed bought in at £60 per ton. Green Snail Shells: 320 baskets (39,330 shells) met a good demand, and about 150 baskets sold at full rates to ½d. advance, good bold at 9½d. to 9⅝d., bold with some medium 8½d. to 8⅝d., medium 6½d., small 4½d. each.

SAGO.—Small firmer, large again easier; of 776 bags offered in public sale three-fourths sold at 17s. 6d. to 18s. for uneven to good large, 18s. 6d. fine bright small.

STAR ANISEEDS are dull, and are offering freely afloat at £5 10s. per cwt., with but few buyers.

SOY continues without movement.

SAPANWOOD is still scarce; in auction 14 tons slightly damaged Manila (from New York) sold at £10 12s. 6d., and 18 tons Ceylon were withdrawn.

TAPIOCA.—Market steady; 600 bags Singapore in public sale quitted at 2d. to 2⅛d. for good quality.

TOBACCO.—36 bales Java sold at 3d. to 6¾d.; 117 ditto Japan 7d. to 8d., 166 ditto ditto damaged 5½d. to 7d.

TIN.—Business has continued inactive during the week, and prices show a further slight decline, quotations being as follows:—Straits on the spot, £92; afloat, £90; Banca, £98 10s.; Billiton, £94 per ton. The deliveries for the past month have been:—From London, Straits and Australian, 765 tons; from Holland, Banca, 155 tons; do., Billiton, 357 tons; total, 1,277 tons. We estimate the stock of foreign in London to be composed as follows:—Straits, 1,740 tons; Australian 900 tons; Banca, 10 tons.

Sir SAMUEL BAKER,

In his work on the Sources of the Nile, says:—

"I ordered my dragoman Mahomet to inform the "Faky that I was a doctor, and that I had the best "medicines at the service of the sick, with advice "gratis. In a short time I had many applicants, to "whom I served out a quantity of Holloway's Pills. "These are most useful to an explorer, as, possessing "unmistakable purgative properties, they create an "undeniable effect upon the patient, which satisfies "him of their value."

This fine Medicine cures all disorders of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys and Bowels, is a Great PURIFIER of the BLOOD, and wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to Females—young or aged.

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY, LIMITED.

REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS.

Gentlemen.—

Your Directors have now the pleasure of waiting upon you with Balance Sheet and Profit and Loss account for the half year ending 30th June last.

The Gross Profits for the six months are $70,778.72, to which there is to be added the balance remaining after payment of the Dividend declared at the last General Meeting, $3,114.79, making a total of $73,893.51.

After deducting from this sum the necessary working expenses, depreciation, and the amount due under clause 72—there will remain available for dividend the sum of $42,015.68, subject, however, to payments that may fall due under clause 68 of the Articles of Association.

The permanent works of the Company have been kept in thorough repair, but your Directors have written off for depreciation the sum of $8,000, besides 5 per cent. on the value of their tug boat Pilot Fish, say $535.86.

Your Directors regret to have to report that an accident occurred to the ship England when in the Dock in June.

This has given rise to questions which are likely to involve the Company in legal proceedings. Your Directors have therefore thought it advisable to propose the payment of an ad interim dividend of four per cent. for the half-year ending 30th June, which will leave a balance of $18,015.68 to be carried forward.

Of the three godowns referred to in the last report, one has been completed and is now in use, the others are in a forward state, and will shortly be finished. A shed on riband posts for the use of the carpenters, and for storing timber, has been added to the Company's plant, and a new coal shed, also on riband posts, is in course of erection. The filling in of the ground at the rear of the coal sheds to the westward is being proceeded with, and will shortly afford additional accommodation for storing coal.

The sea face wall has been carried to within a short distance of the Company's boundary.

The Company's Manager, E. M. Smith, Esq., left for Europe on 16th May last, for one year's leave.

Captain Lloyd has been appointed Acting Manager.

The Reading Room continues to be largely availed of.

THOMAS SCOTT, Chairman.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

Our advices from the Japan Ports by the present mail are of no later date than those received by Pacific mail on the 29th ult., and published in our last issue.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 23rd August; the French mail from London, 3rd July, was received on the 16th August, and the following P. and O. mail of the 10th July arrived out on the 17th August. The latter is said to be the quickest London mail ever delivered in Shanghai, having occupied but thirty-eight days in transit. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald:—

We hear that the Chinese authorities are instituting some new regulations with regard to the local levies on sugar, of a nature to operate unjustly towards foreigners, as well as towards some classes of their own countrymen. The old system having probably been found capable of evasion, the authorities have established a guild or farm for the collection of the duties on the article. The guild promises, to those who give a bond that they will declare truly the amount of their imports, a reduction of nearly fifty per cent., but this privilege is to be restricted to Cantonese. Sugar which has been imported through foreigners or by northern Chinese will be charged at the old rate, and the emissaries of the guild will keep a sharp lookout for evasions, which when found out will entail confiscation. The arrangement, as it has been described to us, appears to be designed, doubtless through the powerful influence of the Cantonese, to give that class a monopoly of the trade; and if enquiry into the matter show this to be the case, it ought to be firmly resisted.

Mr. Mowat, the Deputy Chief Judge of H. B. M. Supreme Court, goes to Chefoo, we understand, in consequence of a summons from the Chief Judge. Mr. Mowat has delegated his functions to Mr. Myburgh, barrister-at-law. Our evening contemporaries have criticised both the legality of the step and the fitness of the appointment. The Courier gives its approval to the latter, but presents a strong argument against the first aspect of Mr. Mowat's action. We must assume that Mr. Mowat has not taken the step without due consideration, and that he is prepared to accept the responsibility of his act. Apart from the question of its legality, which we are not in a position to discuss, we quite coincide in the opinion that a double delegation of the judicial powers is scarcely just to the community and is much to be deprecated. The occasion having arisen, moreover, it would no doubt have been preferable if a gentleman of Mr. Hannen's experience on the bench had been requested and could have been induced to act; but before pronouncing the gentleman who has undertaken the duties "eminently unsuited" to the position, as the Gazette has done, it would be only courteous to wait till he had proved his unfitness.

Thefts from foreign residences have been of frequent occurrence, the time usually being chosen when people go out to walk or drive in the cool of the evening, leaving their houses, with doors and windows open to admit air, in charge of servants who probably take the opportunity to loaf and gossip. The thief walks in, selects a conveniently portable article, and retires without leaving his address. Two such cases have occurred in Hongkew, and enabled some pawnshop to add a drawing-room clock and a hall barometer to its stock on favourable terms. A silver tankard has also been taken, and the Chinese thieves are reported to be particularly provident in the matter of laying by foreign umbrellas for a rainy day.

A warrant having been issued for the apprehension of Mr. Fawcett, the engineer lately in charge of the works at the Shantung Lighthouse, on a charge arising out of the recent disturbance there, he has been arrested at Nagasaki, in consequence of a telegram from Shanghai. Mr. Fawcett is expected to arrive here by the Glengyle on the 24th Aug., and will be sent on to Chefoo by the first opportunity, where the case against him has to be investigated. When the matter first came before H.M. Consul at Chefoo, the native authorities having failed to produce evidence to sustain the allegation that Mr. Fawcett had shot a Chinaman, Mr. Lay liberated him, and he was advised to place himself beyond the reach of Chinese vindictiveness, to do which he went to Japan.

We hear that the sentence of the Chehsien in the Yang Yeh-liu case has been confirmed, and that it now only remains to refer it to the Board of Punishments for approval, as is customary in grave cases. Our readers will remember the case as that of an actor who married the daughter of a Cantonese compradore. Cantonese society felt outraged; the unfortunate actor was tried, with fearful tortures, and ordered, after corporeal punishment, to be sent to his native province of Chihli. The case excited a great deal of controversy among the Chinese, the natives of the North sympathising with the victim of Cantonese influence. Under torture the unhappy man confessed to the crime with which he had been charged, that of abduction, though the legality of the marriage was apparent; but when he recovered he recanted, and underwent a process of bandying about from the lower to the higher Courts, with renewals of torture, which no doubt wore out his courage, so that he yielded at last to the persistency of his persecutors.

As the French mail steamer Sindh was proceeding down the river on the 16th August she collided with a small laden junk, which filled, and was afterwards drifted into the Soochow Creek, opposite to which the accident happened, where it sank. The junk had shortly before anchored direct in the fairway of the river, which carelessness caused the accident. No blame, we are informed, attaches to the steamer. The crew of the junk, who jumped overboard, were said to have been all saved, but the lowdah and others of their number state that there were more men on board, and that four of them were drowned. An eye-witness informs us that after the collision several of the junk's crew were seen struggling in the water, close to the steamer, but no effort was made to save their lives, not even a rope being thrown to them. Another eye-witness tells us, however, that the dangerous position into which the junk forced the steamer, regardless of repeated warnings from her whistle as she came down stream, was sufficient to warrant any amount of indifference to the fate of the Chinese crew. The Sindh had great difficulty in clearing the Costa Rica at the P.M.S. Wharf, and our informant thinks every one on board her must have been fully employed trying to extricate their own vessel.

On the 21st Aug. a cargo-boat crossing the river at ebb tide fouled the D'Estrees, French corvette, and capsized. The boat contained four persons, three men and a woman. The moment the accident was observed, a boat was lowered from the man-of-war, the crew of which succeeded in rescuing the woman, but the three men, a father and two sons, could not be found. Another accident has occurred at Hunt's Wharf, when a Chinaman, while in the act of unmooring a cargo-boat from the steamer Chinkiang, fell overboard and was drowned. It was dark at the time, and as there was a strong tide running no attempt was made to rescue the man. He was not seen after he fell into the water.

On the 19th August the Japanese corvette Rio-jio-kan, from Nagasaki, was observed to be outside the Red Buoy. The Rio-jio-kan is a wooden vessel, protected by a girdle of four-inch iron plates, three feet and a-half above and four feet under the water-line, and is not, therefore, an ironclad according to the ordinary application of the term. She is of 280-horse power, and carries twelve guns. The Rio-jio-kan brings his Excellency Okubo, the Japanese Special Envoy and Plenipotentiary to the Court of Peking. The Sin Nanzing was in readiness for his Excellency and suite, but instead of going North by her, the members of the embassy came on to Shanghai, and took up their quarters at the Aster House. Seven of their number left on the 21st August by the steamer Appin, for Tientsin; the Minister, with the remainder of his suite, left for Woosung on the 22nd, to embark in the Rio-jio-kan for the North.

The quickest outward passage of the present season, by other than a mail steamer, has been made by the Glenfinlas, a new vessel of 1,366 tons, belonging to Messrs. Macgregor, Gow, and Co., of London and Glasgow. She arrived at Woosung on the 19th August, at 5 P.M., having made the voyage from the Downs in forty-seven days eleven hours, or, deducting stoppages, in forty-one days thirteen hours' steaming. But the bar has lengthened her otherwise successful voyage, for she did not get over till the 20th, and then she ran upon the Pootung shore, and will have to be lightened considerably before she can come off.

General Le Gendre has arrived here from Amoy. We understand that General Le Gendre had a document read to him by the U.S. Marshal, the purport of which was that he was released, and that his case would not proceed to a trial. Americans seem to be mystified by the strangeness of the step from first to last, and the general impression is that it was at least premature.

On the 20th Aug., at the U.S. Consulate-General, the assessment of the arbitrators, Messrs. H. Viguier, Joseph Haas, and J. B. Boswell, in the case of the collision between the P. M. S. S. Golden Age and the junk Nirh-jee Shun, was read by Mr. Seward, Consul-General. The damage caused to both vessels by the collision has been equally apportioned between them, and the junk's share is reduced to a comparatively insignificant sum.

Amongst the cargo per Costa Rica, on her last trip from Japan, was a large Blakeley rifled gun, weighing about nine tone, with a quantity of shot and shell for the piece, the destination of which is said to be Foochow. The solid shot for the gun weigh each 200 lbs. On account of the want of a crane at the P. M. S. S. Wharf, much labour and expense was incurred in landing so heavy a piece of ordnance, a temporary one of considerable power and dimensions having to be erected.

Very severe weather has been felt on the coast of Formosa. A letter from Amoy, dated the 15th Aug., says :—"Bad news has just come to hand from Takow. A British barque, Caroline Hutchins, went ashore between Apes Hill and the entrance of the Harbour; all hands were lost. I have not heard the particulars, as the intelligence has been brought over by a junk, but, from what I do know, I think she must have dragged across the bar from the outside, where she had been at anchor, during the gale. The weather there has been very severe ever since the 13th."

A party of astronomers, consisting of M. Fleuriais, hydrographer to the French navy, M. Blariez, and M. Lapied, has arrived to take observations of the Transit of Venus in China.

A large junk, laden with poles, has been sunk in the river, below Collier's Dock. She appears to have had her stern cut clean away. How the mishap occurred has not transpired.

The Peking Gazettes swarm with accounts of the malversation, tyranny, and abuse of functions by the local magnates and people of influence.

FORMOSA.

The Japanese Expedition.

There is literally no news of the position of affairs in Formosa; a perfect calm prevails, and, judging from the aspect of matters, it is not in this instance likely to be the proverbial forerunner of a storm. The statement is made on good Chinese authority that the difficulty is to be, if it has not already been, referred to the arbitration of the Foreign Ministers at Peking, but probably nothing will be done till the arrival of the special Japanese Envoy, Okubo. A foreign emissary from the Japanese Government, under an assumed name, is said to have left Japan for Shanghai, to ascertain the strength of the Chinese navy, its armament, and the extent of its warlike resources. This fact, coupled with the purchase of steamers for transport service, is significant, and belies the assertion so continually put forward, as to there being no probability of war between the two countries.

A correspondent of the China Mail writes :—There is nothing new; everything is in statu quo, with the exception of the Chinese pushing ahead every preparation for a conflict. If China is forced to expel the Japanese by force, it is not at all improbable that she will follow up the movement by an invasion of Japan. The Emperor has, I hear, sanctioned the purchase of ten ironclads, and a foreign loan of $30,000,000 or $40,000,000 is mooted. This will probably receive the Imperial sanction too. As far as I can judge the Chinese navy seems to be very efficient, the armament some of the ships carry is very powerful; for instance, the corvette Yang-woo carries fourteen guns, most of which are seven tons in weight, throwing shells of 120 lbs. or 150 lbs., I don't recollect which. The guns of the other ships of war have been changed for more powerful ones, even a moderate-sized gunboat carries five sixty-two pounder Krupp guns, breech-loading, with two small brass guns; such is the armament of the Chingyuen, a vessel much smaller than the Anlan or the Feiyuen. The engines of most of the steamers are built below the water line. The steamers are mostly fast vessels, the Yang-woo can go about fourteen knots in ordinary weather with steam alone, while others can average between nine and ten knots. Of the two frigates built at Shanghai one is to be stationed here; she will arrive shortly.

The steamer Hankow, arrived at Shangai, reports having passed the Aden, Leeyune, and Yungching, and four other Chinese transports, all laden with troops embarked at Chinkiang, lying at anchor at the North Tree. The fleet is reported to have since passed Woosung, and will rendezvous at the Pescadores.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 29th August; the French mail from London July 17 was received on the 24th August. The China Mail gives the following account of the seizure of the Spark by pirates and murder of the captain and officers :—

A terrible tragedy occurred on the 22nd Aug. on board the steamer Spark, on its voyage from Canton to Macao. Chinese pirates who had embarked as passengers made an onslaught on the crew and passengers near Bocca Tigris, murdered the captain, mate, and purser, and wounded most dangerously the only European passenger and the whole crew. After the pirates had been in possession of the steamer for six hours a junk came over from the shore to take them and their booty. The Chinese engineers brought the steamer over to Macao, where it arrived on the 23rd Aug. Viscount Sam Januario immediately sent the gunboat Camoens to search the Canton river, and is taking all the necessary measures. It was owing to the fact of some of the firemen concealing themselves during the melée that they escaped slaughter and were able to get the vessel off shore, and take her to Macao when the pirates had departed. The agents of the Company on receiving the news despatched the White Cloud at once to Macao, and Mr. G. Heard, Captain Sands, Mr. Ray and an officer sent by Commodore Parish, to whom the intelligence was at once communicated, went with that vessel. The gunboat Elk also was despatched at once to render assistance. Sincere regret is felt for the loss of Captain Brady, who has been long in command of the steamer, and was well known andgenerally respected on the coast. The Mail gives the subjoined additional particulars :—

When the news of the outrage was brought to Macao, Capt. Carroll, Mr. Deacon, and the Governor's Secretary went off to the Spark, which was cruising about in a purposeless manner to and fro in the harbour. No rockets were fired or other signals made from the Spark. Besides the captain, mate, and purser killed, and Mr. Mundy dangerously wounded, two of the seamen are reported missing. The first attack was made at half-past noon yesterday off the Island of Lankit. The pirates were taken off by a Hakka boat at half-past six, having been in possession of the steamer six hours. Seven thousand dollars, in notes of the Hong Kong Banks and in silver, were taken from the purser. The incentive to the outrage is supposed to have arisen in a rumour to the effect that a gambling-house proprietor was going down to Macao from Canton in the Spark with $18,000 in his possession. This appears to have been a false report, but that the pirates had belief in its accuracy is borne out by the fact that they ransacked and rifled the luggage of all the passengers, whom they forced below and kept there, battening down the hatches. The pirates were more than twenty in number, and took passage at Canton. They got up a disturbance by fighting with sticks. The mate went down to part them, when the men assaulted him. He called the captain, who also went down. The pirates fired at Capt. Brady, one bullet striking him in the shoulder. He ran to the upper deck, got a revolver, and returned below. He then attempted to fire on the pirates, but his weapon repeatedly missed fire. The unfortunate captain was thus entirely at the mercy of his assailants, and a fierce onslaught was made upon him. One of the pirates stabbed him in the knee; another cut him on the wrist with a sword, others shot him, and some again speared him. There were thirty-two wounds upon his body when found. On the lower part of the back was a serious wound, which probably proved fatal, and having severed the spinal column must have at once disabled him.

Captain Carroll describes the scene on board the Spark as horrible. The decks were covered with blood. Brady was found in his cabin dead, lying on the floor with one arm raised in the air, his whole body a mass of wounds, and saturated with gore. Mr. Mundy was on the fore-deck, fearfully wounded and still insensible. Near him lay four dead sailors. Mr. Mundy was the only European passenger on board, and he offered a brave and determined resistance. He knocked down two of the pirates, and was engaged with the others, when he was stabbed twice in the breast. The weapons were evidently aimed at his heart, but fortunately did not reach there; the left lung is believed to be pierced, but Mr. Mundy is much better than might have been expected, and there are good hopes of his ultimate recovery. Had he been able to effect his purpose of joining the captain, a better account might have been given of the robbers. Nine persons altogether were killed in the affray, namely, the captain, the mate, the purser, one fireman, one Chinaman, and four passengers. The Chinaman was occupying the cabin of the compradore, and the pirates, no doubt, mistook him for that officer. It is impossible as yet to say who are the dead passengers; but it is thought they formed part of the gang of pirates. There were about 150 passengers on board in all. Both mate and purser also bravely resisted the attack, and did all that could be done; but they were, of course, soon overpowered. When very badly wounded, and seeing further resistance useless, they are said to have jumped overboard. One of the firemen was also killed, and it was owing to the fact of the others secreting themselves that the vessel ever reached Macao. Captain Carroll's opinion is that Brady must have been carried to his cabin and laid there. Out of twenty-two cases of silk on board only eight or ten pounds were taken; but, as among the property stolen from Mr. Mundy there were several English sovereigns, it is to be hoped that these and the lost notes may afford a clue to the discovery of the robbers.

The Canton and Macao Steam-boat Company have offered the sum of $2,000 for information which will lead to the apprehension of the pirates. The Governor of Macao took most careful measures, and did what seemed best under the circumstances. The passengers by the Spark were put on board the Police Hulk, and examined. Before leaving they were required to give their names, addresses, and occupations. Thus their attendance, if necessary, at any investigation is secured. The compradore, it should be stated, who received a wound during the attack, is amongst those who came to Macao. The body of poor Captain Brady—an old and valued servant of the company, and a man largely respected —was buried at Macao, Mr. H. Ebell reading the funeral service. Almost every European in the settlement followed the remains to the grave. The Spark has now been taken off the line; her place being supplied by the White Cloud. The Camoens, Portuguese gunboat, which had been sent up the Canton river to search for the pirates, has returned to Macao, her cruise having been so far unsuccessful.

The following items of intelligence are also from the China Mail :—

One of the most successful expeditions ever made in search of thieves has just been brought to a conclusion by Mr. Newitt, the acting superintendent of the Eastern Australasian and China Telegraph Company, who, thanks to the admirable way in which the Macao authorities aided his wishes, has succeeded in discovering the rascals who recently stole a portion of the cable. It appears that an informer came to Hong Kong, and calling on Mr. Newitt, stated that he could point out the junks which cut and stole the cable. Mr. Newitt accordingly went over to Macao and called upon the Governor, who promised him every assistance in the object of his visit. Arrangements were made (as the thieving junks had left Macao) to hire a junk that could be depended upon to go over at night to Typa and try and hook the cable, which, it was reported, the thieves had thrown overboard at that anchorage. This was accordingly done, the junk succeeding in hooking and getting inboard some fifty yards, together with remnants of gutta-percha and other material, evidently stripped off lengths of the cable preparatory to selling it as wire. The stolen cable was taken to Macao, where it was lodged in the Custom House for safety and secrecy, and preparations were made for the capture of the junks on board of which were the thieves. Two steamers left, having on board Mr. Mesnier, private secretary to the Governor, who accompanied Mr. Newitt. Two boats were lowered and manned with crews fully armed. The junk was lying close in shore, and the party, suddenly boarding her, seized and bound the whole crew before they had time to offer any resistance. There were seventeen prisoners in all, including the master, his wife and five children. They were tried and the sentences passed were as follows :—For the master and his wife, fifteen years' imprisonment, with hard labour; the sailor who first pleaded an alibi got four years' hard labour—the sentences in both cases to be carried out in Timor. The junk to be sold, and the proceeds handed over to the credit of the Telegraph Company, after deducting expenses. The rest of the prisoners were acquitted.

An outrage of a nature calculated to give rise to a question of much importance has been perpetrated by a Chinese mandarin junk at Lamma Island. This vessel, it appears, fired upon a fishing junk, and wounded three of its crew, who are now in the Civil Hospital; and as the shots were fired in British territory (Lamma lying within the boundaries of Hong Kong and its dependencies according to the latitude and longitude laid down in the charter of the Colony), it will become a question whether it will not be the duty of the Government to enforce satisfaction. The story told is that the mandarin junk came to the station and demanded a squeeze, on the ground that the fishermen ought to have a licence from Canton, and on the money being refused, went away and fired, as already stated. A curious question has been raised as to whether Lama Island belongs to the Colony, but we understand a reference has proved that there is no doubt of the fact. We learn that it is probable the subject will be brought forward at the Legislative Council.

The following account of the average amount of bank notes in circulation and specie in reserve in Hong Kong, during the month ending 31st July, 1874, is published in the Gazette :—

The embellishments of St. John's Cathedral have received a very handsome addition. Lady Smale has presented the Cathedral with a set of beautiful altar rail cushions, embroidered in gold. All who have seen it are much pleased with the beauty of the work, and are delighted to find that the Church has so good a friend. The work was executed at Canton.

At the just concluded Criminal Session of the Supreme Court, two Chinese prisoners named Lum Aloi and Wong Asam, repectively charged with perjury, and liberated on bail, did not answer to their names. Their bails were accordingly escheated to the extent of $200 each.

The Austrian war steamer Archduke Friedrich, from Singapore 2nd August, came into harbour on the 15th August, and saluted the British flag. The salute was returned from the Princess Charlotte and the saluting battery.

The Chinaman, Lee Lum Kwai, charged with extortion for threatening to procure the rendition of another Chinese to the native Government unless heavily feed, has been committed for trial at the Supreme Court.

An Ordinance embodying the scattered legislation regarding merchant shipping, and containing some important local regulations, is passing through the Legislative Council. The Council next meets on the 31st August.

A native "Ta Tsiu" festival, now in progress, has provoked strong remonstrances from the European population.

The following items of news are from the Overland Trade Report:—

Great complaints have been made with reference to the failure of the Chinese officials at Foochow to take any steps to prevent the robbery of the cargo of the steamer Canton, recently wrecked on Min Reef. Although the matter was at once represented to them by H.M. Consul, and there were two European-built gunboats in the port, they did nothing, and allowed the valuable cargo to become the prey of wreckers. A protest has been sent by the Foochow Chamber of Commerce to H.B.M. Consul, who has promised to represent the matter to the Chinese authorities. The latter are bound by treaty to adopt measures for the security of British vessels which may become stranded on the China coast, and it is clear that in the present instance, although they could easily have done so, they failed to take any steps whatever.

The ordinary half-yearly meeting of the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock Company took place on the 24th August. The report showed a surplus of about $28,000, and left the question of dividend to be decided by the meeting. The Chairman said that the directors had not felt justified in recommending a dividend, as there were sundry amounts to be provided for, among others an old debt of $5,000, which had been taken over when the Union Company was purchased, which appeared as an asset to that company, and was an amount due by the Spanish Government as a guarantee for work, and which there was little chance of recovering. The report was adopted, and after some discussion it was agreed to be unadvisable to declare any dividend.

An extraordinary meeting of the shareholders in the China Fire Insurance Office was held on the 25th August, when a resolution confirming that passed on the 11th, for an alteration in the Articles of Association, to permit the investment of a portion of the funds in foreign securities was passed.

HONG KONG, AUGUST 29, 1874.

That the namby-pamby, subservient, kowtowing, and servile policy, vis-a-vis the Peking authorities, adopted and followed with but too faithful consistency by the representatives of the British Government in China, should have resulted in an almost complete erasure of the prestige painfully acquired by the sacrifice of men and money fourteen years ago is hardly surprising. To those who know the Chinese mind and its utter callousness to any sentiment but that of contempt on one hand and awe on the other, the pursuit of such a policy, the maintenance of such a prostrate attitude as Great Britain through her sinologic representatives has of late carried out and assumed, could only eventuate in a position of affairs which might be worse, and could hardly be better, than now exists in China. When our representative wanted to present his great nation's congratulations to the effete stripling who sits on the throne of China on the occasion of the potentate's marriage, he took, vicariously for the power he represents, a slap in the face; and now China concludes, from a process of reasoning peculiarly Chinese, that every part of the body she then insulted with impunity may be assaulted in its turn. The latest treaty with China provides that any Chinese subject who shall have taken refuge under British protection shall, upon proof of his having committed any offence against Chinese law, be delivered up to his own authorities. To us, who know how easy it is for any person in authority, not of the highest necessarily, to adduce proof of anything, such a stipulation seems absurd; but when we know that in delivering a Chinaman to be dealt with by the laws of his country, if he should happen to be obnoxious to any one in power, we are delivering him to the certainty of the most refined kinds of torture, it appears somewhat barbarous. But the concession of a right she should never have possessed — the admission of China to treaty rights at all—has another aspect, and one which affects our national dignity, which is of more importance far, as regards our relations with China, than our national reputation for humanity. The Chinese Government has a right to claim the rendition of any of its subjects who may have committed outrages even upon British nationals in Chinese territory or waters. A case in point occurred the other day, or only a few weeks ago. A Hong Kong junk was pirated in Chinese waters. The pirates were taken and brought to Hong Kong, where proof of their guilt was clearly established. A demand was made for them by the authorities at Canton. No proof was needed as to the locale of their outrage. The fact was clear, and was admitted that it was within Chinese jurisdiction, and accordingly the men were given over to their own countrymen for punishment. It is positively asserted, and I, who do not take things on mere report, believe it, that they were under Mandarin protection, and were discharged at once. Certainly no account of their punishment has been sent to Hong Kong. But let that pass.

Within the last fortnight a mandarin junk, probably one of those boats in the service of the Viceroy of Canton which are employed to collect the Customs revenue, and really blockade Hong Kong so effectually that not a junk can pass to or from that island without incurring the certainty of a squeeze, and running the risk of confiscation, fired upon a village on Lamma Island, a patch coming within the limits of the charter of Hong Kong, and wounded or killed several of the inhabitants. There is no news of the Mandarin junk being called to account; but an idea prevails here—incredulous as our people are becoming about the Home Government troubling itself about any of these things—that this is an outrage which will at least be inquired into. But the sombre aspect of trifles like these pales before the magnitude of the blackness of the last horror I have to report. Six days ago, last Saturday morning, the Hong Kong, Macao, and Canton steamer Spark, having on board her Captain Brady, a man well-known and much respected here, three Portuguese officers of the ship, and a crew of eight Chinese, left Canton as usual in the forenoon for Macao. Among other merchandise she carried one hundred and fifty Chinese, passengers apparently of the ordinary sort. One European gentleman, named Mundy, an employé of Messrs. Deacon and Co., unfortunately for himself, took his passage in the ill-fated vessel. Monsieur Dabry de Thiervant, the French Consul at Canton, had fully intended to go to Macao the same day in the same vessel. An unforeseen, apparently annoying, but really providential trifle prevented him from carrying into effect his intention. Before I go any further, I may as well mention, for the sake of those who may know Mr. Mundy at home, that he is alive, and, if not well, at least likely to recover soon from the effects of his voyage. He is the survivor of the catastrophe. Just at the moment when the steamer was leaving the Canton wharf, a man, attended by two coolies carrying a chest, hurried to the vessel and deposited the chest on board. By one of those supreme accidents which may be the result of human accuracy of calculation, or may be an arrangement of fate, inscrutable and disastrous, the chest so arrived on board that the Customs official on the wharf had neither time to search it nor to have it brought ashore, and so the vessel steamed away tranquilly to sea with a case full of arms, and a crowd of pirates able and willing to use them. For, among the not comparatively numerous and apparently unremarkable Chinese passengers, were no fewer than thirty of the Pearl River pirates. These had laid their plans with sufficient cunning. They commanded success if they did not deserve it. The Captain was so familiar with that latent danger incurred by every European who makes a passage on board a vessel with a crowd of Chinese passengers that the moment of active peril found him unprepared. At a preconcerted moment, soon after noon, when the Spark on her downward passage had passed the two daily up river steamers, one from Canton, the other from Macao, the pirates commenced a fictitious row on the middle deck. I should mention that our river boats here are built on the same principle as the American ones. The first and second classes are on the upper deck, the saloon being forward. The middle deck is devoted to the deck or third-class passengers. The mate, when he heard the riot increase in intensity, ran aft and went below, endeavouring, no doubt, to quell it in the usual summary way. The pirates quelled him, and continued their noise. The purser next went below, and was either forced overboard, or killed and thrown into the river. Captain Brady, who was in his cabin at the time—probably the two previous murders only occupied as many minutes—seized his revolver, and in his turn ran aft and went below. A pistol shot met him in the shoulder, and he was set upon by the ruffians. His revolver would not go off, but snapped repeatedly. He then had to fight his way to the upper deck, which he reached, with thirty-two wounds. It was then Mr. Mundy's turn. This gentleman, armed only with nature's weapons, saw the captain struggling to the deck, and went to his assistance. He knocked down at least two of the pirates with his fists, and then fell himself, overpowered by numbers. Before he became insensible he had strength enough left to take his rings off his fingers, the pirates giving him the alternative of doing so or having rings and fingers cut away together. The compradore of the steamer, a Chinaman, wisely left his cabin and mixed with the passengers, a precaution which saved his life, for a Chinese passenger who was close to his room was killed in mistake for him. Four others were also killed, but whether they were bonâ-fide passengers or some of the pirate band has not transpired. The engineer was also disposed of, but when or in what manner, owing to the confusion and the impossibility of getting an accurate account from the terrified Chinese passengers and crew, is unknown. Until past six in the evening the robbers remained in possession of their prize, when a Hakka junk came off from the shore and took them and their booty away. They secured at least $7,000 in silver and notes of the Hong Kong banks. This was the property of the company. What they got from the passengers, whose boxes they impartially rifled, is merely matter of conjecture. It is a curious fact that some $60 in a drawer in Capt. Brady's cabin should have escaped them. When they had fairly vacated the vessel, the Chinese crew and firemen, who had secreted themselves or mixed with the passengers, took charge of the vessel, and managed to arrive at Macao about midnight, where the Spark was boarded by Capt. Carroll, of the Poyang, the Governor's secretary, and one or two other gentlemen, who found a hideous scene of carnage. Life was found in Mr. Mundy, who was taken ashore and tended. Means were taken to secure the future appearance of all the passengers; a Portuguese gun-boat was at once despatched to search for the pirates, the news was sent to Hong Kong in a steam launch, and the authorities at Canton were at once communicated with. It is but doing justice to these latter to say that they have done their best to secure the apprehension of the pirates; but up to the time of the mail leaving (Saturday, 29th August, 10 A.M.) no capture is reported. I do not mean to say that the Chinese Mandarins, at least those in high places, are in any way responsible for or connected with this outrage; but I do say that it has arisen from the gradual death of the terror of the British name which the wholesome lessons of years gone by inspired in the Chinese mind. To me there is no more certain sign of the times, no more fatal index of our loss of moral weight in the balance of Chinese estimation, than this successful outrage, perpetrated in broad daylight upon a steam-vessel sailing under the protection of the British flag. If matters progress as they have done of late that flag will be no protection at all in these seas, but will serve to show who may be safely insulted by the officials, and robbed and murdered with impunity by the piratical populace of the Celestial Empire.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 5th September; no later mail from London had been received. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times:—

The meeting of the Tanjong Pagar Dock Company (Limited) was held at the company's office on the 25th August.

The report and accounts having been taken as read, it was moved—That the directors' report and accounts as now presented be passed. To this an amendment was proposed by Mr. Powell, seconded by Mr. Mansfield—That the directors' report and accounts as now presented be adopted, with the exception that the words "an ad interim dividend of 4 per cent." be expunged, and the words "a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum" be substituted. The amendment being put to the vote, resulted in a show of hands, for the amendment, ten, against it, ten. The Chairman gave his casting vote against the amendment. A poll was then demanded by five shareholders, and on votes being taken, 152 votes were recorded for the amendment, and 331 against it; the Chairman then declared the amendment as lost. It was then proposed by the Chairman, seconded by Mr. Suhl, "That an ad interim dividend at the rate of four per cent. for the half-year ending 30th June last be declared." On a show of hands, the Chairman declared the proposition carried. It was then proposed by Mr. Wood, seconded by Mr. Harper, "That it being considered desirable to construct a new Graving Dock, the directors be empowered to take such steps as may be necessary to ascertain the cost of such a work." A shareholder objected to the proposition, on the ground that there was no necessity for another dock. After discussion, the question being put to the vote, showed, for nine, against three. The chairman then declared the resolution carried. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman and directors, for their exertions in the interests of the company.

The following intelligence from Atchin is extracted from the mail summary of the Indier of the 26th August:—Little news has been received from Atchin. There have been varying reports from all quarters, but the state of affairs is, generally speaking, not more unfavourable. Colonel Pel has stopped further operations for a short time. More States may gradually hoist our flag (there are some the submission of which was announced months ago which now openly acknowledge the Netherlands' supremacy), but so long as Great Atchin, Pedir, and Simpang Olim persist in their resistance, the state of affairs will remain as before. The Atchinese have, after an interval of a few days, begun again to fire upon us continually. The commander deems it necessary to capture some other well fortified positions in order to be secure, at least to a certain extent. The Batavia Handesblad of the 26th Aug. says that while some of the small Atchinese States are hoisting the Dutch flag, armed men are at the same time setting out from them to harass the Dutch at Kotta Rajah.

Allusion was recently made to disturbances in the Malay State of Salangore. Since then, it has transpired that the trouble arose through ill feeling between two Chinese factions near Sunghie Ujong,—a rich tin mining district,—which at one time threatened to culminate in a serious outbreak. This has, happily, been prevented through the influence of this Government, and an amicable settlement of the differences has been effected and the headmen bound over in heavy sureties to preserve the peace.

An inquiry has been instituted before the Executive Council into the condition of the public service, and the relation of the various office-bearers to their offices, as also for the investigation of any charges of maladministration that may be brought forward, and the meetings are open to the public. Three meetings have been held, but the inquiry is not yet sufficiently advanced to warrant public notice of its proceedings. So far, however, there appears to be no ground whatever to imagine that our public service is not as efficient and as incorrupt as we could wish it.

Notwithstanding many reductions in postage and the completion of postal conventions with neighbouring Governments, by which postage to those places is now chargeable only once on mail matter, instead of twice, as formerly, the cost of local postage is still heavy compared with other parts of the world, especially on newspapers and other printed matter. It is therefore gratifying to learn that our Postmaster-General, having reduced the postage on letters between the Settlements of the Colony by private steamers to two cents, is now endeavouring to obtain a reduction on newspaper postage to one cent within the Colony and to two cents to all places east of Suez,—a recommendation that, if carried out, will be heartily welcomed by all mercantile men, whose prices current and market reports now cost them a large sum monthly.

The Hadji Arshad gaming-house appeal case has again been brought before the Supreme Court and the judgment set aside, on the ground that the respondent—the Inspector General of Police,—had not been served with a notice of the hearing on appeal, as required by the Ordinance. This, however, does not affect the interpretation of the law as expounded by the Chief Justice in his decision on this case; but as the appellant could not bring up his appeal a second time, the only course open to him is to petition the Government for the remission of the fine imposed by the magistrate under a mistaken conception of the law.

The vacancy in the Legislative Council caused by the death of Mr. Forbes Scott Brown, the unofficial member for Penang, has been filled by the appointment of Mr. Walter Scott, of the firm of Messrs. Brown and Co., of that Settlement, a most judicious selection, which has given great satisfaction. Among minor official changes to notice we may mention that Mr. A. W. Skinner, Inspector of Schools, Hospitals, and Prisons, has been appointed Acting Assistant Colonial Secretary, vice Mr. E. H. Watts, and that Mr. R. W. Hullett, Principal of the Raffles Institution, takes up Mr. Skinner's duties. Captain Walshe, police magistrate, goes home on six months' leave of absence.

The ball at the Government House, in commemoration of Her Majesty's birthday, came off as announced on the 3rd Sept., when the hospitality of Sir Andrew and Lady Clarke was extended to one of the largest gatherings of the residents ever assembled there, who were entertained right royally.

The Lodge of Good Templars formed here about a year ago has proved a successful institution, and numbers now about fifty members, who are rapidly drawing others into their order. The lodge gave a very successful entertainment, at which some two or three hundred persons were present. The programme consisted of songs, dialogues, and harangues bearing upon the objects of the order, and temperance refreshments were freely distributed during a half-hour intermission. We understand the lodge is now in a most flourishing condition.

The Rifle Competition between seven officers and non-commissioned officers of 1-10th Regiment and an equal number of the S. V. C., has been brought off at the Rifle Butts and proved one of the most exciting matches that has ever taken place here. During the last three or four rounds each corps lost and won alternately, and the match was so closely contested that the last shot was sufficient to give the championship to either side. Unfortunately for the S. V. C., they missed it, and 1-10th Regiment were declared the winners by three points.

A fatal accident has occurred on board the steamer Bangkok during her passage down from Bangkok. Two days after leaving port, one of the native firemen, by some unaccountable means, fell into the crank well and was crushed almost to a jelly by the crank. An alarm was given and the steam shut off immediately to stop the engine, but before it could be brought to a stand-still the body was fearfully mangled. It was then taken out, and after prayers by the Mahomedan crew, it was stitched up in canvas and committed to the deep.

A new dwelling house in course of erection on Mount Sophia, fell while the roof was being put on, burying six workmen in the ruins. One of them escaped with a few bruises, and was able to walk home, but the other five were more or less injured, and had to be sent to hospital, where, we learn, they are doing well. The accident was, no doubt, due to defective construction of the building.

A warder has been assaulted by two prisoners in the criminal prison. The offenders were tried before two visiting justices and flogged.

IMPORTS.

Newchwang.—Messrs. Bush Brothers state, that manufactures had been placed in considerable quantities at improved rates, and that the demand for heavy goods continued. Grey Shirtings, 8¼-lbs., were Tls. 1.74.; 10-lbs., Tls. 3.20 for Dragon and Lion chops; T-Cloths, 7-lbs., Tls. 1.46 to Tls. 1.49, Globe; 8-lbs. Eagle, Tls. 1.82; best 15-lbs. English Drills, Tls. 2.98; American, Tls. 3.60.

Hankow.—The market had continued in the same dull state as previously noticed. Sales had been on the most moderate scale, prices showing little or no change.

Shanghai.—There had been but little change, the market generally having continued without animation, though transactions in the aggregate had been fairly large, considering the adverse advices lately received from the outports. Prices remained in most instances without alteration.

Hong Kong.—There was nothing in the Import market calling for any particular remark; values had undergone little or no change, and the sales reported showed rather less business in progress than during the previous fortnight. The Chinese were buying with great caution, and in some cases prices have been barely maintained.

Batavia.—The general position of the market for imports had undergone little change; business for this season of the year was unusually inactive. For some descriptions of Dutch staples there continued to be a fair demand owing to the lightness of stocks. The only arrival had been the steamer Prins van Oranje, and a good portion of her supplies of Madapollams and Calicoes had been placed for arrival at about previous currencies. English Grey and White Goods were in heavy stock and much neglected; Yarns also were dull of sale.

Singapore.—The market for Grey Cotton staples has been dull and depressed. Most articles had slightly declined in price, and business had been limited.

Penang.—No important change had taken place in the market during the fortnight—transactions had been exceedingly limited and quotations generally were unaltered.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

Hankow.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer and Co.'s Report says:—Shortly after departure of our last, dated 4th Aug., the third crop Teas began to make their appearance, and the business of the fortnight has been entirely in this class. As usual, only a small portion of the Teas have been shown on this market, the bulk going direct to Shanghai. Our opening rates rre rather higher than those of last year, but we have a much lower exchange and cheaper freight in our favour, at the same time, we have been paying higher prices than Teamen can get in Shanghai. Settlements are:—5,611 chests, 9,492 half-chests, 200 boxes at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 4d. per lb.; 1,344 half-chests at 11½d. to 1s. 0¾d. Among other settlements, several parcels of Oonfa have been bought at Tls. 16 to 20, and a few Shuntam-packed Teas at Tls. 14½ to 15, one very common lot being taken at Tls. 12¾ per picul. As regards the quality of the third crop, it is disappointing after what we had been led by Teamen, with their contiuual reports of favourable weather, to expect. It is barely up to the average in our opinion: some of the better parcels will compare with last year's but certainly are not better. Export keeps within bounds as compared with last year, although arrivals to date are a million in excess. As there will be a steamer for Shanghai in a day or two at Tls. 2 freight, most of the recent settlements are being kept back in order to secure the cheap rate, otherwise we would probably have had a larger export for this mail. Teamen seem to agree that the third crop is a large one or can be made so; if prices in Shanghai are remunerative, fresh orders will at once go up country to pack more Tea.

Kiukiang.—Black Teas: 100 chops, amounting to 15,686 chests, had arrived during the fortnight, out of which four chops (700 chests) had been settled—Tls. 20.5.0 being the highest rate paid. Total arrivals, 157,946 chests. Green Teas: Total arrivals, 10,796 half-chests.

Shanghai.—Black: The amount of business transacted during the fortnight had again been very large, and, with the exception of the commoner Teas, which showed a slight decline, there had been but little change in values. The market closed with a good demand at current rates. A considerable portion of the settlements were being shipped by sailing vessel. Supplies had come forward freely, even for the time of year, and with the remunerative prices ruling for common Teas, the almost inexhaustible manufactories of Shuntaam and Hohow were likely for a time to be brought into full play. Settlements for the fortnight, 47,000 chests; re-shipments, 3,460 chests; stock, 32,000 packages. Green: A few chops of Tuckhing Moyunes had been shown, and had found buyers at prices Tls. 2 above last year's opening rates. In water and appearance they were much the same as first arrivals of last season. A large business had been done during the fortnight, considering the high range of prices, and the great discrepancy existing between cost here and home value. A decline of Tls. 1 to 2 from the extreme opening rates had been established. Pingsueys were meeting with some attention at about last quotations. The following were about the prices paid:—Country Tea, Tls. 33½ to 45½ per picul; Pingsuey, Tls. 17 to 40; Local-packed, Tls. 40. Settlements, 50,418 half-chests; reshipments 2,275 half-chests; stocks 61,340 half-chests.

Foochow.—A quieter feeling had prevailed during the week, and settlements showed a considerable falling off. Congou: Settlements had been 11,800 chests, at Tls. 6½ to 23, and a few small lots of boxes t Tls. 24 to 26. Teamen had been more willing sellers of all grades and teas below medium showed a decline at about half a tael. Third crop teas were coming to hand; arrivals 24,700 chests. Souchong; Settlements 1,050 chests, at Tls. 14 to 34. Prices without alteration. Arrivals 3,000 chests. Oolong: Settlements 1,000 half-chests at Tls. 18½ to Tls. 21, being about previous rates. Arrivals 6,100 half-chests. Scented Teas had been in good demand at prices maintaining the decline noticed in the last issue—settlements amounting to 10,400 boxes at Tls. 19¼ to 26 for Orange Pekoe, and Tls. 19 to 23¼ for Capers. Arrivals 5,800 boxes. Flowery Pekoe: Settlements 140 chests at Tls. 38. Arrivals nil.

Amoy and Tamsui.—Some further purchases of Oolongs had been made, principally for shipment to New York by the steamer Bengal, though some of the best Teas were reported to be going via Southampton and by the Pacific Mail route. The prices paid had generally been $3 to $5 per picul over last season's opening figures. Oolong statistics were:—Arrivals, 129,864 half-chests; settlements, 23,021 half-chests; and stock, 106,843 half-chests. Advices from Tamsui are to the 18th instant, at which time prices were unchanged, except for lower grades, which were quoted somewhat cheaper. The total export to America of new Formosa Oolongs was about 1,000,000 lbs.

Canton.—Messrs. Deacon and Co's Report says:—Quietness has characterised our Tea market during the interval since last mail. Home advices continue of the most discouraging nature, and Teamen do not offer much inducement to operators by making any concession in price, the value of raw leaf in the country being firmly maintained. Congous: No Settlements have been made here, but extensive contracts are reported in Macao at Tls. 14 to 19 per picul.—Scented Teas: Capers are unchanged in value, and the assortment of desirable quality is reduced to a small compass. Orange Pekoes have, in some instances, gone at prices the turn in favour of buyers but purchases have been very moderate. The fortnight's business is summarised as follows:—Scented Orange Pekoe, 2,500 boxes at Tls. 19 to 24 per picul. Scented Caper, 8,000 boxes at Tls. 17 to 24.

THE HONG KONG BANK MEETING.

The Chairman of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank certainly possesses the suaviter in modo in an eminent degree. In his address to the shareholders at Hong Kong on August 19, which we published in the London and China Telegraph of Oct. 5, he describes in the most agreeable manner all the ugly losses sustained by the bank. These losses came upon the directors from all quarters. The branches at Yokohama, Shanghai, Calcutta, and even London, all contribute their quota of bad debts. Headquarters seems to be spared from mention in the category, but if all accounts are true, the Hong Kong Establishment figures for a considerable sum on the wrong side, owing chiefly to exchange operations, but with Mr. Greig at his side, the Chairman seems to have spared him from any unpleasant remarks on his management of the bank's affairs. But more remarkable than the Chairman's ability to "make things pleasant" is the conduct of the shareholders. No questions asked—everything taken for granted—and no attempt to criticise any of the transactions by which such enormous losses were incurred, leading to no dividend and a heavy wipe off the reserve fund. The shareholders in England, however, are not so well satisfied at the altered condition and appearance of their property, and the loss of dividend is a serious matter to many who hold shares and rely on their dividends as part of their income, to be deprived of which is a serious inconvenience. It would have been more satisfactory if the meeting had discussed the report presented for their approval, which seems to have passed without any challenge whatever. What is to be understood by the vague allusion to the losses made by the London branch? The Chairman is reported to have said, "The most severe loss comes to us from London. Our "manager there had, on his own responsibility and with- "out our knowledge or consent, made some considerable "transactions in bonds and securities outside of English "and Indian Government paper, and the result has been "a heavy loss. We have considered it advisable and best "in your interest to provide fully for this loss, though we "do not accept it on account of the Bank, and in the mean- "time we have asked for explanations."

This implies a grave dereliction of duty on the part of Mr. Vacher, the London Manager, and it is hardly fair to him to make such ambiguous statements. What, for example, are we to understand by "we do not accept it on account of the Bank." Does it imply that the transactions were entered into on Mr. Vacher's private account, and that the Bank look to him to make good the losses? It is to be hoped that Mr. Vacher will himself make some reply to these charges publicly made against him. The supineness of the Hong Kong shareholders in not questioning this matter at the meeting, is to be regretted by all who have the permanent interests of the Bank at heart. The supineness of the Directors in not taking vigorous action in respect to the serious losses incurred is astounding. The most flagrant dereliction and incompetency have been shown to exist in the staff of managers, and yet no one is dismissed or suspended. The Directors simply "ask for explanations," and we presume hesitate to take decided measures until further crushing losses shall have been sustained.

AUSTRALIA VIA SINGAPORE.

This line is one of considerable importance, forming not only a new link between the colonies and this country, but connecting as it does the large and closely allied markets of China, the Straits, and Australia, which have hitherto been without regular communication. The Company's fleet now consists of the Singapore, the Somerset, the Brisbane, the Normanby, and the Bowen, vessels of full power, and especially fitted for tropical countries. The first-class accommodation is all above the main deck, and forward of the engines, thus avoiding the heat and smell. Arrangements have been made, by which passengers from England may book through to Queensland and New South Wales by steamers of the Messageries Maritimes from Marseilles, and by the Glen, Castle, and China lines from London. The advantages which Queensland will derive from this line are very great. This colony, which is one of the most enterprising and prosperous in Australia, has concluded a postal contract with the Company, that has given great satisfaction in Brisbane, London letters being delivered there in fifty-one days. The resources of Queensland are being rapidly developed, and large districts in the north, which a few years ago were uninhabited, are now assuming the proportions of prosperous towns, separated only by gradually shortening distances between Brisbane and Somerset. The mineral productions are attracting considerable attention, rich gold fields are reported in the north, and it is evident that valuable and important results will arise from the connection of such a country with China, Java, and the Straits. The collapse of the line to San Francisco, and the probable abandonment of the occasional service of the Netherlands India Steam Company from Batavia, will leave this Company free to work the field thoroughly. Singapore is the Company's central depot, and the wisdom of this selection is manifest. It is within a few days' reach of Hong Kong, Manila, Java, Siam, &c., while India is close on the other side. Like most new companies dealing with chartered vessels, the Eastern and Australian Company have had difficulties in the first year which are not likely to occur when their own fleet is at work.

The Associated Chambers of Commerce, recently in session at Newcastle-on-Tyne, have been discussing the subject of the Western China route, and, in addition to passing a vote of thanks to Lord Salisbury for his action in the matter of the survey, a vote of thanks has been tendered to Captain Sprye. A similar course has been taken by the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce. The Chambers throughout the kingdom seem fully alive to the importance of the route, and they evidently look with satisfaction upon the prospect of a complete survey. Now that this question has attracted the attention of so eminent a section of the commercial community the Government will doubtless see the necessity of completing the survey at once.

The Right Rev. Bishop Burdon and Mrs. Burdon proceed to Hong Kong by the French mail of 23rd October. Mr. May accompanies the Bishop, to take charge of the school in connection with the College, which has for some time been closed. The Rev. J. H. Sedgwick proceeds to Foochow, and the Rev. H. Evington to Japan, as Missionaries of the Church Missionary Society.

Mr. Henry F. Holt, who resigned his post in the Consular Service last year, has been permitted to re-enter, and proceeds to Shanghai by the P. and O. mail from Southampton on the 22nd inst. Mr. Carroll leaves by the Messageries steamer on the 25th. Mr. Colborne Baber has obtained an extension of leave.

We are glad to inform our readers that the statements which have appeared to the effect that the Emperor of China had refused to receive the Belgian Minister, are incorrect. His Excellency was duly received, and presented his credentials in due form on the 20th August.

The Rev. W. H. Elton, M.A., assistant master in Highgate School, and late curate of Holy Trinity Church, Finchley, has been appointed to the incumbency of Dicoya, Ceylon.

Correspondence.

THE HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—No one can read the report of the meeting of the shareholders of the above Corporation, and the speech of the Chairman, Mr. W. H. Forbes, without being very much impressed by the all but total silence on the part of the shareholders which prevailed, although there was so much requiring further explanation. The Chairman, referring to losses incurred, says, "The most severe comes to us from London," and yet no shareholder was tempted, or thought it worth while, to ask what was the amount of loss that had been incurred by the manager, notwithstanding that it is acknowledged by the Chairman that among the heavy losses experienced this is the most severe. But it appears to me that there was another most pertinent question which would occur to any one at the meeting, viz., What measures had been adopted towards the party who had occasioned so severe a loss in unauthorised transactions? It is true that the Chairman says, "We have asked for explanations." Now it appears to me that sufficient explanations had already been afforded to the shareholders to call for vigorous and immediate action. I refer to the words which fell from Mr. Forbes, viz., "The manager there (in London) had, on his own responsibility, and without our knowledge or consent, made some considerable transactions in bonds and securities outside of English and India Government paper, and the result has been a heavy loss."

One more remark, Sir, in conclusion. Mr. Morgan was quite right when he paid a high compliment to Mr. Pyke, and I quite agree with him when he said that Mr. Pyke was the best man on the board. If I am not very much mistaken, that gentleman has been the one to advocate the writing off of these heavy losses; and I doubt very much if, before he joined the board, losses were thus dealt with so soon as they might have been. But the question occurs to me, if the directors have told the worst in the report, why should Mr. Pyke resign his seat at the board, not only long before his contemplated departure from the colony, but, as the report of the meeting reads, in rather a "huffy" tone? To one not behind the scenes the idea may occur that, far as the directors have gone in writing off losses, they have not, in Mr. Pyke's opinion, gone far enough. The report altogether reads strangely to us at home. It has often been said in China, "Only pay a fair dividend and no questions will be asked." Here, however, is a case where not only is no dividend forthcoming, but half the reserved fund is absorbed, no change is announced in regard to the London management, and a highly esteemed director retires unnecessarily, and yet the report of the meeting closes with the following astounding sentence, "None of the shareholders asked any questions." Verily this is carrying confidence in the direction somewhat to an extreme.—I am, &c., W.

London, 8th Oct., 1874.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—We are now in possession of the full report of the half-yearly meeting of this institution. The telegram previously received as to the nature of the report had prepared us in a measure for what the Chairman termed "misfortunes"; but I imagine that few shareholders, on this side at any rate, anticipated such a string of disasters as has now been submitted to them. As usual with meetings in China, "none of the shareholders asked any questions," and the report and statement of accounts were "carried unanimously." While appreciating the proverbial esprit de corps that has been handed down by old China hands to their descendants in these matters, it is almost time to inquire whether this continued feeling of good fellowship is not, in the present instance, a little out of place. I confess I should have been inclined mildly to ask what guarantee, or rather what hope, can we have, at any rate under present management, that these "severe and totally unexpected losses" will not recur? Looking at previous reports, which assured the proprietary that the most ample provision had been made for all deficiencies in respect of old liabilities, it cannot but be appalling to men of business to find that the "severe," as distinguished from the "totally unexpected," losses arise from those old wounds which it was fondly hoped were healed, as stated. Is it not probable that they will still continue to drain the Bank's resources, and is it not also not impossible that the "totally unexpected" losses, which are confessedly not done with, may also reappear in the accounts for some time to come? Unless, indeed, some assurance is given that the past system of "tinkering" is discontinued, it can scarcely be otherwise, if one may judge from experience. But the most serious part as it seems to me of the Chairman's speech is the words:—"Gentlemen, you have no need to fear for the future of the Bank." I ask in astonishment "Why?" How is it possible that such a statement was not combated by the shareholders present? Does no one in China see the danger of having, at each branch of importance, managers who have, one and all, so signally failed in judgment? Why was speculation in exchange permitted to be carried on in Shanghai to such a huge extent, and why, if allowed, was the policy abandoned just at the very time when, if, as we believe, it had been further pursued, the desperate game that was being played might have resulted in a large "haul." Why are the shareholders saddled with another incubus in Hong Kong, viz., the Indo-Chinese Sugar Company? Have not the inheritance of the sugar refinery and the acquisition of the pier and godown premises convinced the manager there that sound judgment did not warrant the Bank in becoming in any way interested permanently in this interesting concern, which those who are not so sanguine as the directors think may be again unpleasantly prominent in the accounts? The present manager in Yokohama is, we are told, innocent of the mischief effected there; so it is unnecessary to remark on this branch, although I cannot help wondering to whose "calculations" the Bank is indebted for this year's speculations in "metallic currency."

The most astounding revelation, however, is that of the London loss incurred. Where, after hearing of this, can the shareholders look for safety, and what confidence can they retain in any future soundness or even apparent prosperity? Any new features on the right side of such an account as that before me must necessarily be regarded with interest and even scrutiny. A profit on its own insurances, it might be suggested, ought to have accrued to the Bank from its very commencement; not necessarily on its own underwriting, but in the heavy bonuses on its own business reaped by its managers (in addition to their handsome salaries) in virtue of their holding shares in local offices. This point I have heard referred to frequently lately. Considering that no posts are now so well paid in China as those of bank managers, I should, in conclusion, suggest that of all banks the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation should ascertain that its managers are men whose services are worth their salary, and if not should replace them. It would be far better to wind the Bank up at once than again present to the public and the proprietors such a comedy of errors as this report to 30th June, 1874. By cool and energetic pruning, and a return to bona fide banking business, the Bank may, in time, again be in a healthy position, and one that will command confidence; but until these radical measures are adopted I would wish to warn your readers not to build too much on the Chairman's hope that "a fair, if not a handsome, dividend" is possible, as I fear it would not at any rate be justifiable.—I am, &c., &c., F.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—The immediate prospect of war between China and Japan cannot be regarded without grave apprehension. The direct effects on foreigners and on foreign trade may not be pleasant. Should Japan show the skill and vigour with which some credit her, she may harry the Chinese coast, blockading the ports. Japanese officers are eagerly buying up charts of the River Yangtsze, evidently with some sinister object in view. Should China conquer, as most people anticipate, from the fact of her greater resources, and the recent improvement in her armaments, then a revolution in Japan will be the first result, a revolution almost necessarily including many retrograde measures, and certainly containing few, if any, elements favourable to foreigners. The second result will be a great increase of Chinese bluster; and during the display of such bluster the irreconcilables of China may seize the opportunity for a raid on all foreigners, now that they have conquered the foreign Japanese. The third result will be a retrograde movement in China. A year ago, at the time of the notorious Audience, Japan led the van, and forced an entrance to the Emperor's presence. And in the opinion of very many the more complete opening of China was to be the effect of the vigorous and rapid advance of her dreaded neighbour, Japan. It was thought that China would yield points to a civilised Japanese which she would never concede to an outer barbarian; and that these barbarians might press in holding on to young Japan's coat-tails. But now, with Japan humbled, conquered, convulsed, with her people casting off in disgust foreign coats and hats, and shouting for old days of seclusion and enmity, who is to wake up China, and who is to arrest her darling tendency to stand still or step back?

In truth, the prospect before us is none of the brightest. One ground for hope lies in the bankrupt or at least impoverished state of the Exchequer, both of Japan and China. Some go-between of influence might yet prevent war; but no one speaks, and we await the result with mingled interest and anxiety.

There is a strange assault being made at the present time, especially in the Ningpo district, against both Buddhism and Taoism. In one instance a temple has been turned into a school; and, as the North China Daily News informs us, only last week the people were forbidden by proclamation from the magistrates to resort to the Taoist temples on the occasion of the birthday of the God of Thunder. This is but the freak of a thorough-going Confucian magistrate, but it is a curious phenomenon; the persecution of native religions and the toleration of Christianity. Meanwhile, headlong, reforming, Japan cannot make up her mind to grant full toleration to Christians. An interesting study surely is presented by these two now rival, and frowning, growling, Empires.—Yours obediently, Shanghai, August 14, 1874. PROGRESS.

THE JAPANESE NAVY.

A letter in the Cologne Gazette from Tokio, dated the 10th of August, gives some interesting information relative to the Japanese navy. The correspondent says that when the expedition to Formosa was being got ready it was found that the American and English ships, which had been bought several years ago, were for the most part either defective or of obsolete construction, and that they were far from being so efficient as was believed. The naval officers, too, are imperfectly trained, and they soon become disconcerted in critical situations where rapid and sagacious action is required. The men are pretty well drilled, the Japanese being extraordinarily skilful in all mechanical work; but they are small and of slender build, and therefore soon get tired. Those who know the heavy guns which the marines have to work will easily understand that much depends in a naval action on the strength and endurance of the gunners. The strong and tough Chinese have a decided advantage over the Japanese in this respect. Indeed, the Chinese would be in no way inferior to the Japanese in a war between the two countries. The ships in the Chinese fleet are partly constructed entirely of iron, partly ironclad wooden vessels; their number, including the steam transports and gunboats, is a little over thirty, and they are all kept in good condition and in constant repair. Japan, on the other hand, has only fifteen ships of war, with a few transports and gunboats, which, however, are in such a rotten state that they could only be used for harbour duty, and could not venture out to sea. Of the two ironclads, one is the Stonewall, which served in the American civil war. It is now almost out of date, and would be hardly manageable in the violent south-western monsoons on the Formosan coast. The other, Rioyokan, is covered with a 3½-in. plate—useless against the heavy rifled Krupp guns with which the Chinese arm their frigates. Its capacity is 1,300 tons, it has an engine of 280-horse power, and it is armed with two 100-pounder Armstrongs and eight 64-pounder muzzle-loaders; its crew consists of 275 men. The ram Adsumakan has an engine of 500-horse power, and is armed with one 300-pounder and two 70-pounders, all muzzle-loaders. The corvette Nitsinkan, of 1,000 tons and 250-horse power, is armed with a 7-inch Armstrong and six 60-pounders; its crew consists of 145 men. The Kagusakan has a good engine of 300-horse power; it is armed with one 100-pounder, four 50-pounders, and one 20-pounder, and its crew consists of 130 men. The steam corvette Malacca (formerly English), of 1,400 tons and 300-horse power, is now called Tukulakan, and is being equipped as a training ship. The four gunboats, Wunyokan, Mosikan, Ilosholan, and Thaborkan, are armed with from four to six heavy guns each, and have crews of from sixty to seventy men. The harbour training ship Fusiyamakan, the transport Osaca Maru, and a few others, might also be employed in case of need; but the older gunboats are useless for purposes of war, and could only serve as hospital and store ships. The English officers, mates, and sailors, who are in the pay of Japan as instructors, may train up some capable men here and there, but the correspondent thinks that the Japanese race is, as a whole, not suited for the production of first-rate seamen.

Naval and Military.

The Lapwing, double-screw gunboat, 3 guns, 774 (663) tons, 882 (160) horse power, which was commissioned last week to relieve the Thistle, on the China station, has made a satisfactory trial of her machinery. The following officers have been appointed to the Lapwing:—Commander, Sir William Wiseman, Bart.; Lieutenant, the Hon. Henry N. Shore; Sub-Lieutenants, F. E. Poulter and A. L. Murray (the latter for navigating and pilotage duties; Navigating-Sub-Lieutenant Walter Strugnell; Engineers, Robert Widdicombe and Thomas Jones; Surgeon, John W. Davis, M.D.; Assistant-Paymaster, Horace C. Barnard; Gunner (second class), James Henwood; Assistant-Engineer (second class), William J. Firks.

The following appointments to the China station have been made:—Navigating sub-lieutenant D. A. Richmond, to the Frolic, 4, gun-vessel; Staff-commander S. W. Brown, to the Princess Charlotte, 12, receiving-ship; Boatswain (second class) Joseph Tyler, to the Victor Emanuel.

The following officers, whose last period of service was on the China station, have received appointments as under:—Commander M. Hardy (in the Iron Duke from 1871 to 1873), to the President, drill-ship for the Naval Reserve at the West India Docks; Commander C. C. Rising (in the Midge from 1869 to 1873), to the Vanguard, coastguard ship at Kingstown; Commander S. S. Smith (in the Salamis in 1872), to the Rapid, screw sloop, Mediterranean; Lieutenant J. G. M. Field (in the Thalia from 1872 to 1873), to the Newcastle, detached squadron; Lieutenant J. H. Pelby (in the Zebra from 1872 to 1873), to the Euphrates, Indian troopship; Navigating-sub-lieutenant H. B. Newton (in the Rinaldo from 1873 to 1874), to the Fox, storeship, on particular service; Navigating-sub-lieutenant A. B. Scott (in the Teazer from 1872 to 1874), to the Swiftsure, 14, armour-plated ship, Mediterranean; Mr. George Ball, engineer (in the Opossum from 1872 to 1874), to the Asia, flagship of the Admiral-Superintendent at Portsmouth; Mr. Thomas Cape, engineer (in the Teazer from 1869 to 1873), to the Asia; Mr. John C. Oare, assistant-engineer (in the Adventure from 1871 to 1873), to the Endymion, coastguard ship in the River Humber; Mr. John Ashton, paymaster (in the Rinaldo from 1873 to 1874), to the Sappho, for Australia.

THE "Bessemer" steamer, which has been designed to obviate the inconveniences of the Channel passage by means of a swinging saloon, has been fitted, in addition to the ordinary boats, with two large rafts on the plan patented by Mr. H. Christie, of the P. and O. Company. Each of these rafts is 35ft. long, has 8ft. beam, and is 18in. deep, is constructed of sheet iron ⅛in. thick, and is composed of fifteen watertight compartments. Stanchions with ropes are fixed round the sides on swivels, so as to be available, either side of the raft being upwards. The rafts are rather long in proportion to their width; but it seems the situation in which they are placed would not admit of a greater beam. The rafts rest outside the bulwark on a stand, and are braced close to the ship's side, so that they could be dropped overboard instaneously by means of a trigger arrangement.

Commander Sir William Wiseman, who has commissioned the Lapwing, became an acting sub-lieutenant March 24, 1865, and obtained the rank of lieutenant March, 1867. As lieutenant he was appointed in 1867 to the Danæ, 6, Captain Sir Malcolm Macgregor, Bart., fitting at Portsmouth for the Cape of Good Hope, and commanded afterwards on the North America and West India stations by Captain William Graham. He left the Danæ in April, 1870, and in the following September was appointed to the Lord Warden, 18, Captain Thomas Brandreth, flagship in the Mediterranean of Vice-Admiral Sir Hastings R. Yelverton, K.C.B., from which ship he was advanced to the rank of commander. He served as inspecting officer of the Coast-guard Division at Hastings from October 6, 1873, until appointed to the Lapwing.

Colonel P. S. Lumsden, C.B., C.S.I., A.D.C. to the Queen, Bengal Staff Corps, has been appointed to act as adjutant-general of the army from Sept. 1, the date on which General Johnson resigned the post. Colonel Lumsden has seen considerable service in India. He also accompanied the expedition to China in 1860, and was present at the actions of Sinho and Tangchow, assault and capture of the Taku forts, and advance on Peking (mentioned in despatches, medal with two clasps, and brevet of major).

Brevet-Major H. Grattan, 35th Regiment, has been appointed aide-de-camp to the Hon. Sir A. H. Gordon, K.C.M.G., Governor and Commander-in-Chief at Mauritius. Major Grattan served with the Queen's Royals throughout the campaign of 1860 in North China, including the action of Sinho, capture of Tangchow, actions of the 18th and 21st September, and surrender of Peking (medal with two clasps).

Mr. H. G. Swainson, Lieutenant R.N., who for some years did good service for the Chinese at Foochow Arsenal—his last work having been organising and commanding the training ship Kien Wei—assumed his duties in charge of the Observatory and superintendent of chronometers at Portsmouth dockyard on the 1st inst.

The death of Surgeon-Major H. V. Bindon, M.D., formerly of the 1st battalion of the 25th Regiment, who joined the expeditionary force in the north of China in 1860, served during the operations against the Taeping rebels in the vicinity of Shanghai in 1862, and was present at the capture of Tsinpoo, Tsolin, and Najow, is announced.

Colonel G. F. Mann, C.B., of the Royal Engineers, who served in China during the war of 1857-58 and 1860, commanding the Royal Engineers at the capture of Canton, at the storming of the Taku Forts, and throughout the subsequent operations which ended in the surrender of Peking, has just retired on full pay.

The Admiralty have sanctioned the addition of "Cocoatina" to the medical comforts now supplied to Her Majesty's sea-going ships, in the proportion of ounce for every individual of the complement. Double this quantity will be allowed to ships proceeding to the West Coast of Africa, East India, and China stations.

The Daring, 4, composite sloop, has been commissioned at Chatham by Commander J. G. J. Hanmer, who served in the Pique, on the East India and China station, from May, 1858, till early in 1859, and in the Scout, on the same station, from 1859 till 1864.

Sub-Lieutenant Henry Stanley Clarke has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant, with seniority of 18th July, confirming a commission given by Vice-Admiral Shadwell, Commander-in-Chief in China, in the death vacancy of Lieutenant Charles Gardner.

Captain P. Colomb, of the Audacious, and Vice-Admiral Ryder's flag-captain, has brought under the notice of the Admiralty an improved candle and a new pattern lamp, for the lighting of the lower decks of our men-of-war.

PRINCE LOUIS NAPOLEON has made a public appearance as one of the competitors in a grand assault at arms, given at the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich, and in a fencing match with M. Conneau was the winner.

Lieutenant Edward England Richards, who served in the Imperieuse flagship on the East India and China station in 1859, has just died at Northampton, at the age of forty-two.

The draft of 140 officers and men from the 77th Regiment, for the reinforcement of the 45th Regiment in Ceylon, will be despatched vid the Suez Canal in about three weeks.

Lieut. Joseph B. Ridout, of the 80th Regiment, now serving at Hong Kong, has been promoted to a company of the 90th. Lieut. Ridout entered the 80th in 1858.

Sub-Lieutenant Southwell G. T. Bourke (1871) will proceed in the Audacious for disposal on the China station.

Monetary and Commercial.

Tenders for £500,000 in bills on India were received on the 7th inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—To Calcutta, £330,000; Bombay, £163,000; and Madras, £7,000. Tenders on all Presidencies at 1s. 10d. will receive about 9 per cent.; above in full. These results show no change.

The report of the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company (Limited) has been issued. The total earnings for the half-year have amounted to £115,753, against £106,778 2s. 5d. for the corresponding period of last year; the working expenses to £24,404 4s. 3d.; defalcations at Shanghai to £3,182 12s. 7d.; and the repair and maintenance of the cables to £3,099 8s. 1d. Income-tax and interest on debentures have absorbed a further sum of £1,214 16s., leaving a balance of profit for the half-year of £83,851 19s. 1d. One interim dividend of 1½ per cent., amounting to £29,962 10s., has already been distributed, and another of similar amount is now declared, payable on the 15th of October, leaving the sum of £23,926 19s. 1d. to be carried forward to the next half-year. The debenture debt has been reduced by £3,200, leaving a balance of £9,900, which will be paid off as the bonds become due. The company's cables are at present in good order, and working satisfactorily.

The directors of the Globe Telegraph and Trust Company (Limited) have declared the following dividends, payable on the 17th inst., for the quarter ending the 18th inst.: 3s. per share on the Preference shares, and 3s. per share on the Ordinary shares, being in each case at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum.

The report of the Brazilian Submarine Telegraph Company (Limited), to be presented to the meeting on the 14th inst., states that notwithstanding interruptions on the lines south of Pernambuco, the total receipts from the opening of the line on the 23rd of June to the 25th of Sept. amounted to £24,471, showing a profit at the rate of nearly 6 per cent. per annum.

The directors of the Royal Mail Steam-packet Company recommend a distribution of £3 per share, including dividend and bonus, for the half-year ended the 30th of June last, free of income tax. The distribution at the corresponding period of last year was £4 5s. per share.

The directors of the National Bank of India have declared an ad interim dividend for the half-year ended 30th June last, at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum.

The Eastern Telegraph Company's traffic receipts for the month of September amounted to £28,208, against £33,162 for the corresponding period of last year. The traffic receipts of the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Company for the month amounted to £18,163, and to £19,128 for the corresponding period of 1873. The traffic receipts of the Great Northern Company for the month were this year, f.427,121 (£17,085); last year, f.334,781 (£13,390).

It is stated that the Suez Canal Company are giving much trouble to vessels by ignoring the new "Suez Canal Register," as issued by the Board of Trade on the principle recommended by the Constantinople Commission. They insist upon a re-measurement by their own engineers, and compel payment accordingly, thus entailing upon vessels much expense and loss of time.

Messrs. Sillar and Co.'s Tea Circular states that:—

About 150 half-chests of re-dried teas, which had been under water in the Thames, were publicly sold by auction in Mincing-lane on the 29th ultimo. The catalogue declared "The Kiln-dried Teas in this catalogue have been analysed by Wm. Sedgwick Saunders, M.D., Public Analyst for the City of London, and been pronounced fit for sale on this market," and the auctioneer stated that the Customs authorities were prepared to receive duty upon them as upon sound teas. What guarantee is there that they will not be sold in the country as sound teas? The Gordon Castle has arrived with a hundred tons of submerged teas on board; 1,400,000 lbs. are reported to have been sold at Lisbon for £500. At a shilling a pound (the price obtained for the above) these would realise no less a sum than £70,000. The temptation to cheat the public is therefore great.

With reference to the above extract, Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson write as follows:—

"The 100 tons referred to have come in ballast—the lead of the chests intended only to be saved. The sale also to which Mr. Sillar refers was based upon the value of the lead, and there is not any chance of the tea being introduced for consumption. We are able to speak as to this, as a gentleman from our house was employed by the underwriters to inspect the cargo at Lisbon, and he condemned the whole as utterly spoiled."

The bullion per P. and O. steamer Surat, from Southampton, Thursday, was—in silver, to Penang, £11,000; to Singapore, £40,000; to Hong Kong, £14,063; to Shanghai, £1,600.

A little more activity in the market for Bar Silver caused a fractional advance of 1-16d. per oz., and the late arrivals of £77,850 from the Pacific, and £81,000 from New York, were placed at 57 11-16d. per oz. standard. The orders have now, however, been executed, and we do not think this price will be maintained. There have been no arrivals of Mexican Dollars.

THE BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade Returns present rather more favourable features for the month of September, for, although the total value of our exportations in the month amounted to £21,463,876, against £22,274,225 in the corresponding month in 1873—a decline of £810,349, or 3½ per cent.—the diminution has been one of value rather than of quantity. For the nine months the figures stand—1872, £190,314,662; 1873, £193,675,520; and 1874, £180,940,908. In cotton piece goods, the value of which represents about 22 per cent. of the total exports for the month, the increase in quantity is 15¼ per cent., whereas the value has only increased 6½ per cent.; and alkali, which shows an advance of nearly 24 per cent. in quantity, has declined nearly 2 per cent. in value; but, perhaps, the most striking instance is in coals, which have risen from 1,134,893 tons to 1,399,954 tons or 23⅓ per cent., while the value has fallen from £1,168,441 to £1,114,401, or 4½ per cent. The imports amount to £31,142,994, against $30,203,600 in September, 1873, or an increase of 3 per cent. For the nine months the figures stand—1872, £262,295,678; 1873, £276,174,564; and 1874, £283,481,592. The exports of cotton yarn show an increase in quantity of 18¾ per cent., and in value of 2 per cent.; cotton piece goods an increase of 15 per cent. in quantity and 6¼ per cent. in value; linen yarn a decrease of 1 per cent. in quantity and 12 per cent. in value; linen piece goods a decrease of 12¾ per cent. in quantity and 7 per cent. in value; woollen yarn an increase of 4¾ per cent. in quantity and 7½ per cent. in value; woollen cloths an increase of 22 per cent. in quantity and 25 per cent. in value; worsted stuffs an increase of 6 per cent. in quantity and 5 per cent. in value; iron and steel a decrease of 16 per cent. in quantity and 23 per cent. in value.

The following is an extract from these Returns of the figures which refer to our Export trade with China and the Far East:—

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

The dulness lately noticeable in the Produce Markets has continued during the past week. Tea, Silk, and Coffee have been steady and fairly active, but business in other articles has been very limited in extent, and prices of several show a declining tendency.

TEA.

The Market has been very fairly supplied during the past week, chiefly with reddish leaf Congous out of new arrivals, and sales have been made to some extent at very steady prices, more particularly in the better kinds; common qualities, both of red and black leaf, have been quiet. The deliveries for the month have been very large, partly for export, but chiefly for home consumption. Green Teas no alteration, only a few showing. Public sales were held on the 1st, 2nd, 5th, and 6th inst., comprising 10,527 packages, 8,272 without reserve. On the 1st, 2,150 boxes Scented Caper sold from 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 2d., being about previous rates. The next day's sale consisted of 2,000 packages of old season's Black-leaf, which were printed with reserve, prices ranging from 11½d. to 1s. 2½d., but finding no buyers, were withdrawn. On the 5th, an invoice of Moyune Greens, ex Priam, obtained fair prices, No. 1 Gunpowder, 3s. to 3s. 0½d.; No. 1 Young Hyson, 2s. 9d. On the 6th, several parcels of Red-leaf of recent import sold from 10¾d. to 1s. 0½d.

Deliveries have been on a most extensive scale, and for the month reach close on 17,000,000 lbs., the total for the nine months of the year now being as follows:—

Home Consumption for London from 1st January to 30th September	76,361,101	73,000,000
Exported from do. do.	23,561,570	24,230,000
Sent Coastwise do. do.	26,595,831	26,500,000
Total delivered	126,518,502	123,730,000

SILK.

There continues a good demand for China Silk, and considerable business is daily doing at gradually stiffening rates for Tsatlees, which are now 12s. 6d. to 15s. for ordinary No. 5 to Red Peacock. Taysaams are also about 6d. better during the week. Cantons are in rather more demand at 11s. for No. 4 Tsatlees; Japan Silk unchanged; deliveries are from 1st to 7th inst., China 878, Canton 117, Japan 229; total 1,224 bales.

Coffee.—Ceylon, both Plantation and Native, has continued in active demand during the week, and a further advance of 1s. to 1s. 6d. per cwt. (making 4s. to 4s. 6d. during the past three weeks) has been established. Closing prices are: Plantation—triage and ordinary, 80s. to 100s. 6d.; small to low middling, 103s. to 110s. 6d.; middling to fine middling, 111s. to 116s.; peaberry, 123s. 6d. to 130s. 6d.; Native—small, 79s. 6d. to 85s.; fine ordinary, 87s. to 88s.; bold, 92s. 6d.; peaberry, 105s. to 106s. per cwt. No sales of Singapore or Manila are reported.

Hemp.—Of 1,100 bales Manila offered in public sale 600 bales sold, chiefly since the auction, at previous rates—viz., brown, £28 5s.; barely fair, £32 to £32 10s. per ton.

Japan Wax.—Small transactions effected at 58s. per cwt., showing no change.

Musk.—Business done in Tonquin at 40s. to 45s. 6d.; second pile 16s. to 20s. Yunan, 34s. 6d. to 56s.; ground, 45s. to 45s. 6d. per oz.

Pepper.—The market has been very quiet, and almost all offers have been withdrawn. The small business done establishes no change in quotations.

Rice.—Market inactive but steady; at public sale 5,600 bags Saigon sold at and since the auction, sound at 8s. 6d., damaged 7s. 6d. to 8s. Privately, 1,500 bags Ballam sold at 10s. 6d.; 2,000 bags white Bengal at 12s. 6d.; and several cargoes afloat, one of 1,700 tons Rangoon, at 9s. 6d., ex ship London; one of 1,800 tons Bassein, at 9s. 3d. open charter; three of Rangoon, at 9s. 11½d. to 10s. 1½d., Liverpool quay terms; three of Bassein—two at 9s. 7½d., and one at a price not reported; one of Necransie at 9s. 3d., continental terms, one of 1,100 tons Rangoon, at 9s. 4½d., continental terms; and one of 600 tons Bassein, at 9s. 7½d., open charter.

Sugar.—A less active demand has prevailed, and a slight reduction has occurred in prices. Very little business has been done in East Indian descriptions, the supplies at auction having been all bought in. Privately 4,000 bags Ilo Ilo Manila have been quitted at 19s. 3d. to 19s. per cwt.

Spices.—Cassia: Of 330 cases Lignea 30 cases unwashed sold at 60s., and 50 boxes Buds at £6 to £6 2s. 6d.; 140 packages Vera bought in at 28s. and 56s. Cinnamon: Of 70 bales Ceylon one-half sold, first sort, 2s. 4d.; second ditto, 2s. to 2s. 1d.; third ditto, 1s. 7d.; fourth, 1s. 5d.; spurious, 4d. to 10d. Cloves: No business done. Mace: 47 packages sold at 1d. per lb. decline for common, and 1d. per lb. advance for the finer kinds; low and dark Penang, 1s. 8d. to 1s. 10d.; middling to fair, 3s. to 3s. 6d. Nutmegs: 140 packages chiefly sold at full prices; Penang, 66 to 63 nuts to the lb., at 4s. 2d. to 4s. 4d.; 74 to 72 ditto, 3s. 9d. to 3s. 10d.; 78 to 77 ditto, 3s. 6d. to 3s. 8d.; 114 to 110 ditto, 3s. 1d.; 118 ditto, 3s.; limed, 2s. 5s. to 2s. 9d.; defective, 1s. to 1s. 6d. Java, defective, 7d. to 9d.

Sago.—No transactions reported.

Tapioca.—100 bags Singapore flake sold, damaged first-class, at 1¾d.; 700 bags pearl chiefly sold at full prices, medium 23s. to 23s. 6d., bullets 21s. to 21s. 6d.; 100 bags flour bought in at 2½d. per lb.

Tin continues quiet. There is a steady demand for consumption, but no disposition to buy but for immediate needs. Quotations are as follows:—Straits on the spot, £91 to £91 10s.; afloat, £90; Banca, £99; Billiton, £94 per ton.

ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

The Market has continued to exhibit a firm tone, and a moderate amount of business was transacted at full rates up to the 6th inst., when a further improvement in the demand for the better qualities of both Yarns and Goods manifested itself, producers generally obtaining 1¼d. advance on the lowest point touched, and in many instances are firmly asking 3d. per piece higher; but the latter has not been responded to, and the attitude assumed by sellers has tended to limit business. For the lower descriptions the enquiry continues very slack, and scarcely any improvement in values is noticeable.

CASUALTIES.

Falmouth, Oct. 3.—The Oceano (str.), Brown, from Glasgow to Singapore, has put in here with damage to machinery; she, however, sailed again on the 7th for her destination.

Manila.—[Singapore, Oct. 7.]—The Scawfell (barque), hence to Zebu, has been towed into the latter place leaky, having stranded off Bohml (? Bohol); she may proceeed to Hong Kong.

Lisbon, Oct. 8.—The Glamis Castle (str.), from Hong Kong, to London, has arrived here, in tow of the John Bramall (str.), from Rotterdam to Batavia, with damage to keel near sternpost.

Another telegram:—"Glamis Castle (str.), towed in disabled by John Bramall (str.), keel broken between sternposts appears six inches; rudder difficult to move and up engines stopped. 6.30 p.m., Sunday, forty miles North Berlings, tried turn Hand not move; believe best plan get two powerful tugs tow ship London if can get steering gear to act, danger is if after sternpost gives way; bad weather."

Sunderland, Oct. 2.—A telegram from Hong Kong announces that the Malvern foundered in the typhoon; all hands lost.

Advices from St. Helena state that the Nederland and Orange, Phaff, from Saigon to Rotterdam, which put in there, 20th Aug., with damage, discharged about 300 tons cargo to get at the leak; it was then stopped, and some slight repairs were then effected, the discharged cargo was reshipped, and the vessel proceeded 9th Sept. The surveyors reported that, so far as could be seen, the cargo appeared to be in good order; 10th Sept.—The Tennyson, M'Kinlay, from Batavia to Queenstown, which put in there, 4th July, making water, has landed 3,924 baskets of sugar up to the present time. The services of a diver belonging to H.M.S. Barracouta, were obtained 27th Aug., for the purpose of discovering and stopping the leak. The diver examined her and reported a great amount of copper off just abaft the stern post, and many sheets off in other places. A survey was held 28th by two officers and a carpenter of the Barracouta and they recommend the following repairs to be effected, viz., the defective beams to be fished and an iron breasthoop to be introduced in addition to the one broken, the copper to be repaired as far as possible when the vessel is heeled over, the mizenmast to be fished and the caulking when slack to be made good. The surveyors declared that the vessel would then be fit to take two-thirds of her full cargo to England, where she would immediately go into dock.

The Batavia, from Australia to Java, with coal, was wrecked in Torres Straits.

The Crocus (str.), from London to China, &c., has put into Plymouth with machinery damaged.

MISCELLANEOUS.

At Port Said, Oct. 5.—Voorwarts, from Texel, for Batavia; Glenearn, from London, for Singapore, China, &c.

At Mauritius.—Julia Ann, Baker, and sailed, Aug. 21, for Bangkok; Susan E. Voorhis, Fulton, and sailed, 21, for Galle; Peveril of the Peak, Nichols, and sailed, 22, for Colombo; Belle Alliance, Howatt, and sailed, 22, for Sourabaya.

Off Ascension, Aug. 23.—P.C.R.M., from Sumatra, for London; T.K.N.L. (Eastern Chief), from Nagasaki, for London; 24, L.K.D.B. (barque), from Java, for Queenstown; 27, M.D.J.T. (Dorothy), from Japan, for London; Sept. 1, K.G.P.C. (Duke), from Singapore, for London.

At Algoa Bay, Aug. 25.—Vanadis, Carlstein, and sailed for Batavia.

LAUNCHES, &c.

A new steamer for the "Nederland" Company line between Holland and Java has been launched on the Clyde by Messrs. John Elder and Company. The vessel is an iron screw steamer of 3,000 tons gross, and of the following dimensions:—Length between perpendiculars, 365ft.; breadth, 37ft.; depth moulded, 27ft. 3in. As she left the ways she was named the Prins Hendrik. The engines, which will be supplied by the same firm, are upon their compound principle, and are 400-horse power nominal, with two cylinders, one 86in. diameter, and the other 50in., and stroke 3ft. 6in. The saloon and state rooms will be finished with the greatest elegance, and fitted up with a view to the comfort of those on board. This is the eighth vessel built by Messrs. Elder and Company for this company, and she has been constructed with remarkable speed, her keel having only been laid on the 31st of January last.

We hear that Messrs. Norris and Joyner purpose despatching a monthly line of steamers to Japan. The Calabar is now on the berth, and will be followed by the Montgomeryshire.

Sir SAMUEL BAKER,

In his work on the Sources of the Nile, says:—

"I ordered my dragoman Mahomet to inform the "Faky that I was a doctor, and that I had the best "medicines at the service of the sick, with advice "gratis. In a short time I had many applicants, to "whom I served out a quantity of Holloway's Pills. "These are most useful to an explorer, as, possessing "unmistakable purgative properties, they create an "undeniable effect upon the patient, which satisfies "him of their value."

This fine Medicine cures all disorders of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys and Bowels, is a Great PURIFIER of the BLOOD, and wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to Females—young or aged.

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

NAGASAKI.

Our advices from this port—which extend to the 27th August—give the subjoined brief account of the typhoon which occurred on the night of the 20th-21st August, and which appears to have done great damage both afloat and ashore :—

The first indications of the typhoon showed themselves with great suddenness about 8 P.M. on the 20th, the wind and waves rising and the barometer falling till, at about 11.30 P.M., the latter stood at 28.50. It was estimated that the centre of the storm was about twenty miles westward of Nagasaki, sweeping in fact across the mouth of the Bay. The destruction of life and property it is impossible to state even approximately, but it must have been immense. Of 320 Japanese vessels standing in the books of the port authorities as in harbour, only ten are stated to be left, the rest being all sunk or stranded. Up to the time the Nevada left, 300 drowned bodies had been recovered, which may give some idea of the number of lives that must have been lost not only in Nagasaki but all along the coast. The Bund wall and landing places of the Foreign Settlement are all destroyed. The Custom-house godowns and many of those of private firms are ruined. The new residence of the Governor, said to have cost $40,000, though seemingly substantially built of wood and stone, has been laid flat. In short, there does not seem to be a building in the native or foreign town that has not been more or less demolished. The coal sheds of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company and the Engineering Works of Messrs. Boyd and Co. have been unroofed, while the British Consulate is a conspicuous desolation : and the Engineering Works of the Government are all but destroyed. The iron clad Stonewall was at anchor just inside Menage Point, but dragged her anchors till she got on the rocks, and bumped a hole in her bottom, through which she filled and sank, but in such a place that her upper deck was dry at low water. Prompt measures to rescue her were taken, and it was believed she would be got off shortly. The Ping On was driven so far ashore that it was high and dry all round her. So it was with the sailing vessel Hamburg. The steamer Madras was ashore, but was got off without apparent injury, as did also another steamer (supposed the Bertha). The typhoon (or rather a sympathetic storm produced by it) reached Yokohama on the 21st, but no serious damage was done. The oldest native people say that they do not remember seeing or hearing of so severe a storm in Japan. The harbour of Nagasaki presents especially a scene of mournful desolation,—strewed all round with piles of wreck, and the poor despoiled owners creeping sadly along the beach.

The Peking Sun contains the following :—From eleven o'clock the gale was so fierce as to render it unparalleled. The Ping On went on the rocks at Inasa, a short distance from her lay the Soobo, on the rocks also, and in the neighbourhood of Akamoto is the man-of-war Adsuma-kan (late Stonewall), she having forced a passage through the rocks, and is aground leaking very badly ; a large wave carried the German barque Hamburg on to the rocks and left her there ; the Madras went ashore, but is not much injured. The Ping On has not suffered much beyond the inconvenience of being placed in such an awkward position. All the vessels in the harbour dragged their anchors, and some had to cut their masts. About sixty junks found their way to the bottom or on shore ; it is estimated that 200 Japanese lost their lives ; twenty were rescued from a watery grave by the efforts of the master of the Ping On. On shore the casualties were extensive. Bund wall washed away, tea-firing premises and godowns levelled with the ground, Governor's new Kencho one mass of ruins, hundreds of Japanese rendered houseless.

TIENTSIN.

The correspondent of the North China Herald writes from this port as follows :—

A dangerous conspiracy amongst Li Hung-chang's soldiery here has just been detected. Rumours of the most alarming character are in circulation amongst the foreign community, and a general feeling of insecurity is everywhere manifest. While there is little doubt that many of the flying rumours are untrustworthy, there is much reason for the apprehension, shared by the most thoughtful, that a crisis may be precipitated at any time. It is probably known to your readers that the district of Tientsin is, and has been, since the visit of Soyesima from Japan, in 1873, the scene of great military activity. It is estimated that ever since that time there has been from 20,000 to 60,000 troops within two days' march of Tientsin. These troops are principally from Honan. They are Li Hung-chang's pets, and constitute the flower of his army. They are consequently strangers in this province, but they are none the less masters of the soil, and they live on the fat of the land. It is not, then, a matter of surprise that these vagabonds, weary of inactivity, corrupted idleness and lust, and restrained by no power but their own will, should engage in any game, however desperate. The leader of the present revolt, it is supposed, is General Whang, one of the Viceroy's late officers, and it is reported that a large number of the soldiers at Ma Ch'ang, on the Grand Canal, have joined his standard. There are a great number of ex-military officers at Ma Ch'ang, who are at present out of employment, and it is said that they will be able to bring a great body of southern soldiers to the rebels, as soon as the signal for revolt is given. There is serious disaffection also amongst the troops at the large military Camp at Hsin-ch'eng, on the south bank of the Peiho, sixteen miles above Taku, and several hundred of the men have deserted the camp. So great has been the consternation amongst the commandants of the forts at Taku in consequence thereof, that every preparation has been made for an assault upon their works by the rebels, which is daily and hourly expected.

The conspirators have an organisation, which indicates that their work has been in progress for some time. It is said their designs were first disclosed by the contents of an intercepted letter from one of the leaders at Ma Ch'ang to another at Hsin Ch'eng. It was the intention of the insurgents, according to this letter, to march upon Tientsin simultaneously from both these camps, on Aug. 19, capture and hold the place, and put all the foreigners to death. The letter giving the above information was intercepted, and the facts were immediately sent to Li Hung-chang, who issued prompt orders for the apprehension of a number of suspected parties. It was the expectation of the leaders that, as soon as the rebel standard should be hoisted over the walls of Tientsin, the whole body of Li Hung-chang's southern soldiery would join them, as they are known to be exceedingly hostile to foreigners. The Viceroy's detectives were soon upon the scent of their game, and on the day following the receipt of this extraordinary disclosure, seven of the ringleaders were arrested at an obscure Chinese inn near the western suburbs of the city ; and on the day following that six more were brought in irons from the camp of Hsin Ch'eng, escorted by a strong body of soldiers from the Viceroy's guard. The leader of the revolt, General Whang, made good his escape, and is still at large. The badge adopted by these rebels is a white turban, and their standard is a white flag, bearing the inscription, "New Peace." Quite a number of these flags have been captured.

The men who are under arrest are being secretly tried by a Military Commission. So far, only one of them has been forced to confess. He says the object of the attack was to plunder Tientsin and to kill all the foreigners. It is claimed by the Chinese that this movement is not political ; that it is organised by bad characters, and that loot is their object. Of this time will be the safest judge. There is a singular fact in connection with this, viz., that the local officials, one and all, profess entire ignorance of what is going on. The gunboats Curlew, Hornet, and Sobo are here ; and I believe that the English, American, and French Consuls have each asked for reinforcements.

A sad accident occurred on the 15th August. A young Russian gentleman, Mr. F. N. Bogdanoff, nephew of Mr. N. A. Nefedieff, in whose mercantile house he was employed, fell into the river from one of the piers on the bund. He was standing on a gang-plank left by some departing steamer in such a position that it rested on another plank, insecurely, and instead of bearing the young man's weight, tilted him into the river. His companions immediately made efforts to help him out by poles reached to him, but he went down at once, and his body was not recovered until life was extinct.

An Imperial Decree conceding an audience to the Belgian Minister appears in the Peking Gazette of the 16th August.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 30th August ; no later mail from London had been received since the P. and O. mail of the 10th July, which arrived out on the 17th August. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald :—

Local interest centres on the result of the negotiations between China and Japan, still proceeding at Peking. Both the Chinese newspapers of the 24th August contained a statement, coming from a Chinese official source we understand, that the negotiations had resulted in an arrangement which would not compromise the dignity of either nation. Upon inquiry at the Japanese Consulate, however, we were obligingly informed that the Peking despatches received the previous day made no mention of such a result, and that the statement referred to is believed to be a mistake. On the other hand, a rumour has been current that the negotiations had been broken off, but neither have we been able to trace this to any reliable source. The Chinese are uneasy as to the result, particularly those engaged in the Coast trade, who are apprehensive that not only would war disorganise trade, but that their cargoes would run great risk of seizure by the enemy's navy. China is actively pursuing her military preparations by the purchase and shipment of arms and munitions, the engagement of drill instructors, and the movement of troops to the south. The Japanese frigate Rio-jio-kan left Woosung on the 22nd August for Tientsin, having on board H.E. Okubo, the Japanese plenipotentiary, and suite.

The China Merchant Company's steamer Haiching left for Chinkiang on Aug. 23 to embark troops for the Formosan rendezvous. She carried with her forty-three cases of Chassepot rifles, for distribution among the troops. The Haiching arrived in port again on Aug. 26, orders having been issued for her return to Shanghai without embarking the troops, or even landing the arms and ammunition she had on board. It was reported that there were a large number of troops in the neighbourhood of Chinkiang, but so much discontent was manifested among them, on account of arrears of pay and squeezing by the mandarins and subordinate officers, that they could not be induced to march to the point of embarkation. Another cause assigned for their refusal to embark is said to be that they objected to ship in a steamer which was to run all alone the gauntlet of the Japanese cruisers ; they were quite willing to go if several steamers sailed in company. The Chinese brave is probably impressed with the notion that the Japanese are even now off the coast, ready to pounce on him and give him the benefit of the humane treatment of prisoners which the Chinese understand so well. Three French drill instructors went up by the Haiching to Chinkiang, returning again with her when she failed in her mission. They have been engaged to drill troops at Taiwan, but their agreements will cease should war be declared.

Foreigners have been interested in the movement of a small fleet of mandarin creek junks or gunboats, which has taken up a position near Pootung point. They are here as part of the retinue of the Futai or provincial governor, who is at present on a visit to Shanghai, with the object, it is understood, of concerting measures with the local authorities for the defence of the port. Forts at Woosung have been resolved on, and the taking of other steps of the same kind will probably depend upon the result of a reference recently made to the Consular Body, as to the possibility of giving Shanghai the status of a neutral port in the event of a war.

Among the craft at Chefoo are a large fleet of new-looking men-of-war junks. Krupp has an agent there whose duty it is to teach the Chinese the drill applicable to his guns. It is believed the instructor has got on very well with his pupils, and he is said to have 120 officers, presumably of the lower grades, under his tuition.

The Foochow-built gunboat Ching-yuen arrived on the 25th

Aug. She is a vessel of 300 tons burthen, 100-horse power, seven guns (rifled), and has a well trained crew of 100 men. Next day she went alongside the China Navigation Company's Wharf, to take on board seven Vavasseur rifled guns, and 2,000 shot and shell, for Foochow.

Judgment in the case of alleged collision between the steamer Manchu and a Chinese junk, in the river Yangtsze, on the morning of the 12th of December last, has been delivered by Mr. Seward, U.S. Consul-General. The plaintiffs were Chen-kee-tuk, the master and owner of the junk, some other Chinese merchants, and the widow and mother of two of the crew who were said to have been drowned. The defendants were the owners of the Manchu and her former master, the late Captain Spedding. The case, owing to causes of compulsory adjournment, has been before the Court since the 5th May, and its termination was marked by a most elaborate judgment. The conflicting character of the testimony given, coupled with the positive manner in which the Chinese witnesses on behalf of the junk told, and maintained, an apparently impossible story, rendered it necessary to analyse and decide on every statement made in the case. The plaintiff's testimony was to the effect that the junk was of large carrying capacity, and that it was run into and sunk by the Manchu while sailing up the river. This was denied by the defendants, whose case was that they did not collide with a junk, but that at about the time and place mentioned by the plaintiffs the Manchu did come in collision with a small single masted open Chinese boat, which, however, received so little damage that on her sail halliards being released from entanglement with the bowsprit of the Manchu she sailed away seemingly none the worse, her crew, in answer to enquiries from the steamer, saying they did not need any assistance. After a careful examination of the evidence on both sides, the Court dismissed the libel, as it was phrased, and ordered the plaintiffs to pay costs. Appended to the judgment are some valuable suggestions as to the necessity of promulgating among native navigators rules for the avoidance of collisions, especially in rivers. The Court gives "expression to the reflection that these disasters will continue to occur, and that sentiments of vexation on the part of foreign navigators, and perhaps of hostility on the part of the natives, will continue to be engendered until the native authorities take the question of promulgating the collision rules warmly in hand; and until this is done, and every Chinese navigator is made to understand the rules, their absence, and the uncertainty how far the provisions of the rules are natural and ought to be enforced as the dictates of common sense, will embarrass the Courts into which these collision cases come."

The steamer Taku brings intelligence that endeavours to discover whether the wreck now lying on the Boat Rocks, to the southward of the Lammocks, is that of the missing barque Scotland, have been resumed, and that, after repeated visits, divers had brought to the surface a wheel and bell, which were at once recognised as those belonging to the ill-fated vessel. The divers reported the hull to be six inches thick with barnacles.

Later news, per Lotus, from Swatow and Amoy, modifies the report contained in the extract from a letter, published in last week's Herald, announcing the wreck of the barque Caroline Hutchins, as regards that portion which says all hands were lost. It is true that the vessel was driven ashore, but only the captain's wife had to leave it, which she did with the assistance of Mr. Trannock, examiner of Customs, while the crew remained by the ship with the object of saving the cargo. A Japanese gunboat rendered assistance in endeavouring to get the barque afloat, but these efforts were unavailing, and the wreck was subsequently sold for $300.

The committee of the Shanghai Library have circulated an appeal to the residents, in accordance with the resolutions passed at the special meeting of subscribers held on the 10th August. We hope it will be successful in saving the library collection from being broken up, and a valuable and, for Shanghai, venerable institution from dying out. Resuscitation at some future time may be more difficult than reinvigoration at present. The appeal has already, we hear, been productive of encouraging results.

We have received the minutes of meetings of the French Municipal Council of 16th July and 13th Aug. The former record business chiefly of a formal nature. Proposals from the Works' Committee relative to various roads, bridges, the cemetery, and the Municipal nursery garden were adopted; and a plan showing changes in the width and course of certain roads, it was resolved to submit to a commission of eight proprietors or their representatives, who had signified their concurrence, in order to obtain advice on the projected changes and decide the value of ground connected with them. Payment of the Council's contribution of Tls. 1,000 to the expenses of the Shanghai Fire Department was sanctioned. The meeting of 13th Aug. was called specially to consider the question of wharves built in front of the bund by Messrs. Butterfield and Swire, and the application of Messrs. Nachtrieb, Leroy, and Co. to place a pontoon there. The object of the meeting was so far met by the knowledge which each Councillor had acquired from the record on these matters; and it was decided to defer discussion until the report on the line of the bund generally, called for by the Consular body, had been sent in by the authorities of the port, and submitted to the Council. Inasmuch as this line is yet under consideration, and modifications may be introduced, the Council decided to appoint Capt. Roberts to look after the interests of the French concession. A sum of Tls. 50 was subscribed to the fund on behalf of the marine of H.M.S. Cadmus, injured at the fire in the east quarter.

The Synod of China in connection with the Presbyterian Church in America has just closed its sessions at Chefoo. The Synod has in connection with it 27 missionaries, 13 ordained native preachers, and 24 additional native licentiates and candidates for the ministry, a church membership of 1,093 adults, and 700 children in the mission schools. During the past year the native church contributed upwards of $1,000 to benevolent objects. A very important step was taken by the Synod to secure at an early day a Commentary on the entire New Testament. This will supply a long-felt want.

Another Chinaman, charged with stealing flowers from the Public Gardens, has been taken before the Mixed Court and, as both bamboo and cangue have failed to stop depredations of this kind, Chen touched the offender on a more tender point, and sentenced him to two days' imprisonment.

General Le Gendre left Shanghai on the 29th Aug. for Peking. On dit that as soon as the General's recent arrest was telegraphed to Washington his release was promptly ordered, thence, by the same agency.

The ships Duke of Abercorn and St. Aubyn have been detained nine days at Woosung, for want of water to cross the Bar.

We take the following items of intelligence from the Shanghai Budget:—

We learn on what we take to be good authority that two old and tried employés of the Foreign Customs' Service of China have been engaged, on the suggestion of M. Giquel, at handsome salaries, to proceed to the Pescadores to drill into as much efficiency as circumstances permit the raw material of soldiers that is being rapidly massed there. There must be something very indeterminate or very elastic in international law, when it can be so modified or adapted by national statute that while some men are deprived of their personal liberty on the mere suspicion of giving advice—whether for the prosecution of war or the bringing about of peace,—others who openly assist in warlike operations are allowed to earn both increased honour and emolument by so doing.

We have information purporting to be authentic that two veritable iron-clads have been purchased in France for the Chinese Government at a cost of £220,000 each, which an authority on such matters assures us is a price sufficient to secure armour plates seven inch thick. So far, nothing could be more likely, for it is well-known that fully two months ago at least the Chinese became convinced that all efforts against the Japanese would be useless without this formidable class of vessels, and extraordinary measures were devised to secure the necessary funds. But when it is added that the newly-purchased ships are already on their way to China, our faith begins to call a halt. Nous verrons!

A man named Hansen, some time a Municipal constable, and latterly a seaman of the U.S.S. Monocacy, has been tried at the U.S. Consulate-general for cutting and wounding Sergeant Bird, of the Municipal Police, when endeavouring to arrest him on a charge of desertion, in the French Concession, and being found guilty, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment.

We observe that after some months of raising and grading the foreshore of the Hongkew Bund in front of the Austrian Consulate, the foundations for the new United States Consulate-General to be erected on that site are being energetically piled, so that building operations will probably commence forthwith. The first piles of the new bridge, to cross the Soochow Creek at the end of the Honan Road, have been driven.

A scheme is in circulation for the amalgamation of all the foreign pilots off Shanghai, whether working separately or in the present sectional companies, into one general association, to be called, as of old, "The Shanghai Pilot Company," but to be governed and managed entirely by the pilots themselves.

The Chinese gunboat Tinkin (side wheel) arrived in harbour on the 28th Aug., from Woosung, to await the Taoutai's orders. She carries nine large brass rifled guns, also two brass bow guns. She has a complement of 120 men, all told, on board.

SHANGHAI, AUGUST 29, 1874.

Matters here seem to have come to a dead lock, as far as the Chinese are concerned. They have sent a few hundred (so called) soldiers from Chinkiang to Formosa in the Chinese merchant steamers, one of which returned here a few days ago from Chinkiang, where she had gone to embark troops, but the troops declined to go, and are stated to be in a mutinous condition, clamouring for arrears of pay. The crews of the frigate and gunboats here have nearly all deserted, the frigate having, it is said, only three people on board—viz., the captain, the cook, and a boy. The remainder have made themselves scarce. A horse boy who had been on board came back to his master here yesterday, and said he did not like fight pidgin, but much preferred the lot of a groom.

It appears from intelligence just received, that another "Tientsin Massacre" has been imminent, and only escaped by a hair's breadth. The large Chinese army kept near Tientsin by Li Hung Chang, the Viceroy, has become an element of danger to the Chinese and foreigners. It appears they have rebelled against the Government, and intended to attack Tientsin and kill all the foreigners, and also take the Taku Forts. Some of them have been arrested, but what the end will be no one can tell. The Japanese are preparing for war, buying steamers, sending troops to reinforce their army at Formosa, and negotiating at Peking at the same time. The Chinese are buying arms of all kinds, hiring drill instructors, but their soldiers and sailors are deserting by wholesale.

The arrest of Gen. Le Gendre at Amoy seems to have been a mistake, or at least premature, as there is, as yet, no war between the Japanese and Chinese. It is the general desire of foreigners that the Chinese should get thrashed, as, if they were successful against the Japanese, the lives of foreigners would not be safe, as they would certainly commit some outrage. This Tientsin affair confirms this view. The disaster to the Stonewall at Nagasaki is unfortunate for the Japanese at this juncture, but it is to be hoped she may be raised. Teamen here are hoping that the port of Shanghai may be blockaded by the Japs, as the price of tea in England would go up at once. They consider a three months' blockade would be a most satisfactory proceeding, but I hardly think the Japanese have force enough to cause a blockade to be respected by foreign Powers. The Chinese blockade of Hong Kong in time of peace is an anomaly that would hardly have been borne in the time of Cromwell or Elizabeth, but Gladstone and Co. had little of the public spirit that Englishmen ought to have when the honour of their country is at stake. Fancy a French Custom House in London and French cruisers at Ramsgate to seize and confiscate French vessels for entering or leaving the Port of London, and you have an exact counterpart of the state of affairs at Hong Kong for the last two years. The Chinese cruisers have been in English waters only a quarter of a mile from Hong Kong island, and no Chinese port within eighty miles on the north or 290 miles on the south, viz. Canton and Foochow. To save trouble the Chinese have established a regular Custom House in Hong Kong to issue port clearances, and have also begun to arrest Chinese subjects in Hong Kong, and send them to Canton for punishment. Surely our present Government cannot be so pusillanimous as to submit to this any longer, and lower the prestige of England, not only in the eyes of the Chinese, but foreigners of other nationalities. It is reported that the Taoutai of Shanghai waited on Mr. Medhurst, English Consul, a few days ago, to ask if he would defend the city in case of a rising of the rebels, of which the Chinese authorities seem apprehensive. He, of course, declined, but informed him that the Chinese Government would be held responsible for any damage to foreign property. The real danger seems to be from their own soldiers, who are a regular "rabble rout." The Japanese state positively that the Chinese disclaimed in writing all sovereignty over the parts of Formosa inhabited by the independent tribes. The Chinese have played this game so often with the English, who always swallowed the baits like gobemouches, but the Japanese took them at their word. It shows the necessity of exacting redress from the Chinese when outrages are perpetrated. The Chinese are now fully alive to their mistake, and are making desperate efforts to repair the blunders, but their military preparations are an utter failure. The Chinese authorities have applied to the foreign consuls to make Shanghai a neutral port in case of war. They have been reading the translation of "Vatel on the Law of Nations." I fancy that Shanghai ought to be a neutral port, so that the Japanese should stay outside Woosung and not come up the river and burn the arsenal, and capture the city, of which they are in dread. As I write the Chinese merchant fleet is entering the harbour, on its return from Formosa, where they took troops from Chinkiang. From all that has yet transpired, it would appear that the Chinese army has no stomach for fighting. War material is being shipped here for Foochow in large quantities, but of such a heterogeneous composition that it can be of little use. Guns of one kind and ammunition of another.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 5th September; the P. and O. mail from London July 24 was received on the 30th August. The following items of news are from the Hong Kong Daily Press:—

We learn that a man who was captured at Canton as one of those concerned in the recent piracy on board the Spark made a confession of the facts connected with the affair prior to his death, which took place some time after his capture. He had been seriously wounded in an encounter which had taken place between the junk which he belonged to and another which was to have taken part in the proceedings, but was not up to time, and he had also received some wounds in a desperate attempt which he made to prevent himself from being taken. From these injuries he died shortly after he had made his statement. From his account it appears that it was intended that some seventy men should join in the affair—thirty among the passengers and forty upon a large junk—the one which missed the rendezvous and was employed in addition to the smaller one which took the pirates off after the affair was over. These men were got together by a species of head pirates who, on the information of one who had been in the habit of travelling on board the Spark, promised each to provide so many men. The large junk with forty men on board was unable to come up in consequence of the Kin-Shan being delayed in passing the Spark by the tide, and consequently took no active part; but it seems that after the piracy was over they came up with the small junk and demanded a share of the plunder; but this being refused on the ground that they had done nothing, a fight ensued, in which several men on both sides were seriously wounded. This disagreement among the robbers may possibly have the effect of aiding in the capture of those immediately concerned, and the confession of the man taken at Canton will probably also be of assistance in their capture. We hear that the authorities at Canton are most anxious to punish the pirates, and there is no doubt that the utmost exertions will be made for their capture.—By the Elk we learn that three more pirates had been captured at Canton. At the Police Court on the 3rd Sept. Wong Chan Ying, apprehended at Wanchi; Wong Asin, apprehended at West Point; Kwok Chi Ping, alias Kwok Ting On, Chan Yip Cheong, Chan Foo Kam, Chan Kam Cheung, and Wong Choi Hong, apprehended at Aberdeen, were charged with piracy and murder. After some evidence had been taken the accused were remanded until the 8th Sept.

A very severe squall visited the colony at 1 A.M. on the 4th Sept., causing consternation on the water, particularly amongst the sampans and cargo boats, who were not prepared for any such thing. Several capsized, and it is reported that five or six Chinese are missing. The squall came down Happy Valley with tremendous force, and the heavens appeared as if on fire, flashes and sheets of lightning darting about in all directions. Some very heavy peals of thunder brought down torrents of rain, and the squall swept along Wanchi Bay with terrific force, causing vessels in its course to swerve at their moorings very heavily. The iron roof on the new pier came to grief completely, injuring most of the pillars which supported it. In other parts of the town damage to venetians and windows formed the principal items. The squall lasted only an hour.

Thirteen gamblers have been arrested by Inspector Cradock and a party of police in a house in Jose East-street, Tank lane. The gamblers consisted of five Portuguese females, three Portuguese males, three Chinese females, and two Chinese males. They were brought before Mr. May, the police magistrate, and convicted. The first and second defendants were fined $200 each, or six months' imprisonment; the eleventh defendant, a singing woman, was discharged, and the other two China women, twelfth and thirteenth defendants, were fined $25 each, or two months' imprisonment. The rest of the Portuguese defendants were fined $50 each, or three months' imprisonment, except the third defendant, who was recognised as having acted as manager on one occasion, and she was fined $100, or four months' imprisonment.

The Spanish steamer Formosa reports that on entering the Lyee-moon pass a junk bore under her stern and seized the patent log, and refused to give it up until firearms were presented at them.

We are informed, by good authority, that the Provincial Government of Foochow contemplates again employing foreigners for service afloat. The present discipline of the men and condition of the vessels is represented to be most ineffective.

The P. and O. Co.'s steamer Massilia is, we believe, likely to become the property of the Japanese Government.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 12th September; the P. and O. mail from London, 7th August, was received on the 6th Sept. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times:—

An interesting cricket match, between eleven of the Army, Navy, and Civil Services, and eleven of the Singapore Cricket Club, which was commenced three weeks ago on the cricket-ground on the Esplanade, has been concluded, resulting in a victory for the Singapore Cricket Club, by only two wickets. The termination of the game was witnessed with much interest, as up to the finish the Services played with the utmost determination, and it was only by the last effort on the part of the Club that the game was won. The band of the 10th Regiment enlivened the play on the last day of the match, and the field was honoured by the presence of many fair spectators.

A bundle of bank notes which has been found by the Inspector-General of Police proved to belong to the Nacodah of a native vessel from the Gulf of Siam, who had received them from a rice shopkeeper in Hill-street in payment for a cargo of paddy, and dropped them out of his pocket before leaving the shop. The notes were picked up by a coolie, but another who saw him do this claimed a half share, and while they were disputing a third person, the master of the shop came up, and he also claimed a share. The result was that one of the parties, being dissatisfied with the proposed distribution of the spoil, reported the matter to the police, who recovered all the notes, and locked up the three disputants on a charge of criminal misappropriation.

A fire has occurred at Siglap, in which an unfortunate Chinaman lost his life. The building was an attap hut, in which two Chinamen lived, one sleeping in the body of the hut and the other in a small projecting shed attached. The inmate of the larger room was awakened by the fire just in time to escape, but the other's escape was cut off, and he was burned to death. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Captain Walshe, Magistrate of Police, goes home by the present mail steamer on six months' leave of absence. Mr. C. B. Waller will act as Police Magistrate in his stead.

The tragedy recently enacted in Canton river on board the steamer Spark should not be allowed to pass as an idle tale that is told, signifying nothing. It is pregnant with warning, quite as much to the merchants, owners, and captains of the Straits as to those of Hong Kong or all China, for we have steamers and sailing vessels, often crowded with Chinese passengers, coming and going to and from our ports, China, and Australia, on board which the same scene may any day take place, with equal, if not more, facility and fatality. There is no one, who knows anything of these steamers or passenger ships, but must be well aware that the precautions against any possible emeutes on board of them are lax in the extreme, and may be said to be inducements to mutiny, a premium on piracy and murder. There is generally a battery of half-a-dozen old firearms, unloaded but well-oiled, with powder and bullets carefully laid up nobody knows where when wanted, and there may also be a similar number of cutlasses, also well-oiled, but blunt as colters, and these constitute the weapons of defence of a handful of Europeans, taken by surprise and scattered all over the vessel, against one to eight hundred merciless ignorant coolies, led by determined ruffians, who know well that they must succeed and be thorough in their bloody work, or either be drowned or hanged. There is every probability that the emigration of Chinese coolies to Queensland and Port Darwin by the Eastern and Australian Mail Company and other steamers will be on a large scale. The E. and A. Company's boats have already taken considerable numbers to Queensland and brought many back. Are their boats, for example, sufficiently or even decently provided with arms, and are there regulations in force on board to put down any sudden flood of mutiny that may take place when least looked for? We fear not, and we trust the Company will be wise in time and insist upon the most stringent discipline being established on board all their boats, especially any carrying bullion or valuable cargo of a portable nature with a large number of Chinese coolies, in order to meet and quell any attempt such as that which was so fatally successful on board the Spark.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—During the fortnight business, both in Yarns and Grey Shirtings, had continued quiet, and rates for the lower qualities, although without quotable change, were decidedly weaker. T-Cloths had been in good demand, stocks being nil; and Velvets had continued to be asked for at the advance previously established. In Mousselines de Laine there had been a fair business, at higher rates; whilst as regards other descriptions of Fancy Goods, although no actual demand had existed, new parcels had been freely taken upon speculation. The inquiry for Blankets had continued. Stocks of manufactured Iron were still large, but suitable sizes of Bar Iron were saleable. Small Nail Rods showed little improvement, but rather better rates could be obtained for assorted sizes.

SHANGHAI.—Extreme dulness had prevailed in the market during the week, and, owing to unfavourable advices from the northern ports, prices of many articles showed a tendency to decline.

HONG KONG and SINGAPORE.—Import markets quiet, without change.

MANILA.—There had been no improvement to report in the market for Plain Staples, and values in most cases remained unaltered. Coloured Goods continued extremely dull.

SAIGON.—There had been very little doing in imports.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—The market had not been so active, owing, mainly, to the higher figures to which prices had advanced, as compared with home values. Settlements were estimated at about 6,500 piculs; and, altogether, prices had been well supported. The bulk of the business had been in medium to fine grades, which had realised $34 to $42. The unsold stock was not large, and desirable grades were firmly held. From this port the P.M. steamer Great Republic on the 14th Aug. carried—151,407 lbs. for New York,—229,060 lbs. for San Francisco,—77,520 lbs. for Boston, &c.; the s.s. Vancouver on the 18th, took—143,796 lbs. for New York,—240,189 lbs. for San Francisco,—77,723 lbs. for Chicago, &c.; and on the 23rd the P.M. steamer Colima left with 283,512 lbs. for New York,—and 163,445 lbs. for San Francisco. Export from 1st May to date 6,300,226 lbs., against 3,245,907 lbs. to corresponding date last season.

SHANGHAI.—Black: There had been a considerable business at about last mail's rates. Arrivals had been on a very small scale, and there was little but common Tea offering. Settlements, 23,573 chests, at Tls. 17 for common Hohows and Shontam, to Tls. 36 for a small lot of fine Ningchows in boxes. Stock, 23,500 chests. Green: Common Teas had been taken freely at former rates for all good chops. Pingsueys were not much wanted, and here and there teamen had been found willing to sell at a decline. Quotations had been irregular, according to the market for which the Teas had been purchased. Settlements—Fychow and Moyune, 30,132 half-chests at Tls. 31½ to 43½ Pingsuey, 4,065 half-chests, at Tls. 19 to 46. Shanghai packed 1,488 half-chests at Tls. 25 to 32. Stock, 45,000 half-chests. Export to date to Great Britain (exclusive of lost cargoes):—

Black	49,790,353 lbs.	against	44,454,359 lbs.
Green	2,404,306 „	„	4,490,311 „
	52,194,659		48,944,670

FOOCHOW.—During the early part of the week a very quiet tone prevailed with trifling settlements; towards the close, however, the Teamen had shown more disposition to meet the views of the buyers, and the market closed with a fair business doing. Congou: Settlements 9,750 chests at Tls. 5½ to 23. Holders had shown no disposition to submit to any concession on last mail's prices, and were more particularly firm for flavoury to medium kinds; arrivals 25,100 chests. Souchong: Settlements 850 chests at Tls. 14½ to 30½; quotations unchanged; arrivals 1,200 chests. Oolong: No settlements reported; arrivals 3,300 half-chests. Scented Teas: Settlements 6,000 boxes at Tls. 19 to 21, being about previous rates; arrivals 6,800 boxes. The export to Great Britain, the Continent of Europe, and the Cape of Good Hope amounted to 31,654,742 lbs., against 29,260,373 lbs. last year; to America, 154,936 lbs., against nil.; to the Colonies, 7,806,894 lbs., against 8,633,337 lbs.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Soon after issue of last report prices became decidedly weaker, when a more active demand took place, which checked the lowering tendency and imparted a firmer tone to the market: under these circumstances no alteration was reported in quotations for general classes. A few bales of new Kakida Oshus of "best" quality had been purchased at $570 per picul. Settlements, from July to date, 950 bales, against corresponding period—season 1873-4, 2,200; stock, 500 bales new Silk.

SHANGHAI.—During the week a large business had been transacted, fully 3,000 bales having found buyers, increasing the total settlements from 1st June to date to 29,500 bales, against 22,900 bales at same date in 1873. The large business transacted had strengthened the market, and in some cases a slight advance in prices had been paid. Arrivals continued very limited, and the unsold stock was estimated at 13,000 to 14,000 bales.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

Shanghai, Oct. 10.—The report published by a London newspaper that war had been declared between China and Japan is not true. On the contrary, the prolonged negotiations between Okubo and the Tsung-Li Yamen tend to show that a peaceful solution will result. The negotiations are kept very secret, even to the foreign Legations.

THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

Singapore, Oct. 10.—The Legislative Council have unanimously approved the native policy inaugurated by Sir Andrew Clarke. The Council, in authorising the necessary expenditure, also passed a guarantee for the proposed telegraph line through the native States.

KASHGAR AND CHINA.

(Times' Telegram.)

Berlin, Oct. 13.—Yakoob, the Ameer of Kashgar, is as active as ever. While supporting the rebels in Khokand and preparing to extend his dominion in a western direction by the annexation of that principality, he about four months ago despatched a considerable force east, intending to follow up his previous victory over the Chinese by a decisive blow. His troops march in two columns, the one proceeding along the southern slopes of the Thian Shan towards Khami, the other keeping north, and making for Barkul. The Chinese had two armies in the country—a small force surrounded by Dungan rebels at Kur Kara Su, about 200 miles east of Russian Kuldja, and a larger one at Suchau, in the province of Hansi, 300 miles south-east from the Khami Barkul region on the eastern spurs of the Gelesni ridge. News of a collision is shortly expected. The natives, who have hitherto acted as Russian commercial agents in the smaller towns of Kashgar and Bokhara, are being gradually superseded by officials sent from Tashkend.

MEDICAL REPORTS FROM CHINA.

The Customs Gazette for the half-year ending 30th September, 1873, contains the medical reports forwarded by the surgeons to the Customs at the Treaty Ports in China.

Peking.—Dr. Dudgeon reports:—"During the past six months there was nothing of special interest to note regarding the health of Peking. When I add some little fever and fever and ague among one or two foreigners, I have mentioned all that is worth reporting in relation to climate. The native population have not suffered from epidemic, the most common affection being ague."

Amoy.—The Drs. Manson report:—"During the last six months the health of natives and foreigners was unusually good. No serious case of climatic disease occurred among the foreign residents, and beyond a very limited epidemic of dysentery during August and September the health of the native population was equally satisfactory."

Hankow.—Dr. A. G. Reid reports:—"Insolation is of rare occurrence among foreigners at this port. Among the native labouring classes who go through severe physical exertion it is also uncommon." Two instances are reported, however, wher neither of the men had been exposed to the direct rays of the sun.

Tientsin.—Dr. J. Fraser says:—"Notwithstanding a very hot and rainy season, together with a fresh inundation of the surrounding country, the health of the foreign community and shipping has been very good."

Shanghai.—Dr. A. Jameson reports:—"The past six months have witnessed little change, if any, in the sanitary condition of the settlements. There has been no improvement in the water supply, which is still drawn from the river and the creeks.

Digitized by Google

During the half-year there were forty-eight deaths, of which forty-two were males, and six were females. The health of the Customs' staff was good."

TAKOU (FORMOSA).—Dr. Rennie reports:—"During the six months under observation there was one death among the European community. An extremely delicate child died, after three days' illness, from acute dysentery and intermittent fever. Excellent health prevailed among the rest of the community."

CANTON.—Dr. F. Wong reports:—"The past summer was remarkable for the most terrible thunderstorm that has occurred for many years. The rainfall of this summer has been excessive, and the weather has been cool. The general health of both foreigners and Chinese has been exceptionally good." Accompanying Dr. Wong's report is a "Memorandum on Leprosy."

THE EASTERN EXTENSION AUSTRALASIA AND CHINA TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

The half-yearly general meeting of this company was held at the City Terminus Hotel yesterday—Mr. John Pender, M.P., in the chair. The report presented was summarised in our last issue.

The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, said that he was sorry he could not congratulate the shareholders upon the cables being in perfect working order. That section between Saigon and Hong Kong was not at work, but in two or three days they hoped to receive intelligence of the fault having been repaired, and the company being again in telegraphic communication with China. The cause of the interruption was attributable to the typhoons which had passed over Hong Kong, doing considerable damage; but the fault in the cable was believed to be close to Hong Kong, in which case, as he had previously stated, it would no doubt be speedily repaired, as the ship for that purpose, he hoped, was now on the ground. Unfortunately they had been unable to work with the Great Northern Company, an interruption having occurred in that company's cable between Hong Kong and Amoy and between Amoy and Shanghai, so that they could not communicate with Hong Kong by that route. Since the last meeting they had had two interruptions, one lasting for a few hours and one for a few days—the latter having been caused by some Chinamen picking up the cable and selling it in the open market. This was probably done through ignorance, but as the offenders were now suffering punishment for the offence future pilfering on the part of the Chinamen would no doubt be prevented. In other respects the affairs of the company have been going on satisfactorily. The income had been £9,000 more compared with the corresponding period of last year, whilst the expenses compared with the same period were £900 less. The directors found, however, with the greater experience gained in respect to submarine telegraphy, that careful supervision and some expense were necessary for the maintenance of the cables. As by experience they could easily find out the position of any fault, they hoped by experience to find out the best means of preventing them. The debenture debt was being reduced, and it was hoped in a short time that it would be got rid of altogether. A question which had been agitating the shareholders was that of amalgamation, but so far as he had been able to judge of the circulars which had been issued he hoped the shareholders would not allow themselves to be carried away by ex parte statements. The directors had been in favour of amalgamation, but there was a limit even to amalgamation. When companies were working in a particular groove, amalgamation might be beneficial, but if it were extended to systems which would not work well with each other, much difficulty might arise, and then an amalgamation would do more harm than good. Then, as regards the expenses, he believed that were the amalgamation to take place, it would to a very small degree lessen the expense of management. A few of the shareholders were anxious that an amalgamation should take place with the Globe, but it must be remembered that the Globe had been established on the principle of a trust company. If it were decided that this company should be amalgamated with the Globe, that company would not be in a position to take this. They would have to judge whether the excess of any one interest would not so overbalance another interest as to seriously interfere with the Globe dividends. The question of making a fresh issue was now under the consideration of the Globe Company; and in the event of that issue being made, it would be made upon such principles as would maintain the safety of the Globe. Those desirous of joining the Globe would have little difficulty in doing so even at the present moment. If any shareholder wished to put his interest into the Globe, he believed, if he would present to the Globe so many shares in one company and so many in another, so as to maintain the proper equilibrium of the Globe, that company would be prepared to deal with him. It would be impossible for them to force themselves upon the Globe, and the board had always been most careful in not lending themselves to forward any exchange business of any kind. With regard to the defalcation which had taken place at Shanghai, he said that the board had done everything possible to prevent anything of the kind; still the distance rendered it impossible effectually to check such things altogether. The resolution for the adoption of the report was seconded, and after a few congratulatory remarks from a shareholder, was adopted unanimously.

A Shareholder then moved, "That, in the opinion of this meeting, it is desirable that the Eastern Extension Telegraph Company should be amalgamated with the Globe Telegraph and Trust Company, and that the directors be requested to take immediate steps to carry out that object."—The resolution not having been seconded, the Rev. Lord Hawke spoke in favour of an amalgamation with the Eastern Company, and moved "That the directors be requested to confer with the board of the Eastern Company with a view to an early amalgamation between the two companies."—The resolution, however, was, after a brief discussion, withdrawn.—The proceedings then terminated with the usual votes of thanks to the Chairman and the directors.

HOLLAND.

AMSTERDAM, OCT. 7.

It has pleased his Majesty to release the Lieut.-General Van Swieten from his military duties, and to restore to him again his pension, which ceased when he started for Atchin. His mission is therefore at an end. But, alas, up to this moment there is no question at all of a treaty of peace with Atchin. The natives are not subdued; our authority has not been acknowledged by the Atchinese. The "grey-haired" general has not done what it was thought and hoped he would do. The first expedition was a failure, and the second was not more successful. We must now wait for the issue of the third, which, by the way, the thick and thin supporters of the re-pensioned general maintain is by no means necessary. It is not quite clear why they talk such nonsense; perhaps they fear that should it be successful the bad tactics of General Van Swieten may be demonstrated thereby. But whilst it is advocated that a third expedition is quite superfluous, higher bounties are being paid to recruits for the East India army; men-of-war are being equipped for our East India squadron; fresh troops are being sent out, and artillery has been ordered from Batavia to Atchin. What does all this signify if no third expedition is necessary? In your last issue you printed the news that a dinner had been given by the newly-appointed Minister of the Colonial Department to the commanders of the army and the navy of the second expedition. The Kurhaus at Scheveningen was most splendidly decorated for the occasion. About fifty persons were invited by Mr. Van Goltstein, and amongst them were the Prince of Orange, Prince Alexander, the Ministers, Messrs. Van de Putte, Gericke, Van Bosse, &c. I do not think it is of any use to reproduce the several toasts; ce ne sont que des mots, only words.

The result of the elections at Tiel and Leeuwarden has been adverse to the new Cabinet, Messrs. Van Rappard and De Roo Van Alderwerelt having been elected. The first-named is most certainly a Conservative, but with an anti-revolutionary bias, so that he perhaps will help to remove the stumbling-block (the Instruction question) out of the way of the Ministry. The latter is the well-known Radical, who contributed so largely to the bringing of the Liberal party into bad repute. The result of the election at Hoorn, where Mr. Fransen Van de Putte was brought forward by the Liberals, is looked for with some interest. It may be that he will be beaten by the Conservative candidate, Mr. C. Bloem, a business-man, well-known in that district.

The Conservative press is anything but satisfied with the Cabinet, and they fear especially that the Radical friends of Mr. Van Goltstein will lead him on a bad road. One paper is most astonished that this Minister had the courage to appoint Mr. Elout as a functionary in his department, which even Mr. Van de Putte declined to do. He is, the paper says, a promoter of the radical Atchin policy. But there are still more important reasons for distrusting Mr. Van Goltstein. At the banquet alluded to above he glorified in a toast "the victories in Atchin;" and ventured to say that the state of our East India colonies is satisfactory. The Dagblad is convinced that Mr. Van Goltstein is not the right man in the right place.

The business of the Second Chamber has not been important. Some Bills have been laid before the members, but they are scarcely worthy of notice. As reporters in the sections upon the East India Budget are appointed Messrs. Van Loon, Nierstrasz, C. Van Nispen, Mackay, and Gevers Deynoot. The Vaderland says that in the sections many objections have been made by the Liberals that the favourable balances are still absorbed on behalf of the mother country. I may, however, state that Mr. Van der Heim has better intentions. With his next budget he will propose such measures as to enable us to manage without the contribution from Java.

The managers of the Dutch India Railway Company intend to propose at the general meeting of shareholders, to be held here on the 27th inst., to issue the prospectus of a loan of 6,000,000 guilders. One-third of this sum will be applied to the purchase of material and the building of termini. The plan seems to be a most complicated financial operation, but I must add that this opinion is only based on a very short and rather incomprehensible notice which has gone the round of the papers.

I am happy to state that the lawsuit Angelbeck versus the Government has at last been brought to an end. This gentleman sued for an indemnification upon his being prematurely released from his duties. The Supreme Court has admitted his claims.

I regret to record the death of the ex-East India functionary, Mr. A. C. Oudemans. He was chiefly known by his literary labours, and in the last years of his life he undertook the important task of compiling a dictionary of the Dutch language in the early and middle ages.

On the 3rd of October the third jubilee of the raising of the siege of Leyden (1574) was celebrated in the presence of his Majesty, who attended divine service. The fete was unfortunately not favoured by fine weather.

In my last letter I gave you some particulars about the plan of the Minister for the construction of railways in Java. The Handelsblad adds that the State will forthwith construct the line Malang-Passaroean-Sourabaya (East Java), the cost of which is estimated at ten millions, whilst it is to be finished within three years. At the same time preliminary works will be executed for the Bandong line (West Java), in order to provide means of communication between Bandong and Buitenzorg, in the Preanger Regencies.

Mr. J. F. van Gennep, at Dordrecht, has been elected president of the Society for the Welfare of the Javanese, in the place of the late Dr. Bosch.

The transactions in our market for Colonial produce have not been of much importance since my last letter. Prices are well maintained, and the public auctions have gone off satisfactorily.

THE Messageries Maritimes steamer Anadyr, with the present inward mails, arrived at Marseilles on the 12th inst. at 3 A.M. She brings 148 passengers and a general cargo, including 678 bales of silk, 20,820 packages of tea, and 1,159 of sundries for London, which part of her cargo will be forwarded to its destination per company's steamer Euphrate, due in London on or about the 27th inst.

THE EXTINCTION OF SLAVERY IN SIAM.

In the short compass of a single article we can do but meagre justice to a question so complicated as this. Slaves in Siam may be roughly divided into three classes. First, there is the serfdom common to many of the inhabitants of Siam, especially among those whose fathers were originally captives taken in war. Under this system thousands of the people are enrolled as dependents either of one of the Kings or some great noble, and have to render three months' personal service annually, or, failing that, to pay a fixed pecuniary composition. Secondly, there are those who have voluntarily sold themselves into slavery. And finally, there are those who are slaves by the accident of birth. In the 31st chapter of Mrs. Leonowen's work, "The Romance of Siamese Hareem Life," we are told that the present King of Siam abolished slavery on the 1st of January, 1872. The words of the proclamation issued for carrying that project into effect are quoted, and a few lines further on we find it stated that on the date referred to men and women "found themselves absolutely free." It is therefore impossible to doubt that some important modifications of the Siamese slave system were introduced during the early part of 1872; and we conjecture that it was the serfdom or three months' annual service which was abolished. But that domestic slavery in its various forms must still exist in the country is clear from the announcement published in the Siam Weekly Advertiser of the 6th of August last. From that we learn that on July 22nd the King proposed to the Council the consideration of a plan to terminate slavery as it now exists in Siam. Heretofore husbands could sell their wives, parents their children. When parents were both slaves the children born to them in that state were also slaves. The old laws placed a valuation on born slaves from the day of their birth till they were one hundred years old. On the payment of this legal sum the slave could always secure his redemption. Under that system slavery would be a condition all through life, unless the legal sum could be paid down. Advantage was taken of these laws by the parties selling to obtain from others more than the legal sum, thus accumulating upon their vic tims amounts that it was absolutely impossible for them to pay, so that they could never hope to recover their personal freedom. The fact is, that in a country such as Siam, where slavery from the dawn of its history has been an ingrained social institution, the mere brutum fulmen of a Royal Proclamation can never eradicate the evil. The ipse dixit of a King, however despotic, has no real power to revolutionise in a breath the established relations of employer and workman, master and servant, debtor and creditor; or to overturn a wide-spread system of voluntary contract, by which, in consideration of a pecuniary advance, a man binds himself to reside in his befriender's house, and yield him stipulated personal service. Long-established customs, though they may be mischievous in their results, cannot be so easily got rid of. Can a legal prohibition stop opium smoking if, from inveterate habit, people choose to indulge in the practice? Assuredly it cannot; but the laws may succeed for all that in suppressing opium dens, in preventing the cultivation of the poppy, and in putting restrictive duties on the importation of the drug. It is, then, on such indirect and slowly operating processes as these that Siam must rely for the gradual extinction of slavery. Obviously the evil is a great one, for, as in all other nations where slave labour exists, so also among the Siamese, the hired labour of free men is very bad, very dear, and in some important branches—such, for example, as cutting grass and clearing away rank vegetation—difficult, nay, almost impossible to obtain. It is, in fact, the dearness and scarcity of her labour market that retards the progress of Siam. Labour for pay is scorned by the poorer classes, and relegated to the slaves. The country is not over-peopled. There is abundance of rice, fish, and vegetables for all, and hence, with a low standard of comfort, the people refuse to work. This being so, the capital necessary for the development of industry is not tempted into the country. Trade languishes, and when—as in the case of the Indo-Chinese sugar mill—a real effort is made, it results in hopeless failure, because imported labour is too costly to admit of success. Hitherto the Siamese rulers have been blind to their own interests, and instead of doing what they can to cheapen their own labour market, they have made it dearer. Thus, with the really large revenues derived from their import and export duties since foreign trade was introduced, they have been building temples, which, while from their nature they yield no return for the capital sunk upon them, yet render the Government competitors with private capitalists for such labour as is to be had, and thus raise the rate of wages for all.

Assuming, then, that the Government either has abolished, or can immediately abolish, the serfdom first referred to, paying compensation to the nobles who hold such serfs whenever justice requires it, what further steps can they take, to be successful, so as to get rid of slavery in its other forms? Indirect means, as we have said, must be adopted. One of the leading causes of slavery in Siam arises from the laws of debtor and creditor, and the profligate habits of the people. Thus a man either by gambling, drinking, or opium-smoking will get himself hopelessly into debt, obtain an advance at interest to discharge his liabilities, and end by finding himself and his family enslaved. Now in England a promise made without consideration is not legally recoverable, and hence gambling debts cannot be enforced. Let the same rule be introduced into Siam, and one great fountain-head of self-incurred servitude will have been immediately dried up.

Again, in this country we have "The Tippling Act," which obliges publicans to exact ready-money payments for the liquor they retail by the glass, and renders it difficult for a half-intoxicated man to run up a ruinous bill. Some regulation of this kind might be applied in Siam to the spirit shops and opium dealers; and generally the laws of debtor and creditor might be judiciously and carefully reformed, and some bankruptcy system introduced, such a system as while it repressed fraud and recklessness among debtors might yet check rich people from lending sums to the hopelessly insolvent who have nothing but their personal security to offer. The present law in Siam is that so soon as the interest on a loan (which is very high) has accumulated till it equals the principal nothing further can be charged, and hence the creditor at once seizes the debtor's person and family, and reduces them to domestic servitude. This usury law ought to be abolished. So long as a debt remains unpaid common sense requires that the interest should run on; but there can be no objection to a man if he cannot pay the yearly interest agreeing with his creditor to render him annually a certain number of days' service, paying in labour, in fact, instead of coin. Unsecured loans in civilised countries are covered by life insurance; and perhaps a Government life insurance might turn out very profitable to the Siamese treasury. If a debtor will neither work nor pay interest he might be imprisoned; but masters ought no longer to be allowed to beat their slaves. So far the proceedings to be adopted are tolerably simple, but a difficulty arises as to runaway debtors, slaves as we should call them. This is a misfortune which overtakes creditors in every nation, and which can never be wholly checked; but in Siam the present system, by which slaves are very much at their master's mercy, and often harshly treated and put in irons, makes them bolt much more frequently than they would do under milder and juster laws. Debtors, too, would be less apt to abscond if the police system were effective, and communication so easy between one province and another as to render re-capture and punishment nearly certain to ensue. This reflection suggests another desirable step. Let the Siamese exterminate all the dacoits who infest their jungles; for these dacoits are mostly nothing more than runaway slaves, who are driven to robbery for a livelihood. If there were no thieves men would not disappear into the jungles, and in the towns they would be re-caught. Husbands ought no longer to be allowed to sell their wives into slavery. True they pay money for them on marriage, a custom which has prevailed among nearly all nations in a certain stage of civilisation, but when a man buys a wife he gets something in return for his money. The children of slaves, again, are born in slavery. This usage prevails because when a debtor dies he leaves nothing except his children to cover his liability. But the principle that children are born responsible for their parents' debts ought to be at once put an end to. Unsecured claims should either lapse entirely on the decease of the insolvent slave, or else be covered, as we have said, by life assurance. Children brought from China and purchased and reared by Siamese should become free on attaining manhood; and, lastly, where a slave is allowed by his master to take service with a foreigner at a high rate of wages on condition of paying his master the interest on his debt and half the surplus of his wages all such contracts should be void at law. A creditor is entitled to interest for his money, and repayment of his capital if he can obtain it, but the importance of encouraging industry and readiness to labour among the lower classes is so great —especially in a kingdom like Siam—that every working man should be protected in the enjoyment of the money which by his own exertions he has secured for himself.

THE HONG KONG BLOCKADE QUESTION.

"THE trade of Hong Kong is its real vitality; there is "no territory, and without trade it is nothing; those who "have lost heavily by the blockade can realise the truth "of this fact." These are almost the very words which fell from the mouth of one of the speakers at the meeting of the Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce, held on the 3rd of August, and they sum up as concisely as possible the very serious grievance, of which the colonists are loud in their complaints. For some years past certain Chinese cruisers have been in the habit of watching for junks leaving or going to Hong Kong, and what their object was it would be pure waste of time to discuss. Matters at last got to such a pitch that trade was completely paralysed, for Hong Kong was certainly no longer a free port, except in name; even fishing and vegetable boats were overhauled. "A Commission was in consequence appointed, which "made inquiries, examined witnesses, and sent in a report "to the Government at the latter end of April." A member of the Chamber of Commerce had, at the invitation of the Governor, been delegated to the Commission, and on this ground, and apparently on this ground alone, the Chamber thought itself entitled to a copy of the report. We are, however, of opinion that the Chamber of Commerce was wrong to expect the Governor to furnish it with a copy of the report in question, for the Commission of Inquiry was a Government one, and as such its report had to be forwarded home; the fact of a merchant being a member of the Commission did not alter its character. The Governor declined to comply with the request of the Chamber, but expressed his readiness to forward to the Colonial-office any representation or memorial on the blockade question. A memorial was accordingly drawn up, and at the last meeting of the Chamber of Commerce its "general principle" was agreed to. This memorial consists of eleven clauses, and may be briefly summarised as follows:—The Hoppo of Canton,—a mere farmer of the revenues of that port,—causes junks trading with Hong Kong to be watched and "squeezed," on the pretext that certain regulations of his have not been complied with! Sometimes they are even taken up to Canton and confiscated. The said Hoppo illegally requires that all junks should be "reported at Custom-house at Canton, "pay such duties as he may choose to impose, and obtain "a clearance before leaving the port of Hong Kong." If this statement be capable of proof, and we presume that it is, we are not surprised at these proceedings being called high-handed; the term is too mild, for, in point of fact, they amount to piracy, if the Hong Kong junks are bound on a legitimate voyage. This regulation as to clearances, &c., "has had the most injurious effect on the trade of the colony," and a certain branch of the junk trade has entirely ceased. But it seems that the Hoppo is not the only enemy of the Hong Kong junk trade, for there are many other cruisers belonging to the collector of the lekin (war-tax), and the farmer of the salt-tax; "all these vessels prey indiscriminately on the junks trading with the colony;" what wonder then that the local trade of Hong Kong is so crippled! Again, these armed cruisers are all under the supervision of a steam gun-boat, the Peng Chao Hai, which claims the rights of a man-of-war to enter and leave Hong Kong harbour without reporting herself, or obtaining a clearance. Further, the Hoppo employs British subjects in his cruisers, which is considered a violation of the Foreign Enlistment Act. The memorialists understand that junks trading (say) to Formosa and Hainan "have practically to pay double duty, as the authorities of "those ports . . . . ignore the payments to the Can- "ton authorities," and the unfortunate junk owner's chances of obtaining restitution through any source whatever are remarkably slight. As an instance in point the case of the Kum Hop Sing is quoted, but this does not appear a very happy illustration, for the vessel admittedly left Formosa without the "Grand Chop," and, therefore, her papers were not in order, although the junk owner asserts that they were such as he had been trading with for years. In connection with this matter the memorialists regret to state that H.M.'s Consul at Canton seems to accept the statements of the Customs authorities at that port "as true, and to throw discredit on assertions made against them." The memorialists next go at length into their grievance against H.E. the GOVERNOR for withholding from them a copy of the report of the Commission of Inquiry. They lay stress on "the statements by Chinese merchants set forth in this Memorial" as being "in substance correct," and in conclusion they urge upon Lord CARNARVON "that these proceed- "ings of the Hoppo and the authorities of Canton are in "contravention of the Treaty of Peace and Friendship "entered into by the respective Governments of Great "Britain and China, and as the latter Government has ceded "the Island of Hong Kong to the former, it is an unlawful "proceeding to blockade all its approaches and thus render "the proclamation of Her MAJESTY'S Government—[pre- "viously alluded to]—completely nugatory."

We trust that the Colonial-office will give immediate attention to this Memorial, and as the late Attorney-General of Hong Kong, Sir JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE, is now an Under-Secretary in the department, he will be able to afford Lord CARNARVON any assistance in arriving at a correct appreciation of the great and unjust injury inflicted on the colony by this system of Chinese revenue cruisers intercepting trading craft.

CEYLON PAST AND PRESENT.

"Change, change the mournful story
Of all that's gone before;
The wrecks of perished glory
Bestrewing every shore.
The shattered tower and palace
That frown o'er every glen,
In broken language tell us
Of the fleeting power of men."

Who that reading the above beautiful lines and knowing the antecedents of this once great and powerful kingdom can fail to mark their applicability? Ceylon two thousand years ago was a rich, powerful, and flourishing country, with a population which recent writers, assisted by ancient records, assert was variously estimated at from five to ten millions, and this large population the country grew food enough to sustain. The remains of old tanks, built round with a solidity and completeness rarely surpassed, attest the fact that such extensive reservoirs, scattered all over the country, were made and maintained by the populace to store up water for irrigating their fields which were to grow their food. Successive Kings watched over these with an assiduity which showed they had the welfare of the inhabitants at heart, and although these great works were erected by Rajacaria (or forced labour), it was only forcing the people to feed themselves and live. Pagodas, dagobas and the ruins of ancient palaces also attest a degree of power and splendour rarely to be met with in an Eastern kingdom. So skilled were the artisans that Kings in the Indian Peninsular frequently sent over to the King of Kandy to borrow from him masons and builders to teach their people the kind of work at which those of Ceylon were so expert. Some of their buildings were of the most gorgeous character. At Arvuradhapura—the City of the Ninety Kings—the ruins of the once far-famed Brazen Palace may still be seen; its pillars standing to the number of some hundreds (monoliths), in the midst of dense jungle. Where that royal city stood, covering an area of sixteen miles square, is now a dense forest, and a few dagobas, more or less in ruins, are all that mark its ancient splendour. Intestine wars and foreign wars, followed by devastation and pestilence, were the causes that led to such rapid and complete decay. Men were taken from their fields and their families to fight their kings' battles; their fields were neglected; their tanks went to ruin; their population was decimated; and when war had ceased pestilence took up the deadly rôle and carried off its victims in such numbers that those remaining fled the pestilential spot, where population was once densest and food most abundant; but when Government got into a settled state it was found that a population of probably ten millions had dwindled down to one and three-quarter millions! Such was its state when some twenty years ago Sir Emerson Tennant wrote his history of Ceylon. Its clever handicraftsmen had forgot their cunning—its people once hardy and bold had become feeble and effeminate—and artisans had to be brought from other countries to teach them what they once so well knew before. The advent of the Portuguese to some extent brought back civilisation, and they introduced the Roman Catholic religion. The Dutch followed, and introduced many improvements in lakes, canals, and commerce. But it was only since the occupancy of the island by the British that a real hearty progressive impulse has been given to agriculture and commerce. During their period, which in the maritime provinces dates back only seventy years, and sixty in the Kandyan country, the island has been opened up by roads which now form a network all over it. Trade, which on their arrival consisted of the monopoly of the cinnamon gardens (since abolished)—the salt duty, also a monopoly—and a pearl fishery occasionally, has been developed in the growing of coffee, cocoanuts, cinnamon, tobacco, and more recently tea and cinchona, till our export trade has risen to the value of about 5,000,000 pounds sterling, and our import trade is about the same, or ten millions in all per annum. We import about 4½ million bushels of rice to feed the population, including about half a million tamils imported from India to work the coffee plantations. The native population at the census taken three years ago had increased to about 2½ millions. The coffee, our staple, had increased to one million hundred weights, and Ceylon had grown to be the third largest coffee-producing country in the world. But this is only the beginning of its future. Six years ago our railway from Colombo to Kandy was opened. Its continuation to Gampola, twelve miles further, was opened for traffic two years ago, and its extension to Nawalapitiya will be opened in another month. Nor is this all, a project is now before Government, and is being urged upon them by the planters, for continuing the railway northward to Matale and southward to Uva, including about a hundred miles of new line. Plans and estimates of the portion from Nawalapitiya to Uva have been made, estimates of probable traffic have been got, and a commission has gone into the question in all its details; the result of which is that it has been proved that there are no insuperable engineering difficulties in the way, that it goes through a healthy country, past numerous coffee estates, through jungle land that is likely to be speedily cultivated as tea and cinchona plantations, and that there is at present a traffic that will pay. This, therefore, may be considered a project to be undertaken in the near future. Another grand project has been decided upon, and, in fact, is commenced—the Colombo harbour, to be formed by a breakwater, enclosing a sufficient body of water to float comfortably all the ships that come to the East. By its erection ships, and especially steamers, will be able to load and discharge cargo at all times, without waiting till the sea go down, or the wind lull, or daylight arrive. Vessels of all sorts Eastward bound will touch here to water, coal, or repair, and besides benefiting Ceylon, it will be one of the greatest boons that has ever been offered to the trade of the East. Then we have the telegraph—not only from Colombo to Kandy and Galle—but from Kandy to Nuwara Eliya and Kandy to Trincomalie, flashing our messages over the principal portions of the island, and associated with that of India, sending messages all over the world. In the days of Sir Edward Barnes, the most energetic and successful Governor before our day, the Colombo and Kandy cartroad was undertaken, a great work in its day, having to be cut through almost impenetrable jungle; but it is astonishing how much can be done by the strong will of a determined man. Such was Sir Edward Barnes, and the work does him lasting honour. Still, were Sir Edward now allowed a peep into the world, and were he to come to Ceylon to review the scene of his former labours, and could see its roadstead which in his time might have had four ships in a year, with its forty large vessels riding at anchor at one time, steamers arriving and departing almost daily, with its ramification of roads, railways, and telegraphs, methinks he would hold up his hands and exclaim, "this is not the Ceylon that I left forty years ago."

THE STRANDING OF THE "GORDON CASTLE"

An inquiry was held last week at Greenwich Police-court, before Mr. Patteson, the Magistrate, and Captains Hight and White, R.N., Nautical Assessors, respecting the stranding of the steamer Gordon Castle, Capt. Ritchie, from China, on the Burlings, on the West Coast of Portugal, on the morning of the 27th of July. Mr. Lancel Hamel attended for the Board of Trade; Mr. C. J. Cottingham, instructed by Mr. Lambert, for the Captain; and Mr. T. Cooper for the Owners. Mr. Hamel, in opening the proceedings, said the Gordon Castle left Woosung on the 11th of June with several passengers and a cargo of tea, valued at £200,000. She proceeded safely on the voyage, bound to London, and passed through the Straits of Gibraltar on the 25th July. Nothing particular occurred till shortly after 2 A.M. of the 27th, when she went full speed on the Burlings. The master, who was below at the time, immediately came on deck, and apparently did all he could to save ship and life. He ordered the boats to be launched, and the passengers were landed, and some portion of the cargo, on the Burlings till 2.30 P.M., when the tide made and the ship floated. The master and crew then proceeded with her for Lisbon, although the forehold was at the time full of water; but when off Cascaes Bay she had become in so dangerous a condition, the forepart of her deck being level with the water, that the only thing left with a view of keeping her from sinking was to run her ashore, which was done at about 8.30 P.M. on the same day (the 27th). By 2 A.M. of the following day the ship was entirely under water. The master, however, remained by her, and, with assistance obtained from the shore, succeeded in getting her afloat and taking her into Lisbon, where she underwent some temporary repairs, and was eventually brought safely to London.

Richard Killingly Greenwood, chief officer on board the Gordon Castle, stated that he was relieved at midnight on the 26th July by the second officer, to whom he gave the course as N. 14 degs. E. by the steering compass, and N. 30 E. by the standard compass, with instructions to call the captain should the Burling Light be seen, or the weather become thick. Witness continued: While below and asleep I was awoke by the ship striking at 2.15 A.M. I at once went on the bridge and saw the second officer. The captain came from below at the same time that I did. The weather was then thick. I only saw the rock ahead of the ship. I asked the second officer what he was doing. He said, "Going astern with the engines." I went forward and found the ship's stem crushed in against the rock. I called out to the captain not to go astern with the engines. The tide was then about half ebb. The captain ordered a boat to be got out. The ship then heeled over heavily to starboard. The passengers were put into the boat, and shortly after the crew, finding it impossible to remain on board, also took to the boats, and remained alongside. At daylight the captain ordered the crew to return on board. We then broke the tea out of the square of the forehatch, and afterwards landed it on the rock. The forepeak was full of water, and the tea was broken out in order to secure the lower hatches, so that the water should not rise between decks when the tide flowed. About half-past two P.M. of the same day, when the tide flowed, the ship floated off. There was then some water in the main hold, and the lower forehold and forepeak were full. When she floated off the crew were on board. Steam was got up as fast as possible, the captain stating his intention to be to take the ship to Lisbon. She was rounding Cascaes Bay, or nearing it, about half-past seven that evening, and, it being evident that she was settling down, the water then being over the fore part of the forecastle deck, which was flush, the captain determined upon beaching her in Cascaes Bay, and she was run aground about 8.20 that evening. As the tide flowed the water rose above the mainhold. The captain did everything that was possible to save the ship. The passengers were landed on the rock with the ship's papers, and were taken off next day by a passing steamer. I heard no objection made by the crew to take the vessel from the Burlings to Lisbon. In my opinion the ship struck the rocks in consequence of the thickness of the fog and the Burlings Light not being visible.—James Smith Wallace said: I was quartermaster on board the Gordon Castle. I came up on deck at midnight. I found the weather thick over head, thick to starboard, and, I should say, hazy to port. I relieved the wheel at twelve o'clock, and received the course from the man I relieved N. by E., and that course I steered by the steering compass, till about ten minutes past two, when I was relieved by Charles Dove, quartermaster. The weather changed from twelve o'clock nearly every ten minutes, sometimes clear, sometimes thick to port, and large drops of rain at intervals. The weather continued like this on and off until I left the wheel. When I came on deck after changing my coat, I heard the second mate's voice ordering the helm to be put hard-a-starboard. I got half way up the ladder to the wheel when she struck, and the concussion threw me back on the deck. I got up and looked ahead and saw a dark haze, which I took to be the hull of a ship. I could see no lights. The first order I heard after she struck was to clear away the boats; I think it was the captain's voice. In my opinion, after the casualty the captain did everything in his power to save life and property. I attribute the circumstance of the Burling Light not being seen to the thick weather.—Charles Dove said: I was quartermaster on board the steamer. At two o'clock I went to the wheel, relieving Wallace, who gave me the course N. by E. I continued that course until she struck. Just before she struck I saw something before me, dark, and the second mate called "hard a-starboard!" and ran to the telegraph, and then to the wheel to assist in putting it to starboard, and instantly she struck. I saw no light at any time after I took the wheel. She struck before she had time to answer her helm.—William M'Gilroy said: I was third mate on board the Gordon Castle. The second mate was on the bridge at 12 o'clock, it being his watch. Just before the vessel struck I heard the second mate give the order "Hard a-starboard" to the man at the wheel. There was an A.B. on look-out on the bridge during the whole of the watch, and he was there when she struck. The weather was thickish and foggy. It was very foggy at one time, and then it would lift. When the second mate called out "Hard a-starboard," the captain came on the bridge and called out "Clear away the boats." That was done, and in five or ten minutes afterwards a starboard boat was in the water. The boats went out easily. Everybody ultimately left in them except the captain, who remained by the ship. The second mate and myself occupied the same cabin. I never saw him the worse for drink, or at any time to have taken drink in excess. I never saw him negligent or careless about his duty.—Thomas Weir said: I was chief engineer on board the Gordon Castle. Between half-past one and two o'clock on the morning of the 27th July I was going from my room along the deck to the engine-room. Did not notice the weather at that time. I found everything going well in the engine-room. At two o'clock I went on deck from the engine-room. I saw the second officer on the bridge. I remained about fifteen minutes on deck; the night was very dark. At 2.15 A.M. I went from the bridge to the main deck, looked over the starboard side, and saw land appear suddenly on the bow. I turned and ran to the engine-room, but the ship struck before I got there. When I got into the engine-room the engines were going full speed a-head. As I was going down the stairs the telegraph bell rang, giving the order "Full speed astern." That order was obeyed in one or two turns. The telegraph then rang again, conveying the order "Full speed a-head." We kept the engines going a-head till we left the ship, in consequence of an order being given to take to the boats. There was no water in the engine-room when we left. I know that the vessel was damaged, I saw that her bows were knocked away to between eighteen or nineteen feet water-mark. She had six water-tight compartments, and a collision bulkhead. I saw the captain on the bridge after she had struck, giving orders. He remained by the ship when the boats went off. He was promoted from second officer to first officer, and from first officer to captain. I formed the very highest opinion of him. After we took the ship round to Cascaes Bay the fore-hold was full of water, and had been so since the casualty. The vessel was ultimately towed into Lisbon and temporarily repaired. The rent in the bow was filled up with cement, and the vessel eventually was brought to London. The bow of the ship was stove in for seventeen frames, sloping from twenty-one feet water-mark to the keel. The plates were slightly bent on the starboard side.

A statement by the second-mate, W. M. M'Leod, was read. It was to the effect that at 1 A.M. (July 27) I called the third mate on the bridge, and told him I wanted him to remain on the bridge and keep a bright look-out; also gave him the course (N. 30 E.) by standard compass. As I had orders to call the captain at that time, I went to the captain's cabin and called him, and he asked me if I could see the north star, and I answered "No." There were no stars visible. I then went straight on the bridge, and about 1.10 A.M. the captain came up and remained there with me, as near as I could judge, till 1.30 A.M. When the captain came on the bridge he asked me if I had seen any lights, and I answered "No." He then said, "We must be within range of the lights; keep a sharp look-out and let her go on a little longer." At the time the captain was on deck the weather was dark, with occasional passing fog banks, and all the time thick overhead, but appeared clear on the horizon. The water was smooth. About 2.15 A.M. I saw something suspicious ahead and slightly on the starboard bow, which I at first sighting took to be a ship standing to the N.E. on the port tack, the wind at the time from the N.W., and light. I at once ordered the helm hard a-starboard, to pass under the stern of what I took to be a ship, and stopped and reversed the engines. Before the engines had any effect as regards stopping the speed of the ship, she struck on a rock, no light being in sight at the time, and none having been seen from the time I took charge of the deck. At the time the ship struck we appeared to be steaming at the rate of ten knots an hour. After the ship had gone ashore on the rock, when the chief officer came on the bridge, after having been forward and saw as far as practicable the damage done, the captain made use of the expression, "Where are we? we must be on the main." The chief officer at once said, "No; we are on the Burlings." The captain said, "No, we can't be;" and the chief officer said again, "We are." After the ship was beached at Cascaes the engines were kept going a-head till the time we left the ship, about one o'clock on the 28th of July; and after all hands were in the boats they were still moving, and continued so till the fires were put out. The statement of Mr. Alexander Ritchie, master of the Gordon Castle, was also read:—"When we left Woosung on the 11th June, with a full cargo of tea, we had on board a crew of thirty-eight hands all told and one passenger. We subsequently took up four other passengers at Singapore. The passengers were two men, one lady, and two children. The ship was well found in every respect, and both the hull and the engines were in good order. We carried three mates and four engineers. At one A.M., on the 27th of July the second mate called me. I looked at my chart, and then went to the bridge. The second mate and a man on the look-out were there. I said to the second mate I thought we ought to be getting within the range of the Burlings Light. I told him to keep a good look-out. I left the bridge a few minutes past one to consult my chart and to give a little more distance, as the wind had moderated since I was on deck at eleven. I marked my position on the chart and gave the ship twenty-one miles from 10.50 P.M., when off Cape Roca. That would leave me about sixteen miles from the Burlings. I calculated the course I was steering would have taken me from four or five miles to the west of the Burlings. I sat down in my room on the deck with my clothes on, waiting for the second mate to inform me as soon as he had made the Burlings Light. I would never have left the bridge at one A.M. but for the purpose of altering my position on the chart through the wind having fallen. At about 2.15 A.M. I heard a crash. I immediately ran on to the bridge. I found the second mate there. The engines had then just started, going full speed astern. I saw a rock ahead, and immediately reversed them to full speed ahead. The first mate came on the bridge two or three minutes afterwards. My reason for going full speed ahead was to keep the rock in the hole and to prevent the ship from backing off and going down in deep water. I then ordered the boats out. They were promptly got out. I put the passengers and then the crew into the boats and stayed on deck myself, and then went forward and had a look at the extent of the damage. I found the bows smashed in from the twenty-foot mark to as low as I could see. I had the pumps sounded, and the carpenter reported five feet of water in the mainhold, and the forehold full. The bows were resting on the rocks. I then determined to secure the fore 'tween deck hatch before the tide rose if possible, and for that purpose broke out about 100 chests of tea, which were landed on the rocks. I landed the passengers and the ship's papers on the Burlings, and at 2 P.M. I started for Lisbon in hopes of reaching there. The water came over the forecastle deck, and had to be baled out. The water kept gaining on us, so much so that when abreast of Cascaes Bay I found the ship would not run any longer, and the fore part of the forecastle deck was level with the water, and the propeller nearly altogether out of the water. There was then fourteen feet six inches in the mainhold, and the forehold was full. I therefore determined to beach her, which I did at Cascaes. Some pumps were sent out from Liverpool, and we succeeded in pumping her out, and she was towed into Lisbon and again beached, and repaired by filling up the hole in the bows with bags of cement. The cargo was discharged and sold by auction. On the 21st Sept. I left Lisbon with my first engineer and a mate sent out to me by the underwriters, and an entirely fresh crew. On previous voyages the ship had always been steered the same course from Cape Roca to Cape Finnisterre as I gave." Mr. Cottingham addressed the Court at some length on behalf of Captain Ritchie.

The Court gave the following decision:—"After having carefully weighed the evidence, as well as the statements of the master and second mate, and the explanation offered by the master's advocate, the Court can only come to the conclusion that Mr. Ritchie is in default for not using proper caution in navigating the ship under his command. Assuming the ship's position at 10. 50 P.M. to have been six mile true west of Cape Roca, a run of 2½ hours, or a true north course, would place the ship well within the range of the lights both on Cape Carvoeiro and the Burlings. When the master went on deck, shortly after 1 A.M., the state of the weather being such that he could see no lights, it was his bounden duty to have remained on deck until well assured that the vessel was past the Burlings, or, if he intended to go below, to have put the ship on a safe and certain course that would have kept her clear of danger. Instead of this being done her course was only altered one quarter of a point to the northward of a course that the master must have known could not take him more than four or five miles outside the rock on which she struck, and during the whole of this time the ship was kept at full speed. The Court cannot accept the master's plea in extenuation 'that he was not called after one o'clock by the second mate, who had the watch, when the weather became thick and foggy,' as the evidence does not show that there was any material change in the general character of the weather from the time the master went below, about 1.30 A.M., until immediately before she stranded, at about 2.20 A.M. The Court have not overlooked the praiseworthy conduct and exertions of the master subsequent to the casualty, and have given due weight to the very high testimonials produced by him, yet they regret that they feel it their duty to suspend his certificate for twelve months from this date. The Court returns the second mate his certificate."

CHINESE PIRATES.—THE "SPARK" OUTRAGE.

(DAILY NEWS.)

The piratical outrage on the Canton river, of which we have just received the detailed accounts, appears to have been one of the most audacious enterprises reported even of Chinese piracy for many years. Perhaps the term piracy may suggest at the outset an entirely erroneous idea to some of our readers. This was no story after the fashion of Cooper or of Byron. Nor does it bring to mind any of the enterprises of Algerine rovers, or even of the less romantic desperadoes of more modern times in the Eastern Archipelago. It bears a closer resemblance to the sort of feat which our own times have occasionally witnessed when a railway train in some disturbed Spanish district, or in one of the Western territories of the American Union, is suddenly stopped, boarded, if we may use such an expression, and robbed by some gang of marauders who have accomplices among the passengers. We need hardly tell our readers that piracy in some shape or other has long been as familiar a crime through most of the Chinese seas and rivers as brigandage in Mexico or Calabria, or as wrecking was said to be in older days along our Cornish coasts. Of late years the Canton river pirates had limited their operations almost altogether to the junks of their compatriots. It is hinted, or more than hinted, by European journals in China, that even at Hong Kong our authorities have not troubled themselves much about the pursuits and the exploits of the robber colonies, as long as their emissaries confined their expeditions to the plunder of Chinese vessels. We do not venture to say that there is any truth in this allegation, or that anything which could have been done to put down the practice of piracy was left undone by the authorities at Hong Kong. But it is certain that for weeks before the recent tragedy the cases of attack upon native vessels in the Canton river were following each other with an audacious briskness which recalled the memory of the worst of the bad old days, and at last the climax came in the cool, daring, and successful crimes which were perpetrated on board the unfortunate Spark.

The first thought, perhaps, that will occur to any one is, that the captain and officers of the vessel seem to have been as ill-provided with the means of defending themselves as if they were steaming along the Thames or the Rhine. There is, indeed, good reason to believe that there must have been accomplices of the pirates among the passengers, but the great majority of the latter were treated by the pirates as their prey, and robbed and ill-used, and these might surely have counted for something in the way of assistance if the captain and crew had been in a position to make any promising defence. The pirates were about twenty, and are said to have been, for the most part, armed only with knives. Captain Brady and Mr. Mundy, with four or five of the crew, would, if properly armed, have had very little difficulty in dealing with a murderous rabble of that kind. Four Europeans, provided with good revolvers, might be safely trusted, when fighting for their lives, to have held their own against the twenty pirates. In the Border fights with Indians in the Western regions of the United States, the odds between civilised man and savage are constantly far greater against the civilised man; yet his weapons and his courage have prevailed. It would seem as if there must be some truth in the statements made by correspondents of the China Mail and other journals, that the Spark could not have been properly armed. It is possible that fancied security or contempt of danger may have led her owners and officers to look with too complete an indifference to the chance of an attack by the pests of the Canton river. There do not as yet seem any very confident hopes of the apprehension of the pirates, although the English, Portuguese, and Chinese authorities are making strenuous efforts for their recovery. There would necessarily, even if they were captured, be considerable difficulty as to their identification. Mr. Mundy, should he recover, might indeed be able to identify those with whom he was immediately engaged; but it is not likely that he could speak with any certainty as to all or nearly all the pirates. The native passengers were probably in far too great a fright to be able to give any evidence to which a civilised court of law would attach much importance, and of course either at Hong Kong or Macao the procedure of a civilised court of law would have to be observed even in the trial of pirates. The Chinese Government doubtless, if it succeeded in capturing any cluster of persons supposed to be the criminals, would not hesitate about giving them that kind of justice which used to be described once as a short shrift and a long rope. But that sort of proceeding would not answer any useful purpose. Many suggestions are offered about the destruction of certain villages which are reputed to be the lairs of pirate hordes, but there is rather too much of panic and passion in such proposals to meet with the sympathy of reasonable men. Meanwhile the work of plunder and murder has been wrought, and the perpetrators are as yet in safe possession of their spoil.

(DAILY TELEGRAPH.)

Without hoping that the wretches who wrought such deeds on board the Spark will ever be convicted of this particular piece of iniquity, it is clear that means must at once be taken to grapple with the evil. If James I. was justified in giving his consent to the expenditure of £3,000 for the apprehension of Algerine wrong-doers, we have a far greater interest in doing away with Chinese and Malayan pirates. All along the coast-line from Java to Peking, all round the coast of Malacca and Borneo, these sea-wolves have their hiding places and their homes. Vast hoards of ill-gotten booty lie concealed in the caves or nests built upon wooden piles, with which the water-line is covered; and here the hardy villains rejoice at the impunity with which they pillage and murder. No halo of romance surrounds their cowardly deeds; their thirst for blood and treasure, their barbarities and their treacheries have long since stamped them as unfit to exist. Dangerous to the unwary and unprepared, they may be easily exterminated if only energetic measures are employed. The chase and the capture would be synonymous; and the bursting shell and rifle-bullet would speedily overcome the knife and the gingall; while a rich booty would doubtless reward the captain and crew who, searching the infested coasts, might discover the lair and hunt out the thieving fraternity. No pangs of conscience could ever assail the commander who annihilated such pests of humanity, and no fear of remonstrance from mistaken philanthropists need be entertained. Beyond this, too, the duty of the English Government is clear. The Chinese war junks may be very excellent vessels of their kind, and to the Mongolian mind may possibly convey a sense of marvellour power; but, when English lives and English commerce are at stake, we cannot trifle or leave the business in their hands. Let the Chinese send war junks if they please. They propose to do so, and it is no business of ours to prevent them. But a few swift gunboats, ready to launch the pinnace and cutter, and drive out the pirates from their dens, will effect more than all the Chinese and Japanese navies combined, and in a very short time will make piracy so poor and unremunerative a trade, as well as an exceedingly risky one, that intelligent and even unprincipled Malayans and Chinese will betake themselves to more peaceful and less dangerous rogueries. Scenes such as that acted on board the Spark ought not to be repeated, and Englishmen, who bear the burden of an expensive navy, have a right to demand that ships in sufficient numbers and of suitable condition be employed without loss of time in ridding the Indian Ocean of the curse which now afflicts it. At a moment when we are attempting to defend the slaves of Central Africa from the greed of Zanzibar traders, we must not overlook the interests of a vast section of our maritime commerce. Chinese pirates, at any rate, must be extirpated from the seas they infest.

THE ATCHIN WAR.

(MORNING POST.)

The operations of the Dutch force in Atchin appear to have been more active during the last two months than at any time since the main body of the army was removed to Batavia in April last. Although information has been received by telegram up to the 2nd inst. there has not been any detailed intelligence of later date than that which has just come to hand vid Penang, and which gives an account of the position of affairs as recently as the 16th August. From these accounts it is evident that the Dutch are extending their hold on the country. In the early part of July they advanced their position considerably to the eastward after some hard struggling, and on the west they have made some little progress beyond the point at which they first landed. The health, too, of the army is better, and on the whole they seem really to possess now a better prospect of ultimate success than they have hitherto enjoyed. But though they may believe that they now see the beginning of the end, the end itself is yet a long way off. The circumstances by which they are surrounded are unfavourable; disease, though less prevalent, is still actively engaged on the side of the Atchinese, and, albeit that cholera and dysentery are disappearing, there is still that subtle enemy —low fever—in the field which overthrows the strongest in a very short time. Thus the invading force is always below its proper strength, and much time is wasted in forced inactivity. True, the victims of disease are replaced by fresh men continually, but even then the army is inadequate to the task assigned to it. Everything, too, connected with the struggle shows that the race against whom they are fighting are almost indomitable; like the people of this country, they seem not to know when they are beaten. Look at the affair at Campong Surian —where men impaled themselves on the bayonets of the attacking party rather than surrender, and refused to receive quarter, even endeavouring to provoke their assailants to cruelty rather than accept mercy at their hands. In a tactical point of view their fighting is not to be despised; they take advantage of every opportunity to harass their enemies, actually climbing trees in order to pick off the soldiers within the forts, and their rapidity in throwing up earthworks is remarkable. Those who have followed the course of this war in Sumatra will remember how in the early part of the year at Mashagat the Dutch fell into a trap similar to that laid for them on the 26th of July last, and by which they were again deluded. These things are evidences of the resources, pertinacity, and perseverance of the Atchinese in maintaining the defence of their country, and it is pitiable to think that, after all, their energy will not secure to them the possession of their own land in independence. The time when the termination of the struggle will arrive is probably still distant, and it would be indeed well if the further expenditure of blood and money that must take place before it shall come could be obviated. The Dutch have now lost a valuable friend by the death of the Junku of Marahsa, which will perhaps be a very disadvantageous event for their own cause; report, too, says, we know not whether truly or not, that their commander is wounded. Taking these matters into consideration, and looking at the costs in men and treasure which further operations will involve, it would seem that the present juncture is one when the Netherlands Government might be peculiarly ready to listen to mediatorial overtures. There is not a shadow of doubt that the wisest course they could pursue would be to retire from this war, which has already cost them so dear, and those who, from being close to the scene of strife, have, perhaps, better facilities than ourselves for judging the temper of the combatants and the prospects of the strife, do not hesitate to express the opinion that intervention would be welcome to both parties, and that, if they could do so with honour, the Dutch would gladly abandon their designs upon Atchin.

THE SINGAPORE GAS COMPANY.

The report of the directors of the Singapore Gas Company for the half-year ending 30th June, to be presented to the shareholders at the meeting on the 27th inst., is as follows :—

The directors have the satisfaction of reporting continued progress in the lighting of Singapore, for particulars of which they refer to the report from their engineer and manager, Mr. E. J. Wells. The balance sheet to 30th June, 1874, and appended to this report, shows the financial position of the Company. The directors have written off for depreciation of works and plant, and off the expenses of first establishment, as per balance sheet, at the rate of one per cent. per annum for the present half-year, and one half per cent. per annum for the half-year ending December 31st, 1870, making one per cent. for that half-year. The profit for the half-year after writing off these sums amounts to £1,865 13s. 4d., which together with £62 4s. 2d., the unappropriated profit of the preceding half-year, makes the available balance £1,927 17s. 6d.; out of this sum the directors recommend the declaration of a dividend at the rate of 7½ per cent. per annum, less income tax, on the amounts paid up on the Preference and Original capital, the balance of £77 4s. 9d. to be carried forward to the profit of the succeeding half-year. The dividend to be payable on November 20th.

The following are extracts from the report of Mr. Wells, Engineer and Manager :—

In the gas rental there has been a steady increase, if we compare the working with the previous half-year; the increase on the private gas rental (not including illuminations) has been $469.41. Coke sales have not been so good as last half-year. Tar and other products have improved, so that upon the whole the sales of residual products have been satisfactory. Rates of exchange have been seriously adverse to the Company for a long time past, and still continue so. Heavy losses are shown in this half-year's accounts, both on remittances and on the payments for coals. During the half-year the only addition here to Capital account has been the proportionate allowance for new services laid. Beyond the ordinary wear and tear expenses, no outlay has been incurred in the general works department. All the plant and machinery are in a state of efficiency, and the buildings are in good repair; No. 1 gas holder shows no signs of decay, and No. 2 is working satisfactorily. The present process of purification still remains satisfactory, and is working well. Throughout the half-year the full standard of illuminating power has been maintained, and the gas kept free from impurities. The loss or deficiency on the half-year has been 12¼ per cent. The arrears are slightly in excess of last half-year, but upon the whole the collection of the rental, &c., has been satisfactory, as $32,206.71 has been collected and paid to-bank.

At the end of May 113 tons of Bengal coal was received. Its working with Australian coal was satisfactory; if we can obtain low rates of freight we could draw a portion of our supplies from this source; the price of Bengal coal is rupees 10·8, free on board, or equal to 21s. per ton. A small sample of other coals from the Straits has been sent to me for testing, and it is stated that there is a large quantity from where it was taken. This was tried in actual working, the results were quite satisfactory. I have engaged to take 150 to 200 tons as soon as it can be brought to Singapore. The Japan and Formosa coals are very highly spoken of, but up to the present time I have had no opportunity of trying them. I have no doubt that the Sarawak coal will soon be in the market. As to whether it will be to the advantage of the Company to use all Australian coal remains to be proved.

PORTUGAL.

LISBON, OCT. 3.

Since my last nothing of importance has occurred with regard to our internal policy. In the provinces of the north some Carlists have been a little troublesome, but the Portuguese troops have received orders to prevent their entrance or communication with our territory. It is known that in Portugal there are many persons in connection with the Carlists, and money, material, and persons have been sent to the partisans of Don Carlos. Some time ago some materials of war and military uniforms were discovered in Valença, province of Meinho, together with documents proving the purchase of guns in Lisbon. It was evident by the same documents that important personages in Portugal were implicated in managing those preparations. All the circumstances of the case have been reported to the Government. The Liberals urge the necessity of taking immediate action against those who favour the Carlists, but the Government do not seem to think that there is any danger. The Miguelite party is weak, and they are not likely to give much trouble, unless the Carlist cause seems more in the ascendant than it is at present.

The Lisbon and Oporto papers are still discussing the subject of German interference in Spanish matters. It is supposed that Germany intends to protect the Government of Serrano, and afterwards place a monarch on the throne. The monarch, they say, is the King of Portugal, who will be King of the two Kingdoms. It is generally believed that Don Luiz I. would not accept the Crown, and that the people of the two countries would refuse any imposition of the kind. The opposition parties have circulated the idea that the Government wish his Majesty to accept the proposals of Germany, and that consequently in a short time we shall be involved in a continental difficulty. This of course is not so; his Majesty is not likely to attach himself to any such policy.

The day before yesterday 6,000 men, consisting of artillery, cavalry, and infantry, went to exercise a few miles from the town. The forces were divided into two divisions; one marched from Luz, and the other from Ameireoira, to the spot chosen. The exercise lasted six hours. The Royal family, all the Ministers, and about 20,000 persons were present.

The Government have undertaken a great work of improvement in Lisbon. The work consists of a new embankment on the north margin of the Tagus, to the extent of one league. The company agree to form docks, a railway between the arsenal and Belem, and build warehouses. The principal founder is the Prince Adam Wirzniereki, resident in Paris. As soon as these works shall have been completed Lisbon will possess the most splendid boulevard in the world.

On the 18th of last month there was a diplomatic dinner party in the house of the Chargé d'Affaires of Brazil, Mr. Macedo. There were present the Minister of Foreign Affairs, the Minister of Finances, the German Minister, Mr. Caelho d'Almeida, Minister of Portugal in Vienna, and many other notable persons belonging to the Diplomatic Corps.

Mr. Robert Inness, partner of the old established house of Medlicott and Co., and the oldest English resident in Lisbon, died on the 24th of last month.

The 28th was the eleventh birthday of the Royal Prince, Don Carlos, son of the King. As the Royal family is in the fortress of Cascaes for the bathing season, their Majesties received the congratulations there.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Sir SAMUEL BAKER,

In his work on the Sources of the Nile, says:—

"I ordered my dragoman Mahomet to inform the "Faky that I was a doctor, and that I had the best "medicines at the service of the sick, with advice "gratis. In a short time I had many applicants, to "whom I served out a quantity of Holloway's Pills. "These are most useful to an explorer, as, possessing "unmistakable purgative properties, they create an "undeniable effect upon the patient, which satisfies "him of their value."

This fine Medicine cures all disorders of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys and Bowels, is a Great PURIFIER of the BLOOD, and wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to Females—young or aged.

* By Pacific mail via San Francisco.

THE MAILS, &c.

The P. and O. and Pacific mails, with the advices dated as above, were delivered, via Brindisi and via San Francisco respectively, this morning, their due date. The next inward (French) mail, bringing advices Yokohama 9th, Shanghai 13th, Hong Kong 19th, Singapore 28th Sept., which is due, via Marseilles, on Monday next, the 2nd proximo, left Galle on its due date, the 6th inst.

The Saigon-Hong Kong section of the Eastern Extension Telegraph Company's cables, and the Great Northern Company's cables between Amoy and Hong Kong and between Amoy and Shanghai, which were lately interrupted, have been repaired.

List of Passengers.

PASSENGERS INWARD.

By this mail to Brindisi, per P. and O. steamer Malta, arrived Oct. 22.—To Venice.—From Hong Kong: Mr. S. Fell. From Galle: Mr. Dickson, Mr. Shrine.

To Southampton.—From Hong Kong: Mr. J. Smith. From Yokohama: Mr. E. George, Dr. Wilson, Mr. E. Doboyer. From Hong Kong: Captain Lindhall, Mr. Bull, Mr. E. Clegg, Mr. Eumor, Mr. J. Barks, Mr. D. MacCullen, Mr. W. Mason, Mr. W. Searle, Mrs. Leonard, Mrs. O. S. Bull. From Singapore: Mr. G. Newton, Mrs. Ismonger, Mr. W. Dresdale, Mr. G. Masson, Mr. S. Seeley, Mr. J. Bell, Mr. J. Seamur, Mr. J. Jackson, Mr. W. Carpenter, Mr. B. Doran, Mr. Parkenhurst.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.

Per French steamer Sindh, Oct. 25.—To Yokohama: Rev. H. Evington, Mr. Bateman, Mr. Sano. To Hong Kong: Bishop of Victoria and Mrs. Burdon, Rev. G. H. Sedgwick, Mr. May, Mr. C. Carroll and family, Mr. Sprecht, Governor of Macao and suite. To Shanghai: Mr. Cleave, Mr. Duval, Mrs. Little, Mr. Leopold Lefebre, seven Missionaries, three Sisters of Mercy. Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present P. and O. mail brings advices from this port to the 2nd Sept.; and by the Pacific mail we have ten days later news, viz., to the 12th Sept.; the French mail from London, 17th July, arrived out on the 1st Sept., and the following P. and O. mail of 24th July was received on the 7th Sept. The following summary of news is from the Japan Mail:—

The attitude of the Chinese in respect of the Formosa question naturally continues to be the great subject of discussion and speculation. It is generally believed that telegrams were received by the Government on the 1st Sept., announcing that the negotiations which Yanigawara was conducting at Peking had been broken off. Okubo, the Envoy Extraordinary, would have arrived on the 27th Aug., and sufficient time has elapsed for him to have reported by telegraph the result of his own interviews with the Chinese Minister for Foreign Affairs. Indeed, rumours are afloat that he has telegraphed regarding the extremely difficult phase the negotiations have assumed. But on all these points nothing is known for certain—all is mere vague rumour, and any pretence to pronounce with certainty what is actually the state of the negotiations must be received with entire suspicion.

Meanwhile the Government is displaying abundant activity in preparing for war. A call has been made upon all men between twenty and thirty years of age to hold themselves in readiness for service, nor is any want of alacrity shown in responding to it. It is said that the Satsuma clan alone has offered 18,000 men whom it is prepared to equip and maintain, and the warlike spirit of the nation certainly presents a great contrast—as far as reports may be trusted—to the attitude of the Chinese, who, though certainly excited, display great unwillingness to enlist, and desert in hundreds after having enrolled. It may be fairly expected that the large figures which have been used in regard to the number of troops the Chinese can move and command against the Japanese represent a great sham—a mere paper army—though there is a great deal said about them. China is undoubtedly greatly irritated by the action of the Japanese on the Formosa coast, and is anxious not only to prove the unjustifiable nature of this action, but also her power to dislodge and chastise the Japanese for what she considers their contumacy. War is regarded as inevitable by the foreigners in both countries, and it is difficult to understand how it can possibly be avoided. Yet one great fact must be borne in mind; China does not want to go to war—she is not a warlike nation; and Japan, though perhaps determined not to retire from the position she has assumed without an acknowledgment from China that she was justified in her course of action, and a promise that the Formosan coast shall be rendered safe for the future, can only enter upon war at the expense of the movement the nation has for some years been making in the direction of Western civilisation, and a draft upon her resources which must prove a heavy burden to her. It is needless to say that the prospect of war is regarded with great misgiving by the large number of foreigners in Japanese employ. To the majority it must involve the destruction of their present means of livelihood, and —what they cannot but regard with regret—the gradual falling into ruin of much of the work they have built up.

It has been reported that the cash balance of the Government has been much reduced by the expenditure on steamers and military stores necessitated by the preparations which are being made for war; but this is not so. The cash balance stands at 25,000,000 of yen, as in the budget last issued.

The Government has made a raid upon foreigners travelling for health or pleasure in the interior who have not furnished themselves with passports. Many have been threatened with being turned back, and have only escaped by the promise to get the requisite document by return of post, or by a given time. It may be remarked, however, that the orders from Yedo have been somewhat capriciously carried out—as is natural enough under these circumstances—and the demands made on some have been relaxed as regards others. In view of the fact that many of the residents have always been in the habit of visiting the favourite picturesque places in the vicinity of Yedo every year at this time, and have done so in most cases with the full knowledge and tacit consent of the authorities, it is somewhat hard that a rule compelling them to exhibit their passes should be made without fair previous notice that all travellers would be required to do so after a certain date. Of course it is for foreigners to comply fully with the terms of the regulations, and we recommend no one to start on his summer or autumn tour without his pass. But those who are now in the country, and who left previously to the issue of the late notification, should be treated with some indulgence, and time should be given them to communicate with their own authorities in order to get their passes. It must be remembered that there is no question here of stopping political incendiaries, or dangerous characters. The people now in the interior are, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, men bent on pleasure or in pursuit of health, vigorous but orderly young pedestrians, in some cases pursuing botanical, mineralogical or other scientific researches, or burning to conquer Fusiyama. To send such tourists back without fair notice, after having permitted them to roam unfettered during the past few years—a courtesy all of us are quite willing to acknowledge—is to entrap them into unintentional disobedience.

While the English naval officers under Capt. Douglass were testing some Krupp guns at Ishikwajima, one of the guns burst under the fourth round, without, however, injuring any of those who were carrying on the testing. The circumstances were these; the gun, one of Krupp's 70-pounders, had been fired three times with a 12lb. charge of powder and a 70lb. projectile. At the fourth round, 15lb. of powder and a 70lb. projectile were used; but the strain was too great, and the gun burst in almost every direction. One piece of metal weighing about five cwt. was carried 120 yards to the left, cutting away four piles and dislodging a number of stones each weighing about five cwt. lining the banks of the adjacent canal. The breech-piece was blown up into the air to a great height, and fell about sixty yards to the rear of the gun. No cause can be directly assigned for the accident.

The murderer of Mr. Haber has been found guilty, and sentenced to death. His sentence has been referred to Tokio for ratification, as is usual in all capital cases, before being carried into execution. The culprit, on being interrogated, expressed sorrow at his act being likely to cause trouble to the Government, but did not regret having killed a foreigner. He was securely bound when on his trial, and had to kneel down in Court. At times there was some levity in his manner, but he mostly hung down his head while the trial proceeded.

A petition has been sent in to the Consuls requesting them to call the attention of the local Japanese authorities to the distracting noise made by the coolies employed in dragging loads through the streets, with a view to its suppression. How this noise has been permitted to irritate the residents of the settlement so long, without any serious effort on their part to abolish it, we can only conceive on one hypothesis, viz., that there are some who really enjoy it.

We learn that the Messageries Maritimes Company has resolved upon erecting a monument at Iruma, in memory of those who lost their lives by the shipwreck of the Nil in the month of March last. Monsieur Verny, Director of the Yokoska Arsenal, has undertaken to superintend its erection.

A painful case of suicide has taken place at the International Hotel. Mr. R. M. Bevill, formerly purser of the P. M. steamship Oregonian, was discovered by the attendant in his room wounded and covered with blood, and in an expiring state. Before medical assistance could be obtained the unfortunate gentleman had breathed his last. On examining the body some thirty-seven wounds were discovered, inflicted apparently by a pocket-knife, and a bottle of morphia half emptied, and a loaded pistol which were found near him, attested the determination to commit suicide.

The first telegraphic cable to connect Awomori in this island with the island of Yezo was laid on the 4th September. An accident prevented the laying of the second cable, but a further attempt is projected.

A return of the persons engaged in the preparation of salted provisions, &c., in the various sea-ports has been called for by the Government.

The Circus troupe of Signor Chiarini has been performing in Yokohama for the past fortnight with very fair success.

Numerous robberies are reported in Yokohama, and the negligence of the police is severely censured.

The subjoined items of intelligence are from the Japan Herald:—

It is with much regret that we have learnt that Mr. L. Haber, the Acting German Consul at Hakodate, has just been murdered by a samurai of the Akita Han, who surrendered immediately after the commission of the crime. It will be known to most of our readers that the unfortunate victim just assassinated established himself in business here as a general merchant, and that subsequently he transferred his business to Hakodate. It appears that on the 8th September there arrived at Hakodate a yakunin, about twenty-two years of age, from Akita, who was frequently seen at the tea-houses, and who was said to have been on his way to Yedo to finish his education. It seems that this man had, while staying at Hakodate, a dream wherein he saw one of the Kamis who prophecied evil to the Emperor through foreigners. The fanatical youth thought it his duty to avenge the wrongs the Kami had pointed out to him in his dream; but as he did not know where to find foreigners to sacrifice, he went to a temple to ask the gods to point out to him the right victim. It unfortunately happened that when the assassin had finished his prayer, poor Mr. Haber walked by quickly. The Japanese, to make quite sure of his victim being a foreigner, asked two women who were standing near if the man he saw was such, and on their replying in the affirmative, he tried to attract Mr. Haber's attention by throwing his umbrella at him, but the latter, without noticing it, passed quickly on. The Japanese then, without further waiting, drew his sword and made a cut. His victim took the alarm, and fled through a house and a garden, and whilst climbing over a hedge was overtaken by his pursuer, who with his sword hacked him literally into pieces. When the murderous work was done, the assassin, under threats of taking their lives, ordered some Japanese to throw water on the corpse of his victim; then the murderer went to a tea-house, and there recounted his achievement with great complacency, after which he surrendered himself to the authorities. The deceased gentleman has thus fallen a victim to the sword of a semi-lunatic or fanatic, and the case affords one more melancholy example of the great facilities which the carrying of such murderous weapons as Japanese swords afford to the crazy or evil-disposed to wreak their malevolent intentions. The Government should prohibit swords being worn.

The difficulty between China and Japan, relative to Formosa, still drags its slow length along, nothing definite having yet transpired respecting the state of the negotiations. It has been reported here that the efforts of Yanagiwara had failed to bring the matters in dispute to a satisfactory conclusion, and everything now turns, therefore, on the success which may attend the exertions of Okubo. Meanwhile, both nations are arming, and in Japan the conscription has been put in force amongst the lower classes of the population. China has, it is reported, negotiated a loan of some millions of taels for the purchase of warlike material, and is using every energy to fill up the ranks of her army and navy. Reports have reached here respecting the cowardice of the Chinese troops, the large quantity of desertions, &c., now taking place; but these require to be received with some caution, as it is shrewdly suspected that some of the foreign emissaries of the Japanese Government who are now in China on various missions have been at the bottom of these rumours, and that they have an interest in exaggerating these matters. In the meantime both sides are despatching reinforcements to the scene of action. The Japanese troops in Formosa are said to be suffering much from the intense heat, and to have many men sick.

The meeting of the famous deliberative assembly, which has been magnified by some into a parliament, has been postponed sine die. The ostensible cause is that the various officials of whom it is composed (for it is to be exclusively official) will be required in their own departments, in the event of there being any disturbances caused by the expected war.

The Japanese Government, in view of the steady drain on its finances caused by its warlike preparations, has issued a notification enjoining the strictest economy in the various ken.

The remaining balance due in respect of the Shimonoseki indemnity has been paid to the various Governments interested. The United States, having receded from their former position, have now received their share of the money.

A third telegraph wire will be shortly completed through from Tokio to Nagasaki, by means of which it is anticipated that the frequent vexatious breaks of communication which have taken place will be in a great measure obviated.

The case of Cocking and Singleton v. Rickett, which was decided in favour of defendant, has been reversed on appeal to Shanghai.

NAGASAKI.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT, VIA SAN FRANCISCO.)

NAGASAKI, SEPT. 5.

The settlement is now a vast display of specimens of the wretched slop-work of the native builders, and the most annoying reminiscence the property-holding residents have in viewing their wrecked habitations is, that they have paid high and extreme prices for them to the native contractors, who appear to yearly get from bad to worse; if there is any criterion in the oldest buildings in numerous instances having stood the tempest best. The natives, I hear, have attempted to delude foreigners into the belief that the quantity of cargo destroyed is so great as to have affected its value considerably; but this, like all Japanese rumours, must be received with more than ordinary caution, or even be dismissed as next to worthless. Growing crops, perhaps, may have been destroyed, but those who know the resisting capabilities of the godowns owned by Japanese are not likely to believe that much stored cargo has suffered. A change for the better in the weather took place on the 1st inst., and almost every house-top has its contingent of plasterers on it, busy at work; at least one advantage will be to have a site formed of newly-plastered roofs. From observations made it will take nealry twelve months to get things back to their original state perhaps even longer still, for the Japanese appear to be taking no steps to even clear up this settlement or to render the jetties available for use in the dark. The work of getting off the stranded vessels had progressed considerably previous to the despatch of my last letter, and since then the iron-clad Azuma kan has been pumped dry and floated off. The work of getting her off was performed by a foreigner, and it does not say much for the capabilities of the Japanese when they get into a mess. The officers, or perhaps some of them, may be excluded from this unenviable category, but the lower and ignorant classes, who form the seafaring and boating population, have the character of being utterly helpless. I have no doubt that the majority of the junks lost here were driven on shore after their cables parted, and no other result could have been expected, as they never use such things as chains to their anchors, but make shift with twisted rushes or twisted cord, to serve instead. It is cheap, or thought to be so, and the dearly bought experience of last month is not likely to effect any change in their ways of providing tackle.

The Formosan question continues the all-absorbing topic amongst the natives here, and, judging from appearances, the Japanese have no intention of retiring from the position they have taken. The Chinese residents here are uneasy, and are far from confident that matters will take a peaceful turn, but the matter is enveloped in mystery, and so contrary are the reports, that very little reliable information can be gathered beyond what is observable in the active preparations to be seen here daily in the shipping off stores, &c., to steamers bound for Formosa. Whatever may have been the primary object of the expedition, it is very satisfactory to know that some of the most turbulent spirits in the Japanese army have gone with it, and few persons care about their returning to this place unless they return with most of their rowdy spirit taken out of them. While here a few months ago the townspeople had quite enough of their overbearing conduct, and were brutally treated by some of them. Of general news there is not much to give. The U.S. Ashuelot, paddle-wheel steamer, left on the 3rd instant for Tientsin; and the U.S. corvette Kearsage yesterday for Vladiwostok; both, it is said, have scientific parties on board, for the purpose of observing the transit of Venus. The men-of-war in port are rather numerous, comprising the American flag-ship Hartford; French ironclad flag-ship Montcalm, and corvette D'Estres; H.B.M. gunboats Dwarf and Sivinger; Russian Japanese; Japanese ironclad Adzuma Kan, and corvette, or rather paddle-wheel despatch boat, Kassuga-kan.

Exchange on London is nominally quoted 4s. 3d. to 4s. 3¼d. for six months, sight drafts. Gold Yens 102½ to 103 per 100 Mexican Dollars. Freights to London direct quite nominal, and no vessel on the berth.

CHINA.

—o—

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 6th Sept.; the French mail from London July 17 was received on the 30th August, and the following P. and O. mail of the 24th July, arrived out on the 3rd Sept. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald:—

There is not much "war" news of any value, and very little generally of a local nature to be recorded. The C.N. Co.'s steamer Glengyle, which arrived on the 2nd Sept. from the river ports, brought, as a first instalment of a large shipment of heavy guns which is being made, from Nankin to Tientsin, four sixty-eight and seven thirty-two-pounders, with the necessary carriages, to work on pivot platforms, and about thirty tons of shot, besides other ammunition, all the production of the Nanking Arsenal. It is noteworthy that this is the first shipment of cargo ever taken by a foreign merchant steamer from this non-treaty port; and no little difficulty was experienced in embarking such heavy material, from the want of appliances. It is reported at Hankow that two or three thousand native troops had gone down from there in boats, to embark at Chinkiang for Formosa.—The heavy guns and ammunition have since been forwarded per C.M.S.N. Co.'s steamer Fusing, and their ultimate destination is, we believe, the fortifications at the mouth of the Peiho. The guns must be taken on to Tientsin, as there is no landing acommodation at Taku.

The Futai is actively engaged in carrying out the object of his visit, by seeing to the defence of the port. In company with a retinue he has visited Woosung, and prospected the situation, with a view to its fortification, according to plans which have been under preparation for some time. The Chinese officials generally, however, seem to put faith in the report started about a week ago, that an understanding had been arrived at in Peking regarding the Formosan difficulty, and we hear that they are relaxing the haste of their preparations for a contest.

Fresh rumours of a somewhat alarming nature as to the incipient rebellion in the North were current in the Settlement on Wednesday, and appear to have been heard of also at Chefoo. Careful inquiry, however, leads us to believe that it is only a variation of the original story, filtered through Chinese channels. Letters from Tientsin to the time the Sin Nanzing left state that everything was perfectly quiet, that no apprehensions of disturbance were entertained, and that the prompt and severe measures taken by Li in arresting and executing several of the ringleaders in the mutiny seemed to have effectually stamped it out.

The Yungching, one of the three steamers of the China Merchants' fleet engaged in the Chinese Government transport service, arrived from Keelung on the 2nd Sept. She brought a cargo of coal for Government use, which she proceeded to Keelung to take in, after landing her 600 troops at Takow, the destination of the whole force, which numbered about 2,500 men. The Yungching was the first to arrive at the rendezvous, Ponghou, in the Pescadore Islands, and is the first back on the return voyage. She passed the Leeyuen and Aden on 1st Sept., both these being bound to Chinkiang for more troops. The fleet, numbering seven vessels, arrived at Ponghou on Aug. 23rd, within eight hours of each other. After it had been moored in Ponghou harbour, the Japanese corvette Nitsin (which left Shanghai on the 28th of July) hove in sight, and anchored at the entrance of the harbour; and when the fleet received orders, on the 25th, to get up steam and proceed to Takow, the Nitsin also put to sea. Shortly after the arrival of the fleet at Takow, which occurred on the same day, the Nitsin again made her appearance, and cast anchor alongside the transports. After two of the gunboats had disembarked their complement of the contingent, they again got under way and put to sea, and were soon after followed by the Nitsin, which it is supposed proceeded to Langkiao. The Yungching has again left for Chinkiang, to embark more troops and stores for Formosa.

The S. S. N. Company's steamer Kiangse arrived from Nagasaki on the 2nd September, having left there on the 30th August. She will, we understand, resume her place on the Shanghai and Ningpo line. For the past two and a half months the Kiangse traded between Kobe and Yokohama, in connection with the new Trans-Pacific line of steamers. The Kiangse reports that when she left Nagasaki the Stonewall was afloat, with slight damage, as also the steamer Ping On and the barque Hamburg. The Madras, which we previously reported as having been towed off by the Nanzing, made a trip to some of the neighbouring islands, and was nearing Nagasaki harbour on her return, with 700 troops on board for Formosa, as the Kiangse was leaving.

The minutes of a meeting of the committee appointed to take steps to establish the Chinese Polytechnic Institution and Reading-room form a progress report of peculiar interest. The influential constitution of the committee, and the earnestness and tact with which its individual members have gone to work, augur well for the success of the project; while the evidently sympathetic reception met with from the native community is, we feel sure, especially due to the enlightened co-operation of the Chinese gentlemen on the committee. Funds have been collected which the committee think sufficient, taken in connection with other considerations, to warrant them in at once starting the institution.

Mr. Thomas Fawcett arrived on the 2nd Sept., a prisoner, in the Glengyle, from Nagasaki, and was at once delivered over to H.M.'s sheriff, pending his transmission to Chefoo, which will probably be effected towards the end of the week. It seems natural and right that he should be called to a strict account for the manslaughter in which he is reported to have been concerned on the Shantung Promontory, but it seems hard that he should be dragged all the way from Japan back to the scene of the accident, after having been practically declared free of criminality by the Consul ; and it is sincerely to be hoped that, whilst the machinery of justice is being so actively put in motion to secure redress on our side, some one is taking the trouble to see that the Chinese officials at Chefoo are doing their duty in arresting all the parties concerned in the mob attack upon the lighthouse artificers, and calling them to account for committing the breach of the peace which gave rise to the unfortunate accident—as we believe it to be—through which life on the Chinese side was sacrificed. It is curious to observe the frantic demand of a life for a life penalty at all hazards which has characterised the conduct of the Chefoo mandarins in this instance, as it similarly did that of the Taoutai and Chehsien of Shanghai in the Ford case, and to contrast therewith the cold-blooded hesitation and atrocious duplicity with which our cry for justice was met, when innocent blood was foully and of set purpose shed in the streets of Tientsin. The persistent energy of the Taoutai of Chefoo, which expended itself in the shaking of H.M.'s Consul, when he found his wished-for victim likely to escape such justice as he desired to inflict, might be copied by some of our officials with advantage, when cases of real wrong call for adjustment and are treated by the Chinese with the neglect or evasion in which they are such wonderful adepts where the foreigner unluckily happens to be on the right side.

At the Police-court, William Mackenzie, chief steward of the steamer Glenfinlas, was brought before Mr. Myburgh, sitting as police magistrate, charged by Captain H. G. Wilcox with refusal of duty under peculiar circumstances. It appeared from the complainant's statement that certain stores, which would cost £20 to replace here, were missing, and could not be accounted for by the defendant, and he was also said to be lazy and incompetent, and complainant disrated him to the position and pay of A.B., but he was not to go aloft, and only to be employed on deck in such work as scrubbing and cleaning. The defendant refused to do the work assigned him on deck, and for so refusing was brought before the Court. The defendant alleged that the captain had taken a dislike to him at the commencement of the voyage, and had ever since treated him in a harsh and contemptuous manner. He produced certificates as to his character and competency as steward, extending over a long period, and said he had been chief steward for ten years. With respect to the missing stores, he said they were kept in lockers, the fastenings of which were broken, and anybody could get to them, but the stores missing could be replaced in Glasgow for £2. The magistrate held that the defendant was justified in refusing to do deck work ; as he had shipped as chief steward, he could not be compelled to do a common seaman's duty. The case was therefore dismissed.

A despatch from the U. S. Consul at Swatow to the Consul-General here, confirms the statement we gave recently that the wreck on the Boat Rocks proves to be that of the American barque Scotland, Captain Glidden, lost in the gale of 23rd March last. Mr. Hammond, the Commissioner of Customs, who took a great deal of trouble to identify the wreck, on behalf of those interested in the vessel, as well as in the interests of navigation on the coast, obtained the services of professional divers from Shanghai. On 15th August the divers succeeded in making a thorough inspection of the wreck. They found that the bulwarks had been washed away, and with them the name board, while owing to a peculiarly heavy ground swell they were unable to go under the vessel's counters to see her name. Had they been able to reach the place, however, it is unlikely they could have made it out, the hull being completely covered with barnacles. They secured the wheel, which was identified by the captain of the Lunalilo, now in Swatow, who had formerly commanded the Scotland, and who recognised it from some particular work on it. This appears to remove all doubt as to the identity of the wreck, which by the way is now so completely broken up as to be no longer dangerous to navigation. One of the divers reached the cabin, and found that everything had been washed away. Nothing has ever been heard of the crew.

It will be remembered that on the night of the 24th Aug. a Mr. Russell was seriously assaulted by a number of men in the Honan-road, and six balls of opium taken from him. Owing, we believe, to the representations of Senor J. J. de Emperanza, the Spanish Consul (one of whose nationals Mr. Russell claims to be), the case is so far settled that the opium has been given up. The men concerned in the assault, who are supposed to have belonged to the Lekin Guild, will be dealt with by the Mixed Court.

An able seaman of the steamer Glenfinlas, named Geddes, has met with a serious accident. He and another man were told to lash a spare screw blade to the ship's side under the forecastle, the blade being at the time on its side and held in position by a tackle. The men passed two or three turns of the lashing round it, and then let go the tackle, when the blade slipped a little, owing to the lashing not being well passed, and caught Geddes's leg. He lay in this position for some time until straps could be passed under the blade, which was then lifted by means of a whip. The unfortunate man's leg was found to be fractured. He was removed to the General Hospital, and it is thought will have to undergo amputation of the limb.

The French barque Union has grounded on the Blockhouse Spit, and the exertions made to get her off have failed so far. As the tides have been falling, it is expected she will not get off for five or six days more. If the weather continues fine, however, she will probably not sustain any material damage. Her cargo consists of rattans, planks, and heavy logs, and it is believed that the discharge or abandonment of the former would do little to relieve her, while in her present position the logs could only be got out with great difficulty, if at all.

Some experiments have been tried outside Woosung with torpedoes manufactured at Kaou-chang-meaou under European supervision. Several high officials were present, and amongst the number the Futai of the province. One and all expressed themselves surprised and delighted with the results attained, and gave orders for the manufacture of a large number as speedily as possible. The experiments were made on a raft.

The construction of defences at Woosung is proceeding with a wonderful amount of energy, under the superintendence, we hear, of an official in the Customs' service, who has been told off for the purpose. A long line of earthworks is to be run up, and all the remains of the old forts put in thorough repair. The Customs' cruiser Kua-hsing leaves on the 6th for her usual monthly visit to the lightships in the district, and on her return we are given to understand that she will be employed for some weeks in surveying the approaches to Woosung for the purposes of fortification.

A mandarin from Swatow or Foochow is at present in Shanghai, his object being to buy up all the ponies he can. He makes it no secret that their destination is Formosa, and that they are to be used as chargers for the braves. This should be an excellent opportunity for the stable-keepers on the Maloo to get rid of their spavined stock, although we hear that the agent of the said mandarin does not offer a very high figure for the commodity he is in search of.

The 4th Sept. was the anniversary of the establishment of Her Majesty's Supreme Court in Shanghai ; the august ceremony of swearing the Chief Judge, Assistant Judge and Law Secretary, the superior officers of the Court, appointed under the Royal sign manual, having been conducted by the Chief Judge himself on the 4th September, 1865.

Mr. Carvalho, lately appointed Portuguese Consul at Shanghai, has made his official call on the Taoutai, and was cordially received by his Excellency with all the customary honours of trumpets and popguns. The Consul was accompanied by his interpreter, Mr. H. A. Pereira.

We are informed that the appeal of the Library Committee to the public has been so far successful that the subscribers now number 120. The number which is necessary to carry on the institution, as will be remembered, is 150, and we sincerely trust that the desired result will speedily be attained.

Among the passengers who left by the Pacific Mail Company's steam-ship Nevada were thirty Chinese students, under the care of three guardians. Their destination is New York, where their education is to be completed.

FORMOSA.

The Japanese Expedition.

A correspondent of the China Mail writes under date, Amoy 5th September, as follows :—

The Japanese question must be brought to a solution very soon. Judging from circumstances, the Japanese would be only too glad to get out of their difficulty by the withdrawal of their troops without humiliation to their country. The continuance of their stay in Formosa is only ruinous to their financial resources. It is calculated that the cost of the maintenance of the 3,000 soldiers is no less a sum than from $40,000 to 45,000 a month, owing to the exorbitant prices they have to pay for their food. Liangkian is not a producing district, and every article of food must be imported from other parts of the island. The difficulty of transport is so great that an egg which costs no more than eight or nine cash at the one place fetches sixty cash at the other. They have been there nearly five months, and it must have cost the Government over $200,000. Then there is their pay, their equipment, ammunition spent in drills and in their fight with the aborigines, the charters of ships, and the payment of heavy salaries to European assistants. Putting all things together, they must have spent a sum not far short of $1,000,000. The country is so badly off in money matters, that on that account alone they cannot carry on much longer. They had at the outset of the expedition borrowed $600,000 of the Oriental Bank, and when a further loan was asked, the bank refused it. They then applied to Messrs. Jardine, to get $200,000. If Japan had not the means of maintaining even an army of occupation how could she expect to be able to carry on a war. Japan must see her mistake now, and that is why the Minister is sent to Peking ; he seeks for an honourable withdrawal. He will, I am told on good authority, propose that the troops shall be withdrawn on condition that in case of a Japanese invasion of Corea Chinese will not espouse the cause of that country. This is a condition which I don't think China would accede to. It is more likely that she will insist on an unconditional withdrawal, seeing that she is now ready for a fight, which she knows will be a long one. There is another reason which makes the Japanese Government hesitate to go to war. The people have been so much imbued with republican ideas that the first severe reverse he suffers would deprive the Mikado of his throne. This is extremely likely, and the Cabinet is not blind to the possibility of such an eventuality.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 12th September; the French mail from London July 31 was received on the 7th September. The following items of news are from the China Mail:—

The alleged Spark pirate has been committed for trial. Six other men, apprehended on suspicion, have been discharged as regards the graver charge. Three men captured in the neighbourhood of Canton have made a full confession of their participation in the deed. The Spark has resumed her place on the line, but owing to numerous protests will be replaced by the White Cloud. Captain Sharp, of the Chinese Revenue steamer Shun-chi, committed suicide. A new company for the manufacture of artificial ice has been established in Hong Kong. A rival line of night boats between Canton and Hong Kong has been started. The Hong Kong, Canton, and Macao Steamboat Company has, in consequence, lowered its fares to ten cents per night passenger. A memorial from the unofficial members of Council relative to the boundaries of Colonial Jurisdiction has been forwarded to the Government. The P.M.S.S. Alaska has been detained, owing to the discovery of a fracture in her paddle-shaft. Major-General Colborne arrived here on the 29th Aug. The storage of powder, the question of Colonial Jurisdiction, the conveyance of Chinese passengers, and the Shipping Ordinance Consolidation Bill have been discussed at meetings of the Legislative Council during the fortnight. A public meeting of the colonists will be held on Monday, the 14th, to consider what steps should be taken regarding the Customs blockade.

The Spanish corvette St. Lucia has gone over to the Kowloong Docks for the purpose of docking. We note that Mr. Bowlder, who succeeds to the post in the Surveyor-General's-office recently occupied by Mr. Alford, arrived by last mail. We are glad to learn that the question put by the Hon. Mr. Rowett at the last meeting of the Legislative Council, relative to British jurisdiction over Lamma Island, is not likely to drop, and that his Excellency the Governor's promise to forward any representation on the subject from the unofficial members is likely to be availed of.

The steamship Yangtsze during the recent rough weather broke adrift from the moorings at the Kowloong Dock, parted her cable, and went ashore on the other side of Kowloong Point in Dock Bay. Fortunately, the bottom was sandy, and no danger and but little injury was apprehended for the vessel. She had a marvellous escape from shipwreck. The buoy to which she was moored broke away during a heavy squall on Friday night last. The chain of an anchor which was let go to pull her up after she began to drift also snapped off close to the hawse pipe. The vessel drifted at great speed, at first broadside on, towards one of the reefs with which Dock Bay is studded. She was brought head to shore with difficulty, and the reef was seen all at once close under her bows. The helm was put hard a-port, and the steamer continued her headlong course, escaping contact with every rock until she reached the beach, where she touched, and was little by little driven up on the sand. Reefs are on each side of her, and it is astonishing to find that she escaped injury. She was next day got afloat without damage by the aid of the Fame and Pilotfish, and the Dock Company's employés. The captain is to be congratulated that nothing worse came of the unusual accident, which placed his vessel in what might have been a dangerous position.

A meeting of the Legislative Council was held on the 31st Aug. Present:—H. E. the Governor, the Hon. the Chief Justice, the Hon. the Colonial Secretary, the Hon. the Attorney General, the Hon. the Registrar General, and the Hons. P. Ryrie, J. Whittall, R. Rowett, and W. M. Ale.

The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed,

His Excellency asked the Attorney General whether he had made the necessary alterations in the Shipping Ordinance. The Attorney General replied in the affirmative, and that he was prepared to go into the question at once.

Before proceeding to this business his Excellency proposed the first reading of the Ordinance to amend and consolidate the laws relating to the conveyance of Chinese passengers and of Chinese emigrants. The reason for bringing forward this measure was, that although an Ordinance to the same effect as this had been already passed by the Council, yet some verbal and other corrections had been suggested by the Home authorities. A letter from the Secretary for the Colonies to that effect was read by the Colonial Secretary, and the Bill was read a first time.

The Hon. R. Rowett then proceeded to present the motion which stood in his name. He asked whether any steps had been taken by the Government in the matter of the outrage recently committed by pirates at Lamma Island. The result of this outrage was that five men were wounded, of whom two had died in hospital, and three were in process of recovery. The honourable member then reviewed the recent outrages that have been perpetrated.

The Colonial Secretary in rising said that he would confine himself to answering the question contained in the motion before the meeting. He believed that Lamma Island was not in the jurisdiction of Hong Kong. The Attorney-General, to whom the question had been submitted, had decided it was not. However, the matter had been referred to Sir Brooke Robinson, and he was of the same opinion. In addition to this he had reason to believe that the alleged piratical attack was a mere party fight between the junk and the fishermen.

The Hon. J. Whittall then moved the following question:—"Is the powder magazine on Kellett's Island used for naval and military purposes only, or is it used or intended to be used for the storage of gunpowder? What is the largest quantity of gunpowder and other explosive substances supposed to be stored there, and what quantity of such articles is stored there now?—The Colonial Secretary briefly repled that the question had been referred to the military authorities, who did not think that it was expedient to give any information.—Mr. Whittall most indignantly protested, and said that he would send in a protest in writing.

This discussion was then dropped, and the House proceeded, in committee, to the consideration of the proposed alterations in the Shipping Ordinance Bill. Several points were again postponed. The question of the number of passengers to be carried, and the amount of accommodation to be provided for them provoked a long discussion, and was still reserved.

An interesting report was read from the Harbour-master recommending that that part of the Bill which refers to the regis tration of junks, which is merely a reprint of the Ordinance on the same subject of 1866, is quite sufficient for the purpose, and should be allowed to stand without alteration.

The further consideration of the Bill was postponed.

The items which had been allowed by the Finance Committee were read over by the Colonial Secretary, and confirmed by the Council. Some further discussion then took place with regard to the Lamma affair, and the Council then adjourned till Monday, the 7th, at 2.30 P.M.

On that day there were present H.E. the Governor, the Hon. the Colonial Secretary, his Honour the Chief Justice, the Hon. the Attorney-General, the Hon. the Registrar-General, and the Hons. P. Ryrie and R. Rowett. After the minutes of the last meeting had been read and confirmed, his Excellency the Governor moved that the standing orders be suspended, and that the Council proceed to the second reading of an Ordinance to consolidate and amend the law relating to Chinese passenger ships, and the conveyance of Chinese emigrants. A few verbal alterations were made in the Bill, which then passed its second reading as No. 5 of 1874.

The House then went into committee to consider the Shipping Ordinance Consolidation Bill. The Attorney-General suggested that any shipmaster coming into this port with more than the regulated number of passengers should be subject to a fine not exceeding $250, which was agreed to, and some further verbal corrections and amendments were made.

His Excellency the Governor thought it would not be advisable to send the Bill home for approval before passing it, on the ground that it appeared like throwing responsibility on to the shoulders of the Secretary of State which the colony should bear itself. To submit a Bill for approval was tantamount to asking the people of the Colonial-office to draft a Bill themselves.

Both the Chief Justice and the Attorney General held an opposite opinion, both thinking that if the Bill were passed without approval from home, it might be repealed, the Chief Justice asserting that the Bill contains much that trenches upon Imperial legislation. At the recommendation of his Excellency it was put to the Council, moved by the Hon. the Chief Justice, and seconded by the Hon. the Attorney General, that the Ordinance as now framed in committee should be submitted for the approval of the Home Secretary of State before it is finally passed.

Some desultory conversation ensued, the Governor remarking that he did not know of any precedent for the course pursued, and saying that perhaps the Secretary of State would not like to be asked to do what gentlemen in Hong Kong were paid for doing. However, he would send the Bill home, with the report of the Council.

The Council adjourned at 4.15 P.M., sine die.

HONG KONG, SEPT. 12, 1874.

It is a notorious fact that the pirates of the Pearl River make Hong Kong very often their head-quarters, and almost always the place to which they resort, after a successful piracy, to get rid of their booty. The town contains more than one hundred thousand Chinese, of whom the majority are dealers, and of whom also not one could be accused of any commercial morality, in our sense of the term, or of any scruple as to purchasing even blood-stained articles with a view to profit. The only sentiment that acts upon the Chinese mercantile mind as a deterrent from law-forbidden enterprise is the fear of discovery and consequent punishment, and their native cunning, backed by their numbers and dense aggregation, together with an inefficient European police organisation, reduce the chances of detection to a minimum. In the recent Spark piracy and murder case, the pirates must have acquired over ten thousand dollars' worth of booty. Seven thousand dollars in notes alone were taken from the compradore's cabin. Seventy pirates were implicated in the attack. It is not too much to say that there is every probability that fifty of these at least have visited Hong Kong since the outrage, and that the greater part if not all of the booty has been already fenced in that town. One man was apprehended in Wanchi, the lower part of the town, on the night preceding the departure of the last English mail. Jewellery was found in his box that has been identified, some as belonging to the unfortunate murdered Captain Brady, other as the property of the European passenger and the ship's officers, and some jade stone bracelets by a Chinese female passenger, who says they are the same as were taken from her during the piracy. She had the option of allowing them to be taken off her arms, whence they could only be removed with the aid of water, or of having her arms cut off. Just so poor Mundy was told that if he did not take off his rings his fingers would be amputated to facilitate their removal; and he managed with the last effort of his strength before he became insensible to pull off his jewels and hand them to the robbers. The case against the man arrested is very complete, and after a long and tedious police investigation he has been committed for trial at the Supreme Court's next session, which will take place on the 18th inst. Another man was arrested a few days after the first on a charge of illegal possession of property. As some coats found on him were at any rate similar, one to a garment of Captain Brady's, and another to one worn by the chief officer, who is missing, he was also charged with piracy and murder; but the case against him has miserably fallen through, and he has been convicted simply of suspicious possession of property, and received a summary conviction of three months. Five other men, wretched boatmen, were singled out by police perspicacity. A raid was made on their boats, which were found armed with one or two old muskets. In the fight occasioned by the police invasion, a man threw one of these arms overboard, and leaped into the water himself, but was taken on an island to which he swam, and with his four companions was charged too with the crimes of piracy and murder. The police failed utterly in making even the shadow of a case against these men, who were released, after several days' detention, on finding security for good behaviour. Thus only one of the seventy ruffians has been brought within the reach of English law. The Chinese authorities have been more expeditious. Five men have been captured at or near Canton, and have been executed, after making confessions that they had formed part of the Spark gang on the occasion of the piracy, and giving the names and conditions of some of their accomplices. It is worth remarking, as bearing out what I have said above concerning the disposal of stolen property in Hong Kong, that the robbers taken in Canton remarked in their confessions that they still had their share of the money in their possession when captured. The probability is that, had they remained a few days longer at liberty, the notes would have been in circulation in Hong Kong, whence they issued, and whither they would in due course have arrived as certainly as the water taken up from the sea in vapour returns to it in the streams. Another man, who was taken by some of the Hoppo of Canton's soldiers, to whom he offered a frantic resistance, has since died of his wounds, after making full confession.

On Monday next, the 14th, there will be some tall talk in Hong Kong. At the request of the principal citizens the Sheriff has convened an indignation meeting. If the present state of the colony's relation to China is allowed to continue, a very few more years may suffice to the ruin of the former, and the picture may be realised of "Chinese fishermen drying their nets in the piazzas of the Town-hall." The complete blockade of this port by Chinese revenue cruisers, and the constant squeezes put by them upon native trading craft entering or leaving the harbour, is becoming too serious not to become the subject of just complaint. Hong Kong has been and is so important a possession to Great Britain during her relations with China as to deserve the utmost consideration and protection of her interests on the part of the mother country. The question of the right of possession of Lamma Island, and whether it is not included in the charter of the colony, has been before the Legislative Council, in reference to a recent outrage perpetrated by a mandarin junk upon some fishermen, and is the subject of a memorial forwarded by the unofficial members to the home authorities.

The position of the two nations, China and Japan, in their Formosan imbroglio is practically unaltered, save that both Governments are making the greatest exertions in their power for a possible fray. It is impossible for the best informed to say how the affair will terminate, or what will even be "the beginning of the end." Meanwhile, Japan is said to be looking round her for support, and a Portugo-Japanese alliance is suggested as not improbable.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 19th September; the French mail from London, 14th August, was received on the 13th Sept. And the following P. and O. mail of the 21st Aug. arrived out on the 19th Sept. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times:—

The Legislative Council has held three meetings during the fortnight, on the 7th, 14th, and 15th. At the first of these meetings some important papers were laid on the table, none of which have, however, as yet reached us. The discussions at the first two meetings were of an uninteresting character; a Bill to afford protection to Indian coolie immigrants and the Appeal Courts Procedure Bill have passed their first, and the Passenger Ships Bill its second reading,—the latter being a measure to supply defects and omissions that have become apparent in the working of existing ordinances on the subject, and extending protection to deck passengers and passengers in local trading vessels. At the meeting on the 15th his Excellency Sir Andrew Clarke elaborately explained his policy and action towards the Native States of the Malay Peninsula, and asked the Council for its support and approval. Every member of Council present spoke, warmly endorsing his Excellency's proceedings and intentions. The unofficial members assured him that they represented the views of the entire community, and recommended loans to the Native States to enable them at the outset to set the new system working; and they were prepared to sanction such sums being placed upon the Estimates as H. E. thought necessary for this purpose. We regret that, owing to the great length of the short-hand report of the speeches, we are unable to present them to our readers in the present Overland Journal.

The Bandahara and ex-Sultan of Perak has, we are glad to learn, written to his Excellency the Governor, expressing his readiness to follow the Governor's advice and counsel, and also his desire to maintain friendly relations with Sultan Abdullah. There appears now to be no political obstacle to the appointment of a Resident to that territory, and if the choice be judicious, as we have every reason to believe it will be, the peace and prosperity of that rich and fertile country should be ensured. While matters are progressing so favourably in the States to the westward, we regret to hear that ill feeling has for some time existed between the headman on opposite sides of the Indau river, which had been fixed by the former Governor of these settlements acting as umpire, as defining the boundary between Johore and Pahang, and lately a number of Pahang men murdered a headman on the Johore side. H.E. Sir Andrew Clarke, accompanied by the Hon. T. Braddell, left this on the 17th instant in H.M.S. Charybdis, together with the gunboats Hart and Avon, on a friendly visit to the Bandahara of Pahang, and will at the same time endeavour to effect a permanent settlement of any disputes between the headman or petty chiefs, as also between the Bandahara and the Maharajah of Johore. The success which has hitherto attended all his Excellency's negotiations with the Native rulers leads us to look forward with confidence to a satisfactory settlement of any differences that may exist.

A special criminal session opened on the 17th, for the trial of two cases in which material witnesses were about to leave the Colony. The first case taken on was a Crown prosecution against the master of the British barque Cameo, on a charge of having violently assaulted a young lad of some fifteen years, shortly after leaving Liverpool for this port. The jury, after retiring for about ten minutes, returned a verdict of not guilty, in which the Chief Justice fully concurred, stating that even had an opposite verdict been returned he would have inflicted only the smallest fine.

The British barque Bertie, Capt. Le Couteur, which left for Liverpool on the 2nd, returned to this port for repairs, having struck on a sunken reef near Gaspar Straits on the 11th inst. She will probably have to discharge cargo and go into dock. The line of experimental steamers recently started by the Netherlands India Steam Navigation Company, to ply between Batavia and Australia, has been discontinued, and the steamer which was advertised to sail in a few days hence has been withdrawn, owing, we understand, to want of encouragement in the way of passengers and cargo.

The arrivals of steamers via the Suez Canal have been the Emiliano on the 15th from Liverpool, via Cadiz, and the Ulysses on the 17th from Liverpool. The departures have been the Glenroy on the 15th for London, Lord of the Isles on the 12th for London, via Penang, Hector on the 14th and United Service on the 18th for London, via Jeddah, and the Duna this morning for New York.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—A quiet market had prevailed for Yarn and Shirtings, and a further decline had been established. Drills, T-Cloths, and Blankets, had been in some enquiry for Army purposes;—Velvet.,

Digitized by Google

Cotton Sateens, and Taffachelass remained steady. In Woollens and Mixtures, with exception of Cloth, a generally better feeling had prevailed; Mousselines having been sold to some extent, whilst Italian Cloth was in improved demand. The market for Manufactured Iron has been very quiet; deliveries, however, had been on a fair scale, and stocks were somewhat reduced.

HANKOW.—Dullness had been the characteristic feature of the market during the fortnight. Sales generally had been of an entirely retail nature, except of 8¼ lb. Shirtings, for which there had been some slight demand.

SHANGHAI.—The market had been exceedingly quiet, and in spite of rather better news from the North, there had been little or no enquiry, and quotations were more or less nominal. Cotton Goods; Grey Shirtings—Superior goods had been neglected, but there had been a moderate enquiry for common qualities. T-Cloths had been quiet, and shew no change in prices; the demand was mostly for inferior makes. White Shirtings were without improvement. Drills showed a small decline, and a moderate business had been done. Fancy Cottons were without change. Woollens: The market had remained very quiet, and prices were rather easier. Camlets at auction realized rather better prices, but had since again receded. Long Ells: Business had been on a very limited scale, and prices were nominal. In other descriptions there was no change. In Metals there had been scarcely anything doing.

HONG KONG.—The arrivals during the interval, besides the mail, steamers, had been the s. s. Diomed, Somerset, Charles Albert Atalanta, Paris; ships, Falcon, and Sir Henry Parkes, bringing fairsupplies of manufactured goods for this market and the North. There had been no improvement whatever to notice in the tone of the Import market, and with one or two exceptions prices remained very much the same as previously quoted, and the only way in which to account for the dullness of trade was the fact that stocks in second hands had accumulated in consequence of a falling off in the demand from the country districts.

CANTON.—Lead had further improved in value; LB could be sold at $8.15 to $8.20 and WB was worth $8.25 to $8.30 per picul. Quicksilver was quoted $200 to $201 per picul.

SINGAPORE.—The market for Grey Cottons had continued without improvement, a moderate business had been done, holders in many instances having forced sales by lowering rates; quotations of most staples were weaker.

PENANG.—During the fortnight the market had been exceedingly dull, and transactions had been excessively small at about previous rates.

EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—During the early part of the fortnight now under review, settlements continued on a liberal scale, and prices somewhat hardened; latterly, however, buyers generally had been holding off, and the market closed quiet, although no decline was quoted. Settlements during the fortnight had amounted to nearly 10,000 piculs, making a total since commencement of the season, of about 78,000 piculs, from this port alone. On the 25th Aug. the Duna (atr.) left for New York, with 848,916 lbs.; and, on the 27th the Benefactor sailed, also for New York, with 645,023 lbs. The Ambassador, on the berth, was fully engaged. Quotations:—Common $26 to 28 per picul; good common, $30 to 32; medium, $34 to 36; good medium, $37 to 40; fine, $41 to 44 per picul; finest, $46 to 49.

HANKOW.—Messrs. Drysdale and Co.'s Report says:—Since our last, dated 18th August, Tea has been arriving freely from the country, 28,000 chests having come to hand during the fortnight. In the corresponding time last year only 19,000 chests came down. Our total arrivals to date are a little over two millions ahead of last year, and Customs export is now larger by nearly a million. This points to an increase in our total export for the season. We now require 45,000 chests to bring us up to last year, and as rather a brisk demand has sprung up the last few days there is little doubt this quantity will be exceeded. Settlements for the fortnight are 5,339 chests and 5,482 half-chests. Prices have ranged high rather for the class of Tea on offer. Common Oonfars have sold at Tls. 14 to 15½, and Teas a little better at Tls. 16⅜ to 17, Soong-yongs realising 17½ to 19 Tls.; Younglow-toongs Tls. 17½ to 17¾; Toong-shans Tls. 17 to 18½; Ping-kongs, Wun-kais, and Low-yongs Tls. 15¼ to 18; Lee-lings Tls. 14½ to 16¾, and Shuntam 13½ Tls. per picul.

KIUKIANG.—Black: A small business had been done on the spot, but the bulk of the arrivals had gone forward to Shanghai on native account. Export from commencement of season to 2nd September, 1874, 19,650,549 lbs.; ditto, 1873, 17,114,393 lbs.; increase, 1874, 2,536,156 lbs. Green: Heavy arrivals had taken place, but had all gone to Shanghai on native account. No local business to report. Export from commencement of season to 2nd September, 1874, 2,297,081 lbs.; ditto, 1873, 1,049,275 lbs; increase, 1874, 1,247,806 lbs.

SHANGHAI.—Black: There had been a good business done, but latterly at rather easier prices, most of the late settlements showing a decline of about one tael a picul. Comparing values with last year's at the corresponding date, the better descriptions were about on a par with prices then ruling, the commoner still about two taels higher. Supplies had been fairly liberal, and the stocks were as large as usual at this period of the season. Shipments by sailing vessel showed a large increase over last year. Settlements for the fortnight are 26,150 chests; re-shipments on owner's account, 3,550 chests; stock, 29,400 chests. Green: The active demand which had existed continued until a few days before the close, when the wants of early shippers being apparently satisfied, the market had become comparatively quiet. The inactivity had produced no good results, but a continuance of it must cause native holders to reduce their demands considerably. Moyunes had been arriving freely, many of the "crack" chops being on the market, but few settlement had taken place. The quality of these teas was much the same as that of last year's crop. Pingsueys met with few buyers, and had a downward tendency. Stock, 77,980 half-chests.

FOOCHOW.—Messrs. Westall, Galton, and Co.'s Weekly Letter, dated 5th September, says:—The activity reported at the end of last week increased at the commencement of this, and a large daily business for the time of year has taken place, transactions being for England and the Colonies, and it is reported for the States. Congou: With the stocks that were accumulating very rapidly, a decline in prices might have been expected; a large business, however, has been done, all grades meeting with attention, and prices have hardened since the commencement of the week. Teas costing about 1s. and 1s. 1d. per lb. are decidedly worse value; the better ones being no cheaper than the same grades in the middle of July. Souchong: Prices have ruled irregularly. Oolong: There is no change to quote in the lower grades; a few fine parcels have been taken at Tls. 32 short. Flowery Pekoe: One chop has found a buyer at Tls. 27. Scented Teas: Prices do not show much attention; desirable parcels are now becoming scarce. The export to Great Britain, the Continent of Europe, and the Cape of Good Hope amounts to 31,654,742 lbs., against 31,764,981 lbs. last year. To America, 154,936 lbs.. against nil. To the Colonies, 8,602,155 lbs., against 8,633,537 lbs. last year.

AMOY.—Since the 24th August prices had ruled $1 to 2 per picul lower, and at the reduction a considerable business had been done, the settlements having been about 25,000 half-chests. These purchases will be mainly shipped by the steamers Killarney and Glenfinlas, via Suez Canal.

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon and Co.'s Report says:—A moderate business has been transacted since last mail without any material change in value. Congous: A few small parcels of medium to fine have been taken at Tls. 19 to 23 per picul. Scented Teas: Of Capers the settlements have been in common to good common at Tls. 12 to 13, fair to medium at Tls. 16 to 20, and good medium at Tls. 23 to 24 per picul, the bulk of the stock now on offer presents little attraction to buyers. Of Orange Pekoes a few small purchases of long leaf, recently made at Tls. 22½ to 26, show a decided advance, but that cannot be taken as a criterion of the market, as there is now no inclination evinced to continue business at even the former standard of rates, in view of the depression ruling for this description in London. The fortnight's business is summarised as follows:—Congou, 1,500 boxes at Tls. 19 to 23 per picul; Scented Caper, 15,000 boxes at Tls. 12 to 24; Scented Orange Pekoe, 2,500 boxes at Tls. 20 to 28.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—There has been no change of importance in the market; buying had been more general, and on a fair scale, but prices were maintained at about the rates last quoted. Dealers were anxious to be moving stocks, but were apparently averse to lower their prices to a more tempting level. Settlements from 1st July to date, 1,600 bales.

SHANGHAI.—The weakness lately apparent had been counteracted by a revival of demand for France and Italy, and buyers for England having also come forward more freely, prices had been maintained at their former level, with a trifling advance on some special chops. Latest quotations:—Koo-long-sing, Chop 3, Tls. 387½; Tae-ho Monster Tls. 377½; Dragon, Tls. 370 to 375; Gold Lion, Nos. 1 and 2, Tls. 355, and 335; Red Peacock, Tls. 297½; Ku-kee Kin-hoe, Tls. 300. Skeins, Kahings and Taysaams of medium and lower kinds, figure to a large extent in the settlements at fully former rates. Supply from the interior was again on the increase, and the unsold stock was still 14,000 bales. The shipments had included the large amount of 571 bales for America, consisting of the usual kinds of re-reel at Tls. 5 to 15 reduction on last mail's prices. Settlements for the fortnight, Chinas, 5,000 bales; total settlements since 1st June, 31,500 bales; against 1873-74, 24,500 bales; 1872-73, 31,000 bales. Comparative unsold stock 1874, 14,000 bales; 1873, 9,000 bales; 1872, 9,000 bales.

CANTON.—Anticipations of lower prices had not been realised, and No. 4 Tsatlee was still worth $310 per picul. Settlements for the French mail were made to the extent of 160 bales, to which 117 bales had since been added. The stock in Canton was steadily accumulating, and should purchases continue to be made on the same moderate scale as hitherto a decline in rates appears inevitable, more especially as the Native demand for staple had in a great measure abated.

CHINA AND KASHGAR.

In a recent article on the reported defeat of the Chinese troops on their own territory by the Son of the Ameer of Kashgar, we were led by various circumstances to question the entire accuracy of the news which The Times correspondent at Berlin every now and again telegraphs to this country in regard to events happening in those far-away regions, from which information comes to us but slowly and in driblets; and we further observed:—"How long "the Chinese will allow him (the Ameer) to remain in un- "disturbed possession of the territory which he has seized "of late years is a question which time alone can solve." All doubt on this head would seem to be removed, much sooner than could have been expected, by the intelligence just published by the Invalide Russe, a paper which is ordinarily well informed on all matters which immediately or remotely affect Russian interests. The Russian journal now states that "Chinese troops have invaded Kashgar "territory, with the intention of making a direct "attack upon the capital." Clearly Kuli Beg's victory over his opponents could not have been a decisive one, and its moral effect could not have been very disheartening to the Chinese troops, as they are now said to be marching, seemingly without let or hindrance, through that portion of their ancient province of Ili which the Ameer Yakoob Khan has of late years wrested from them, their intention being to attack his capital, which lies at the extreme western end of his dominions. Furthermore, although no details are given, the present news tends to confirm our former conjecture that the Chinese did not contemplate an attack on the Kulja district, for their line of march through the Ameer's territory will of necessity lie to the south of it.

COCHIN CHINA.

A rumour reaches us from Saigon that a scheme has been started to make a short line of railway to a point some six or seven miles down the river, and that the projector may shortly be expected in Europe to endeavour to form a company for the enterprise. There seems to be a strong local feeling that the project is premature, and that it is a bold undertaking to attempt to overthrow or compete with the present cheap and sufficiently speedy mode of transport by cargo boats. Our private advices from Saigon lead us to believe that this year's rice crop will be a very short one, it being already estimated at a million piculs less than last year's; and the quality of the grain is said to be the worst ever seen on the market. The Courrier de Saigon states that the Treaty of Commerce with Annam, which is to be annexed to the political Treaty of the 15th of March last, was signed at Saigon on the 31st of August.

Evidently matters are not going on quite so smoothly in Tonquin as French merchants could desire. M. Dupuis, erst of Hankow, and who now signs himself "Agent du Titai de Yunnan," writes to the Indépendent de Saigon, and says that he learns that the English are exceedingly busy about opening a commercial route across Birmah in order to communicate with the province of Yunnan. Although he considers this project chimerical, because of the numerous natural difficulties which it will be certain to encounter on the frontier between Tai-yue-tcheou and Ta-li-fou, still M. Dupuis is afraid that it may end in diverting the commerce of South-Western China from the Red River (Songkoi), which he recently explored with such success, unless the French Government quickly bestirs itself and takes some decisive action with the Court of Hué. The Indépendant de Saigon states that for some time past the lighting of the town has left much to be desired, and that the lamps are frequently either not lighted at all or else go out! We are not much surprised that under these irritating circumstances, our contemporary is virtuously indignant against the contractors for imposing on the municipality and the inhabitants, especially when we consider that the shortcomings alluded to are most common on the darkest nights! The Indépendant, in continuation of its previous remarks on "the massacre of Christians in Ton- "quin in consequence of their confiding in the word of "the representatives of France,"—a massacre in which the number of victims is said (erroneously, let us hope) to have reached the appalling total of 10,000!—now publishes a long letter giving a résumé of the facts which preceded and provoked the catastrophe. One point about this letter strikes us as somewhat odd, and that is, that though professedly written in Saigon, it bears date so far back as the 28th of last March.

In an article on Japanese affairs, the Journal des Débats expresses regret at the sudden change in the feelings of the Japanese towards foreigners. "It is painful," says our contemporary, "to see Japan, after such a brilliant move "forwards, after having borrowed from Europe her pro- "fessors, her engineers, her railways, her telegraphs, her "military tactics, which permit her, with a handful of "soldiers, and ironclad vessels, to keep her powerful "neighbours at bay; it is painful to see her regarding as "trespassers those who have done so much for her. Why "this ingratitude after such an excess of enthusiasm?" The Journal des Débats mentions the extreme difficulties Europeans meet with in obtaining passports. At the last moment the Daijo-Daijin (First Minister) has, it is true, issued a very liberal proclamation allowing the delivery of passports to all foreigners who require them, but the Débats does not believe in the sincerity of this act; our contemporary is afraid that vexatious proceedings will yet be taken against Europeans travelling in Japan. In the same article, the Débats states that the French Minister at Yokohama, M. de Berthemy, is gaining more credit and influence daily at the Court of Japan.

Mention was made some time ago of the decision to which the India-office had arrived respecting the survey of Captain Sprye's land route from Rangoon to Kiang-Hung. Great efforts have been made to induce Lord Salisbury to reconsider his decision upon this subject, and it is now stated that an exploring expedition is being arranged, and will start to complete the survey to the Chinese frontier early next month. The expedition will be accompanied by Colonel Horace Brown, Dr. Anderson, Mr. Ney Elias, and by some officials of the China Consular Service.

We understand that the Duc de Decazes, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, has still under his consideration the question of the future administration of the French Settlement in Shanghai, with a view to meet more effectually such contingencies as the late riot. The opposition offered by the members of the Municipal Council to the Consul-General at Shanghai very much complicates the question, but we believe that his action in regard to the riot has been approved by the French Government.

The Chevalier Schaffer, the new Austrian Minister to China, Japan, and Siam, proceeds to Shanghai by an early mail, and will, we understand, take up his residence at Shanghai, visiting the capitals to which he is accredited as occasion may demand.

The Japanese Government have given an order to a Birmingham manufacturer for 5,000 Martini rifles. The order is to be executed with the greatest possible despatch.

THE MALAY PENINSULA.

(PALL MALL GAZETTE.)

A telegram from the Far East which announced last week that threatened difficulties "between the Bandar and Pahang and the Maharajah of Johore" had been settled by Sir Andrew Clarke conveyed the intimation that the new Governor of the Straits Settlements had taken a fresh step in the pacification of the turbulent little States of the Malay Peninsula by composing a quarrel of long standing between the Bandaharah of Pahang and the ruler of Johore. It was a boundary question which might have been easily settled years ago by any English governor who had had the confidence of both the parties to the dispute; and we trust and believe that the settlement now effected by Sir Andrew Clarke is at once evidence of the personal influence which he is acquiring among the native princes in the Malay Peninsula and a promise of improvement in our relations with them. When the new Governor of the Straits Settlements arrived in that colony last November he found the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula in a disturbed state, seriously affecting our commerce in that part of the world. The State of Perak was torn not only by a war of succession but by furious disputes between powerful factions of Chinese which had sided in the Malay quarrel and threatened to fight it out in our island of Penang. With a little judicious management, the English vir pietate gravis extinguished the strife by obtaining a general recognition of the rightful Malay sovereign and reconciling the Chinese miners. Farther south, Salangore was fast resolving itself into that happy state of political nature where every stout fellow who does not shrink from cutting a throat or a purse, and has influence enough to gather a score of congenial followers to share his fortunes, sets up for independent sovereignty, and, like his co-tenant the tiger, lives on what prey crosses his path. The not very happy action of the preceding Colonial Administration, by setting up and supporting a foreign chief, had rather promoted than retarded this process of disintegration, and in a short time the whole State of Salangore would have become a mere nest of freebooters. Sir Andrew Clarke had here, as elsewhere, an inheritance of difficulties bequeathed to him, but here, as elsewhere, he will work out of them. Indeed, so sanguine are some of the Singapore merchants of his success that a joint-stock company was started in the City last summer, for making enormous fortunes out of a concession of all the tin which lies still, alas, buried in the heart of the Salangore mountains and forests. But such schemes are better calculated to injure than to advance any statesmanlike objects which Sir A. Clarke and the Colonial-office can have in view; and they are not likely to receive any serious support, either pecuniary or political. The Malay Peninsula, now the possession of a few scattered tribes of natives and of beasts of prey, is full of mineral wealth, and needs but the vivifying breath of a rational Government to develop rapidly into wealth and importance. As soon as it was understood that the arm of British Power protected life and property on its soil, crowds of Chinese workmen and abundance of British and native capital would be forthcoming to bring into the markets the untold wealth which lies hidden there; and the true policy of Sir Andrew Clarke will lie in enforcing this very obvious truth on the rulers of the States around him. That he designs to carry out the views which Sir Stamford Raffles had when he founded Singapore in 1819 seems clear, and we wish him every success. He will not only convert a wilderness into a garden, but he will make the eastern shore of the Bay of Bengal and of the Straits of Malacca what it ought long since to have been—if not British in name, at least exclusively British in fact. This becomes now a matter of daily increasing importance, since France is strengthening herself on the eastern side of Siam, and the Dutch are extending their influence in Sumatra, not for themselves only perhaps, but for those successors of theirs who are seen looming in the distant, perhaps not very distant, future.

THE ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION.

An extraordinary general meeting of this bank was held on the 22nd inst., at the offices, Threadneedle-street; George Arbuthnot, Esq., in the chair.

The notice convening the meeting was read by the chief manager, Mr. C. J. F. Stuart. The Chairman said the meeting was for the purpose of declaring an interim dividend, and there was very little to be said. Accounts were not presented on the present occasion, but the chief manager would read a statement of the affairs of the bank, which would show the grounds on which the dividend would be declared.

Mr. Stuart read the following statement of liabilities:—Promissory notes in circulation, not bearing interest, £563,506; bills of exchange in circulation not bearing interest, £8,227,845; balances due to other banks, £69,866; cash deposited not bearing interest, £4,151,514; cash deposited bearing interest, £6,727,620; total due to the public, £19,740,352. Capital paid up, £1,500,000; reserve surplus fund, £450,000; insurance fund, £50,000; dividends remaining unpaid, £4,150; balance of profit and loss, after defraying all current charges, £101,049. Assets: amount of bullion, £2,965,922; balances due from other banks, £730,190; promissory notes, or bills of other banks, £87,654; Government securities, £1,956,027; landed or other property of the Corporation, £253,951; debts secured by landed or other property, £68,678; notes and bills discounted or other debts due to the corporation, not included under the foregoing head, £15,763,066.

The Chairman said from the foregoing statement it would be seen that the profit, including the balance carried over, was £101,049 5s. 6d., and that would admit of a dividend of £1 10s. per share, being at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, or 6 per cent. for the half-year, free of income-tax, payable on the 1st November, and leave a balance to carry over of £11,049 5s. 6d. He had no remarks to make, and would therefore simply declare that dividend. The business of the bank was progressing most satisfactorily all over the world, and he should be greatly disappointed if the board were not able to pay a similar dividend in April next. A vote of thanks was passed to the Chairman and directors, and the proceedings terminated.

THE CHARTERED MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LONDON, AND CHINA.

The half-yearly meeting of this Bank was held on the 20th inst., at the offices, 65, Old Broad-street, under the presidency of G. G. NICOL, Esq., chairman of the board of directors, for the purpose of receiving a report and statement of accounts for the past half-year.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The notice convening the meeting was read by the secretary, Mr. WALTER ORMISTON, and the report of the directors was taken as read. It stated that the net profits of the half-year ending the 30th June last were £41,871 13s. 4d., including £1,661 11s. 4d. brought forward from last year's profit and loss account. An ad interim dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum was (free of income-tax) declared, leaving a balance of £11,871 13s. 4d., which was carried forward to next account. The directors regretted to announce the death of their esteemed colleague, Mr. James Joseph Mackenzie, whose valuable services, first as auditor and subsequently as director, had always been highly appreciated.

The CHAIRMAN said the present was an interim meeting of the shareholders, at which it was not usual to present any detailed accounts. An approximate statement was presented which gave a fair reflex of the company's affairs. The profit and loss account was not so satisfactory as that of the corresponding half-year, and that was entirely owing to the unsatisfactory state of the China trade. The directors had no reason to complain of the other branches of the bank, but it would be wrong not to state frankly that the China business showed a considerable loss, and consequently the aggregate profits of the present half-year as compared with the corresponding period were considerably less. The China business it had been felt necessary to curtail very much indeed, and the loss on the business had been aggravated by the unusual state of the China exchanges. All the funds remitted for some time past had been at a considerable loss. That state of things, it was to be hoped, would not continue, and such a state of adversity as China trade was passing through they might expect would be succeeded by a period of prosperity. The result was that after paying a dividend at the rate of eight per cent. per annum there was a balance left to carry forward of £11,000. The only item in the figures to notice was the increase in the charges account, and after what had been said at previous meetings he thought it right to explain that the increase was partly due to an augmentation in the expenditure on inspection. He had no doubt they would all agree that that was an expenditure in the right direction. With regard to the expenditure on telegraphs, in a house like theirs, the establishment of telegraphic communication with the East rendered a large expenditure in telegrams absolutely necessary. It would be hopeless to attempt to carry on the business without that outlay; but it resulted in a profit in the business. It must not be supposed from what he had said about the loss on the China trade that they had incurred any bad debts; the losses were from losses on exchange, and the inability to make profit. Since the last meeting he regretted to say the directors had lost one of their valued colleagues, Mr. Mackenzie, who was unexpectedly carried off by death. Mr. Scott, of the firm of Binny and Co., of Madras, had been elected to fill the place of Mr. Mackenzie. The only other matter he had to refer to was that of Joshua, by which the bank some time ago sustained a very heavy loss. The matter was still sub judice. The bank had obtained a judgment as was expected, and was now prosecuting its claim in the courts at Damascus, and he believed that by the end of next year it would be in a position to report that something had been recovered. It was not necessary to adopt the report at this meeting, and the only resolution he had to propose was that Mr. J. W. Bullen be elected a director in the place of Sir William Grey, resigned.

Mr. MURRAY ROBERTSON briefly seconded the motion, which was agreed to nem. con., and the proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

THE CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA, AND CHINA.

An extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of this bank was held on the 21st inst. at the London Tavern, for the purpose of declaring an interim dividend for the half-year ended the 30th of June last. Mr. W. PATERSON occupied the chair.

The CHAIRMAN expressed his regret that the chair on that occasion was not filled by Mr. Cassels, who had been nominated by the Secretary of State for India to a seat on the India Council. Although he and his colleagues felt that it was a loss to the bank, they could not but feel gratified at the compliment conferred upon Mr. Cassels, and he believed that the shareholders would cordially endorse the sentiments of the directors as to the great benefit the bank had derived from Mr. Cassels' services. His presence at the India Council would be of great value to banks and mercantile houses interested in India, as he had taken with him great experience and knowledge of modern business in India. His (the Chairman's) colleagues had been good enough to place him in Mr. Cassels' seat, and he could only say that it would be his pleasure, as it was his duty, to merit the confidence they had reposed in him. As to the bank's affairs there was very little to say. Everything was going on in a very satisfactory manner. During the half-year they had heard of losses in India, but fortunately they had not suffered. The business altogether was going on satisfactorily, and he believed the bank at no time possessed a more efficient staff, from its manager downwards, than it did at present. The directors, after most carefully overhauling the accounts, felt fully justified in recommending a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum. To fill the place in the direction vacated by Mr. Cassels, the board had elected Mr. Christian, who was lately a member of the old Bombay firm of which Mr. Cassels was formerly a partner, and he had no doubt that when at the proper time he proposed to the shareholders (which would be at the next meeting) to confirm the choice of the board they would unanimously do so. He concluded by moving that an interim dividend for the half-year ending 30th June last, at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax, be now declared, payable on and after the 28th inst.—Mr. John Jones briefly seconded the motion.

Mr. Morrison said he would have been better pleased if the dividend had been larger, but was thankful for the return such as it was. Referring to the custom of merchants in drawing between England and India and China, he deprecated the six months' usance on bills of exchange, and, believing that it was not good in principle, urged that the board should do all they could to shorten the usance.—A Shareholder was satisfied with the dividend, and hoped the board would not increase it until a most substantial addition had been made to the reserve fund.—Mr. Joseph Balfour was of opinion that the reserve fund was the backbone of a bank, and so far as he was personally concerned he would be content to cordially support the board if they told the shareholders that they did not desire to pay an increased dividend until there was a good and substantial reserve fund. He would cheerfully go without a dividend for a year if the money were put to a reserve fund, as he believed that would strengthen the bank.—Mr. Bett thought the shareholders might be taken somewhat more freely into the confidence of the board, and informed, if only approximately, what the profits of the half-year had been, and whether they compared satisfactorily with the corresponding half-year. With reference to the charter, he would like to know whether that had been renewed.

The Chairman, in reply to the questions, said it was not usual to produce a report and accounts at the interim meeting. The accounts were made up annually and presented to the shareholders duly audited. There had been some failures in China, but this bank was not affected by them. Speaking generally, the half year for which the dividend was paid had been much better in a business point than the corresponding one of the previous year, and since June 30 there had been if anything a similar improvement. He had every reason for believing that at the close of the year the board would be able to give as good a dividend, and carry a respectable sum to the reserve fund. The feeling of the board was to keep the dividend at about the present rate until there was a good reserve fund. The bank could not disturb the usance, and if they were to refuse first-class mercantile bills having six months to run they might as well shut up shop. The directors had every desire to see shorter bills, but there were such things as good long bills and bad short ones.

The dividend was then declared, and the proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman and his colleagues.

THE WAR IN ATCHIN.

THE HAGUE, OCT. 22.—General Van Swieten has written a letter in which he states that the military object of the second expedition and the programme laid down have been completely accomplished, namely, the capture of the Kraton and its fortified occupation with a view to the subjection of the country. Moreover, a permanent establishment and maritime communication have been secured. Thus there has been no disappointment. The submission of the adjacent States shows that the Atchinese understand their position to be desperate. The incorporation of the country will lead to the civilising of the Atchinese. General Van Swieten adds that he does not apprehend a prolongation of the war, and he urges that party spirit should not be allowed to depreciate the success which has been achieved.

WRECK OF THE S.S.N. COMPANY'S STEAMER "CHUSAN."

We regret to report the wreck of the S.S.N. Company's new steamer Chusan, the launch of which we noticed in our issue of the 28th of Sept. She was built by Messrs. John Elder and Co., on Clyde, for the Company's Yang-tsze service, and left Glasgow for China on the 19th inst., but had not proceeded far on her voyage when, owing to defects in her machinery, she put into Waterford, when it was found advisable to return to the Clyde, in order to effect the alterations ; while proceeding there she was wrecked, with a loss of fifteen lives.

There were in all fifty-two souls on board, of whom thirteen were white people, the crew being otherwise made up of negroes and lascars, The steamer, which had about 900 tons of coal on board, bnt no cargo, was under the command of Captain Johnston, who belonged to Massachusetts, and was accompanied by his wife and son and sister-in-law, all natives of America.

The Chusan, after leaving Waterford, experienced at the outset moderate weather. On the 20th, however, the wind rose, and gradually gained in intensity, while the sea ran high. After midnight a perfect hurricane prevailed, with deluging rain and blinding spray. The gale blew from the north-west, driving the vessel, which did not obey her helm, over in the direction of Ayrshire, and the obvious aim of those in charge of the ship was to keep her well in the channel, and clear of this dangerous coast line.

During the night Captain Johnston, Mr. Moir, the pilot, and Captain King, a passenger, remained on the bridge, while Mr. Miller, the second mate, and other three men were stationed at the wheel. From this it would appear that the safety of the vessel was provided for as far as possible. The wind, however, was too strong to allow them to gain safer harbours up channel, and about six o'clock they found them selves drifting towards Ardrossan under all the perils of thick darkness, blinding rain and spray, and a gale inshore. Finding that it was impossible to keep off they made for the harbour, and succeeded in rounding the point. The situation of Crinan Rock is indicated by a beacon placed on the top, which seems to have been observed, and as the vessel was running ominously near to it her engines were backed. Before she could be got clear, however, a great sea wheeled her round, and she struck upon the shore side of the rock and parted amidships. The stern end of the vessel, which contained the machinery, sank to the bulwarks in about half an hour, the paddles remaining above water; while the forepart of the ship, which was water-tight, drifted into the harbour. She was cut through, as if with a knife. The stern end was also provided with a water-tight compartment in rear, but the machinery was partially open, and the dead-weight, with the inroad of the sea, resulted in its going down. Those who were in this part of the ship crowded astern, and as the sea washed over the bulwarks they were either drowned or washed overboard. If they had got on the paddle-boxes, the chances are that many of them, at least, might have been saved. As for the forepart of the ship, as we have said, it floated into the harbour, and the greater number of those on board, upwards of twenty in all, were safely brought to land. The pilots and others who stood on the pier carried lifebuoys, which were thrown to the assistance of several of the crew, who had got hold of pieces of wreck, and were drifting inshore.

The wreck was seen from land by Mr. Steel, the harbour master, and some of the pilots at the station, and steps were at once taken to bring into requisition all available means for the rescue of the drowning people, whose screams could be heard above the roar of the storm. As it happened, these means were hardly adequate for the occasion. The coastguard consisted of only one man, H. Lipscombe, its ordinary strength being five men. Of these G. Hays, the chief, and two others were on Monday, the 12th inst., called off to Greenock for drill, while a fourth was sent to go on duty at Lamlash. The station is provided with a rocket apparatus, which Mr. Lipscombe got out, but, without skilled assistance, was unable to use. The lifeboat was procured, but here again a difficulty was experienced, for the coxswain, Thomas Phillips, is one of the coastguardsmen who were called away, and in his absence Lipscombe, the second coxswain, did what he could to get a crew together. The boat was ultimately manned with fourteen men—carpenters, sailors, and other volunteers—William Breckenridge, one of the Ardrossan pilots, being of the number. When she was launched, however, which was not accomplished until fully an hour after the vessel struck, the wind was so strong on shore that they could not get her out to sea, although half an hour was spent in this endeavour. It was still early morning, but large crowds had assembled on the quay, watching with painful anxiety the sad spectacle out at sea. Men were seen clinging to the wreck, crying piteously for help, and others vainly trying to swim ashore were carried out by the ebb tide and quickly lost to sight. While the lifeboat was thus contending with the difficulties of the hour, Captain Bannatyne, accompanied by five men, put off in the harbour tug. He got as near the wreck as possible, and lines were thrown on board, by means of which nine of the unfortunate people were saved. The captain, with his wife, got hold of one of the lines. He bravely kept his wife afloat until she was seized by those on board the tug, but the poor man himself slipped backward and was drowned. The first and second engineers were of the number of those rescued at this time. Captain Bannatyne shouted to those still on the wreck to get on the paddle-boxes. The tide was now full, and he was hopeful that they might be able to hold on till he got back again. His return to shore, too, was hastened by signals for him to come and take the lifeboat in tow. Although he had got out with comparative ease, he experienced considerable difficulty in getting the tug into position to return. This was at length accomplished, and he landed his passengers. The life-boat was then taken in tow, and on the wreck being reached lines were again thrown out. In this way Miss Elliot, her child-nephew, George Johnstone, John Murdoch Johnstone, the mate, and three or four of the men were taken off. The mate, Mr. Johnstone, lashed Miss Elliot and the child to the rope, and saw them on board the tug before looking to his own safety or that of his companions. By the time these rescues had been effected all hope of rendering further assistance was at an end. It was now about 9 o'clock, and the storm had done its work. Excepting those who had reached land, all were now beyond aid. As we have said, several men were rescued by the assistance of the pilots on the pier, and the steward of the steamer Amphiom, then lying at the quay, picked up a man who managed to reach that vessel. Four men also put off in a small boat, but their praiseworthy bravery was unhappily not rewarded by success. One of the crew was observed at the wheel, and efforts were made to bring him off. The men succeeded in passing a line to him, but were unable to pull him clear of the wreck, and it is supposed he must have been fastened to the wheel. He was ultimately washed of the deck and drowned. The rescued persons were accommodated in hotels and private houses in the town, and every kindness was shown them. Mrs. Johnstone is near her confinement and her condition is therefore critical. Mr. Johnstone, the mate, lies in a very exhausted state."

Of the persons who were drowned, only two were white people, viz., Captain Johnstone and William Miller, the second mate. The following are the names of the white persons saved:—Captain King, passenger, Mrs. Johnstone, the captain's wife, and their son, George Johnstone, 4½ years old; Miss Ellen Elliot, Mrs. Johnstone's sister; Mr. Moir, pilot; John Murdock Johnstone, first mate, unmarried, and belonging to Glasgow; William Gardner, chief engineer, a native of Leith; William Ortwin, second engineer, belonging to Liverpool; William G. Wrench, third engineer, unmarried, belonging to Abernethy; George Marr, fourth engineer, a native of Aberdeen, but living with his family in Glasgow; Edward Humphreys, purser, belonging to Salem, U. S. The greater portion of the wreck now lies in four fathoms of water between both piers at the entrance of Ardrossan Harbour, in such a position that it is dangerous, if not impossible for vessels to pass in and out. The fore part of the Chusan, from the after bulkhead forehold, lies inside the harbour. The harbour authorities have received instructions from the Glasgow Salvage Association to have the wreck removed.

LOSS OF THE "MAJU."

Telegrams from Stornaway, received at Dundee, report that on the 23rd a wreckage was cast ashore, from which there is no doubt whatever that the fine iron ship Maju, Captain Smith, has been lost, and that the whole of the crew, twenty-four in number, have perished. The vessel sailed from Dundee on the afternoon of Friday, the 16th, and made a splendid passage to the Pentland Frith. It would appear that she had encountered the whole of the violent gale which swept over the coast on Wednesday, the 21st. The supposition is that she had been endeavouring to get shelter among the Hebrides Islands. She was built by Messrs. Brown and Simpson, Dundee, for Messrs. Killick, Martin, and Co., of London, and was of 1,000 tons burden, and classed A 1 at Lloyds. She was coal-laden for Rangoon. How the casualty happened no one, of course, can tell, but it is supposed that the ship had become unmanageable. It is supposed that the total loss will amount to between thirty and forty thousand pounds, both ship and cargo were insured.

Deputy Inspector-General of Hospitals and Fleets, Dr. William Loney, who has been stationed at Hong Kong since September, 1872, has been appointed to Haslar Hospital, vice Nelson, whose period of service is about to expire. Deputy-Inspector of Hospitals and Fleets, David Lloyd Morgan, C.B., M.D., has been ordered to hold himself in readiness to proceed to Hong Kong, to relieve Dr. Loney.

Mr. E. C. Bowra.—It is with much regret that we record the death of Mr. E. C. Bowra, in his thirty-third year, at Halstead, Kent. Mr. Bowra arrived in China in 1865, and entered the Chinese Customs Service. Having attained considerable proficiency in the Chinese language, he was soon promoted to the post of Commissioner of Customs at Ningpo. He was deputed last year as one of the special commissioners to represent China at the Vienna Exhibition; his labours in connection with this post were very much appreciated, and it is hardly too much to say that he was the life and soul of the China department at Vienna. His loss will be felt by a large circle of friends, who much appreciated his talents, vigour, vivacity, and genial temperament. At the expiration of his leave Mr. Bowra would have returned to China to resume his post in the service, but his premature death now leaves a blank to be filled. Mr. Bowra has left a widow and four children.

Mr. Wm. Benjamin Mason, who has been for about ten years in connection with the Telegraph department at Inverness, being second clerk in charge for the last few years, has just been appointed to fill one of three vacant posts under the Japanese Government Telegraphic Administration.

Hester and Co. (Limited), wholesale tea merchants, solicit subscriptions for £29,230 in £10 shares, of which £7 will be called up in nine months. This will bring up the subscribed capital to £100,000.

Messrs. Sillar and Co.'s Tea Circular contains the following passage with reference to the Teas ex Gordon Castle:—

In our last Circular we alluded to the sale at Lisbon of 1,400,000 lbs. of submerged teas from the wreck of the Gordon Castle for £500, or at the rate of a third of a farthing per pound. We also drew attention to the fact of a hundred tons of the same submerged teas having arrived in this country. This statement drew forth a communication from Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson to the effect that this sale was based upon the value of the lead, and that there was not any chance of the tea being introduced for consumption, the whole of the cargo having been condemned by a gentleman from their house as utterly spoilt. These gentlemen omitted to add that the contents of 1,000 chests were packed in bags and sold at the rate of 2d. per lb., and that the Portuguese Government had taken measures to prevent their import for consumption into that country. The condemnation of the whole cargo by the gentleman from Messrs. Thompson's house does not, therefore, appear to have prevented this sale, which was based upon a money standard considerably higher than the value of the lead. There are large quantities of these re-dried and putrid tea-leaves now in the London warehouses, part of which has been delivered for home consumption. They are quite unfit for human food; we have drawn public attention to this fact again and again. It is rumoured that some were cleared by a contractor for one of the workhouses.

The Times prints the following observations on the subject:—

The matter is one deserving attention, and the only practical remedy appears to be that the Custom-house authorities should have the power to stop obviously bad samples of any kind of food from entering the country. At present they have no such power, so that if an importer chooses to pay the duty on putrid articles and run the risks he must be allowed to do so. The absence of any uniform system of sanitary administration on the part of local authorities frequently makes these risks but slight.

The P. and O. steamer Pekin arrived at Southampton on the 17th inst., with £192,240 in Japanese gold coin. The whole of this amount has since been purchased for export to France.

The bullion per P. and O. steamer Peshawur, from Southampton, Oct. 22, was, in gold, to Galle, £570; in silver, to Hong Kong, £9,357.

CASUALTIES.

A telegram from Lisbon with reference to the Glamis Castle (str.) states as follows:—Found nut after side, screw jammed hard against stern post, think can be screwed back, and can secure broken keel, tides too strong for diver to work where she now lies, shifting her to-morrow out of tide, would not recommend shifting cargo if she has to be towed, as much breakage would occur by so doing, will wire when further surveyed. A later telegram (Oct. 17) would not advise cargo tea being discharged, there are upwards of 40,000 packages, and they would get very much broken and otherwise damaged, great loss will accrue by transhipping, nothing to prevent two powerful tugs with good hawsers towing ship and cargo to London, ship in capital trim, cargo sound, broken keel can be secured, rudder working well.

Rotterdam, Oct. 18.—A telegram from Batavia announces that the Sussana Johanna (ship), from Shields to Atchin, with coal, was burnt in lat. 38 S., lon. 2 W.; master and crew arrived at Anjer.

Ardrossan, Oct. 21. — The Chusan has been totally lost here; master (Johnson) and many of the crew drowned; lifeboat doing service. (Another telegram.) The Chusan (str.), of Glasgow, from Glasgow to Shanghai, in coming into harbour at five this morning, whilst putting back from Waterford, struck on Crinan Rock and parted amidships; the forward part floated into harbour, and the after part sunk outside the pier; part of crew saved.

MISCELLANEOUS.

At Port Said, Oct. 15.—Deucalion (str.), from Liverpool, to Singapore, China, &c.; Galatea (str.), from Cardiff, to Singapore; 19, Ino Bramall, from Maasluis, to Java; Formosa, from London, to Singapore, China, &c.

At Suez, Oct. 15.—Hector (str.), from China, to London; 19, Duna (str.), from Japan, &c., to New York.

Greenock, Oct. 16.—The Sourabaya, the new floating dock, which left the Clyde some time since for Java, but which put back, on account of being unmanageable, was yesterday towed out of the Gravel Park graving dock to the tail of the bank, having been supplied with a new rudder.

Greenock, Oct. 21.—A vessel, supposed the Sourabaya floating dock, is ashore totally dismasted on Helensburgh side.

LAUNCHES, &c.

There has been launched from the building-yard of Messrs. Blackwood and Gordon, Port Glasgow, a finely-modelled iron screw-steamer, built to the order of Gray, Dawes, and Co., of London, for the Netherlands India Steam Navigation Company. The vessel was named the Banda. After the launch the Banda was towed into the builders' dock, alongside their yard, where she will be fitted with a pair of compound engines of 155-horse power, made by the builders. The following are her dimensions:—Length, 220 feet; breadth of beam, 28 feet; depth of hold, 15 feet. This vessel, when completed, is intended to form one of the Company's Java line of steamers.

On the 17th inst. Messrs. Henry Murray & Co. launched from the harbour shipbuilding-yard, Port Glasgow, a handsome iron screw steamer, dimensions, 150 by 23 by 15 feet, built to the order of Messrs. J. and L. Fraser and Co., London. She is to be supplied with compound engines of 70 horse power, by Messrs. Kemp and Hume, engineers, Glasgow, and is expected to steam fast. The steamer was christened the Rosa by Mrs. Murray, sister of the captain, superintending her building. The Rosa is intended for the Straits trade.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Sir SAMUEL BAKER,

In his work on the Sources of the Nile, says:—

"I ordered my dragoman Mahomet to inform the "Faky that I was a doctor, and that I had the best "medicines at the service of the sick, with advice "gratis. In a short time I had many applicants, to "whom I served out a quantity of Holloway's Pills. "These are most useful to an explorer, as, possessing "unmistakable purgative properties, they create an "undeniable effect upon the patient, which satisfies "him of their value."

This fine Medicine cures all disorders of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys and Bowels, is a Great PURIFIER of the BLOOD, and wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to Females—young or aged.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

Our advices from the Japan Ports by the present mail are of no later date than those received by Pacific mail on the 26th ult., and published in our last issue.

CHINA.

TIENTSIN.

On the 1st Sept. an interesting event transpired at this port. A Japanese war vessel arrived, bearing his Excelleucy Okubo, his secretaries and attachés, and accompanied by Admiral Ito, of the Imperial Japanese Navy. The news that the Ambassador's frigate, the Rio-jio-kan, had arrived outside Taku Bar, created a lively flutter in official circles in the city, and when the little gunboat, flying the Mikado's banner from its fore, came steaming up the Reach, she was greeted by a large and curious, if not an appreciative, assemblage, principally of Chinese. It is noteworthy that when the Ambassador was landing the Japanese sailors manned yards and cheered in true man-o'-war fashion. The Consuls called upon the Ambassador in the course of the day, and a gentleman ranking as a secretary of the Embassy visited the Custom's Taoutai, to inform him of the arrival of the Embassy and of his Excellency's intention to proceed to Peking on public business. The secretary's call was returned on the following day by the Taoutai, but it is not known whether he saw the Ambassador. Shortly after his arrival the Ambassador was conducted to the residence of the American Consul, Mr. Sheppard, whose guest he will remain during his sojourn in Tientsin. The number of attachés accompanying the Embassy is unusually large, and there has been some difficulty in finding suitable accommodation for them on shore. It is not known how long the Embassy will remain in Tientsin. No official communications or interchanges of any kind have passed between the Ambassador and Li Hung-chang, but a special courier has been sent to Peking.

A correspondent writes that the common talk amongst the Chinese, high and low, is entirely touching the Japanese action in Formosa. It is evident to everyone that they consider the position taken up by Japan as a gross insult, and that they would gladly see the honour of China vindicated by force. Everywhere we hear of all kinds of preparations being made to drive the Japanese out of Formosa. At present, however, it is like the whale fighting the sword-fish. The Japanese are, undoubtedly, masters of the position at this moment; and the Chinese are now paying the penalty for their ignorance and conceit in fancying that the few and inefficient foreign appliances they have acquired were at the present day sufficient for measures of offence or defence against the least powerful of foreign nations. We now see that all the wretched wooden men-of-war, built at Shanghai and Foochow, can be completely overawed by a couple of Japanese ironclads, so that China is at the mercy of Japan. Till lately, to listen to the talk of the mandarins, one would have thought they were able to fight a European nation like France. China is the whale and Japan the sword-fish, and their respective positions are likely to be maintained until the Chinese Government at Peking determines that its military and naval mandarins shall be instructed in the art of war in the same way as the military and naval officers of European Powers. The whole military and naval system of China requires to be organised on the European model ere she will be able to compete against even the small country of Japan. I am decidedly of opinion that even such an apparently trivial matter as dress is a condition of weakness. Until China abolishes the black satin boots, mandarin hats, and long dresses for her army and navy, and adopts European dress for these forces, she will compel her men to fight at a disadvantage. The mandarin dress makes the military and naval officers like men with the half of the body in sacks, unable to make use of their limbs. The Japanese naval officers and men are smart and sailor-like, and I believe their military are also uniformed in a neat and serviceable style, after the European pattern.

Two Japanese have been arrested on the road from Peitang to Peking, as travellers without passports, and brought to Tientsin. It is probable that, under different conditions, they would have been allowed to proceed, but in any case exception can hardly be taken to their arrest. They are so particular in requiring foreigners who travel in Japan to be furnished with passports that it is surprising they should place themselves in a position to be challenged for the same fault.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 13th Sept.; the French mail from London July 31 was received on the 12th Sept. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald:—

Recruiting for the Chinese army in Formosa has recently been going on briskly in Hongkew, and it is a matter of satisfaction to record that on Saturday and Sunday alone no fewer than 500 of the easily-spared members of the Chinese community in these Settlements permitted themselves to be cleared out in that way. It is believed that many more will be similarly disposed of, but the recruiting officials, the chief of whom is named Chang Yuan-quâ, are very fastidious in their selection from the multitude who have offered themselves, rejecting the aged, the too juvenile, and the unsound. Few, if any, besides Cantonese and Soochow men were accepted. In the French settlement recruiting has also been brisk for a week past, but was conducted in so quiet a manner that few foreign residents were aware of it. The recruits are divided into bands or companies numbering from ten to fifty, and the head man of each is responsible to the one immediately above him in number for the safety of his contingent, and so on, until the chief of all is reached, who by this system of enumeration can see at a glance what force he should have at his command. Chang Yuan-quâ, the recruiting officer, has taken his departure for Ningpo, for the purpose of raising another regiment there. The activity displayed by this man is described as being something remarkable in a Chinaman, as was also the tact and quickness he showed in the selection of the human material he required from the bulk before him. The force recruited here will shortly be despatched per steamers to Taiwan.

If there is one thing beyond another in which a Chinaman's dense ignorance affords him all the complacency of perfect knowledge, it is the science of engineering. The bungles and blunders about the Yellow River and the floods of the Peiho are fresh in the recollection of our readers, who will also remember the self-satisfaction with which the expectant magistrate, Kao, delivered himself on the Woosung Bar. Now, the great object is to provide fortifications to resist the possible attempts of the Japanese to sail up the Yangtsze. Every mandarin is ready with his scheme, each one only more absurd than his fellow's. It is proposed to fortify Silver Island as well as to erect forts at Woosung, and a chain of forts, each to cost Taels 1,000 is to unite these two points. As to the forts at the extremities, one wise man, thinking "there is nothing like leather," proposes batteries formed with that material backed up with cotton! Good sport for a typhoon or a few 300-pounder shot. Another suggests cast-iron plates to line the earthworks, a defence certainly more pleasant to the attacking party than the garrison. In effect, if anything be done each fort will be found to be made on a different system, the whole contrived in such a manner that each shall be a hindrance instead of a help to its neighbour.

The Japanese transport Takaisago-maru (late P. and O. s.s. Delta) arrived on the 6th Sept. from Langkiao Bay, Formosa, for orders from the Japanese Consulate here. There is nothing new by her from the "seat of war." The status quo is being maintained till news arrives from the North, and the impression was that there would be no disturbance between China and Japan. The Takaisago-maru went down the river next day, on her way, we believe, to Tientsin. The Yong Pao, a Chinese gunboat which came into port the day previous to the arrival of the Takaisago-maru, also got up steam, and soon after followed the Japanese vessel. It is evident that each side is keeping a watchful eye upon the other. We understand that the Takaisago-maru, being a swifter vessel than any of those in commission, has been detached for the conveyance of the Embassy and suite to Nagasaki, on the conclusion of the present negotiations. As the s.s. Haining was coming down the Peiho, she was requested to stop between the Taku Forts and Tientsin, to enable a Japanese gentleman, a passenger on board, to visit his Excellency the ambassador, who was in the Moshinkan, which also stopped.

A collision of rather a serious nature occurred on the 7th Sept., in which the Takaisago-maru and the John R. Worcester were concerned. As stated above, when the Takaisago-maru left her anchorage she was followed closely by a Chinese gunboat. It would appear that after reaching Gough's Island the Japanese thought proper to anchor there and allow the Chinaman to pass on, which he did, and when the latter got the length of Woosung he anchored right on the bar, no doubt intending to await the movements of the other. Meantime, the John R. Worcester had been lying inside the bar, but at high water took a tug to go down river. As she approached the spot where the Chinese gunboat was at anchor, she was overtaken by the Takaisago. At the moment the John R. Worcester, with tug attached, got abreast of the Chinaman, the Takaisago, coming down rather faster than the tug, also got abreast the former, thus bringing them all three on the bar together. The Takaisago now starboarded her helm, and ran right into the bow of the John R. Worcester, carrying away her bow rails forward of the fore-rigging, stanchions, breaking her rail and cathead, and doing other considerable damage. Surveyors were sent down, and the J. R. Worcester was ordered back to Shanghai for repairs, which will probably take from eight to ten days to complete. We are given to understand that the Japanese acknowledge that their vessel was in the wrong. She was in charge of a foreign pilot, but on whom rests the actual responsibility of the mistake which resulted in the catastrophe we have not heard.

The programme of the autumn races, which has now been drawn up, fixes Friday and Saturday, the 30th and 31st October, and Monday 2nd November, as the three regular days of the meeting. Seven events are set down for each day, and among them we notice as new features, on the second day, the Consular Cup, and on the third, the Cosmopolitan.

In the Civil Summary Court, before Mr. Myburg, a case was heard interesting to shipping agents, charterers, and brokers. A Chinaman, Lee-ching-tai, sued Mr. John Morris to recover $45 commission for procuring a charter for the American schooner Almatia for a cargo to Tientsin. Defendant did not exactly dispute his liability, but wished to withhold payment for a time for the following reasons:—The water on the Taku Bar is but 12½ feet on an average, and after the schooner had been loaded to the proper draught, the plaintiff caused 800 packages of paper to be put on board, causing her to draw about a foot more. He said he would produce a letter from the charterer, stating his willingness to pay charges for lightening the schooner at Taku, if necessary, to enable her to cross the bar. That letter had not been produced, and the defendant wanted to defer payment until he had received a letter from the captain of the schooner to show whether or not he had got over the bar without lightening the vessel. The cost of lighterage would be more than $45, and the plaintiff's claim was held by way of part security. His Honour said that brokerage became due as soon as a charter was complete, and decided that defendant was not justified in withholding payment.

The usual fortnightly entertainment in connection with the Shanghai Temperance Society has been given at the hall, Hankow Road, Mr. C. P. Blethen, president, in the chair. There was not so numerous an attendance as might have been anticipated from the attractive features of the programme issued. Dr. Macgowan gave an explanation of the modern method of resuscitating apparently drowned persons, and also an account of the famous Red Cross Alliance.

The Chinese paper, the Hweipao, has changed its name and to a certain extent its constitution. As an advertisement recently stated, it has come entirely under foreign control, and we hope the change will have broadened and rectified its views on foreign matters. The change of a character in the title alters it from Hweipao, "News Circulator," to Wuipao, "News Compiler." In fact, having been a "Courier" or "Herald," it has become a "Recorder" or "Journal."

Among the Chinese passengers who arrived from Hankow by the C.M.S.N. steamer Haiching, was Ma-fah-loong, a red-button mandarin of some distinction, who was, it is said, well known during the troublous times of a few years ago. He was accompanied by an escort of fifty-eight men, and is on his way to pay his respects to the Emperor.

The Customs steamer Kuahsing has returned to port from a four days' cruise, having paid her periodic visit to the lighthouses on the North Saddle, Shaweisham, and Gutzlaff, and to the Tungsha lightship. It is understood she will leave again for a month's work on the buoys in the Yangtsze. There was no foundation for the rumour that the Kuahsing had been or was proposed to be brought into requisition for the naval service of the Government. Her duties will simply be in connection with the lights, buoys, and beacons in the Shanghai district.

The Austrian corvette Friedrich arrived at Woosung on the 5th Sept., and was detained there for want of water on the Bar until the 8th, when she came up river and anchored off the Kinlee-yuen Wharf. The Friedrich is a wooden ship, and was built at Venice in 1854-57. She was for years a 16-gun frigate, but the advancement made in the appliances of modern warfare induced the Government to equip her as a 12-gun corvette. Her armament consists of twelve of the best 52-pounder Krupp guns on the maindeck; the only pieces of ordnance on the upper deck being two small brass rifled guns on the forecastle. The small arms, both carbines and pistols, are on the Werndl rifled principle. Her entire length is 207 feet; breadth of beam, 37 feet; horse power, 230; is provided with a steam launch 35 feet long; and her crew consists of 250 men. The Friedrich left Pola, in the Adriatic, on a two years' cruise, on the 31st of May last, and came out vid the Canal, calling at Aden, Point de Galle, Singapore, Hong Kong, and Amoy, and has had a safe and prosperous voyage. She is commanded by the Ritter von Oesterreicher, who holds the rank of post captain in the Imperial Navy, and who was for seven years, from 1866 to 1873, director of a surveying expedition in the Adriatic, in which some of the officers now serving under him were also engaged. Captain Oesterreicher and his officers are specially commissioned to make scientific collections, and to survey the coast and take soundings in the ocean waters traversed by the corvette. They are also charged to make observations of the transit of Venus on 9th December, for which purpose the ship will repair to Yokohama. All the scientific instruments necessary for this purpose have been brought out. After a short stay at Shanghai the Friedrich will visit Japan, Manila, Siam, South America, and Australia.

Mr. Thomas Fawcett, to whose re-arrest we recently referred, went to Chefoo by the Sin Nanzing. We hear that Mr. N. J. Hannen has been retained to defend Mr. Fawcett.

The Shantung, arrived from Tientsin, brought down fifty-four griffins, in anticipation of the ensuing autumn races. This is, we learn, the largest consignment ever brought by any steamer at one time. Half the lot were put up to auction at the Horse Bazaar on Tuesday. Competition was not very brisk, but twelve ponies were disposed of at an average of Tls. 120 each—the prices ranging from Tls. 100 to Tls. 150.

Mr. Forrest, who has recently officiated at Shanghai as Acting Vice-Consul, took his departure for Ningpo on Monday. Mr. W. G. Stronach has resumed duty here for a short period, but will ultimately be succeeded by Mr. Davenport.

The steamer Colorado arrived here on the 7th Sept., with the American mail from San Francisco of August 8. To enable the Colorado to leave again without delay for San Francisco with the mails, &c., of the 2nd from Shanghai, the Costa Rica left on the 8th Sept. for Hong Kong, while the chartered steamer Luzon left the same day with the Shanghai mail, which is expected on the 15th. The Colorado would thus be almost ready to receive the mails and cargo despatched from Shanghai on the 2nd, by the time they reached Yokohama.

The Shanghai Budget gives the following items of news:—

At a meeting of the subscribers to the Shanghai Library on the 8th Sept. it was announced by Rev. Canon Butcher that the success already reached in promises of support was sufficient to authorise the friends of the library to hope for a prosperous future. In order to enable the exertions now used to obtain subscribers to be continued to completion, the meeting was adjourned to the 28th.

The English section of our Rowing Club having challenged the Scottish members, the latter have decided to accept the gage of friendly battle; and elected Mr. B. A. Clarke their captain. A vigorous vitality in field-sports and athletic exercises is almost as good a reply to Ningpo proclamations and other specimens of Chinese friendliness as volunteering itself.

The Wan-kwoh-kung-pau, a Chinese weekly magazine devoted to the diffusion among the Chinese of a "knowledge of the geography, history, civilisation, politics, religion, science, art, industry and general progress of Western countries," commences its seventh volume with its size enlarged to thirty-six pages.

The U.S.S. Saco arrived here on the 6th Sept., and is, we hear, to go into dock for the purpose of getting her boilers repaired, &c. We have some general recollection that this gallant ship has spent a good part of her time in various docks before the present occasion.

The Maloo Wanderers and Nondescripts contested the opening match of the season at the Cricket Ground during the last three days, with a result—after a closely fought game—in favour of the latter.

NINGPO.

A correspondent of the North China Herald writes from this port under date Sept. 10 as follows:—

Rumours are afloat amongst us of an intended attack on foreigners by Chinghae and Foongwha men, and not a little uneasiness is felt. The position is not altogether a comforable one to be placed in, with rumours such as are now abroad, and not a single foreign vessel in port after four P. M., the departure of the S. S. N. steamer withdrawing even the semblance of protection in the event of an outbreak. However ridiculous it may seem to the good folks in Shanghai that the veterans of Ningpo should feel anxiety on account of rumours of a native outbreak, we will stand the ridicule if you will only send us a gunboat.

It is almost impossible to get reliable information from Chinamen, although self interest points to their keeping us well informed. The answer to all enquiry is, "We are told not to talk about it." This looks as if the native authorities themselves are slightly apprehensive. We know there is great uneasiness amongst Chinamen, disturbances amongst the hill people, and a strong probability of a rising, if war with Japan is declared. A Church dignitary was surprised last Sunday by the absence of nearly all his flock. The reply to his enquiry as to the reason was, "You had better not go to church; in fact, mix as little as possible with foreigners just at present." We see a great many Chinese soldiers moving round, more especially late at nights, which is quite an unusual occurrence. No doubt they are on the alert for keeping the peace, but we do not trust them too much. Another placard on the East Gate this morning; getting nearer and nearer. I really begin to believe there is something in it.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 19th September; the P. and O. mail from London Aug. 7 was received on the 13th September. The following items of news are from the Hong Kong Daily Press:—

The Independent states that a regatta will take place at Macao in honour of the Prince of Portugal's birthday. The same paper states that a very beautiful drama, entitled Lucresia Borgia will be given at the Lusitano theatre by the Portuguese Amateurs on the 3rd October.

The Calcutta Portuguese, named R. A. Rozario, who gave evidence in the Spark tragedy case, to the effect that he went on his knees in his cabin to three Chinese who threatened his life, whilst other Chinese were murdering the captain, complained to Mr. May yesterday that in consequence of his giving evidence he had been told by Captain G. U. Sands that his services were not required any longer. He was now, in consequence, on his own resources, and would have to pay his own expenses till the case was finished in the Supreme Court. Mr. May told him that he did not think that it was in consequence of giving evidence that he was discharged. It was doubtless for reasons he ought himself to know, but which Captain Sands did not think proper to state. However, his expenses would be paid till he was finished with.

Miss Carry George's dramatic company appeared in Robertson's well-known comedy School, which was given throughout with much spirit and effect. The majority of the actors and actresses are already known in Hong Kong in this piece, but it was received with evident enjoyment by the audience. Mr. Herberte as Krux was greatly admired, his doleful comicality keeping the audience in roars of laughter throughout. Miss Carry George as the sprightly Naomi Tighe was also much admired, while Mr. Taylor displayed his well-known talents as a comic actor to great advantage in Dr. Sutcliffe. Miss Norman, as Bella, acted in a pleasing and simple manner, especially in the last scene, where she is introduced as Lady Beaufort.

The Foochow Herald states that the Arsenal is again in full working order, and that several of the former foreign employés have been taken on again and others are about to be re-engaged. The Kestrel was to leave on the 12th instant, for Tamsui, and it was understood that on her return she would be stationed off the Settlement at Foochow.

THE JAPANESE IN FORMOSA.

(DAILY PRESS CORRESPONDENT.)

TAKAO, SEPT. 11.

We have been a whole month without any means of direct communication with Amoy; and for the present opportunity of sending our mails we are indebted to a British man-of-war.

During the latter part of last month Captain Cassell passed through Takao with a party of Japanese, on his way to Taiwanfoo, where he had some official business connected with the expedition. It is understood that he went there in the hope of meeting M. Giquel, who, however, happened not to be at Taiwanfoo. He therefore had to return to Langkiaou without effecting anything. The Delta has made periodical trips to Langkiaou, and has brought a few more men, either soldiers or coolies, but not enough to make a noticeable addition to those already on the spot. The health of the troops there has been exceedingly good, and the number of deaths has been very small. There have been some cases of intermittent fever, but fewer than one would expect during an unusually wet summer in Formosa. Both the American gentlemen connected with the expedition have suffered severely.

The Customs cruiser Ling Fung has paid us a short visit, after which she departed for the Pescadores. She is to remain there for some length of time, for the purpose of instructing and drilling the officers and sailors of the Foochow men-of-war. It is commonly reported that the sailors and some of the officers of the Foochow fleet are good seamen, but that they know nothing about fighting their ships, and are unaccustomed to the strict discipline which is considered necessary for a European navy.

On the 25th of last month seven Chinese steamers arrived, with four thousand troops, from Chinkiang. Four of the vessels were Shanghai men-of-war, and the other three were borrowed from the Chinese Steam Navigation Company. A Japanese corvette, which had been in the Pescadores, accompanied them from there, and anchored there for some hours; after which she went on to Langkiaou. The ships were all too large to come inside, but, fortunately meeting with fine weather, landed the troops, ammunitions, treasure, &c., on board very rapidly by means of two small Chinese steamers, formerly called the Volunteer and the Island Queen, and the foreign tug-steamer Taiwan, belonging to this port. A small quantity of horses and mules came in the steamer, but it is not intended to bring over any cavalry. A large number of the soldiers were encamped here for two or three days before moving to their present camps, a few miles inland. They gave some trouble to foreigners, chiefly by borrowing foreign-owned cargo-boats and sampans in the same unceremonious way that they took those of the Chinese. But no serious trouble occurred; and both the local and the military mandarins were perfectly ready to attend to any complaints brought before them. The first day was spent by the native boatmen in pulling crowded sampans forwards and backwards across the harbour, for which they got no pay. Finding this unpleasant and unprofitable, many of them disappeared in the night with their oars, leaving their sampans on the shore, in some cases with a plank taken out of the bottom. The military officers, on the other hand, retaliated by opening a store for oars and masts, and whenever they got hold of a boat which they did not want at the moment, they appropriated its oars for future use. The departure of these soldiers was not only a welcome, but a very interesting sight. The lines of crowded tents were all standing, and apparently no preparations were being made for moving, when, at a given signal, tents were struck, bedding rolled, and the men with their baggage all marched off in less than a quarter of a hour.

These troops embarked at Chinkiang, but had marched there overland from Seuchow, a town in the extreme North of the Province of Kiangsoo, on the South bank of the old course of the Yellow River. There are fourteen thousand more coming from the same place, all formerly belonging to the Victorious Army, at the head of which Le Hung-chang made his reputation fighting against the Taipings. These are all foreign armed; but while some carry breech-loaders, some have muzzle-loading rifles, and others only muskets made in the Chinese Arsenals. They are said to be, to some extent, foreign drilled. Their commander, General Tang, has already arrived. He is considered by the Chinese to be a brave soldier, and took part in many sieges and battles in the neighbourhood of Shanghai and Soochow during the Taiping rebellion. He had twenty-four thousand men under his command in Kiangsoo; and being only a little over forty years old, he is a young man for his high position. Those of the soldiers that I have seen are large and well made men; but their Chinese uniform gives them a very unmilitary appearance.

Two or three members of the Customs' outdoor staff, old soldiers I presume, have arrived at Taiwanfoo to act as drill instructors. I am told that there are soldiers stationed at all the gates of Taiwanfoo, and that for the future no stranger will be allowed to enter unless he can satisfy the guard that he is not a Japanese.

SIAM.

—o—

BANGKOK.

Our advices by this opportunity extend to Sept. 22. The Siam Daily Advertiser has the following account of the ceremonies to be observed in honour of the King's birthday :—

The anniversary of the birthday of H.M. the Supreme King of Siam, following the position of the Sun in the Signs of the Zodiac, will occur as usual this year on the 21st of Sept., and the ceremonies of its celebration will be as usual.

On Saturday, the 19th inst., the ceremonies will commence as follows :—That night there will be an illumination. In the palace a Buddhistic homily will be delivered.

On Sunday, the 20th, in the forenoon, a Buddhistic homily will be delivered. In the afternoon sixty Buddhist priests will perform their religious incantations.

On Monday, the 21st, in the forenoon, Buddhist priests will receive from H.M. their morning meal. At the propitious moment H.M. will enter and receive the coronation bath. Precisely at noon H.M. will ascend the throne, when the Princes, nobles, and Government officials will be in sessions in their respective places in solemn audience. H.R.H. Prince Taawate-wacharin, and H.E. Chow P'raya Tamahtekaum-nah-te-baudee, will bow and present congratulatory addresses on the anniversary of H.M.'s birthday. After H.M. has retired, during the afternoon of that day the usual ceremonies to the throne will be performed.

On the 21st the military on land and the vessels of the Royal Navy will fire salutes of twenty-one guns three times, as usual.

All Government officials, great and small, will assemble in the Taung-praong and at the building Keng-wararahch-sap'ahp'irom as herein set forth. During the day those who will have an audience to offer their congratulations will wear their overcoats, belts, and usual panung, holding their flowers and candles, and perform their usual tokens of respect.

On the 22nd there will be two Budhhistic homilies.

On the 27th, during the afternoon, twenty-two priests will rehearse their incantations in the throne-room Paisahn-t'aksin; on the following day the priests will receive their forenoon meal, and in the afternoon the lighted tapers will be passed around in honour of the idols, as a Royal birthday ceremony. At night there will be a Buddhistic homily. The proper authorities will make the necessary arrangements for the performance of these rites without fail.

The oath to be taken by the members of the Privy Council includes the following clause :—"Or if any one meditates evil against H. M. P'ra-bah-som-detch-pr'a Chula Chaum Klaw, the King, for whatever cause, we will resist that person, even unto death."

This is a very prominent and important item, as it binds all the members of the Privy Council to defend the person of H.M. the Supreme King, at all hazards. Their influence, their power, their fortunes, their lives, their sacred honour must all be sacrificed, if the defence, protection, and safety of the person of H.M. the Supreme King renders it imperative.

The King has conferred the decorations of the Order Busopmahlah upon Mr. Henry Schuren, a photographer. A meeting of the Council of State was held on the 8th of Sept. The King has made several grants of Government land. His Majesty has directed the officers of the gold treasury to prepare as insignia of rank a gold stand and a gold teapot, to be given in exchange for a gold betel box, a gold goblet, to H.E. P'raya-samutta-Buranuraks, the Governor of Paknam, for diligent, persevering and unexceptionable performance of his official duties in the Foreign and Home Departments.

On the 28th ceremonies in honour of Buddhist idols will be performed.

There will be a Conversazione and Loan Exhibition of Works of Art in honour of the King's birthday.

A beautifully-modelled vessel has just been launched from the ship building-yard of Messrs. D. Maclean and Company. This vessel, when finished, will be the property of the Governor of Pungna, and is intended to convey the productions of the mining operations of that place to the nearest markets, to protect which against piratical attacks she will be equipped with six guns of good calibre—three on each side.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 26th September; no later mail from London had arrived out on the 19th Sept. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times :—

The question of a railway to New Harbour, which had been allowed for a time to rest, has been again revived in a paper laid before the Legislative Council on the 7th, in support of which the Hon. W. R. Scott gave notice that he should question the Government on the 28th instant. These letters prove, as surmised some time ago, that the directors of the P. and O. Company have come forward as the mouthpiece of others more interested than themselves, in an endeavour to induce the Secretary of State to override the decision of the Legislative Council and the voice of public opinion here, and to order the expenditure of our colonial funds upon a railway that is wanted, not by the public here, who are quite content to have their merchandise shipped and landed nearer town, but by the owners of wharves at the far end of New Harbour, who think the railway would enable them to catch some of the wharfage business that now goes to other wharves, and by a few landowners who expect compensation or an increase in the value of their property. As, however, both the public and those directly interested are convinced the undertaking will not pay, and therefore will not spend their money on it, and failing to induce the investment of other people's money in a scheme of so doubtful financial success, the bold idea has been seized of getting the railway made by Government, and every expedient is resorted to, and every possible argument advanced, to accomplish this desired end.

The performance of the Bijou Troupe at the Town Hall was very well attended. The first parts of the entertainment were not so attractive as expected, the singing especially being below the mark. Mr. E. Smith executed some unusually clever tricks of legerdemain, after the manner of the Japanese sleight-of-hand performers. The disappointment with regard to the music was, however, more than compensated for by the excellence of the same actresses in the ballet. Miss Alice St. Clair, and Miss Jessie Beatrice, the two danseuses of the company, went through their character dances with great taste, and the pas de troix, in which Miss Bessie Lynch appeared with them, was very gracefully executed. The third part of the entertainment, consisting of classical groupings of living statues, was very effective—the groups being arranged with great taste and skill—and was altogether the most pleasing part of the entertainment. The only departure from the programme was the substitution of the piano for the cornet solo, but had the Town Hall piano been in a little better tune no doubt the audience would have better appreciated the artist's whim. The same programme will be repeated, and there is to be an entire change.

The steamer Sri Sarawak returned to this port from Malacca, whither she had gone to convey the Chief Justice in time to hold the Assizes, she having, we hear, been chartered for that purpose for the lump sum of $650.

Robberies are getting rife again. In addition to two or three petty cases of theft from dwelling houses that have come to our knowledge, during the week the house of an Arab named Shaik Abdullah Baygeree, living near the junction of Tanjong Pagar and Neil Roads, was burglariously entered and robbed of a box containing a considerable number of bank notes and a number of valuable papers, which, while entailing serious loss upon the owner, will be of no value whatever to the thief.

Commercial Report.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

SHANGHAI.—Black: There had been a good demand for Congou—the better classes continuing most in request at about last mail's rates. There were not many buyers of common grades, and purchases could be made at Tls. 16 to 17, which would be Tls. 1 under last quotations. Arrivals had been very moderate. Settlements, 19,187 chests at Tls. 16½ to 23½. Stock, 20,500 chests. Green: Teamen had accepted a reduction of about Tls. 2 on both Fychow and Moyune kinds, and considerable settlements had been made. Rather more attention was being paid to Pingsueys, at unchanged prices. Settlements, Fychow and Moyune, 20,357 ½-chests at Tls. 32 to 50; Pingsueys, 7,518 ½-chests at Tls. 23 to 41; total, 27,875 ½-chests. Stock, 62,500 ½-chests. Export to date to Great Britain (exclusive of lost cargoes):—

	1874-1875.		1873-1874.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—A large business had been transacted during the week, estimated at 3,000 bales, increasing total settlements from 1st June to date to 35,000 bales, against 26,500 bales last year, and 32,000 bales the previous season. Prices paid had been very irregular, especially for market Tsatlees and medium to common re-reeled Hainings, which classes showed an advance varying from Tls. 10 to 20 per picul on rates ruling last week. Blue Elephant and Silks bearing equally well-known chop papers were reported to have been taken at Tls. 10 to 15 per picul higher, but best chop Tsatlees showed little change. Amongst the most notable settlements reported are:—Gold Lion Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4, at Tls. 365, 345, 325, and 305 per picul; Blue Elephant, and Yellow ditto, at Tls. 320 and 295 per picul; Dancing Bear, Nos. 1, 2, and 3, at Tls. 330, 310, and 290 per picul; Beautiful Woman, No. 2, at Tls. 317½ per picul; Pagado, No. 2, at Tls. 315 per picul; Blue Peacock, Zin-ling, at Tls. 315 per picul; Peony Ung-teh, at Tls. 295 per picul; Pah-hock and Pah-ling, at Tls. 277½ and 257½ per picul; Van-shen and Chay-shen, at Tls. 247½ to 267½ per picul; Common Tsatlees, at Tls. 230 to 250 per picul; Chin-yuen-sings Gna-ling Taysaam, at Tls. 300 per picul; Market Kahing Taysaams at Tls. 225 to 260 per picul; 9/12 moss Taysaams (common), at Tls. 205 to 215 per picul; Skeins (Laeyangs ditto), at Tls. 195 to 210 per picul; Pang-e-Tai's chop Hainings, at Tls. 310 to 330 per picul; Re-reeled Hainings (Market-classes), at Tls. 310 to 340 per picul. Arrivals during the week had not exceeded 3,000 bales, and the unsold stock was estimated at 12,000 to 13,000 bales.

CASUALTIES.

BATAVIA, Sept. 23.—The Sea Belle, Goggin, sailed hence, Sept. 11, for New York, via Padang, with sugar and a small quantity of coffee, but got ashore the same night on the Agenutin group, to the north of this place; she was floated after some cargo had been shifted, and was towed here, making five inches water per hour; surveyors have recommended her to discharge and go into dock.

MANILA, Sept. 15.—The Avenir (French str.), Angosto, arrived here, Sept. 2, and has been seized by the Government.

ZEBU, Aug. 31.—The Ida (barq.), of Shields, Thorburn, from Saigon to this port, with rice, struck on a reef on the coast of Mactan, Aug. 29, thumped heavily, and, as she began to fill, was left by the crew, who have arrived here. Sept. 8.—The Ida has become a total wreck; about 1,600 bags rice have been saved, and the vessel as far as possible stripped; the effects saved, and the hull of the vessel as it lies will be offered for sale to-morrow.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 12.—The Takaisago Maru (late Delta) came in collision with the John R. Worcester (ship), near the Woosung bar; both ships were outward bound, the latter vessel with a full cargo of tea, &c., for New York; she had her bulwarks, cathead rail, and fourteen stanchions carried away on the starboard bow, and two planks aft by the main rigging just below covering board badly cut into, and has come back into port for repairs, which it is expected will be completed by the end of next week, the Japanese paying all expenses. The St. Aubin (French ship) has been stripped, caulked, and remetalled, and is ready to be taken out of dock. The Diomed (s.) in leaving yesterday came in collision with the Hochung (s.), on the Woosung bar, but without much damage, although the latter vessel was put on shore for a short time. [The Diomed (s.) has arrived in the Suez Canal.]

FREIGHTS.

The steamer Cawdor Castle is loading at Shanghai at 70s. Rates by sailing vessels are the same.

COMMERCIAL POSTSCRIPT.

TEA.—Messrs. Layton and Co. sold 5,294 packages without reserve. During the past week a large quantity of green tea has been forced off at auction, and it is therefore not surprising that the market should have given way. The prices paid for the above show a reduction of about 2d. per lb. on those current early in the week, and on some lines, notably Imperial and No. 2 Gunpowder, even more. Canton tea has also fallen in value, "new make" Congou especially selling under recent quotations.

A return, showing the certificates of education in possession of the Army on the 1st of January, 1874, has just been published. In the 80th Regiment, stationed at Hong Kong, there were 847 non-commissioned officers and men. One sergeant held a first-class certificate ; 13 sergeants, 20 corporals, 31 privates, and 5 musicians, &c., held second-class certificates ; 4 sergeants, 14 corporals, 65 privates, and 3 musicians, &c., held third-class certificates ; 64 privates, and 3 musicians, &c., held fourth-class certificates, making a total of 223 certificates. In the first battalion of the 10th Regiment, stationed at Singapore, there were 858 non-commissioned officers and men. Four sergeants, 2 corporals, and 6 privates held first-class certificates ; 15 sergeants, 10 corporals, 49 privates, and 5 musicians, &c., held second-class certificates ; 13 corporals, 75 privates, and 6 musicians, &c., held third-class certificates ; 1 sergeant, 2 corporals, 141 privates, and 3 musicians, &c., held fourth-class, making a total of 332 certificates in the regiment. In the 57th Regiment, stationed in Ceylon, there were 773 non-commissioned officers and men. Not one held a first-class certificate ; 8 sergeants, 7 corporals, 4 privates, and 1 musician held second-class certificates ; 1 sergeant, 18 corporals, 25 privates, and 8 musicians held third-class certificates ; and 1 corporal, 16 privates, and 4 musicians held fourth-class certificates, making a total of 93 certificates in the regiment. From the second brigade of Royal Artillery, now stationed in Ceylon, no correct return has been received.

From another return it appears that in the garrison library at Hong Kong there were on the 31st of December last 2,320 volumes, and that the issues during the year had been 3,500, showing a decrease as compared with the previous year, of 581 volumes and 2,300 issues. In the library at Singapore there were, on the 31st of December, 620 volumes, and there had been 8,253 issues during the year. Here there had been a decrease of 94 volumes, but an increase of 2,399 issues. In the garrison library at Colombo there were, on the 31st of December, 3,657, and the issues during the year numbered 4,880. There were, therefore, 82 volumes less, and 5,447 issues less than in 1872. In the library of the Royal Artillery at Colombo there were 461 volumes, the same as in the preceding year, and 818 issues, an excess of 474 compared with 1872.

PRESENTATION TO MRS. WHEATLEY.—The North London papers give long reports of a social meeting held at Salter's Hall Chapel on the 21st ult., at which a handsome marble dining-room clock, and a silver tea and coffee service were presented to Mrs. Wheatley (née Miss Hobson), on the occasion of her marriage with Mr. Edmund Wheatley, from China. From the speeches delivered it was evident that Mrs. Wheatley had been the means of accomplishing an immense amount of good in connection with the schools and other institutions of Salter's Hall Chapel.

THE Pacific Mail Company's steamer City of Tokio was to leave New York on 26th October for San Francisco, to take her place on the China line.

The German steam corvette Hertha, Capt. Knorr, left Kiel on the 28th ult. for a two years' cruise in the East. She will first touch at Plymouth.

CONSULAR JURISDICTION.

The subject of Consular jurisdiction which we discussed in our columns a short time since, has now had the attention of the Austrian Government. A correspondent of The Times at Vienna writes: —Among the Bills presented by the Government to the Upper House is one relating to the transformation of the Consulate jurisdiction in Egypt. You may remember that negotiations have been carried on with reference to this subject between the Egyptian Government and the Powers interested as well as between these Powers themselves since 1869. It was at the opening of the Suez Canal, which promised to give a new impulse to commercial relations with Egypt, that the matter was taken in hand, and a mixed Commission went down to draw up a plan according to which the exceptional jurisdiction reserved to foreigners by the Capitulation was to be modified so as to be better adapted to present wants. However well founded the complaints of the Egyptian Government have been about the partiality often shown by the Consular Courts, the idea of confiding the interests of European subjects to the native tribunals was dismissed at once as impracticable. The cure would have been worse than the malady. The work of the Commission was a compromise recommending mixed tribunals composed of Judges appointed one-half by the Egyptian Government. There are to be two Tribunals, one judging in the First Instance and the other of Appeal. As the Tribunal of the First Instance will, owing to the large quantity of business, form two Courts, each of the Powers is to appoint to it two members, while to the Tribunal of Appeal they are to name one member and a Judge-Advocate, the other half of the Court being in each case named by the Egyptian Government. The Presidency of the Court is to go by rotation. The competency of these Tribunals is to extend to all claims between European subjects and Natives in Civil causes. As regards criminal jurisdiction. the Courts are only to exercise it in the case of offences committed within the precincts of the Court. As a guide to the Court, a code has been drawn up by the Commission, based on the Code Napoleon adapted to the local circumstances.

These Courts are to be opened for business as soon as a perfect agreement has been come to between the Powers on all details. The fact that this Government has thought it opportune to present a Bill on the subject to Parliament, as well as that other fact that Dr. Lapenna, Dalmatian member of the Reichsrath, has been already singled out for the post of Judge in the Court of Appeal would indicate that the Government considers the realisation of the project at hand. Indeed, of all the Powers interested, there is only the French which has still objections ; but these objections refer to matter of detail. For instance, according to the French law, fraudulent bankruptcy entails the loss of political rights in France ; and the French Government does not think itself empowered to allow a Tribunal, composed in a great proportion of foreigners, to decide about the political rights of a Frenchman. It desires, therefore, to reserve the final decision in such cases to French tribunals ; but as this institution of mixed tribunals is accepted now in all its essential points by all the Powers interested, the agreement as to such smaller matters of detail cannot take a long time. But as, however plausible such mixed tribunals may seem in theory, no one can tell how they will work in practice, they are, therefore, treated somewhat as an experiment. The Convention is concluded for five years. Moreover, even before the end of the five years each Power has reserved to itself the right of giving a year's notice, at the end of which it may withdraw its representatives from the Courts, re-entering into the full possession of all the rights granted to it by the Capitulations. Thus, while consenting to make the experiment, the Powers have used every precaution in the case of its not succeeding.

The experiment was, at any rate, worth trying, for any one who has had an opportunity of seeing the working of the present Consular Courts must long ago have come to the conviction that something must be done in the matter. You were the first in taking the initiative by the creation of the special Consular Courts in Constantinople, Smyrna, and Alexandria, which are admitted to be a success, but such isolated efforts cannot cure the evil. In general, bad as the repute is of the native Courts all over the Levant, that of the Consular Courts is scarcely better, and the remarkable thing is that it is the European subjects more than the natives who do all in their power to discredit the Consular jurisdiction of each other. No doubt the greatest part of those stories of venality and corruption originate with persons who have lost a bad cause, but they have become deeply rooted in the imagination of the people, Should the experiment of Mixed Courts succeed in Egypt, a model might be found for the reorganisation of the Consular jurisdiction in the Levant.

Mr. J. C. McCoan, the London correspondent of the Levant Herald, writes to The Times of the 28th inst., stating that the guarantees provided in the scheme for judicial reform in Egypt are even greater than those pointed out by the correspondent of that journal in Vienna. Mr. McCoan says :—The new judicial machinery is, as your correspondent states, to consist of two tribunals—a Court of First Instance and a Court of Appeal ; but, instead of only half the Judges in each being named by the European Governments, three out of five in the Court of First Instance, and seven out of eleven in the Court of Appeal, will be thus appointed. The International Commission, which carefully considered the whole scheme five years ago in Cairo, recommended the establishment of three Courts—of First Instance, Appeal, and Revision —with respectively five, seven, and seven Judges for each ; but subsequently, at the instance of the French Government, the Khedive consented to limit the scheme to the two Courts of First Instance and Appeal, and to increase the number of Judges in the latter from seven to eleven, of whom, as I have said, the foreigners should be in a majority of three. In other words, in both Courts the native element is practically swamped. But, in deference to Egyptian amour propre, the nominal Presidents of both Courts will be natives. These functionaries will, however, only really preside in a "native chamber" of each Court, which will consist solely of the Egyptian Judges, and try only such strictly native causes as the parties may prefer not to take before the full Mixed Courts. Practically these latter will be presided over by their foreign Vice-Presidents, who, as your correspondent states, will thus function in rotation.

THE JAPANESE ON THE FORMOSA EXPEDITION.

A SOMEWHAT curious State paper has recently appeared in the Nisshin Shinjishi, the principal native daily paper at Yedo. This document, a translation of which has been forwarded to this country by the Shanghai correspondent of The Times, purports to be a memorial by two "Samurai" to the Sa-in, or Privy Council, on the subject of the expedition to Formosa, and in the present condition of affairs it is of some interest as an exposé of Japanese public opinion. The memorialists are induced to state their views a second time because "a report has lately reached them "privately that in consequence of the expedition of their "Government against Formosa a Chinese fleet of several "tens of war ships, furnished with warlike engines and "with provisions, has already assembled at Amoy, and it "is their intention in no long time to drive out the de-"tached body of troops sent against that island." While admitting that this is not the time to discuss whether the expedition is advantageous or not, they expose the shilly-shallying policy of the Government at the outset, and pointedly remark that "these frequent changes of purpose "since the beginning of the expedition are unparalleled "either in ancient or modern times;" and also, that "when a Government is about to undertake a distant "expedition beyond the seas, it is necessary first of all that "its justice and expediency should be determined after "exhaustive deliberation, and then a firm and unshakable "plan of action resolved upon. If this be not done, what "confidence can the nation repose in them afterwards? "How can the welfare of the State be maintained, "or the work of enlightenment proceed?" Having administered this well-merited rebuke to the MIKADO'S Government, the memorialists proceed to discuss briefly SOYESHIMA'S mission to Peking, again affirming that the answer he received was to the effect that as China had no concern with Korea and Formosa, Japan might do what she pleased in the matter. "If we allow," they continue, "that the Government neglected nothing in their delibera-"tions, and that SOYESHIMA also discharged his duty as a "negotiator, it is unnecessary to prove that the Chinese Go-"vernment must have been guilty of deceiving our Govern-"ment. Our rage and gnashing of teeth at this thought "are beyond the power of words to express. Not even "by trampling to powder the four hundred provinces of "China and massacring the inhabitants would our iron "hearts be satisfied. How could we should show our "faces before the nation as faithful retainers, if we did "not devour the flesh and skin of the Emperor of CHINA?"

The memorialists next advocate that SOYESHIMA should be sent again to Peking to clear up the matter, and that if it should appear that he was in the wrong, then he must be beheaded, and his subordinates punished. "If, however," they add, "the Chinese Government should prove to be "in the wrong, it will devolve upon our Government to "send an army to trample under foot the four hundred "Provinces of China, to chop up the EMPEROR'S flesh and "skin, and let every man eat his share of it. In no other "way can the Imperial glory be made to shine forth to "the world." They urge the immediate necessity of set-tling the diplomatic misunderstanding and of supporting the detached body of troops now in Formosa, for other-wise they say "We shall draw down upon ourselves "increasing contempt and ridicule at home and abroad, "and cause the foreign barbarians to say of us,— "'The vigour of this divine country, which was formerly "'so conspicuous, has now become so degenerate that it "'has not a single man left within its bounds,' no one "can know when the laughter will cease." But evidently the memorialists consider that the bitterest cup of all would be that the Japanese would for the future "be "obliged to submit to the control of the foreign barbarians "in all external affairs;" and towards the conclusion of their memorial they affirm that they "think over this "(i.e., how disgrace in the eyes of all the countries of the "world is to be avoided) night and day with feelings of "indignation and sorrow, and are unable by reason of it "to sleep or eat!" On the whole, this document is one of the most curious combinations of common sense and bombastic sentiments that we have met with for a long time, but there can be no doubt that it fairly embodies the opinions of a very large portion of the nation, or a Japanese newspaper would hardly have ventured to publish it in the capital. That the views enunciated by the memorialists are popular among all classes is abundantly evident by our later advices from Japan, for we hear that the Government is active in its preparations for war, that all men between twenty and thirty years of age have been ordered, nothing loth, to hold themselves in readiness for service, and that "the Satsuma clan alone has offered 18,000 men, whom it is prepared to equip and maintain."

OUR NAVAL FORCES IN CHINA.

AT the critical juncture of affairs between China and Japan, which has existed for some months past, and still continues to exist, it is natural that we should look at the naval forces we have on the China station. By a late mail from Hong Kong we find that port—which is our head quarters in China—represented by one solitary vessel, the Elk. The lamentable catastrophe on board the Spark, passenger steamer, called her out in search of pirates, leaving none in harbour. This is not a creditable state of things for the country which has the stake in China which England has. We are aware that the policy of the late Government was to cut down every thing far and near, regardless of its influence on our prestige. We trust that the present Government will be prepared to support Admiral RYDER, who proceeds in the ironclad Audacious as Commander-in-Chief of our naval forces in China, with an efficient fleet, which will admit of more than one vessel at Hong Kong. Some evidence has already been given of this in the despatch of three cruising vessels, and the Victor Emmanuel as a store and hospital ship at Hong Kong. The importance of a full naval force in the China Seas can hardly be over-estimated, and any attempt to economise expenditure in this direction, is calculated to jeopardise our trade and general interests in the Far East. The naval officers of China are the most efficient instruments for the suppression of piracy and all lawless proceedings, whether on the part of the Chinese or British subjects engaged in the trade. This has assuredly not been done of late years, and we trust that Admiral RYDER will, on his arrival in China, inaugurate a more vigorous policy. A naval officer in a letter to The Times, remarking on our own squadron in the Channel, says:—"Are we to let the Japanese ironclads, "and soon perhaps the Chinese also (miserably weak as "they are), do exactly as they please, while we look on "helplessly at whatever they choose to do, unless the flag-"ship—the only English ironclad on the station—happens "to be present? I, for one, agree with Mr. REED, and "think that wooden ships should be armed with guns "sufficiently powerful to cope with such vessels. There is "no reason why a special shell should not be supplied for the "armour-piercing guns of more than double the powder "capacity of the ordinary shell for use only against wooden "ships, and thus equalise the effectiveness of the two classes "of guns for that purpose."

CAPTAIN KING, who was saved from the wreck of the S. S. N. Company's steamer Chusan, was on board for the purpose of testing the vessel's capabilities. Captain KING will shortly take out (via the Cape) another steamer for the company, which is now being fitted at Messrs. JOHN ELDER and Co.'s yard,

In reference to the statements in the New York and San Francisco papers as to the formation of another company to run a line of steamers between San Francisco, Japan, and China, we understand that an agent of the Pacific Railway Companies is now in London collecting information on the matter, but as yet nothing is decided on. The charter of the Vasco de Gama and Vancouver to the Pacific Mail Company removes for a time the China Trans-Pacific Company. In addition to the steamers City of Peking and City of Tokio, to be shortly added to the China line of the Pacific Mail Company, they are building three other iron screw ships at the yard of Messrs. ROACH and Co., Chester.

THE new Governor for Macao, Señor D'AVILA, whose appointment we noticed last month, will doubtless have taken up his quarters at the official residence in Macao. His Excellency will succeed to a better order of things than his predecessors, who have all inherited the wretched coolie traffic, which has at last been suppressed. His relations with the Governor of Hong Kong and the Chinese authorities will, we are sure, be more cordial in consequence. There still remain a few vices in Macao, such as gambling and piracy, which, we trust, will be vigorously taken hold of by the new Governor.

WE are glad to see by a telegram from Singapore that the rival Rajahs, MAHDEE and MAMAND, have withdrawn from Salangore, leaving TUNKER UDIN—who was supported by Governor CLARKE—as the rightful Rajah. We may now expect that trade at Salangore will be undisturbed by these factions, and we may take it to be another wedge in the consolidation of the policy introduced by the Governor.

ROMAN CATHOLICS IN CHINA.

The advance of the Roman Catholic Church in China is thus described by the Rev. Dr. Newman :—At Tientsin the Catholics have survived the massacre. Their cathedral, at the junction of the Peiho and the Grand Canal, remains a blackened ruin ; but on the very site where the Sisters were so brutally murdered a new chapel and orphanage are in process of erection, while in the Foreign Concession is their new cathedral, surrounded by buildings for the priests, the nuns, and the orphans. At Chefoo their establishments are extensive and imposing At Hankow, on the Yangtsze, their church is large; their orphanage contains more than one hundred orphans, and near it an immense edifice is being erected for educational and charitable purposes. At Kiukiang, 150 miles to the south on the Yangtsze, their establishment covers a large area, a portion of which is a Church-hong. The holy fathers are engaged in the tea trade, and while the Chinese converts do the outside business, they do the inside. The profits for 1873 were £2,000, which accounts in part for the wealth of the Catholics in China. At Shanghai, and in the province thereof, the Jesuit fathers reign supreme. They annually receive £20,000 through the Agra Bank for church purposes, and one holy father controls £500,000 for the Church. They are large landholders, and are in repute as the shrewdest real estate speculators in that elegant commercial city. Six miles from the city they have a grand establishment, covering many acres, laid out in gardens enclosed with bamboo ; and within is the church, the orphanage, the college (containing 200 boys and girls), and an observatory well supplied with the best instruments. At Canton they are erecting a grand cathedral. It is of Hong Kong granite, 100 feet wide and 250 feet long. The noble nave is separated from lateral aisles by twenty magnificent clustered columns ; the facade is ornate. On one of the pilasters is "Jerusalem," on the other is "Roma." The spacious site was once the residence of the Chinese Governor-General of the Province, but the French army gave it to the Church. From the bishop to the humblest priest, from the Lady Superior to the least Sister of Charity, all wear the costume of the Chinese. In the garb of traders they penetrate the interior, and are to-day where no Protestant missionary has ever been. They mingle freely with the boat population on the Min at Foochow, and on the Pearl river at Canton. They do not preach—they teach ; the Catechism is offered to the people instead of the Bible. They are elastic and accommodating. The transition from Paganism to Catholicism is made easy by an exchange of forms and ceremonies. The crucifix and rosary are toys in the hands of the natives. The ancestral worship of the Chinese has its counterpart in the worship of saints practised by the Papists. Money is the most effective grace in multiplying converts. "Rice Christians" are more numerous than those spiritually-minded. The Chinese flee from hunger, but not from the "wrath to come." Rome hastens to gain in the East what she has lost in the West.

Literature.

The Chinese Reader's Manual. A Handbook of Biographical Historical, Mythological, and General Literary Reference, by W. F. MAYERS, Chinese Secretary to H.B.M.'s Legation at Peking, &c., &c. Shanghai : American Presbyterian Mission Press. London : Trübner and Co. 1874.

After years of labour Mr. Mayers has given us this volume, for which we feel sure that all students of the Chinese language and literature, without distinction, will be grateful to him, for it supplies a want which has long been felt, and for the supply of which it was not easy to know in what direction to look, as it is not every sinologue who has the leisure or ability to put together a work of this nature. Apart from the elementary stumbling-blocks in his way, the study of Chinese literature is rendered very difficult to the European by the frequent occurrence of personal and historical allusions and conventional phraseology, and the main business of Mr. Mayers' work is to help in elucidating these ; and it is a work which will be the more appreciated because, as he remarks, "in every branch of [Chinese] composition, ingenious parallels and the introduction of borrowed phrases, considered elegant in proportion to their concise and recondite character, enjoy in Chinese style the same place of distinction that is accorded in European literature to originality of thought or novelty of diction ;" and very puzzling these are to the beginner, and even to the more advanced student of the language. The self-imposed task, as we can well imagine, must have been found a very onerous one, and in the course of its execution Mr. Mayers tells us that the complaint of the great lexicographer of the last century, that "to the weariness of copying there must be added the vexation of expunging," has often been forcibly recalled.

The work before us is divided into three parts, viz., Index of Proper Names, Numerical Categories, and Chronological Tables of the Chinese Dynasties, to which is added an index of characters arranged under the radicals. The first part, which is by far the most important, and occupies about three-fourths of the whole volume, is not only a historical and biographical compendium, but also a collection of "accounts of mythical beings and legends connected with animate or inanimate objects, which cannot be overlooked in an attempt at interpreting the figurative language or the traditional expressions of the Chinese." In getting together the materials for his book, Mr. Mayers has naturally found it necessary to consult a large number of Chinese works, and in so doing he has, as was to be expected, met with many difficulties, into the details of which we cannot well enter here. In the course of his introductory matter, our author gives his readers some small idea of the huge repertories of learning in which the Chinese delight, when he says that "twenty volumes of the largest size would barely suffice to contain the matter categorically arranged in the most modern and useful cyclopædia of literary reference, the Yüan Kien Lui Han ; nor would a less liberal allowance of space be sufficient to meet the wants of a complete biographical dictionary." For Chinese History as far as B.C. 100 Mr. Mayers is indebted to the Sze Ki of Sze-Ma Ts'ien, and for the subsequent period to the T'ung Kien Kang Muh with its continuations. For later history he has found the materials very scanty, as "the Chinese at all times have been chary of commenting upon historical events during the existence of the dynasty under which they have taken place," and he much regrets that, only after his MS. was sent to the press, he became aware of the existence of an important work, "published in 1869, which is devoted exclusively to notices of the statesmen and scholars of the present dynasty." Out of the 974 articles of which this part is composed, it is not an easy task to select one as a fair specimen, and we, consequently, take one almost at random, viz., 348 :—"Li Küan. A celebrated beauty of the harem of Han Wu Ti, B.C. 140. The exquisite delicacy of her complexion at the age of fourteen was such that her Imperial lover dreaded, it is said, lest the mere contact of a silken fringe should cause her injury. The Emperor playfully expressed the fear, moreover, that the zephyr, however gently blowing, might carry her away from earth." This will suffice to show with what minuteness Mr. Mayers has executed this portion of his work.

Part II. (Numerical Categories) is not so complete as it would have been but for the appearance of the Rev. E. J. Eitel's "Handbook of Chinese Buddhism" whilst Mr. Mayers' book was yet in progress. With regard to Part III. (the Chronological Tables of the Chinese Dynasties), we are inclined to look with some suspicion at the dates, for, to go no further, we find the accession of the present Emperor ascribed to the year 1862. As his father died in August, 1861, it is clear that Mr. Mayers is not a believer in the ancient saying, "Le Roi est mort ; Vive le Roi !" The nien-hao, or title of reign, we know, would not come into use till 1862, according to Chinese usage, but surely the accession dates from the father's death.

While fully acknowledging the great usefulness of Mr. Mayers' work, and the vast pains and labour which he has evidently bestowed upon it, we must not omit to call attention to what appear to us to be somewhat grave defects. First and foremost, we object to his system of writing Chinese sounds ; in fact, he has no system at all, for he mixes up the methods of

Morrison, Wade, and others in a most hopeless manner, and, to make confusion worse confounded, he gives some sounds according to what we conceive to be a method of his own. In numerous cases he has not thought fit to give the English sounds of the Chinese characters—a very grave error indeed, if he desired his work to have any circulation beyond the Consular ports of China. Until quite recently Mr. Mayers spent his time in the South of China, and not unnaturally, perhaps, contracted an affection for the Southern Court dialect; but we could have wished that he had adopted the Northern in this instance, as, in our opinion, it is more musical, and it is the one which, on the whole, foreigners will find it more advantageous to learn. A word in conclusion on the typographical execution of this work. Being at Peking, the author says that he could not discharge the final duty of proof-reading, and would have found himself seriously embarrassed in his undertaking, ... had he not met with ready sympathy and assistance at the hands of a friend, Mr. Ernest T. Holwill, of the Imperial Maritime Customs' Service, of whose attainments as a Chinese scholar he speaks in high terms. Notwithstanding Mr. Holwill's exertions, this volume of about 450 pages appears with a list of errata extending over more than a page, and we do not pretend to reckon up the number of mistakes which have escaped his critical eye. What would have been Mr. Mayers' fate, had he unfortunately been compelled to trust his work entirely to the tender mercies of the Presbyterian Mission Press is quite beyond our powers of conception.

A work has just been issued by Messrs. Sampson Low, entitled the History of Merchant Shipping and Ancient Commerce. It is from the pen of Mr. W. S. Lindsay. The want of an authoritative work on this subject has long been felt, and Mr. Lindsay has come nobly forward to supply the want, and he has performed his task most admirably. The two volumes which he has already published are both popular and erudite; they deal with a subject ever fresh and attractive, and their special interest loses nothing of its proper charm in Mr. Lindsay's hands. Mr. Lindsay has, we believe, spent many years over his task, but he has proved himself equal to it, and must henceforth rank among historians of enduring fame. He takes us back to a period anterior to that of Noak's ark, and after a painstaking and exhaustive review of ships and seamen, of boats and sails, of trade and commerce, through the intervening period, he brings us down to our own times, evincing as he goes along fulness of information and soundness of discrimination on all the varied topics associated with his subject.

We have received from Mr. W. C. Thompson, Moorgate-street, a very useful packet of books and photographs, illustrating the American Overland Route. There is a capital map of the Union and Central Pacific Line, a handbook with the rates and fares, regulations, and conditions of travel, a guide to the Union Pacific Railroad Lands now for sale in Central and Eastern Nebraska, and some excellent photographs of the scenery along the Central Pacific line. Crofult's "Trans-Continental Tourists' Guide" is a neatly-bound volume, full of information, and likely to prove very useful to travellers in America.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, OCT. 27.

As I intimated in a former letter, the most important Bill of the Session will undoubtedly be the new Bank Law, about which much ignorance prevails; but this is not to be wondered at considering the composition of the House, and the comparatively small number of members who have any practical knowledge of banking, or are able to judge of the merits of the case. The great point of conflict will be the creation of a new Central Bank of Germany, with the exclusive privilege of issuing notes, and the abolition of all the present banks of issue, with or without compensation; and it will be a life and death struggle with them for future existence. Or it is within the range of possibility that a compromise may be effected by extending the powers of the Bank of Prussia, and strengthening its position by combining the resources of all the other banks of issue by giving them shares or bank stock in the Central Bank to the amount of their present capital respectively. Something of the sort must be done as a sacrifice to public opinion, which has been very forcibly expressed by the Chambers of Commerce, the congress of political economists, the financial and commercial part of the public press, and innumerable petitions and memorials from private merchants and bankers. The leading financiers of the Government ignore altogether any such measure, and not a word hinting at the creation of a central bank is to be found in the draft of the Bill, which has received the consent and approbation of the Bundesrath, and is now to undergo the ordeal of three readings in the Mixed House of Parliament, where the members will vote according to the dictum of the head of their party.

Paragraph 19 of the Bill provides that no one is obliged to take bank-notes in payment, so that in fact they are not to be considered as a legal tender; but on the other hand, and to facilitate their circulation, the banks are bound to take in payment the notes of all the other banks and change them for gold coin; and further, they are all bound to have a branch office at Berlin, Munich, Frankfort, Dresden, and one or two other centres of financial operations and marts of commerce, where they are bound to exchange for gold the notes of their parent bank. In the original draft of the Bill was added "on presentation," but this was altered by the Federal Council into "within three days," as they considered it a hardship for the banks to be obliged to keep large sums in gold which might never be required and would be therefore lying idle. Wonderful to say, Hamburgh is not included in the above list of places where the banks are to have branch offices for the exchange of their notes, and the claim of this city, as the chief and most important emporium of commerce in the Empire, has been refused by the Bundesrath, and the original list of places remains intact. This is no doubt a hardship and an unfairness that requires at all events some explanation; perhaps it is meant as a punishment for Hamburg's steady refusal from time immemorial to issue Government paper money or authorise banks of issue, and preferring to establish their credit on the more solid foundation of a metallic currency. During the first eight months of this year, as shown by the official returns just published and made up to the end of August, the revenue derived from bill-stamps here was equal to that at Berlin, twice as large as the whole of Bavaria with its five million inhabitants, and three times the amount produced at Frankfort and Leipzig, so that any impartial person must admit that Hamburg is fully justified in claiming to be placed on the same footing of equality. As large sums in so-called "wild notes"—that is to say the notes issued by the Banks of Buckeburg, Gera, Brunswick, Meiningen and others of equally doubtful solvency,—are received here every day from the interior as remittances in payment of goods bought in this market, they can only be disposed of at a loss of from one to two per cent., and sometimes much more, so it would be a great convenience and saving of money if the banks had offices here, where their disgustingly dirty, greasy, and offensively smelling notes could be exchanged without loss for the bright gold pieces of the new currency, even with the proposed three days of grace. Should the Bill be allowed to pass in its present state, as amended by the Bundesrath, and Hamburg remain excluded from the list of places favoured by having cashing offices for worn out notes, then it may become a question how far it is expedient in self defence to establish here a Bank of Issue, if only to put us on a par with other banks. The question is already becoming the subject of discussion in financial circles, and the proceedings of Parliament will be watched most attentively and followed with the deepest interest.

The annual ordinary general meeting of the East Siberian Trading Company of Hamburg was held in the Exchange-rooms in this city, and numerously attended by the shareholders. From the report of the directors, and from the balance-sheet produced, it appears that the company have done a good stroke of business, and that their affairs are in a satisfactory condition. The net profit for the year ending December 31st last, after writing off liberal sums for depreciation of movable and immovable property, as well as the dotation of the Reserve Fund (which now amounts to 30,000 roubles), shows an amount of 61,569 silver roubles, 74 copecks, and enables the directors to declare a dividend of 9 per cent., or nine thalers per share. Adverse circumstances have prevailed in most countries last year, especially in those on the east coast of Asia. If, therefore, the balance-sheet shows such a favourable result, notwithstanding the difficulties they have had to contend with, it is a proof that the affairs of the company are based on a safe and solid foundation, and meet all the requirements of the commercial community with whom the trade is carried on. The business has now assumed such large proportions that the directors have found it exceedingly difficult to carry it on with the limited capital at their command, and the numerous trading stations they have to supply; and instead of making any further use of bankers' credit, which is always accompanied by charges for commission and difference in the exchange, they think the time has now arrived for availing themselves of the power given them by paragraph 6 of the Statutes for the issue of a second series of shares to the tune of 500,000 thalers. The company's steamers on the Amoor have proved to be a lucrative undertaking; thus the Nicolai has earned her original purchase-money in two years, and the new steamer built at Hamburg, and called the Emma Lühdorf, fully comes up to the expectations formed of her good qualities, as does also the steam-tug Moladetz. The vessels sent out to Vladivostock and Nicolayefsk have all delivered their cargoes in perfect condition, so that the Company's warehouses again contain a complete assortment of the goods most in demand there.

ARRIVALS AT HAMBURG FROM THE FAR EAST.—Herr C. Kruse, from Hong Kong; Ed. Burmeister, from Nagasaki; Consul Christenson and Mrs. Christenson, from Shanghai; C. Kapp, from Bombay; S. Heinemann, from China; J. Huthinghaus, from Singapore; Herr Schütze and family, from China; A. and I. Chatimsky, from Siberia.

COMMERCIAL.

Tea: The tone of the market is firm, and there has been a steady consumptive demand for most sorts. The sales by importers comprised 300/8 chests Congou, 370 packages, Souchong, and 265 Pekoe. The Egeria (steamer), from China, has brought from Hong Kong 934 quarter chests, and 360/8 ditto of different sorts of Tea. Rice wears a drooping tendency, and has a dull sale; orders might probably be effected below the quotations. Cassia Lignea is in favour, and sells easily at 65 to 66. There is also an improved inquiry for Flores at former rates. Pepper quiet, and no alteration in the quotations to notice. Of Spelter 1,000 centners in loco were taken at 23 mks. 60 pf. Among the sales of Sugar last week were 933 kranjangs of Batavia at 24½ marks.

In Bank shares there is but little alteration; some are rather higher, others a trifle lower. The following are the latest quotations:—Norddeutsche, 145¼; Vereinsbank, 124½; International, 102; Commerz and Disconto, 82¼; Anglo-Deutsche, 52⅛; Hamburg-Berliner, 99; Hypothek, 116; Deutsche Bank (not quoted).

HOLLAND.

AMSTERDAM, OCT. 28.

The Liberal paper, het Vaderland, publishes a very interesting letter which General Van Swieten has addressed to General Knoop, respecting the second military expedition to Atchin. The motives for this letter were the following: General Knoop published in one of our leading newspapers, de Gids, an article asserting that the expedition had been only "a half success." This General Van Swieten denies, and he embraces the occasion to defend himself—in six columns of type—against the various accusations made against him. His style is very sober. He writes:—"We have obtained our object in the second expedition. The strength and the composition of the second expedition were based on the aim of capturing the Kraton, so as to get a pied à terre, and to try afterwards to subdue the country." "This was," the General adds, "the military aim, and the programme of the second expedition, and this has been completely fulfilled, perhaps more than fulfilled. It was not possible to suppose that the Kraton would not offer the means to lodge a garrison; that all would have to be built from the first to the last stone; that even bulwarks had to be constructed in order to protect ourselves against a strong and obstinate enemy, whilst at the same time measures had to be taken in order to secure our communication with the sea. Neither inside nor outside the Kraton could building materials be found, and they had to be imported from Padang and Penang. About 4,000 persons had to be lodged, and storehouses had to be built for victuals, munitions for the engineers, and for hospital purposes. The level of the ground had to be raised to prevent inundations, and bridges were constructed." "Most certainly," the General says, "it would have been a most brilliant success, if peace had been concluded. But it is not my fault that this did not occur." It is quite comprehensible that the General does not repeat the several endeavours made by him in order to conclude a treaty of peace. "We have," he says, "obtained security for a garrison to remain in Atchin, and our soldiers have a safe communication with the sea." In answer to the question why the Commander-in-Chief did not assume the offensive after having captured the Kraton, he writes: "Our experience had shown that offensive measures were of little use when their only aim was to disperse the force of the enemy. The battles of the 12th and 15th of February did not assist our cause, which was to strengthen as much as possible the Kraton, and to secure our communication with the sea coast. If it was impossible for us to occupy the villages which were taken, and if we declined to burn them down, which must not be done if the conqueror wishes to govern the vanquished territory and to make its inhabitants his subjects, then offensive measures are good for nothing, and they only cause a great loss of human lives, a useless sacrifice." The results so far General Van Swieten considers have given to Colonel Pel the necessary security and liberty to act; and have rendered him able to parry every attack, whilst now the foe must have come to the conviction that all their endeavours are in vain. Colonel Pel is at the same time able to strengthen his positions. Most certainly we have achieved up to this moment no definite conquest, but we have obtained a good basis for further operations. But is there any chance that the war will soon come to an end? I am not afraid—he says—that this war will last long. The natives agree very soon with that which is unavoidable, and this will become the case in Atchin. "I am proud to claim that I did not shed any more blood than was strictly necessary, and that humanity was observed. The Dutch nation can say that our arms are not soiled by a stain of cruelty, barbarity, or wanton destruction." These are the outlines of the General's letter.

The publication of this letter has been a bonne fortune for het Vaderland. Every one was anxious to read what the Commander-in-Chief of the second expedition had to say in defence of his policy. I must say that the public impression is on the average very satisfactory. The number of sceptics was enormous. If the daily press is the mirror of the public opinion, then most certainly we are quite satisfied with the General's answer. Our editors read the letter, re-published it, and, as a rule, kept their own counsel. The Vaderland surprised us, however, with an article, "What must be done for Atchin?" The writer—an officer—does not criticise what has been done, but he protests most energetcally against the proposal to leave the matters as they are. We must, he demonstrates, conquer the Atchinese empire or leave it as it is. Up to this moment we are sleeping upon a volcano, and we continue to sacrifice the lives of our soldiers, a good deal of money and much prestige by remaining quietly in the Kraton, without making an endeavour to extend our authority. A third expedition, the writer says, is unavoidable. Speedy action is necessary; we must march into the country, and perhaps we may achieve the conquest of the whole empire by this time next year. I need not add that his letter takes a most sanguine view of our position. I can only hope that his predictions may be realised. In the meanwhile a distribution of [the "Military William Order" is being made amongst the officers who have distinguished themselves in the campaign.

The Second Chamber will reassemble on the 3rd of November. The Budget for our East India Colonies will be the first subject of discussion. The section report thereupon is, in some instances, most hostile. The worst is that no party is satisfied.

AMSTERDAM, OCT. 29.

The shareholders of the East India Railway Company met yesterday, in order to decide about the proposal to issue a loan of six millions, partly for a redemption fund of former loans and partly for the purchase of new rolling stock. There were too few shareholders present to arrive at a decision, so that another meeting must be held.

To-day was published the section report upon the first chapter of the budget. Some members have shown themselves anything but friendly towards the new Cabinet. They deny that it is necessary that the Liberal Ministry should make way for another one without any political programme. The majority, however, will support the Cabinet. The instruction question and the finances of the State will probably become the standpoint of the opposition.

In the district of Hoorn Mr. Fransen Van de Putte has been elected a member of the Second Chamber.

The ironclad Koning der Nederlanden, the largest man-of-war in our navy, has been successfully launched to-day.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

The healthy state of our market for Colonial Produce causes a most active business. The public auctions have given in most instances a satisfactory result. There is a good general demand both for direct wants and for exportation.

COFFEE.—The main fact of the week is the results of the Trading Company's auctions, at which 100,640 bales were offered and sold, at an average of 2c. above the brokers' valuations. The greater part was bought for consumption.

TEA firm, but without transactions. The general opinion is that the public auction which will take place to-day will have a satisfactory result.

SUGAR.—The market is in general very quiet; holders decline to operate. The very large quantities of beetroot sugar in stock make prices much weaker. The small lots which changed hands were sold at f.$\frac{1}{4}$ under November prices, and at the closing of the market quotations show a declining tendency.

RICE.—Since the cargo of Japan was sold no transactions have taken place in first hands. A dulness has prevailed in the cleaned sorts.

SPICES.—Nutmegs and Mace have met with a firm demand, but the stock in first hands being nearly exhausted the business has been very limited. Holders of warrants of course ask a considerable advance. Cloves look rather dull, and Pepper is offered at lower quotations. The prices are: Nutmegs, No. 1, 205c. to 210c.; No. 2, 200c. to 205c.; No. 3, 165c. to 170c.; Mace, D, 210c. to 212c.; E, 208c. to 209c.; Cloves, No. 1, 106c. to 105c.; No. 2, 105c. to 104c.

JAVA TOBACCO.—Transactions have been very limited, and small parcels only were sold. The arrivals are again very important.

COTTON.—Firm, and in good demand for export. Prices are higher.

JAVA INDIGO.—Several parcels out of the new crop have arrived, and at the current prices found ready buyers.

TIN.—The market is somewhat firmer. Banca has been quitted at f.57, Billiton at f.54½, and there are now no sellers at these prices.

ARRACK.—About 150 casks Batavia and Sourabaya were sold, but no particulars transpired.

MISCELLANEOUS.—On the 30th inst. will be offered in public auction 3,400 kilo. Gum Elastic (E. I.) valued at f.115 to f.70; 5,000 kilo. ditto, valued at f.115 to f.110: 44,300 kilo. Getah Gitang, valued at f.85 to f.70; 22,000 kilo. Macassar Guttapercha, valued at f.1.90 to 40c.; 84,500 kilo. Gum Damar, from Padang, valued at 26c. to 21c.; 41,000 kilo. Padang Cassia, valued at 27c. to 25c.; 41,000 kilo. Timor Cassia, valued at 11c. to 9c.; 13,000 kilo. Japan Camphor, ord. good quality, valued at 50c. to 51c.; 2,700 bottles Oleum Cajaputti, valued at 130c. to 135c.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Oct. 22, at Brouwershaven, from Padang, Clotilde; 26, at Brouwershaven, from Akyab, Mogul.

DEPARTURES.—Oct. 25, from Texel, for Batavia, Sumatra (str.); 26, from Hellevoetsluis, for Batavia, Hampton (str.); from Texel, for Rangoon, Silvia.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.—For Java, per steamer Sumatra: Messrs. B. Donker Curtius and family, Taylor Weber and family, B. van Zutphen and family, J. Versteegh, B. H. Bommezyn, Mrs. W. Verbrugge Schaap, Miss J. A. A. de Graaf; Messrs. M. W. van Prehn and family, J. van Stuwe, Schumeyer and family, G. W. Winter, M. D. v. Dongen, A. J. Cochius and family, L. J. Idzinga, A. Waardenburg and family, W. E. van der Hout, J. L. Verenet, J. G. van Blom, C. A. C. Romswinckel, C. L. Stekkens and family, W. H. Heytman and family, L. van Leeuwen Lz., G. van Beuningen van Helsdingen and family, B. Ysbeert and family, S. J. Cochius and family, H. W. Diephuis and family, H. van der Wolk, Miss J. J. R. Ruys, the officers G. D. Ebell and family, H. C. Rynders and family, A. Wybrandi, L. F. H. Cranen, D. F. v. G. Brunet de Rochebrune, and 125 soldiers.

Monetary and Commercial.

There has been no improvement in the general position of the Manchester market, and the business done has been of a limited character. Quotations, however, as a rule have been unaltered, and it is only in the inferior descriptions of both Goods and Yarns that any weakness has been manifested, and on the whole prices may be reported as fairly steady. Producers of best makes maintain considerable firmness.

The prospectus has appeared of the Steamship and Factory Shaft-Coupling Company (Limited), with a capital of £150,000, in 30,000 £5 shares. The undertaking is under formation for the purpose of supplying to the shipping and manufacturing interests a coupling, which, it is stated, can be easily applied to fractured shafts at sea and in factories, thus saving expense in charges for towage, &c., and stoppage of works.

The following joint-stock companies have been recently registered:—

Anglo-Indian Spinning and Manufacturing Company (Limited), capital £300,000, in 29,985 ordinary £10 shares, and 150 founders' shares of £1, to carry on business as cotton spinners and manufacturers in India and elsewhere.

City of London Finance Company (Limited), capital £25,000, in £1 shares, to carry on a financial business, &c.

Carbonite Company (Limited), capital £25,000, in £10 shares, to acquire patents for improved methods of treating bricks, porous stone, &c., to increase their hardness, &c.; also a method of carbonising clay.

Glan Clwyd Mining Company (Limited), capital £12,000, in £1 shares, for mining in the parish of Gwyddelwern, in the county of Merioneth.

Gloucester Steamship Company (Limited), capital £20,000, in £10 shares, to carry on business as shipowners, &c.

Eureka Liquid Meter Company (Limited), capital £25,000, in £10 shares, to acquire an invention for improvements in liquid meters, &c.

Mr. William Hancock has been appointed manager of the National Discount Company, in succession to Mr. Thomas Smith, who has been compelled to retire in consequence of ill-health.

At the meeting of the Singapore Gas Company the report of the directors, given in our issue of the 14th ult., was passed without discussion, and a dividend at the rate of 7½ per cent. declared. The chairman stated that the works had been extended from the town to the Tanjong Pagar Wharf. A vote of thanks was carried to the directors, secretary, and manager at Singapore.

The directors of the Vancouver Coal Mining and Land Company (Limited) announce a dividend for the half-year ended the 30th June at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, leaving £1,234 to be carried forward.

The suspension is announced of Mr. Matthew Daniel Lynn, merchant, of Manchester, with liabilities amounting to £3,500. A petition for liquidation has been filed on his behalf in the Manchester County Court.

There has been some demand for Bar Silver, but the market has been bare of supplies. About £42,000 has come to hand from the United States, and £45,000 has arrived by the Moselle from the West Indies. The last quotation is 57 13-16d. per oz. Standard. About £200,000 in Mexican Dollars have arrived per French steamer, and per West India steamer. The price has been fixed at 56⅜d. per oz.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

With few exceptions of importance there has been an absence of animation in the Produce Markets, whilst several have continued in the same depressed condition prevalent for some time past, and the downward movement in value has remained unchecked. At the same time, Sugar, Coffee, and some other articles have been in request, and quotations show an advance.

TEA.

The chief feature of late in the Tea Market has been the continuous large auction sales without reserve, one importer alone who disposes of his produce solely in this way having sold during the past three weeks the large quantity of 29,000 packages. Business by private contract has been somewhat interfered with, and prices for the kinds of tea offered in excess of current wants, say worth 1s. to 1s. 4d. per lb., show 1d. per lb. decline on sales of a fortnight ago. We have to note the first arrival of black leaf via Cape, per Cutty Sark, on 21st, followed by Ada on 25th, and Thermopylæ on 27th inst. The teas by these ships are good strong medium to fine, from the Oonam province, chiefly Ooanfa district, but they are not selling readily, though affording a good safe risk to dealers, as there is but a very small proportion of the tea afloat over the value of 1s. 6d. per lb., and present supplies of such are to meet eight months' requirements. The export by latest advices per telegram show about 10,000,000 lbs. excess over that of last season to date, and this will prove about the excess when the total for the season is declared. Supplies, therefore, will not be up to the increasing requirements, and we must look to India to make up the deficiency of 1873-4. Looking at the statistical position there is no question as to the sound condition and good prospects, and that an advance on the moderate current range of prices ruling for all classes will take place ere long.

The Deerhound, from Canton, brings a desirable selection, the Scented Capers proving of pure clean quality and fairly well scented. So far, however, there have been but few sales. Green Teas of Moyune district sell at full prices, small lots of true quality, say, strong, fresh, and high burnt sell up to 4s. per lb. Ping Sueys find no favour, this is owing to their not proving up to an average quality. No. 1 Gunpowders sell from 1s. 10d. to 2s. 3d., other grades in proportion. The export to the United States and Canada for some time past has been on a small scale, but we look for an early revival of demand.

Messrs. Arthur Capel and Company's Circular says :—The market has been generally quiet during the past week. The quantity offered at public sale has been nearly 34,000 packages, which has occupied the trade, and consequently business by private contract has been on a limited scale. Prices in many cases have ruled rather easier. The teas by clippers have been placed on the market, but owing to the high prices asked by importers only a limited amount has been disposed of, but for these full prices have been obtained. The public sales for the week have been again on a larger scale, comprising 33,726 packages, nearly the whole of which were printed and sold without reserve. The deliveries for the week as compared with last year are as follows :—

Home Consumption	2,038,000	1,865,000
Coastwise	902,000	789,000
Exports	601,000	442,000
	3,541,000	3,096,000

SILK.

The periodical public sales commenced on the 27th inst., and are concluded. The quantity offered was about 1,000 bales Bengal Silk, 5,300 bales China, 300 bales Japan, and 200 bales Canton Silk, with about 20,000 lbs. Thrown Silk. Of the China Silk about 1,800 bales were printed to be sold "without reserve," also about 200 bales Japan Silk and all the Thrown Silk. The buoyancy of prices that had existed for the last two or three weeks has scarcely been maintained, but the difference is very slight, and considering the quality of the Silk offered the market may be said to have borne the pressure fully as well as could have been expected. China Silk has been most in demand. Cantons have also been sought after, but owing to small supplies transactions have necessarily been unimportant. Japan Silk has been comparatively neglected, and prices of some descriptions are easier. Deliveries 1st to 28th inst. inclusive :—China, 3,238 bales ; Canton, 421 bales ; Japan, 761 bales ; total, 4,420 bales.

COFFEE.

The demand for Plantation has been good for coloury kinds, and the public sales have gone off with good spirit, closing 1s. dearer ; common and grey sorts, of which a good part consisted, selling at former rates ; the closing quotation for middling is 111s. to 113s. 6d. Native has met a good steady demand, and prices are firm, whilst a parcel of unusually fine brought the extreme rates of 89s. for medium, and 98s. 6d. to 99s. for bold. Closing quotations are :—Plantation triage at 87s. 6d. to 100s., small 106s. to 109s. 6d., fine ordinary to fine fine ordinary Demerara grey 105s. to 108s., low middling 108s. 6d. to 111s., middling coloury 111s. 6d. to 113s. 6d., good middling to fine middling 114s. to 117s., good to fine bold bright 117s. 6d. to 120s., peaberry 125s. to 131s. 6d., native small 80s. to 84s., ordinary to barely good ordinary 85s. 6d. to 86s. 6d., good ordinary to fine ordinary yellow 87s. to 89s., ragged to superior bold 90s. to 99s., pea-berry 106s. to 107s. 6d. The sales of other East India have included 1,000 bags Singapore, pale Bonthyne at 88s. 6d. to 89s. 6d., Pari Pari at 84s. 6d., mixed brown at 82s. ; 1,000 bags Manila, good ordinary pale at 87s., fine ordinary greenish Indan sort at 89s.

SUGAR.

The improving tendency has continued, and with a renewal of speculative as well as export demand an active demand has prevailed for all brown qualities below the value of 23s., and prices gradually advanced, until the recent decline was not only fully recovered, but a further advance of 3d. per cwt. was established. During the last few days, however, the renewed depression in Beetroot has exerted an unfavourable influence, and the market generally closes with a dull tone, and prices have in many instances given way 3d. per cwt. The better refining qualities have throughout met only a moderate demand, refiners exhibiting no eagerness to buy, and prices are without improvement. With unusually light landings, and deliveries of continued good amount (32,000 tons in the two weeks), the stock has undergone a further diminution of 18,000 tons, and the relative decrease is enlarged to 45,000 tons.

Penang : An active speculative demand has prevailed for Native afloat, resulting in large sales and re-sales at advancing prices, closing at 18s. 3d., or 9d. above the previous price. On the spot prices are also 6d. higher. Unclayed Manila has sold freely at about 9d. advance, whilst clayed is quite 1s. dearer. Few floating cargoes have been offered and the prices obtained are the highest of the year. The sales are as follows :—1,000 bags Penang, low soft to good yellow at 22s. to 23s., brown at 21s. to 21s. 6d., 1,600 bags, 1,700 baskets date sort, low to good at 17s. to 18s.; 550 tons ditto for arrival at 17s. 6d. to 18s. 3d., chiefly at 18s. ; 104,000 bags Manila, comprising 60,000 bags unclayed Ilo Ilo, at 18s. to 18s. 6d., 30,000 bags sun-dried ditto at 20s. 6d., 14,000 bags good to superior clayed at 21s. 6d. to 22s. 6d. ; 23,881 bags China from Melbourne (by auction), low wet pasty to fair date at 16s. to 17s., good 18s., low to ordinary brown cane at 17s. to 18s. 6d., good 19s. to 20s.; 5,800 bags ditto privately at 17s. to 21s. 6d. A cargo of unclayed Manila is supposed to have changed hands at 19s., but no details have transpired.

Camphor has been very quiet, and there has been little if any business during the interval.

Cutch.—The market has been very firm, and prices of Pegue have advanced, business having been effected at 27s. to 27s. 6d. for fine. At auction 1,060 boxes 127 bags were all bought in above the value, fine Pegu S.M. and Co. in papers and Elephant at 30s., Tiger mark at 27s. 6d. ; 415 bags fine from Calcutta partly sold at 26s.

Gambier.—The market has been firm although quiet, prices on the spot being again slightly dearer. On the spot 12,000 bales have been sold at 26s. to 26s. 3d. ex quay and ex warehouse, and for arrival 200 tons, chiefly August-September, at 25s. ex ship. At auction 334 bales block were bought in at 27s., 16 tons ditto broken bales and loose sold at 24s. 6d. to 25s. 3d., 392 bales fine pale pressed cubes sold at dearer rates, commencing at 37s. 9d. and rising to 40s. 3d., chiefly at 39s. 9d. per cwt.

Coir Goods.—Moderate supplies at the public sales have been chiefly disposed of. Yarn went off slowly at previous rates for common, but steadily for good qualities. Fibre sold at a further advance. Rope sold at cheap rates. Ceylon Yarn sold, ordinary to good ordinary qualities at £21 to £25, medium to good at £26 15s. to £33 5s., better qualities to fine at £35 10s. to £38, really fine £41 10s., superior at £48 ; 3 tons Ceylon Fibre sold at £25 10s. to £27 15s.

Cocoa-nut Oil.—Ceylon has continued to attract attention, and is again rather dearer, over 450 tons on the spot having realised privately £36 15s. to £37, hogsheads £37 5s. to £37 10s., and 125 tons to arrive at £37 to £37 7s. 6d. Cochin has been firmly held, and a limited business done in fine at £43 10s. to £44.

China Preserves.—In auction of 263 cases Ginger 150 cases sold at 7d. per lb.

Galangal Root is firm at previous value. Of 153 bags and mats a few sold at 26s. for fine, small spot sales at 57s., but no sellers. 100 cases sold afloat at 56s.

Gums.—Benjamin steady ; of 32 cases Sumatra at auction a few sold at £8 2s. 6d. to £8 5s. for fair seconds. Copal firm and higher, but business limited; 405 packages retired. Damar unchanged. Gamboge steady; 15 cases sold at £12 to £13 7s. 6d. for fair to fine partly run, and £10 7s. 6d. to £10 17s. 6d. pickings.

GALLS.—By private contract small sales of China have been made at 57s.

HEMP.—The demand for Manila continues moderate, but prices are maintained. Privately about 1,400 bales have been sold, very superior brown at £31 10s. to £32, barely fair at £32 10s. to £33, fair at £33 10s. Only moderate quantities have been offered by auction, and 446 bales were bought in at £33, except 60 bales being sold, one lot sound £33 15s., sea-damaged 1st class at £32.

JAPAN WAX is rather easier; 1,235 cases at auction w re nearly all sold, good to fine saucers at 56s. 6d. to 58s., fair 54s. to 56s., stained 48s. to 50s. 6d.

MUSK.—All qualities except the finest were rather cheaper in the last sales, which embraced 115 caddies, &c., Tonquin, two-thirds of which were sold—fair to fine selected pods, part rather damp, 38s. to 45s.; fair to good rough and bally, and false packed 18s. to 19s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. to 26s. 6d. middling to fine wet pickings; 15 tins Yunan all sold at 34s. 6d. to 35s. 6d. for good; and of 20 tins grain one-fourth sold at 49s. 6d. to 50s. per oz. for fine.

PEPPER.—Black: Singapore has been very firm, and a fair business has been done on the spot at 6¾d. to 7d.; afloat at 6½d. to 6§d., but at the close there are sellers at 6⅞d. spot. Penang has improved, and large sales have been made at 6d. to 6½d., closing firm. Of 1,363 bags Singapore at auction a considerable proportion sold at 6⅞d. to 7d., and two lots superior at 7¼d. White was speculatively dealt in to some extent at 8¼d. to 8½d. per lb. for fair, 8§d. being obtained early last week, and the latter figure for floating parcels; subsequently the market became dull, and at auction of 1,671 bags two-thirds sold—good and fine at 8¼d. to 8§d., fair at 8⅛d. to 8¼d., and 12 tons landing at 8⅛d.

RICE.—The market has been very dull throughout, the recent speculative demand for floating cargoes has entirely disappeared, and with little demand for the continent prices have declined 4½d. per cwt. On the spot a general decline of 3d. to 6d. per cwt. has been accepted, and sales of fair extent have resulted. In auction 6,010 bags white Bengal were bought in at 11s. to 12s., 3,545 bags Askoolie sold at 9s. 3d. to 9s. 4½d. Of 3,683 mats Japan 1,500 bags heated sold at 8s. 6d. On the spot the sales comprise ordinary to good white Bengal at 9s. 7½d. to 11s. 6d., Askoolie at 9s. 6d. to 9s. 9d., Ballam at 8s. 3d. to 9s., Madras at 9s. 3d. to 9s. 6d., Rangoon at 8s. 3d. to 8s. 6d., fine ditto at 11s. to 11s. 3d., and broken at 7s. 6d. to 8s. ex quay. Only three floating cargoes have been sold as follows:—The Seraphina D, 870 tons Rangoon, May sailing, at 9s. Continental terms. The Claudia, 620 tons Rangoon, off coast, at 9s. 1½d. Liverpool quay terms. The Mogul, 1,230 tons Necransie, off coast, at 8s. 6d. for the Continent.

RHUBARB.—China has been steady, but quiet; of 29 cases offered two-thirds sold; bold pale dull and grey to fair fracture at 1s. 10d. to 2s. 3d.; smaller 1s. 3d. to 1s. 5d.

SPICES.—Cassia Lignea: Of 714 cases unworked 360 cases were sold at 59s., being rather cheaper. Cassia Buds: 45 cases import 1871 bought in at £6 5s. Cinnamon: 102 bales Ceylon bought in, second and third sort at 2s. 10d. to 3s. 6d. Chips: Of 279 bags Ceylon 132 bags sold, common to middling at 4d. to 4½d. Cloves: Amboyna have been sold at 1s. 6d. to 1s. 7d. Nutmegs: 73 cases 40 boxes Penang went off slowly, and only one-half sold at easier prices, fine bold average 58 nuts to the lb. at 4s. 3d. to 4s. 5d., 74s at 3s. 7d. to 3s. 8d., 78s at 3s. 6d., limed 180 to 145s at 1s. 3d. to 1s. 9d.; 2 cases 13 casks Java bought in, 158 to 117s at 2s. 2d. to 2s. 8d.; of 54 boxes 4 cases 1 cask defective and broken Java 20 packages sold at 9d. to 1s. 1d. Mace is dull of sale; in auction of 18 cases Penang 4 cases sold, middling at 3s. 2d. to 3s. 3d., low dark at 1s. 7d. to 1s. 8d., 75 boxes ordinary Java bought in at 1s. 10d. to 2s.

SAGO.—Market firm; of 1,650 bags at auction, a small proportion sold at 17s. 6d. to 18s. for good small, and 17s. 6d. to 18s. medium. Flour quiet; 62 bags sold at 14s. 6d.

STICKLAC.—Market unchanged; 545 bags were offered at auction, and a few sold at £5 5s.; subsequently about 300 cases block quitted privately at £4 2s. 6d. per cwt.

TOBACCO.—In auction 1,026 bales Japan partly sold at 5d. to 9¼d., 1,158 bales ditto damaged at 3d. to 6d., 266 bales China at 6½d.

TIN.—The demand for consumption continues very good, and as there is some disposition to deal in the article for speculation, we may see some improvement in prices. A large business has been done in Straits for forward delivery at £91 to £91 10s.; and at the close the market is firm at the subjoined quotations:—Straits on the spot, £92 10s.; afloat, £91 10s.; Banca, £101 to £102; Billiton, £95 per ton.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Sir SAMUEL BAKER,

In his work on the Sources of the Nile, says:—

"I ordered my dragoman Mahomet to inform the "Faky that I was a doctor, and that I had the best "medicines at the service of the sick, with advice "gratis. In a short time I had many applicants, to "whom I served out a quantity of Holloway's Pills. "These are most useful to an explorer, as, possessing "unmistakable purgative properties, they create an "undeniable effect upon the patient, which satisfies "him of their value."

This fine Medicine cures all disorders of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys and Bowels, is a Great PURIFIER of the BLOOD, and wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to Females—young or aged.

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The dates by this mail are to the 16th Sept.; via San Francisco dates of 29th will be delivered on the 12th inst. The following has been telegraphed to the New York papers:—

The arrangements for diplomatic missions have been slightly changed. Nyene Kagronon goes to London instead of Paris. Aiki Singo, formerly Chargé d'Affairs at Berlin, is promoted to the rank of Envoy. Yosida goes to Washington.

The French Government at present takes the lead in pushing the demand for the opening of the entire Empire.

The Mikado gave a breakfast on the 22nd to all foreign diplomats at his own residence. This was the first entertainment at which the Sovereign has freely mingled with foreign guests and received them at his table.

The largest review of troops yet seen in Yedo took place on the 19th, in one of the suburbs of Yedo. Some 10,000 infantry, artillery, and cavalry were inspected by the Mikado and his uncle, Fuesini no Miejo, who has been raised to the rank of general in the army, and in case of hostilities with China is to be appointed to the chief command.

Chili has sent to Japan requesting contributions to the International Exposition to be held there in 1875.

CHINA.

PEKING.

An Imperial edict decrees the degradation of the Prince of Kung, by deprivation of his Imperial Princedom with hereditary succession. The following is a translation of the edict, which appears in the Peking Gazette of the 10th Sept.:—

A Decree in the Vermilion [Pencil.] Be it made known to all the Princes and Ministers in the Court that from the time when we assumed the government on the 26th day of the first moon of last year (23rd February, 1873,) until now, whenever speech has been held by us with the Prince of Kung, his language has been marked by manifold shortcomings of decorum. We ordain that as a special act of grace [for his punishment] there be substituted deprivation of his Imperial Princedom with hereditary succession for ever, and that he be reduced to the rank of secondary Prince (Kun Wang) instead of still continuing to do duty in the Grand Council. Let also Tsai-ch'eng (eldest son of the Prince of Kung) be stripped of his rank as Beilak Kun Wang, as a punishment and admonition.

In the present juncture of Chinese politics, the announcement will be received with no slight surprise; and whether it has or has not any significance in connection with the negotiations between the Tsung-li Yamen, of which Prince Kung is chief, and the Japanese Minister and Envoy Extraordinary, the time chosen by the Emperor to proclaim that he has fallen out with his chief counsellor and nearest relative would appear to be particularly inopportune. We are told that the matter is the subject of a great deal of comment among the Chinese at the Capital, and the incident is one which cannot fail to produce some sensation in the provinces.

So far as foreigners are concerned, the Imperial treatment of the head of the Tsung-li Yamên will probably make no difference. If it should diminish the Prince's influence as an intermediary between the Representatives of Foreign Powers and the Throne it should also have the good result of leading to more frequent audience of the Emperor himself, and of dispelling somewhat the seclusion in which his Majesty rules. It is, however, startling to find a Prince of the blood royal the confidential adviser of the Throne, and a man believed to possess remarkable administrative talent, which he has exercised consistently for the benefit of the dynasty, degraded in this peremptory manner.

On the 30th August an audience was given to the Belgian Envoy in the building called the Tsze-kwang-ko, now known to the outer world as the hall where Imperial audience is given to the Foreign Ministers.

TIENTSIN.

The correspondent of the North China Herald writes as follows:—

The Japanese Embassy left for Peking on the 6th Sept., after a rather uneventful but not uninteresting stay of six days. The protracted stay of the Ambassador at this place encouraged the belief that negotiations would be entered into between his Excellency and Li Hung-chang. The latter has been represented as desiring an opportunity to discuss the vexed question with the Ambassador. So the interchanges and interviews which were expected to take place between them were naturally awaited with the liveliest anticipations on the part of the outside public. The interested outside public were, however, doomed to disappointment. Nothing whatever, so far as I can learn, passed between them. I doubt whether any single event since the occupation of Tientsin by the allied army in 1860 has awakened such a profound and universal feeling amongst the officials of this province as the advent of the present Embassy from Japan. Whatever may be the result of the present mission it will continue to attract an increasing public interest until the final solution of the present difficulties is attained.

The U.S.S. Ashuelot arrived here on the 9th Sept. from Nagasaki, and is to remain during the winter. The Ashuelot brings an American astronomical party to observe the transit of Venus in North-China.

Woo Tung-ling, the head executive of the Southern Chinese forces in Chihli, died on the 1st Sept. He was much trusted by Li Hung-chang in regard to the management of the troops.

The weather still keeps hot during the daytime, and the wind is variable. We have escaped all floods this year, and the crops so far have been gathered successfully.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 20th Sept.; the P. and O. mail from London August 7 was received on the 19th Sept. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald:—

Shanghai was visited on the morning of the 14th Sept. with a succession of heavy storms of rain, accompanied by thunder and lightning. Many of the low lying thoroughfares were temporarily flooded, owing to the incapacity of the drains to carry off the unwonted downpour. There was no wind, and dense masses of black cloud hung over the Settlement throughout the day. The only damage done, as far as we can ascertain, was that a Chinese house in Chili road was struck by lightning, and some mortar thrown down from the wall of a room in which several persons were assembled, fortunately without injuring them.

The new Sugar Duty Regulations, to which we referred some time ago, have been published. They seem to be very reasonable in themselves, but, as we have already remarked, are framed in the interest of the Canton and Swatow men engaged in the trade, the Northern men, who deal with foreigners, importing the article through them and re-exporting it, being excluded from the benefit of the reduced percentage upon which duty is made payable, and of the drawback privileges which are held out in regulation four. The Northern men having offered the required bond, it would not be taken, and they were told they should not buy from foreigners, but of the Southern Chinese, who import sugar. If the sugar is bought from a foreigner they are informed that the duty will be levied on the full number of bags, instead of the percentage of 61·5. But the question has perhaps another aspect of even greater importance to foreigners. The chao-fang, or defence tax, referred to in the regulations, and so rigidly levied on everything which enters or leaves the Settlements, is distinct from and additional to the lekin, or war-tax, and is only levied in the Foreign Settlements, not in the City. Both are taxes instituted under exceptional circumstances, and though there may be sufficient reason at the present moment for their imposition, that will scarcely justify the fact that since the rebellion they have never been relaxed. The sugar duties illustrate forcibly the prohibitive nature of Chinese taxation. The export duty at Canton, import duty at Shanghai, lekin, chao-fang, and barrier dues, just double the cost of a bag of sugar by the time it reaches even a place so readily accessible as Soochow.

The Shunpao reports that nothing has yet been done in the matter of the Woosung forts, the actual site not having been agreed on. One of the Arsenal mandarins recommends that a position inside the Bar should be taken for the purpose, as commanding the entrance to the river and its navigation at a difficult point. The Ti-tuh, it is said, advocates the old position, below Woosung, which commands the mouth of the Yangtsze as well as the Whangpoo. Further conferences are to be held at Woosung before deciding on either situation; and that having been accomplished, the question of the material and design will have to be gone into.

Mr. Lueder, German Consul, left Shanghai for Amoy on the 14th Sept., en route for his Consulate at Canton, Mr. Annecke, late Charge d'Affaires at Peking, having resumed his post in Shanghai. Among recent passengers for Chefoo were H.B.M. Consul, Mr. Medhurst, and Mrs. Medhurst. Mr. Stronach takes charge of the Consulate during Mr. Medhurst's absence, which will probably last a couple of weeks.

Mr. Mowat has returned from Chefoo, and has resumed his duties as Deputy Chief Judge of H.B.M. Supreme Court. We are sure that in noticing Mr. Myburgh's retirement from the position he has held during Mr. Mowat's temporary absence we only express the general opinion when we say that, whether in chambers or on the bench, his discharge of the functions delegated to him has given every satisfaction.

The application for leave to appeal made by the defendants in the case of L. J. Mullins, assignee on the estate of L. H. Stoddard, v. Olyphant and Co., has been granted by the U. S. Consul-General.

The Mih-ho-loong Hook and Ladder Company have added to their materiel a case of surgical instruments and etceteras, likely to prove useful at fires when accidents of any sort are met with, whether by external injury or from the suffocating effects of smoke and steam. Past experience shows that the provision is a prudent one.

We have to report the sad news of the death of a well-known and highly esteemed Missionary, the Rev. Dr. M. J. Knowlton, of Ningpo. For more than twenty years he has laboured faithfully to spread knowledge, and especially the truths of Christianity, amongst the Chinese, and many of them feel that by his death they have lost a friend. Dr. Knowlton has published several works in Chinese, though he is best known among Europeans as the author of "The Foreign Missionary." He was an easy, voluminous, and thoughtful writer, and contributed to some of the best publications in China, besides writing regularly for more than one of the American periodicals. The sad event leaves a blank in the community at Ningpo which must be much felt and cannot soon be filled.

A Ningpo correspondent writes urgently about the want of a gunboat at that port, while disaffection is abroad and menaces are being directed against foreigners.

The following items of intelligence are from the Budget and News Letter:—

Mr. Fawcett, of the Imperial Coast Lights Department, was brought before the Court of H.B.M. Consul at Chefoo on the 9th Sept., on a charge of manslaughter, in connection with the shooting of a Chinaman near the works of the new light-house at the Shantung Promontory, about two months ago. It will be remembered that having been first taken as a prisoner before the native local magistrate and put in chains, the charge against him was afterwards tried before H.M.'s Consul at Chefoo and a native magistrate, and he was released by the Consul, on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence to establish a criminal charge. On his release he deemed it prudent to withdraw to Japan, but for some reason a warrant was sent after him, and he was brought back, and the charge above stated was brought against him. Mr. Mowat appeared as prosecutor, and after a lengthened hearing he was committed to take his trial for manslaughter. Mr. Hannen, of Shanghai, has been retained for the defence; and the trial is likely to take place on the 21st Sept.

It is said by those likely to be well informed on such matters, that the mutterings of murder against foreigners, of which we have heard much from the outports, are by no means unknown in the City and Settlement of Shanghai. No doubt, here and elsewhere these ill-omened threats have sprung from the rowdy portion of the Chinese population. We think, however, it is time that our Foreign Representatives were taking ac-measures to place a larger protective Foreign force in accessible positions along our coast.

A terrible thunderstorm occurred at Hankow on the 13th Sept. For a time the blackened heavens was illumined by almost continuous flashes and bolts of electric fire. The casualties which almost certainly occurred had not been reported when the steamer left.

FOOCHOW.

The following items are from the Foochow Herald:—We understand that his Excellency the Viceroy is about to start for Amoy, which place will become the temporary seat of the Provincial Government during the Formosan difficulty.—An amusing story is told illustrative of the secrecy with which the Japanese are endeavouring to conduct the movements of their war vessels; a Chinese gunboat fell in with a Japanese war vessel off the Pescadores. Where are you bound to? asked the captain of the first-named craft. Don't know! was the reply. Where are you from? Don't know.—We believe that there will be no difficulty in obtaining the use of the Tartar Camp as a race course during the ensuing season, notwithstanding the presence of a permanent encampment of 500 troops.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 26th September; the French mail from London Aug. 14 was received on the 22nd September. The following items of news are from the Overland China Mail:—

His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to issue a fresh Commission of the Peace for this Colony, and the list of the gentlemen therein is hereby published for general information:—Charles May, Esq., the Hons. W. H. Alexander and P. Ryrie, H. G. Thomsett, R.N., Robert McMurdo, and F. W. Mitchell, Esqrs., the Hon. Cecil C. Smith, T. G. Linstead, Esq., the Hon. R. Rowett, H. St. L. Macniac, W. Deane, M. S. Tonnochy, Frederick Stewart, C. V. Creagh, William Keswick, T. Pyke, James Russell, Alfred Lister, E. R. Belilios, Richard A. O'Brien, M.D., and S. D. Sassoon, Esqrs., the Hon. James Whittall, Henry Lowcock, James Greig, John M. Price, Philip C. B. Ayres, M.R.C.S.E., C. Morland Kerr, H. H. Nelson, M. W. Boyd, H. L. Dalrymple, Alexander MacIver, and Nathaniel J. Ede, Esqrs.

We note that Mr. Newitt, who has for some time been acting with considerable success as superintendent of the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company, has left per Legislator for Cape St. James, at which place he takes charge of the telegraph office. Mr. Newitt's recent exertions in discovering the cable thieves entitle him to much praise, and we hope that his zeal and discretion in that matter will obtain for him some substantial recognition on the part of his employers.

The German barque Joachim Christian, which arrived here on the 21st, has probably made the quickest passage from Newchwang on record for a sailing vessel, having left there on the evening of September 13, and arrived here at nine A.M. on the 21st. As Newchwang is some sixteen hundred miles distant from Hong Kong, she must have averaged over two hundred miles per day. This vessel left Hong Kong for Newchwang on the 23rd of August last, arrived there September 4, leaving on 13th, and arriving here this morning, having made the round voyage in twenty-nine days.

Captain Ward, lately master of the British barque Caroline Hutchings, recently wrecked on the coast of Formosa, returned to Hong Kong on the 19th in the Hailoong from Takow. Captain Ward is accompanied by his wife, who, when the Caroline Hutchings was driven ashore in the typhoon, was saved with difficulty by being dragged through the surf by a line thrown from the ship to the shore. The Nautical Court held at Takow to enquire into the circumstances of the wreck acquitted Captain Ward of all blame, and passed the highest encomiums upon his seamanship and the manner in which he handled his ship under very trying circumstances.

The case of Prospero Beltrao, who was detained in custody on suspicion or being implicated in the Satsuma piracy, was again brought before Mr. May. The Captain Superintendent of Police stated that the Government had received a telegram to the effect that "Her Majesty's Government advised no power to remove Satsuma mutineers home for trial"; he could not therefore prosecute. Beltrao was therefore again set at liberty.

We have paid a visit to the works of the Hong Kong Ice Company at East Point, and are glad to see that Mr. Bain is pushing forward his arrangements so as to be able to open his depot in town at an early date. Ice is already being made in considerable quantities, and ere long Mr. Bain expects to be able to supply fully all demands that may be made upon his manufacture. The ice, which is made of pure filtered water, is turned out in slabs six feet six inches long, six feet wide, and at least six inches deep. The facilities promised by the company to the public of procuring cheap ice in sufficiently small quantities will prove an appreciable boon, and we cordially wish Mr. Bain and his absent partner success in their enterprise.

The Independent Order of Good Templars in Hong Kong celebrated the first anniversary of the foundation of No. 1 Lodge in their lodge room in Queen's-road East, on the evening of the 11th inst. The commemoration was celebrated with vocal and instrumental music, and several addresses and recitations were delivered.

The Hong Kong, Canton, and Macao Steamboat Company's steamer Powan arrived at the Company's wharf on Saturday evening, the 12th, having on board more than one thousand Chinese passengers. The White Cloud has replaced the Spark on the Canton and Macao line.

We are informed that a work which will constitute a complete guide to the City of Canton, its temples and sights, is in the press, and will shortly be published. The author is the Ven. Archdeacon Gray, whose long residence at and knowledge of the port should have peculiarly qualified him for the task he has undertaken.

Jui Lin, Viceroy of Canton, is dead, and the event may have some slight effect on the fortunes of this colony. Long known for his favourable feeling to foreigners, Jui was one of the strongest opponents of the "Customs Blockade." His views were, however, overruled at Peking, and he had no resource but obedience to the orders of his superiors.

The following items are from the Daily Press:—

Complaints have been made that a Sanitarium, which was erected in the Gap, and was understood to be for use of the general community, has been used exclusively for the Government officials. The subject was discussed somewhat sharply, and the Government, as they could not agree with the non-official members as to the regulations which should be framed, had advertised the building for sale by public auction. The question has, however, been set at rest for the time being by the typhoon, which has levelled the building.

The Report of the Canton Insurance Company, for presentation at the meeting of shareholders convened for the 1st Oct. been issued. The accounts show an estimated balance of $144,473, allowing for all ascertained losses and charges to date, against $165,225 at corresponding period last year. The sum of $250,000 advanced by the General Agents as reserve fund has been placed on deposit in the name of the Company in the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank.

Captain Kistenmacher, of the American bark Kedar, with his crew arrived in two fishing-boats and reports the loss of his vessel on the 6th Sept., on his passage from Laguinmanog to this port.

A case came before the Registrar-General in which certain Chinese were discovered unlawfully detaining native girls for the purpose of shipping them to San Francisco for illicit purposes. The parties were ordered to find security for good conduct in $500 each for six months, which, it is to be hoped, will have a deterrent effect, as this practice, which is most difficult to detect, has long been going on in the colony.

We learn that there has also been a most severe typhoon at Swatow, and the sea ran so high as to flood the Custom-House, which is three hundred yards inland, to such an extent as to damage the whole of the papers in the office. Serious injury has also been sustained in other directions.

THE TYPHOON.

A typhoon which, though of very short duration, has probably proved the most destructive witnessed since 1862—if not exceeding it in that respect—swept over the island between the hours of 6 P.M. and 6 A.M. of Sept. 22-23. At 7 P.M. the wind, which had been blowing freshly since six o'clock, began to come in puffs, which the experienced knew to herald an undoubted typhoon, the first heavy blast being felt at 7.30. From this time forward the blasts increased in intensity and frequency, the utmost force being reached about 2.30 A.M., when the greatest damage was inflicted. The China Mail gives the following account of the disaster:—

Between 9 and 10 P.M. it was evident that a storm of more than average intensity was beginning to prevail. The sea was lashing the stones of the Praya Wall, and beginning, apparently in mere play, or as a preliminary effort of its strength and an earnest of its future performances, to twist their granite masses about and up-heave them as though they were feathers. As early as half-past nine, as a few persons careless of the storm were on the way towards the theatre, they were hailed by a storm of plaster which flew from the cornices and facings of some of the hongs on the Praya. At the theatre the somewhat gloomy appearance of the representative of the troupe, the few chairs outside, and the absence of the usual throng of gossipers near the hall denoted clearly that the storm was beginning to be felt, and that none but the most devoted votaries of Thespis preferred the chance of being destroyed in a public assembly by the possible wind-compelled collapse of the City Hall, to that of being smothered in the ruins of their own houses, in the comforting company of their own families. But it was not till after the conclusion of the performance, and the return of audience and actors to the disquiet of their homes or hotels, that the demon of the storm began in earnest his work of destruction. Soon after 2 A.M. he let loose a squall of appalling violence, which howled and whistled through the town, seeking every alley and bye-way, and leaving everywhere traces of its wanton spite. The atmosphere was principally composed of tile, brickbats, jalousies, verandah beams, and foliage (where there were trees), an atmosphere somewhat difficult of inhalation, and heavier in its pressure than the usual atmospheric burden each person has to bear

The shipping became quite uncontrollable. Sailing vessels despised such fragile or untenacious restraints as anchors and chain cables. Steamers even found that the power at their command was insufficient to save them from destruction. As time went on the storm gained in fierceness. Houses in the Chinese quarter were 'blown back into their component parts. Men, women, and children were smothered in the debris. Junks in the harbour were capsized and sunk, many of them leaving no hitherto discovered trace, or were smashed to atoms by the drifting vessels which encountered them. Sign boards and even the roofs of houses were borne about "o'er sea and land like waftage of the air." Calamity, ruin, and death ran riot and could not be restrained. The casualties which happened in harbour could not be alleviated by any assistance from the shore, and in the instances in which life was saved on shore it was often at the risk of lives more valuable than those which were prolonged.

It was not till after morning dawn that it was ascertained how severe had been the loss both of property and life. Commencing with the Praya, of which we have as yet been able to make only a hurried survey, the bathing-house has put to sea for good, nothing but wreckage now showing where it stood. In the Recreation Club's boathouse, many of the racing four-oars and private boats have been destroyed, while the hull of what was one of Her Majesty's gun-boats obstrusively its stern on to the boat platform. At the bund by the City Hall has thrust commenced the destruction to the sea wall, which extends along its whole length to West Point. As on former occasions the huge masses of granite have been hurled by the titanic force of the storm far inward, in some cases touching the front walls of the houses. But on this occasion even greater force than usual must have been exerted, inasmuch as we notice in some instances that as many as five or six blocks still clamped together have been washed up in one huge mass. For practical purposes the Praya wall may be said to have almost disappeared, while the earth has in some places been washed away so as to expose the gas and water mains and the telegraph wires, five or six of which combine in certain spots to trip up the unwary loiterer, whose eyes are too fully occupied in contemplating the ruin around him to pick his steps.

The Praya buildings have naturally suffered badly. The City Hall has, as usual, come to grief in the way of glass, in spite of all precautions ; and the north-east corner, devoted to the valuable collection of newspapers, was literally beaten in, the glass being in minute fragments, and the jalousies splintered to pieces. Many of the volumes, it is feared, are injured. Fortunately, the precautions taken with the main body of the library has saved the books from any damage. The front portico of light iron and granite is a simple ruin, blocking up ingress, while the noble tree opposite, which was one of the glories of Queen's-road, has been torn up by the roots, and lies a magnificent ruin across the way. The houses lining the Praya, from the City Hall to the clock-tower, appear mostly to have escaped with slight damages to plaster and glass, but west of Pedder's Wharf the ruin inflicted is enormous. The town clock was stopped at 2.35, which we therefore assume to have been the time when the heaviest gust came down. It is at all events certain that most of the worst damage was inflicted about that hour. To the foreign houses this was mostly slight, verandahs, shutters, and windows being smashed, but little damage being done to the houses themselves. With the Chinese tenements it was different. As the storm howled, and hissed, and raged, whole stories were swept away in rapid succession. The two upper stories of Hoo-tye-loong's store came down with a fearful crash, followed shortly after by the upper storey of another corner house, further west. The narrow and slight but lofty verandahs of the native hongs towards Bonham Strand afforded ample material for the sportive fancies of the wind-god, and the whole Praya as far as the gas works is strewed with the wrecks of verandahs, boards, furniture, &c., in some places a foot deep. The amount of loss of life attending this destruction we have not yet ascertained.

It was, of course, at the wharves and amongst the shipping that the most serious damage was done, and this, sad to say, has resulted in the known loss of very many lives. All the stone jetties and wooden piers along the Western Praya face are wrecks. Russell's wharf, Pedder's wharf, Vogél Hagedorn's wharf, the Steamboat Company's pier, and Pacific Mail pier, &c., are all of them so injured as to require almost entire rebuilding. The most melancholy incidents of the night were the foundering of two steamers and three sailing vessels, the former with the loss, as is supposed, of some 100 lives. In addition to this, several vessels are reported ashore and dismasted. We subjoin a list of casualties below. The Spanish steamers Albay and Leonor sank bodily off Douglas Lapraik's wharf. In the latter thirty-six out of forty-six were saved, but, sad to say, poor Capt. Echanique, who is reported to have behaved with great gallantry in trying to save others, is amongst those lost. His body was washed ashore this morning, and picked up in one of the lanes leading from the Praya to Queen's-road. Regarding the Albay nothing is known as to how many she had on board. It is said that she had ninety Chinese passengers, besides officers and crew, but this needs confirmation. She arrived late last evening. and anchored in shore, the captain, it seems, allowing his fires to be extinguished. If true, he has paid dearly for the error. The Aldebaran, Maury and A. E. Vidal have been reported at their Consulate, sunk ; crews saved. The Charlotte Andrews is reported ashore at Green Island, the Lizzie H. is dismasted and grounded by Lapraik's wharf, but has since floated off, and the Morning Light is dismasted. Twenty-five casualties, which refer only to injuries, not total loss, had been reported at the Harbour Master's by noon. The Siamese vessels are said to have suffered greatly. We must not omit to notice one curious case of rescue. A young Chin-Chew Chinese swam, or more literally, was washed, into the office of the German Consulate, where he was afforded shelter until morning. He was one of those on board the unfortunate Albay, but as yet no particulars have been got from him, owing to the want of an interpreter. Messrs. Jardine's steam launch, as also that of the P. and O. Company, has gone down.

The damage to roads and houses throughout the city has been enormous. Queen's-road, Hollywood, Caine and Robinson-roads were impassable from the trees which, uprooted or torn down, crossed them in every direction. Amongst well-known houses which have suffered we note that Government House is much injured in the roof. Sir John Smael's is more than half unroofed. "The Castle" has lost its verandahs and "Stonehenge" nearly all its glass. Ball's Court, Mr. Ede's house, and others on the West-road have also suffered badly. Throughout the western portion of the town verandahs have been torn away in all directions, and at least half the trees which beautified the roads have been destroyed. The telegraph lines are all down throughout the island ; and still worse, the Gas Company's premises have sustained such damage that the supply will be cut off for a day or two.

The Peak has suffered severely. The typhoon took off the roof and verandah of Mountain-lodge, the bachelors' quarters and the Sanitarium being also unroofed. This happened about midnight. The Surveyor-general's house is almost a ruin, Mr. Price having a narrow escape with his life. The Harbour-master's ex-office, lately transferred to the Peak, is also minus its covering. The signal topmast and yard have taken their departure, and the lower mast is almost uprooted but still whole. The trees, croquet lawns, &c., are demolished, the stone seats even being displaced by the terrific force of the wind.

Among the items of which we gleaned so many in our melancholy survey of the ruins we may briefly mention the following :—The Messageries Maritimes' premises are much injured. The Ko Sing Theatre is a ruin. At 10 P.M. the roof of 52, 54, and 56, Hollywood-road fell in. By special providence and the intervention of some European gentlemen and the police seven lives were saved—192, 194, and 196 in the same street are totally ruined. Up to noon to-day orders for the interment of about forty bodies found drowned were issued by the coroner. In Upper Station-street occurred a fearful casualty. Several houses fell in, and many lives were lost. Six children were smothered in the ruins. Their remains showed few traces of injuries. H.M.S. Princess Charlotte and the Meanee both lost a considerable portion of their wood awnings.

The Praya presents a most extraordinary appearance. It is covered with granite blocks from the sea wall, Chinamen, wreckage, filth from Chinese houses washed out by the sea, and rice, sugar, vermicelli, sails, sacks, and all kinds of perishable merchandise laid out to dry. We must not forget the preserved fish, which is only preserved for a limited period, judging by the abominable odour which exhales from it, and assails the nose of the wayfarer persistently, along at least half-a-mile of the Praya. The London Mission House has suffered severely, many doors and windows being quite blown out, jambs and all. St. Joseph's R. C. Church is literally a ruin, being only a doorway and a heap of bricks. The Civil Hospital was so far unroofed as to require the removal of patients from the upper to the ground floor. Hour by hour evidence that the damage done is much worse than was supposed is accumulating. The injuries to the Gas Works and mains were somewhat extensive. The main pipe at Wanchai was broken by the destruction of the bridge opposite Messrs. M'Donald's slip, and it was some hours before the leak was discovered. At the works the Superintendent's house was partly unroofed, and the gable end of the house occupied by Mr. Donald was blown right down. The ladies residing in those buildings were compelled to take refuge in the engine-house. The furnaces were submerged by seven feet of water. Considerable damage was done to the books and accounts in the office. A part of the Police Station is a wreck. The verandah overlooking Stanley-street and the Justices' Room have been laid in ruins. We regret to learn that telegraphic communication with Saigon has been stopped since the typhoon. The cable-house at Pokfoolum has been much injured by the sea, and most of its contents washed away.

Amongst other casualities in the typhoon we regret to learn that the Hon. Mr. Alexander has had his foot somewhat severely injured by broken glass, being unable to move from Dr. O'Brien's house, whither he had been carried. In consequence of necessary repairs, the City Hall Library is closed to the public. During the height of the typhoon two policemen were struggling along the Praya, at that time covered with furious waves. One of them in trying to climb over a heavy balk of timber, which was washed up near the wharf of Douglas Lapraik and Co., was caught by the wind and hurled into the boiling mass. He recovered his feet with difficulty, and may be said to have preserved his life at considerable risk. We have very great pleasure in drawing attention to the gallant conduct of Mr. George Taufer and his brother, the engineers of the Hong Kong Insurance engine. During the sinking of the Albay and Leonor, at the height of the typhoon, they most pluckily went to the rescue of the drowning men, and succeeded in saving some thirty-six lives. This is not the first time Mr. Taufer has thus distinguished himself, and we hope that the Government will recommend him for the Royal Humane Society's medal. Although an American, Mr. Taufer will not probably object to receiving from Englishmen a just recognition of his brave conduct.

The damage done to property is fearful. Nearly every house has been more or less damaged, and the finest trees are blown down. Several Chinese houses have been levelled. The loss of native life is appalling. A rough estimate puts it at 1,000, and some 200 bodies have as yet been recovered, while numbers are still coming to shore. The Praya is actually offensive from the number of corpses.

In the height of the tornado, as the steamers Albay and Leonor were foundering with their crews and passengers, an alarm of fire added to the horrors of the night. Happily the flames were soon extinguished by the fearful gusts of wind, or half the native town must have gone. Their extinction, however, is admitted by the members to have been more owing to the fury of the typhoon than to any exertions it was possible to make with fire engines. Happily the danger was soon over.

The Macao correspondent of the Mail writes as follows :—

A most dreadful calamity has befallen this town. It is now a heap of ruins. Its beauty is gone, its prosperity checked, and desolation is everywhere. On the evening of the 22nd the appearance of the atmosphere and the indications of the barometer gave sure signs that something serious was brewing, and that a typhoon was to be feared.

The wind was not strong, however, but the sea was high, and, although not yet tempestuous, there was a sound of awful menace in the moan with which it broke on the shore. The blowing of the wind steadily increased from the north quarter, and at midnight the inner harbour began to be a scene of destruction, the junks losing their moorings, striking each other and being smashed to pieces. A Chinese gunboat capsized on this occasion with three Englishmen on board. In the town the roofs of the houses began to move, and tiles flew about like hail. Every moment the wind grew stronger, the barometer steadily falling. Suddenly the wind veered to the east. Then the sea, which had been rising gradually, increased to an enormous wave, overleaping its usual limits, and struck in a body with tremendous force the whole course of the Praya Grande. The water rushed into the houses, the quays were destroyed, the large granite stones hurled about, the guns of the batteries dismounted and borne like feathers on the infuriated waves, and junks were smashed against the buildings. In less than an hour the work of destruction was accomplished, every house was invaded by the water and battered down; the spray flew over Government-house and the houses to the southern extremity of the Praya, which they reduced to a shapeless heap of stone and brick.

The desolation of the town now reached its acmé. The crash of falling houses, the screaming of the victims, people running to and fro in the streets pursued by the rushing water, the terrible roar of the wind and of the sea, all this was something awful to hear or see. Suddenly an ominous glare appeared in the heavens. Fires had broken out in different parts of the town, and the flames, whipped on by the gales, rushed in horizontal streams over the largest squares, devouring the buildings that stood even at great distances in their direction. The lurid reverberation of these fires striking from the flying clouds on the sky was repeated by the waters which invaded the doomed town in every direction. On this occasion the loss of life was fearful. People had only to choose their death by water, fire, or the shock of falling buildings, but death was everywhere. Many persons who were hidden in the furthest recesses of their houses found themselves suddenly involved by the flames and perished miserably.

The China Mail gives the following particulars with reference to the damage to shipping wrought by the typhoon :—

The loss in the way of ships, buildings, and roads is estimated at over half a million of dollars, but further details may increase this estimate. Fourteen vessels were sunk in the harbour, four are ashore, fifteen dismasted or otherwise injured, while six are missing, and a vast number are leaking and require examining. Amongst the native craft more than one half have been lost. The following is the list of casualties, so far as we have been able to learn them up to the time of going to press.

SUNK OR TOTALLY WRECKED.—Spanish steamer Albay, Spanish steamer Leonor. British barque Imogen, near the Sailors' Home; the captain, Hughes, and crew are reported drowned. American schooner Sea Bird, driven ashore at Wanchi, near Messrs. Meyer and Alabor's wharf; cook and steward drowned; the captain, O'Keefe, saved. British ship Mindanao, total wreck off the P. M. S. S. Co.'s wharf; the captain, Smith, reported drowned, with some of the crew. British barque Matilda Atheling is reported foundered by the Hong Kong Times; nothing definite known at the Harbour-master's office. German barque Aldebaran, German barque Maury, German barque A. E. Vidal. American ship Thérèse reported bottom up, near Green Island; crew missing.

ON SHORE.—H.M. Flamer, near the Bathhouse site. British barque Lizze and Roza on shore near the Sailors' Home, with a hole in her bottom. British barque Falcon (said by Hong Kong Times to have lost her rudder and gone ashore). P.M. Co.'s s.s. Alaska ashore, broadside on, near Aberdeen docks. American barque Lizzie H. on shore and dismasted off Douglas Lapraik's wharf. British barque Charlotte Andrews ashore at Green Island. Steam launch Blue Bell ashore in Belcher's Bay.

DISMASTED ONLY.—British ship Morning Light, American steamer Pawtuxet, British barque Ardent, American ship Lathley Rich (bowsprit only), British barque Courier near Cowee-chow.

MISSING.—Peruvian ship Macao No. 2, German ship Belle Sauvage. Of other casualties the Wan Loong is reported injured. There are also a number of junks and sampans ashore and disabled at Stonecutter's Island, the jail wall of which was washed down. The Siamese shipping in port has suffered in minor ways.

THE BLOCKADE OF HONG KONG.

A very largely attended and influential meeting of the foreign residents took place on Sept. 14, in the City Hall, for the purpose of considering the blockade of Hong Kong by the Canton Customs cruisers. The following, amongst other gentlemen, were present :—Hon. P. Ryrie, Hon. R. Rowett, Hon. J. Whittall, Messrs. H. Lowcock, C. V. Creagh, A. F. Heard, G. F. Heard, J. Greig, J. J. dos Remedios, M. C. do Rozario, F. Grobein, G. Sharp, G. Glasse, E. Vogel, R. Walker, C. P. Chater, J. T. Chater, B. Davies, T. N. Driscoll, W. T. Newitt, A. N. Blakeman, A. L. Agabeg, jun., G. R. Lammert, J. G. Smith, W. Dolan, T. I. Bowler, Williams, J. E. Meyer, J. Alabor, D. E. Caldwell, J. C. Collings, T. J. Groves, A. G. Morris, H. L. Dennys, N. B. Dennys, W. Curtis, D. C. Tata, W. R. Landstein, J. S. Lapraik, C. H. Morgan, L. Barnard, A. Newton, McIntosh, H. E. Braddon, E. Beart, W. N. Middleton, J. F. Cordes, S. D. Sassoon, C. M. Kerr, P. Karberg, M. W. Boyd, E. R. Belilios, H. Hoppius, A. Strack, H. L. Dalrymple, R. Jensen, H. N. Mody, J. K. Davis, Blyth, C. Wagner, D. Welsh, R. Lyall, A. Millar, E. Mellish, W. W. Battles, J. B. Coughtrie, G. A. Knecbone, E. Sharp, &c., &c.

The Hon. P. Ryrie proposed that Mr. H. Lowcock take the chair, and this proposition was passed by acclamation.

The Chairman, in opening the proceedings, said that he did not think he need make many remarks, as he perceived, from the large number who were present, that great interest was taken in the object of the meeting, and they were all as competent as himself to judge of it, and he had no doubt that they as fully recognised the necessity for some steps being taken with regard to the action of the Customs cruisers. If some measures were not speedily adopted, affairs would go on from bad to worse, as the Chinese would think we were powerless or too careless to prevent such encroachments. It was evident that if we did not help ourselves we should get very little help from elsewhere, and he therefore suggested that the meeting urge upon Her Majesty's Government to take the necessary steps. He did not intend to enlarge upon what these encroachments were, as all were well aware of their character. There were three stations at which tolls were levied, and supervision was kept up over every craft which left this Colony. The Chinese were aided in levying the duties by gunboats and steam launches which were, contrary to local law, allowed to pass unmolested in and out of the harbour. In addition to this the Hoppo had established in this Colony an office for the collection of the tolls which vessels have to pay on passing the stations, and this was contrary to international law, and the whole was an interference in direct contravention of the letter from Her Majesty in 1841, opening the port to trade, to Sir Henry Pottinger's proclamation the next year, and to the proclamation by the Chinese in 1849. Of course all that was done at the meeting would be taken into account by the Government, and would have due weight, as being the expression of opinion on the part of the public, and he hoped therefore that the meeting would be conducted in a moderate manner, such as would induce a proper consideration of the question. He then called upon any gentleman who had a resolution to propose to put it before the meeting.

Mr. Greig said he had to propose the first of a series of resolutions with reference to the blockade of Hong Kong, and was glad to notice that the matter had brought together a large concourse of people, the meeting being larger than any he had seen before in Hong Kong. The grievance was not one of yesterday, but was one of old standing, and there was no doubt they were now threatened with complete extinction of the junk trade, the preservation of which was of great importance to the colony. He trusted the resolution would meet with approval, and that the Government would see the justice of all they complained of, and very soon take measures to suppress the evil. He moved the following resolution :—

"That this meeting regards with feelings of amazement and alarm the organised invasion by the Hoppo of Canton of the freedom and sanctuary of the port and harbour of Hong Kong."

Hon. J. Whittall said before that resolution was put to the meeting he should like to make a few remarks. When he signed the circular convening the meeting, he understood that they were to be called together to obtain information and then express an opinion upon it. So far there had been no information given, but only generalities, and he should like something more definite before he joined in the passing of the resolutions. He maintained that the Colony was not suffering from the blockade, that the Chinese had a perfect right to levy their duties, that the trade of Hong Kong had improved, and was now as large as ever it was. If he was not mistaken, he believed also that the junk trade was improving, so much so that he understood it had been suggested that the fees should be curtailed. When he read the resolutions which he had in his hand, he was afraid they contained statements which could not be proved, and he thought before they took any action in the matter they ought to see that they could substantiate them. He hoped that some gentleman would explain how the Colony was suffering from this blockade. (Hear, hear, and applause.)

Hon. P. Ryrie said, in reply to the remarks which had just fallen from Mr. Whittall, he thought that gentleman had only to refer to the Harbour-master's last-published report and he would see that the junk tonnage had fallen off. In fact Mr. Thomsett had said that, considering the system of cruising which was carried on about the island, it was surprising it kept up at all. The figures for last year were less than for the year previous, and as far as he knew they were likely to be less in the current year. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Welsh asked, if the Chinese trade had fallen off, how it was that the rental in Chinese towns had increased in some cases from $95 last year to $105 this year. It was the same all over the Colony, and if the trade was decreasing how could that fact exist?

Mr. Whittall said if no one else had anything to say he might state his views with regard to the trade of the colony. The business of the firm with which he was connected was not a small one, and they had as good means of ascertaining what was going on as most people. Though he had been trying to ascertain if the trade was suffering, he had not had a single complaint on the subject from any of the legitimate dealers in shirtings. He knew quite well that squeezing was carried on to a large extent in the country, but the blockade of this port, as it was called, had nothing to do with that. The Chinese were simply collecting duties which they were entitled to. When he himself shipped things to Canton he had to pay these duties. Although small irregularities may have crept into this matter, it was not so bad as it was represented to be. He might have been wrong in what he said about the junk trade. Instead of its increasing it might be falling off, but if this were so there were other reasons which accounted for that. With respect to the value of property in Hong Kong, he had made sales of property within the last few weeks, and had obtained more money for it than he had been able to obtain within the last five years. The import trade here had shown a considerable excess of late, and stocks were now considerably less than they were at this time last year, so that he could not think the trade of Hong Kong was falling off. He repeated that the Chinese had a perfect right to levy their duties. They only did that, they did not make the same junk pay duty a second time. When a junk wished to clear from this port she had only to get a permit stating what she was taking away, and the duty was not levied until she reached the port to which she was destined. There was a deal said some time ago about a junk from Formosa that had been tampered with, but that junk was not doing a legitimate business. Her object was to smuggle. A great many Chinese in this Colony smuggled, and he was sure that the Home Government never intended to encourage trade in this place at the expense of the Chinese Government. It was only after the war that many Chinese came and settled in Hong Kong, simply because they found what facilities there were for carrying on smuggling here. They made a request, which he and others refused at the time, and that was that a consul should be appointed at Hong Kong. If that request had been acceded to, many of those things which were now complained of would not have taken place. He objected, however, to it, because the Chinese had not a custom-house, but when they found they could not collect their legitimate dues, they established custom-houses in their own waters, and they had done nothing more than they were entitled to do. They should not have a custom-house in Hong Kong, and he thought the Government would be to blame if they allowed it, but he did not understand why they should not see that a proper official, who represented the Chinese Government, came and consulted with our authorities upon the matter. The trade of Hong Kong was not a bit worse than Shanghai, and there was no blockade there. This alleged falling off in the trade in Hong Kong had nothing whatever to do with a blockade, and many of the Chinese merchants had said to him that they were perfectly satisfied with the present arrangement. It was a protection to the honest merchants, and only a disadvantage to the dishonest ones. (Applause.)

Mr. Karberg seconded the resolution, which, on being put, was carried by an overwhelming majority, only seven voting against it.

Mr. Ryrie said the second resolution had been put into his hands to lay before the meeting. His remarks upon it would be very short indeed, as it was well known that in other places he had strongly deprecated the blockade of Hong Kong. Whatever might have fallen from the gentleman who had spoken on the other side, he could only say that his opinion and information were totally the reverse. Not only had one Chinese dealer spoken to him of this matter, but several dozens had complained of the port being hampered in the way it was. Respecting what had been said about the demand that there was for Chinese property in Hong Kong, the reason which had always been given to him, and which he believed to be the correct one, was, that trade in the interior had been so bad, and capitalists were so chary of investing their money in the country, because they had so little confidence in their mandarins or their government, that they came to Hong Kong and bid against each other for the house property. They were quite content if they could only get a small interest, five per cent, or even less than that, for their money, and were content to invest it in that way here, rather than put it in the native banks at Canton. With respect to the resolution which had been put in his hands, there had been a demand for facts with regard to it. He did not think anyone could deny the fact that stations existed outside the harbour, and he did not think anyone would deny that there were Chinese gunboats in the harbour, because they were lying only some two hundred yards from where they were assembled. As regarded the smaller vessels, he had seen with his own eyes steam launches pursuing them out of the limits. They lie in wait and watch the junks, taking care not to board them in daylight when in our waters, but seize on them the moment they are without the limits. The other day when coming from Canton he saw the same thing done by a Hankow boat which was commanded by a European. This vessel lay very near the confines of the harbour; and as the junks came out she followed them, came up with them, and then the gig boarded every junk. There could be no doubt about that. He would now say something about the gunboats generally, a subject which some years since was taken notice of by the Chamber of Commerce, and several letters were written to more than one Consul on the matter. In all these letters they steadily avoided saying about the vessels for revenue purposes. They said they had sanctioned these vessels because they had been useful in putting down piracy. In one letter which he himself had from Mr. Hughes, that gentleman said that none of these gunboats were ever likely to be used to menace the trade of Macao or to go to that port. It was now known that they had blockaded Macao, and if they had done that, of course they would blockade Hong Kong. The great mistake which the Government of this Colony had made was in recognising these vessels as ships of war. On that plea they were allowed to enter the harbour, and clear any hour of the day or night they pleased. That gave them an opportunity of doing whatever they wished. They might just as well be stationed in the harbour if this was permitted. It was distinctly laid down in the new harbour Ordinance that no vessel was to leave without anchor passes or permits. Was it right that any vessel that chose to hoist a little bit of a red flag with a dragon painted on it should be allowed to do whatever she liked in this harbour? He did not see why the Government of the colony should not legislate specially with regard to these vessels, and necessitate their observing some regulations. He did not think many of those present supposed that these vessels were ships of war; if they were ships of war, they behaved as ships of war behaved in no other port of the world. What would be said if an English man-of-war went into Havre, and the moment she saw an English vessel start, immediately followed her, boarded and squeezed her? Did they think the French Government would put up with that for a moment? Certainly not. They would say if these were the regulations respecting men-of-war they had better be altered. (Applause.) The harbour regulations here at present did not touch these Chinese vessels, and he thought the sooner they did so the better. (Applause.) He had no more to say, except that this was the only port in China where this sort of thing was carried on. One gentleman who had spoken referred to the port of Shanghai. There must be a lot of small places on the Yangtsze where smuggling could be carried on. Why, then, should they adopt the system of blockade here only. He did not think there was anything of the kind at Foochow, and though there were war vessels there they were not engaged in this sort of business. He then proposed the following resolution :—

"That the establishment by the Hoppo of Canton of three stations at Foo-tow Moon, Capsing Moon, and Chun Chow, covering the approaches to this harbour, and assisted by steam gun vessels, attended by armed steam launches, these latter being allowed contrary to the laws of the colony, to move about at their pleasure, in and out of the harbour, at all hours of the day or night, in pursuit of junks, constitutes an effectual blockade, the evils of which are increasing every day, and are manifested by a great diminution of the junk trade and consequent withdrawal of general business from the colony."

Mr. Welsh said the resolution stated that the manner in which these launches went about the harbour was against the law of the colony. Would Mr. Ryrie move that the Government be asked to put the law into force. If he would do so, he (Mr. Welsh) would second him.

Mr. Ryrie said he denied the vessels were ships-of-war, or that they had a right to be considered as ships-of-war.

Mr. J. F. Cordes seconded the resolution, which was put, and carried with one dissentient.

Mr. E. R. Belilios then proposed the following resolution :—

That the levy and collection in Hong Kong, at an establishment open for the purpose, by the agent of the Hoppo, of toll upon the Harbour Gates; and the symstematic overhaul, in this behalf, of Chinese junks on nearing or departing from the port, by steam gun vessels, the Peng Chao Hai and others anchored opposite to stations in the East, West, and South passages, is a flagrant and unparalleled breach of international usage, alike unbearable by the inhabitants of this Colony, and injurious to Foreign and Native interests.

He said he had very little to add to what had fallen from Mr. Ryrie. He thought no one would deny that the position of this Colony compared unfavourably with the treaty ports. They had had wars with China, and ports had beee opened, but these proceedings on the part of the Chinese had placed Hong Kong in a worse position than any of them, which he was sure the framers of the treaty never contemplated. He trusted that the proceedings which would ensue upon that meeting woulb be the means of causing measures to be taken to remedy the evil (applause).

Mr. Welsh asked if the Chairman could tell him the difference between the $4 on the junks, and the $2½ charged by the American Consul on American vessels?

The Chairman said he was sorry he could not, but he could not see how that affected the question now before the meeting.

Mr. Welsh said it was a question of principle. The Consul levied $2½ in Hong Kong, and he (Mr. Welsh) could not see what was the difference.

Mr. R. Walker held there was this difference, that the action of the Chinese amounted to an invasion of the independence of British territory. He understood that that meeting had been called for the discussion of the cruiser question, and they came there with the full conviction that the facts of the case were already well known. However, the Harbour-master and the Chamber of Commerce were the authorities in anything relating to the shipping and trade respectively of Hong Kong, and their statistics must be taken. (Applause.) No one objected to the Chinamen levying the revenue, and taking steps for its proper collection, but such steps must not interfere with the jurisdiction of another power. Twenty years ago at home cruisers were employed, but they did not go into the English Channel and stop vessels. They had stations on shore which commanded a good view, and it was only where vessels committed a breach of the revenue laws that the coast guard cruisers seized upon them. Mr. Ryrie had given an illustration of what the feeling of the French Government would be if an English vessel levied duties on a ship coming from any of the ports on the coast of France. But he would bring the case closer home to the British Government. Close on the shore of France were the Channel Islands. There the French language was spoken and the inhabitants were of French origin. What would England say if the French Government were to have a set of cruisers at one of the ports of these islands stopping every vessel going in. He need not go into the question of the depression of trade. Many causes had been at work to bring this about, but this meeting had decided that one of these causes was the action of the cruisers outside. (Applause.)

Mr. Hoppius seconded the resolution proposed by Mr. Belilios, which was carried unanimously.

Mr. J. S. Lapraik proposed the next resolution as follows :—

"That the proceedings of the Hoppo of Canton are in direct contravention of the letter of Her Majesty's invitation to trade at Hong Kong, dated 7th June, 1841, of Sir Henry Pottinger's Proclamation of 6th February, 1842, of the spirit of the Treaty of Peace between Great Britain and China, of the Proclamation by the Chinese Government, dated 6th February, 1869, and of the practice of all civilised nations; and, as a consequence, most inimical to British prestige in Hong Kong and the neighbouring provinces of China, the impression being general, on account of the prominent part taken by Englishmen in the matter, that the system is connived at by the British Government, which is powerless to resist it."

He said the Chinese had been invited to trade in the colony by Sir Henry Pottinger, and now the proclamation declaring the port free was being followed up by a blockade. In 1868-9 a proclamation was issued by the Viceroy of Canton, ordering that these revenue cruisers be withdrawn. They were withdrawn for about a year, but afterwards came back again. He believed that that proclamation was still in existence, and he thought the Colonial Government should be called upon to insist upon its being carried out. With regard to the trade of the Colony, he stated that the value of Chinese property had been enhanced merely on account of its becoming a means of investment and not on account of trade. The Chinese felt that investing their money here was safer than in their own country. (Applause.)

Mr. Dolan seconded the resolution, which was put to the meeting, and carried nem. con.

Mr. N. B. Dennys said that despite what had fallen from an honourable speaker it must be admitted that the presence of some 200 members of the community on a working afternoon showed that either the public had a very real grievance or thought they had—and in either case it was very desirable to ventilate it. He did not intend to touch upon the evils caused by blockade which abler speakers had or could better have described. But he might observe that the point made by a previous speaker as to the rise in native house rent by no means argued a necessary gain to foreign pockets; and it was their interests, he believed, which the meeting had met to discuss. He might also point out that though, as a previous hon. speaker had said, China had the right of levying lawful duties in the way she did, it was nevertheless a fact that Canton duties were levied by these cruisers on vessels going to other ports, say Macao or elsewhere. And the bare fact of cruisers being placed in such positions as they occupied, with the power of squeezing, would alone justify strong protest against such temptation being allowed to vessels acting under a most irresponsible authority, with no head that we could reach. It was this intangibility which made the levies doubly irritating. We did not know whom to kick at except that vague entity, known as the "Chinese Government." To get at that we had to get the Governor, to get the Consul, to get the Viceroy, to get the Hoppo, to get somebody, to get somebody else, to enquire about a gunboat levying illegal taxes; and in taking all these different steps the matter got lost sight of before anything was ever done. What we wanted was immediate action; but before proposing that our Government be asked to take it, he might for a moment ask what was the chief obstacle to our taking effective action. It was not our physical weakness. We had gunboats enough on the station to drive every cruiser beyond Canton. It was not want of sympathy on the part of the local government, who seemed to fully acknowledge the existence of a grievance. He would go further back than the Hon. Mr. Ryrie, and say it was not our recognition of the revenue cruisers as men-of-war, but our unreserved recognition of sovereign rights on the part of China, who did not know how to use them in accordance with the rules of international courtesy. Still, we had put ourselves in this position, and anything we could do must start from the basis that we acknowledged China's right to act as she did in her own territory, and that we had at all events tacitly recognised her cruisers as "men-of-war." Now there were three alternatives to meet the evil under these circumstances. The first, that of appointing an Agent or Consul in the colony who would grant passess, was so unpopular that it was useless to discuss it at present. The second was to place the revenue cruisers under the foreign inspectorate. This would secure comparative honesty of collection, but the fatal plan, so well pointed out recently by a correspondent of the Daily Press—that the Chinese would persist in treating Hong Kong, Canton, and Formosa and Chekiang, or any other province, as a separate state for duty purposes would still leave the matter in a state most unfair to local interests. The third, and to the speaker's mind, most feasible proposition was one which would be fair to both nations and consult their dignity while achieving the object which this meeting had in view—i.e. removing the throttling grip now maintained on our trade. Why then should we not insist upon China conforming to the civilised usage and confine her taxing boats to the immediate entrances to her ports, while keeping up an effective guard boat service to prevent illicit landing for smuggling purposes, but not to seize junks bound out? Hong Kong was only concerned about her own immediate neighbourhood, and the Chinese now only maintain such a service below the bogue. The speaker's primary object was to move a resolution asking the Government to use prompt action to do away with the blackade. But he thought that with this some effective suggestion should also be made; and having stated what appeared to him almost the only course that would meet all views, while preserving the rights of Chinese sovereignty untouched, he begged to move the following resolution:—

"That, as Hong Kong is entirely without internal resources, and absolutely dependent upon free communication, prompt and decisive action is required to avert the impending annihilation of her trade, when her revenue must speedily decline, and the island again become, as in former years, largely dependent upon the mother country."

Mr. C. M. Kerr seconded the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

Mr. A. F. Heard said there was one point he wished to bring forward, and that was the fact that they had some cause of complaint against somebody, and while they might differ in detail, they were all agreed as to what it was. The entire population of the colony, belonging to almost every nationality under the sun, were represented at the meeting. Not only were they agreed as foreigners, but strong evidence existed of the sympathy between them, and also that the Chinese residents of the colony had the same opinions, as shown by the fact that eighteen Chinese merchants had signed the petition sent home upon the subject; and the fact that so many Chinamen could be induced to testify to the existence of a wrong on the part of their Government was a proof that something more than an ordinary grievance existed, that there was a wrong which demanded an immediate remedy, and that prompt measures should be taken for its removal. They knew that strong pressure must be brought upon Chinese to induce them to come forward, but it was well to state this, as people at home might not be able to appreciate the fact. The Chinese here were either directly or indirectly in the hands of their officials, who had the means of coercing their countrymen on the mainland. He begged to propose:—

"That this meeting cordially sympathises with the objects of the petition to Her Majesty the Queen by Chinese merchants, and the memorial of the Chamber of Commerce to the Right Honourable the Earl of Clarendon, believing that the statements which they contain are substantially correct; and that the petition would have borne many more signatures, but for the almost universal apprehension in which the Hong Kong natives dwell for the safety of their families in China; that this dread causes them to have an almost insuperable objection to testify in public to the unscrupulous exactions of the Chinese Customs and their officials."

This resolution was seconded and carried.

Mr. J. J. dos Remedios proposed the following resolution:—

"That the Chairman convey to H.E. Sir Arthur Kennedy, K.C.M.G. and C.B., Governor and Vice-Admiral of Hong Kong, the request of this meeting that, pending the receipt of replies from home to communications already forwarded, his Excellency, with a view to the abatement of the evil, will have the goodness, in concert with Sir Brooke Robertson, H.B.M. Consul at Canton, to bring under the notice of H.E. the Viceroy of the Two Kwang Provinces Jui, and the Superintendent of Maritime Customs for Kwantung, the outrageous and defiant manner in which H.E. the Viceroy's Proclamation of 6th February, 1869, is disregarded, with the object of obtaining the issue of a fresh proclamation on the subject, and also take such steps in connection with Admiral Shadwell, C.B., F.R.S., as may be necessary for the extirpation of these nests of pirates from the Inland seas and the immediate and final closing of the Hoppo's Agency opened in Hong Kong for the collection of imposts and issue of passes for the Harbour gates."

This was seconded by Mr. Jenson, and carried.

Hon. R. Rowett said that what had taken place at the meeting would not only show that a unanimity had prevailed with respect to the resolutions which had been passed, but that there was a strong feeling on the part of the public on the subject of the Blockade. He therefore begged to propose the following resolution:—

"That the Chairman of this meeting do forward these Resolutions to the Honorable Colonial Secretary, asking that his Excellency the Governor will have the goodness to transmit a copy of the same to the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, with the earnest request of this meeting, that Her Majesty's Government, who are alone competent to deal effectually and permanently with the case, will take such steps as may be necessary to secure the promised freedom of the Port and Harbour of Hong Kong."

He had not intended to say any more, but the remarks which had fallen from some of the speakers should not be allowed to pass without notice. In the first place, the gentleman who had now left the room spoke of the increase of the value of the property in Hong Kong. This was only true to a certain extent. Chinese property in the West end of the town had no doubt advanced in value, and this was very much owing to trade being so bad that people having money put it into houses and land. The property occupied by Europeans would, however, tell a very different tale, for if the proprietor of any of them wished to sell he would get less than he gave for his property. Perhaps the gentleman to whom he had just referred could give a very sorry account of some very valuable property under his charge. The value of Chinese property had not only increased in this colony, but had also increased at Macao. Now that gentleman, who based his idea of the state of trade on the value of property, would scarcely say that that was the case of Macao. He knew certainly that the value of many houses there had increased of late years, because the Chinese were ready to buy property to place their relations where they would be out of the power of squeezing Mandarins. The same thing applied exactly to Hong Kong. China contained two classes, the governors and the governed. The one class squeezes and the other is squeezed, and the richer the subject the more certain was he to be so. Many of the people who come to Hong Kong do not want trade, but desire peace and security; and they find under the governments of Hong Kong and Macao that their liberties are secured. Another speaker had referred to the proposition of stationing a Chinese Consul at Hong Kong. That proposition was immediately opposed by one of the wisest men we had ever had in Hong Kong, Sir Richard MacDonnell, who pointed out to the Home Government the troubles that must ensue from a Chinese Consul being recognised in Hong Kong. Such an official would at once represent a power in the place. He would govern the Chinese, and as they did not understand all the details of English law, they would at once submit themselves to his dictates. A Consul was an official accredited to a foreign port to be in friendly relations with the authorities there, and to act as mediator in case of dispute between the subjects of the Power he represents and those among whom he resides. That he thought could never be the case of a Chinese Consul in Hong Kong. There would be little friendly relations manifested by him. He would simply be a spy, and as a local poet had said, "his name might be Asee." He would in fact be an enemy to the Government of this place. As regarded the blockade, he did not think any one here objected to the Chinese catching smugglers and preventing smuggling. But where did the smuggling begin? Certainly not in these waters. There was no Custom-house here to evade. Why should these people come here and watch the junks that are being loaded? They are not here in that capacity. The Customs' cruisers, which are recognised by the Colonial Government as men-of-war, were not men-of-war at all. He was not aware that in any other country in the world Customs' cruisers were received as men-of-war, and he did not see why they should be here. The Government of Hong Kong might be exceptionally placed, but he thought that was a reason why the authorities should take exceptional care to preserve our trade. (Applause.)

Mr. S. D. Sassoon seconded the resolution, which was passed.

Mr. M. W. Boyd then proposed the next resolution, as follows:—

"That the Chairman do forward copies of these resolutions and of the proceedings at this meeting to the several Chambers of Commerce at Home, to Members of Parliament and others, with the request that in the general interests of the China Trade they will exert themselves to obtain for Hong Kong a restitution of the Commercial privileges granted by Royal Proclamation on the erection of the Colony."

Mr. H. L. Dalrymple seconded it, and it was passed.

The Chairman then said if any other gentleman had any remarks to make, or anything to propose, he had now an opportunity of doing so. He congratulated the community of Hong Kong on the interest which had been manifested on a subject which materially concerned them, and he trusted that the meeting would be productive of good results.

Mr. Coughtrie proposed a vote of thanks to the Chairman, which was heartily accorded, and the meeting then separated fon the 28th Sept., and the following P. and O. mail of 4th Sept. was received on the 3rd October. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times:—

His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by the Hon. Mr. Braddell and W. H. Read, Esq., left in H.M.S. Charybdis, attended by the gunboats Hart and Avon, for the Indau river, the boundary between Johore and Pahang. It had been reported that the Bandahara of Pahang had encroached upon the territory of the Maharajah of Johore, in contravention of an award by Governor Cavenagh, to whom the boundary question was referred for arbitration; but the matter resolved itself into a quarrel between the headmen on opposite sides of the river, owing to which two murders had been committed. His Excellency also visited the Bandahara at Pahang, who received him most hospitably, expressed his desire to maintain friendly relations with the Maharajah of Johore, and declared his intention of visiting his Excellency at Singapore at his earliest convenience.

At the Legislative Council on the 15th September his Excellency Sir Andrew Clarke explained his past action and his policy in dealing with the Native States, and asked for the support of the Council. His Excellency's speech will no doubt take our home readers by surprise, as it did people here, by its forcible statement of the past and present political situation in the Peninsula, and the enlightened policy it so clearly defines, a policy that it is manifestly our duty, as a British colony in the midst of uncivilised Native States, to pursue towards them; to teach them the arts of self-government, and to aid them in the establishment of peace and order and the development of their almost unlimited resources. Such was the desire of Sir Stamford Raffles, the founder of this Settlement, and if the policy now inaugurated be steadfastly adhered to, we may hope for its realisation.

The Legislative Council met on the 29th—the only meeting during the fortnight,—when the Hon. W. R. Scott, calling attention to further correspondence laid on the table on the subject of the New Harbour Railway, asked what steps the Government was prepared to take towards carrying out the recommendations of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and argued that Government was committed to undertake the work. He was supported by the Hon. Mr. Shelford, who spoke very ably on the subject, and was opposed by the Hon. Dr. Little, who argued with much force against the necessity for a railway at all. H.E the Governor replied that press of weightier matters had prevented him from giving this subject the attention it deserved, but that personally his views were opposed to the construction of the railway by Government, it being merely a municipal work in Singapore, for the benefit of only a very small section of the community, while there were other works of greater importance and more general utility more urgently requiring attention. Encouragement would, however, be given to private enterprise, and possibly Government aid in the shape of a guarantee in the event of a company coming forward to continue the line to Johore.

The Sarawak Gazette reports the following:—

The British barque Cora Linn, Capt. Glazebrook, left the Borneo Company's wharf at Pinding, and sailed for London with a full cargo. Trade in Kuching has been unusually active during the last month; we noticed in the river at one time three steamers, namely, the Royalist, Sri Sarawak, and the Saltee; also a full-rigged ship and some ten or fifteen schooners, all of which have since cleared with full cargoes. The Saltee is a fine ship, and is usually employed in carrying mails from Saigon to Cambodia. She left the river with a full cargo of 6,000 piculs of sago flour in her hold, while her deck was piled up with rattans nearly to the awning.

THE WAR IN ATCHIN.

From the Military and Civil Commmanding Officer at Atchin the following intelligence has been received via Padang, dated the 13th Sept.—1st. Sept. The steamer Watergeus returned with intelligence that the Netherlands flag was hoisted at Patti on the 28th, and at Kluwang on the 31st Aug.—7th Sept. A battery on the east face of the Kraton completed, and armed with two 8 cm. cannon. 8th Sept.—The attacks announced did not take place, although the enemy were very restless, to-day. 13th Sept. Enjung, on the north coast, has hoisted the flag; state of health unchanged."

The Batavia Handelsblad publishes some extracts regarding Atchin affairs from the Colonial Report for 1874, lately made public in Holland; one of these extracts bears upon the letter from the British Government to the Sultan of Atchin conveyed to the latter place in the Thalia. It is stated therein that the Straits Government intended at first to despatch this letter by a Dutch man-of-war, but gave up the idea on its being pointed out that this would give rise to misconceptions. As to the delivery of the letter, the Report says:—It was not until hostilities were again in full course that the Thalia arrived with it in Atchin roadstead. The commanding officer of the 2nd expedition agreed with the coumander of the Thalia for its conveyance to the enemy's camp by an Arab. The latter afterwards brought word that the Sultan, after having read the letter, declared that he did not remember having addressed any application for protection to the British.

IMPORTS.

HANKOW.—The market had been extremely dull.

SHANGHAI.—There had been little if any change in the market, which had continued very quiet throughout the interval.

FOOCHOW.—No business reported. Quotation for Lead $8.25 per picul.

HONG KONG.—The market continued quiet and unchanged during the early part of the fortnight, and since the 22nd Sept. no transactions had been reported.

BATAVIA.—There was little of interest to report regarding the market for cotton manufactures. White Dutch Staples continued scarce, prices however, although firm, showed no improvement. English Grey and White Goods were in heavy stock and still very dull of sale. Prints and Fancy Goods were beginning to attract attention. Yarns, both Grey and Coloured, were in limited request.

CANTON.—Lead was firmly held, and for LB $8.30 to $8.35 and WB $8.35 to $8.40 could be obtained. Quicksilver was quoted $200 to $201 per picul.

SINGAPORE.—The dulness in the market recently noticed had continued, and any change in values had been in favour of buyers, while business had been on a small scale.

PENANG.—The market during the fortnight had been exceedingly depressed and business had hardly been practicable, even on the most retail scale.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

KIUKIANG.—Black: The equivalent of 5,456 chests had arrived, and 1,100 chests been settled at Tls. 19 for Hohow and Tls. 14.2.5 to 17.7.5 for Ninchows. Total arrivals, 172,146 chests. Green: Fifty-four chops, say, 18,910 half-chest, had gone to Shanghai on native account. The excess in export was partly accounted for by adverse weather detaining last year's arrivals. Total arrivals, 58,200 half-chests.

HANKOW.—A fair business had been transacted at unchanged values. Buying had been principally on Russian account.

AMOY AND TAMSUI.—Oolongs had been considerably dealt in, and statistics were—Arrivals 147,600 half-chests, settlements 107,800 half-chests and stock 39,800 half-chests. With the reduction in stock, Teamen had in many instances demanded and obtained an advance of $2 to 3 per picul, but at the close the market was quiet and weak. The steamer Glenfinlas was loading for New York at £5 per ton of 40 feet, and the s.s. Galley of Lorne was expected for the same destination. Latest advices from Tamsui report a steady business at about previous quotations.

FOOCHOW.—A steady demand had existed for Congous, and the settlements of these and Souchong Teas had been upwards of 74,000 chests; prices had had an upward tendency and ordinary to good flavoury grades, were quoted half a tael higher. A fine string of Oolongs had been taken for the American market but the price paid had not been reported.

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon and Co.'s Report says: During the fortnight there has been more eagerness displayed to be interested in Tea than for some time previously. Holders have become very firm, and demand advanced rates, in view of the extensive purchases of raw leaf made for the preparation of Teas under contract, and now there is little available pending the arrival of further supplies.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—Towards the close of last P. and O. mail an advance of Tls. 5 on Red Peacocks was paid, which encouraged the Chinese to look for higher rates; and a brisk inquiry having since been kept up, had led to an advance in values generally on Tsatlees of fully Tls. 20 on market sorts, and Tls. 10 to 15 on known chops. The latest sales comprise:—Gold Lion, Nos. 1 and 2, at Tls. 370 and Tls. 350; Dragon, Nos. 3 and 3½, at Tls. 380 and 355; Chin Jan, at Tls. 337½; Cock and Worm, Nos. 3, 3½, and 4, at Tls. 382½, Tls. 357½ and Tls.325; and Monster chops, Kahings, at Tls. 305 for Pangling, and Tls. 275 for Loeyling. Settlements for the fortnight, Chinas, 7,500 bales. Total settlements since 1st June, 39,000 bales; against 1873-4, 27,500 bales; 1872-3, 33,500 bales. Comparative unsold stock, 1874, 12,000 bales; 1873, 8,500 bales; 1872, 8,000 bales.

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon's Circular says:—In spite of the continued adverse accounts of the market, a fair demand existed here prior to departure of last French mail, and settlements, chiefly destined, for France and the Continent, amounted to 280 bales. During the last week only 140 bales are said to have been purchased. Fine Tsatlees are very scarce, and as the fourth yield is a failure, as f ar as clean thread and general quality are concerned, there is little prospect of a decline in rates. Receipts have been nearly on a par with settlements, and stocks remain at about 2,500 bales.

THE "CITY OF PEKIN."—A cable despatch received at New York, Oct. 26, from Rio Janeiro, says the steamer City of Pekin, when one day out from New York for San Francisco, lost one of the blades of her propeller, and on the twelfth day out lost another blade. She put into Rio on the 19th ult., otherwise all well. She was supplied with duplicate blades, and also a cofferdam to use in replacing her blades, and she may possibly be detained there from ten to fifteen days. She left Sandy Hook on Monday, Sept. 28, at 8.45 A.M., and with the loss of the blades, as above, made the run to Rio, over 5,000 miles, in about twenty days. The steamers City of Pekin and City of Tokio are each insured for $750,000 in gold.

OUR NAVAL AND MILITARY FORCES IN CHINA.

IN our last issue we made a few brief remarks on the subject of our naval forces in China, and this matter, at all times an important one, is of such grave moment in the existing condition of affairs in the Far East that we make no apology for recurring to it at the earliest possible opportunity, for we cannot too earnestly impress upon the authorities the necessity for the immediate and careful consideration of it. We have already mentioned that on a recent occasion, when vessels of war would have been extremely useful, Hong Kong could boast of but one gunboat lying in its waters, and on referring to a shipping list of about the same period we learn that the men-of-war lying at Shanghai were the U.S. corvette Monocacy (1,370 tons, ten guns, and 155 men), the French corvette D'Estrées (750 tons, six guns, and 150 men), and the British gunboat Thistle (465 tons, four guns, and seventy-three men). Thus we find that at the two most important depots of our trade in the East, and at a somewhat critical period, too, the British flag was represented by a couple of gunboats. We can only suppose that the naval Commander-in-Chief does not feel himself justified in detaching more vessels for the protection of those ports, but we submit that this ought not to be the case, and that the number of vessels at his disposal ought at once to be so strengthened as to enable him to maintain both at Hong Kong and at Shanghai a force adequate to cope successfully with any eventuality that may arise. Furthermore, at any rate until the difficulty between China and Japan is finally settled, each of the Consular ports on the seaboard of China ought to be protected by the presence of one or more vessels of war, and at all times our flag ought to be well and efficiently represented on the Great River, where the three British communities occupy a peculiarly isolated and helpless position. The force which we deem to be necessary on the China station is required not only for purposes of protection in cases of emergency, but also to repress piracy, to keep our own mauvais sujets in order, and to maintain our prestige generally. Of late years far too little heed has been given to these matters, and, thanks to the wretched cheese-paring policy of the late Government, our countrymen in the Far East have had to be grateful for very small mercies indeed, but now, under a new Administration, we hope for better things on their behalf. And in this connection, being fully impressed with the desirability of our always having a powerful fleet in the China seas, as the only means of protecting British life and property, we would urge upon the Government the advisability of withdrawing the military force now maintained at Hong Kong, and of concentrating the whole of our expenditure for naval and military purposes in China upon our naval forces alone. We have weighed the matter well, and we cannot perceive that any advantage at all accrues to us from maintaining, at a vast expense, a regiment of the line at Hong Kong, while the disadvantages of so doing are painfully obvious. The maintenance of a garrison there in the early days of our possession of the island was, doubtless, a wise measure, but the condition of affairs is now entirely altered. The presence of the garrison is no longer required for the local government of Hong Kong, and it is a great injustice to impose on the colony a contribution of £20,000 per annum for a force kept there for Imperial purposes. In the absence of any real work the intemperance and immorality, which are but too widely prevalent among the soldiers, are a standing disgrace to civilisation, and tend to degrade us in the eyes of the Chinese.

From official statistics we find that there are 847 non-commissioned officers and men of the 80th Regiment in the colony, and it is notorious that the Hong Kong jail has at times no less than forty soldiers confined within its walls; that is to say, one man out of every twenty-one is locked up at one and the same time for some offence against the laws! The Army Education return shows that out of these 847 non-commissioned officers and men only 223 held certificates of any kind, and those principally of the lower grades, and the issues from the garrison library during 1873 show a decrease of more than fifty per cent.; both these facts clearly demonstrate that there is a sad lack of desire for healthy mental recreation among the troops, and as they must do something, they yield themselves up to vices fostered by the climate. The sooner these men are permanently withdrawn the better; they are of no earthly use in their present position, and they are simply ruining their constitutions, and bringing the names of Britons into bad repute. It would be wise to maintain at Hong Kong a small number of men from the Engineers and Artillery —under specially chosen officers. Troops of the line and a regular garrison are utterly useless—nay, worse than useless,—for Imperial and local purposes, and the money at present expended on their maintenance would be far more efficaciously spent on increasing our naval force on the station, and the £20,000 which would be at the disposal of the local Government could be expended on the police to far better advantage. If any trouble takes place at Canton or elsewhere, what do we do? and of what practical use is the garrison of Hong Kong? We need hardly tell our readers that what has been facetiously styled in the home newspapers "the inevitable gunboat," with its small complement of blue-jackets and marines, is sent to settle the disturbance, but the Hong Kong garrison stops at home, and goes through its routine drill as usual.

THE WAR IN ATCHIN.

"GENERAL VAN SWIETEN has written a letter"—grandis et verbosa epistola—and in that letter he assures us that the military object of the second Atchin expedition "has been completely accomplished." The Kraton has been captured and fortified, with a view to the subjection of the country. That the Kraton has long been in the possession of a Dutch garrison we do remember to have seen somewhere stated already, so that except to remove doubts among his own countrymen, General VAN SWIETEN need not have taken the trouble to inform the world on that score. But that the reduction of a single fortress on the Atchinese Coasts was the complete object which the second expedition had in contemplation we confess is news to us; and we cannot but hold that if this object has been so "completely" accomplished, the authorities at the Hague dealt but hardly with their late Commander-in-Chief when they superseded him. The fact is, that what the Dutch meant when they sent forth their deliberately-equipped and carefully-prepared forces against the Atchinese last year was effectually to subjugate that nation, if they could. They were not as successful as they hoped to be, and as, with a little more dash and military skill, they doubtless might have been; but no Ministerial declarations, no Parliamentary or newspaper eulogiums, no, not even a letter from General VAN SWIETEN, will ever convince us that Holland would not have pushed her victories further if she only had had the power. VAN SWIETEN, indeed, lets this out himself when he describes the Kraton as having been occupied "with a view to the subjection of the country." General VAN SWIETEN is not the greatest military genius of the age—some unfriendly critics even refuse to allow his claims to the second place—but when we consider that modern artillery and appliances were arrayed against ill-equipped and ill-disciplined Asiatics, and that the Dutch had command of the sea, and a convenient base of operations, we certainly expected to have seen their General accomplish more than the occupation of an already abandoned fort, and that when he found his results so meagre he would have wisely abstained from courting criticism by publishing a weak apology for his want of success.

But if, turning from Dutch party politics and newspaper campaigns at home, we cast our eyes towards the theatre of the lingering war, we find our efforts to discover the real position between the contending parties as fruitless as VAN SWIETEN'S triumphs. The world has almost forgotten the Atchinese and their difficulties; and hence the news supplied us from the neighbourhood of the war has become more scanty and unfrequent from month to month. This much, however, seems certain, that the chieftains who formerly supported Atchin, but whose territories are accessible from the coast, have one by one come to terms with the Dutch, and made an unwilling and untrustworthy submission. But inland, in the mountainous districts, over, in fact, by far the greater portion of the Atchinese dominions, the native populations seem to be still wholly unsubdued. We do not know where the main body of the Malay forces are, nor whether they are well armed, and in unbroken health and spirits. In the absence therefore of such essential information, it would be mere rashness to hazard conjectures as to the probable termination of hostilities, or as to what we may expect when the rains are at an end.

The Dutch make no signs of sending out reinforcements; and perhaps they hope, therefore, that the Atchinese—for lack of rice—will soon be starved into submission. If this result is likely, peace will be re-established at less pecuniary outlay than the resumption of active hostilities would involve. But unless the Netherlands Government have good reason for knowing that want of supplies will quickly bring their enemy to terms, we cannot but blame them for pursuing a line of action—or rather inaction—the most expensive to themselves in the long run, the most cruel to the native population, and the most injurious to trade. "The incorporation of the country," says General VAN SWIETEN, "will lead to the civilising of the Atchinese." Perhaps it will—though the example furnished by Java does not inspire us with complete confidence in Dutch civilisation—but if that is the desirable end in view, "incorporate" the country without inhumane and mischievous delays. The Atchinese are doomed: sooner or later they must come under the rule of Holland; but the hesitating policy of the Dutch military leaders is only encouraging their unfortunate enemies in prolonging the resistance, and involves all the non-combatant inhabitants in the miseries of a needlessly-protracted war. The ends of civilisation are best attained by quick decisive blows, which close the strife at once, before war has become chronic, and before a deep-rooted rankling hostility has had time to grow up. As the case now stands, there seems to be a sort of dead-lock, most detrimental to all parties who have an interest in the affairs of Atchin. The Dutch are spending money to maintain a small body of troops in an unhealthy fortress and gunboats along the coast, without any return for their outlay; the Atchinese are kept at bay in the mountains to the utter neglect of cultivation and trade; while the foreigners in Penang and elsewhere who used to buy the Sumatran pepper and distribute it all over the world find their profits cut off, their agents and employés thrown out of work, and their useful occupation stopped. And yet General VAN SWIETEN writes to inform the public that "there has been no disappointment!"

A LATE return from Hong Kong gives the number of persons in the jails at 270 Chinese, and fifty-seven Europeans, mostly soldiers of the Hong Kong garrison. This is a very large reduction on the numbers committed in former years, and speaks well for the precautionary steps taken by the Government and the wisdom of the magistrates in disposing of cases brought before them. Considering that the Chinese population of Hong Kong is over 100 000, the proportion of criminals is more apparent. We know quite well that the capacity of the Chinese to commit acts of robbery and piracy is limited only by the chances of detection and punishment. No doubt this class has had large accessions since the abolition of the Macao coolie trade to Peru and Cuba. The reduction is really more surprising to us when we remember a visit that we made to these buildings in 1869, and found them so admirably clean and comfortable that they far surpassed in comfort any coolies' mat shed, and it was quite feasible that many a half naked and hungry coolie would only be too glad to get into such quarters. Should the decrease in the number of prisoners continue we presume that the jail on "Stonecutters' Island," in the harbour of Hong Kong, will be abandoned or turned to some more profitable use.

THE preliminary steps for the formation of a society to oppose the opium traffic have been taken. The old spirit of philanthropy which existed in the days of WILBERFORCE may have been slumbering of late, but it is far from dead, and the opportunity to show itself with all the old force is presented by this movement now on foot against the opium trade. We notice in connection with the movement the names of EDWARD PEASE, JOSEPH STURGE, DONALD MATHESON, General ALEXANDER, Dr. LOCKHART, and Rev. JAMES LEGGE; while the Secretary is the Rev. F. S. TURNER, late of Hong Kong.

IN our last issue we reported that the Egeria, a sloop of four guns, had been commissioned for the China station. We have now to notice that the Fly, a gunboat of four guns, is to be brought forward for the same station. We trust that the Lords of the Admiralty will see the advisability of giving all vessels appointed to the China station an increased complement of marines.

IT will be seen by reference to the telegrams that our views regarding the probable settlement of the Formosa difficulty have been confirmed. There will be no war. The sum of 500,000 taels is to be paid by China upon the understanding that the Japanese troops are withdrawn from Formosa.

HIS Excellency SANO, the Japanese Minister at Vienna, with Baron VON SIEBOLD and suite, proceed by the present mail. We understand that H.E. SAMESHIMA, the Minister in Paris, will shortly return to Japan. The new German Minister for Japan also proceeds to Yedo.

WE understand that the Borneo Company have sent out an engineer and staff to the coal mines at Lingga, in Borneo, in order to make a thorough examination as to their capabilities. In the meantime the P. and O. Company are testing the coal for steam purposes.

Miscellaneous.

MANUFACTURING INDUSTRY IN AUSTRIA.

Austria has been making progress in many branches, but as yet the quality of the work she turns out has scarcely kept pace with the increase in its quantity. One advantage she has, or believes she has. Her work and materials are at least what they profess to be, although in texture and finish they may be somewhat inferior. Such as their work is, they think it should suit Orientals, especially if they can afford to undersell their competitors. They believe that the Eastern export trade—that of China, for instance—is susceptible of great development, and they believe, too, that designers in some of these semi-Oriental provinces can better understand and provide for Oriental tastes than the weavers and spinners of Lancashire or New England. Looking at it from that point of view, the Exhibition they have just opened ought to be of great advantage to Austrians anxious for practical information. They will learn exactly what are the wants, tastes, and means of probable customers. By examining the samples of Eastern manufactures that will be shown, they may obtain frequent hints which their superior intelligence will improve upon. We have adverted to China, and we may take it as an example, both because of the almost boundless extent of a field which, as yet, has been but little exploité, and because, as we understand, the Chinese collection that is exhibited now is the same we had an opportunity of examining last year. That collection was formed by the Chinese Government in answer to a request of the Austro-Hungarian Minister, and information with regard to it was freely given by European employés in the service of China. It was made up of contributions of exports from fourteen ports; while Shanghai, which is the principal of them so far as foreign imports are concerned, showed a complete collection of imports as well. There you might inspect the piece goods that were most generally in demand; and you learned, by application to European officials in the Chinese Custom service, all about the classes of customers who bought them. The Chinese wear more clothes than the natives of British India, the average temperature of the Empire being lower and the winters being rigorous in some of the provinces. But it is the well-to-do part of the population who have hitherto been the largest buyers of foreign goods; the peasants and farmers generally raising cotton of their own, and either spinning garments for themselves or bartering the raw produce for them with their neighbours. Still, as the demand for foreign goods is increasing every year, it is assumed that the people are gradually being won from that primitive system by the superior attractions of foreign novelties. Hemp, again, is as much a staple article of cultivation in China as in Austria, but Chinese hemp is so decidedly inferior that it might remunerate the Austrians to export for finer purposes. We might go on multiplying details and illustrations: we might run in the same way over the collections exhibited by other Eastern countries, and especially by Austria's Ottoman neighbours on the Danube. We might dwell on that picturesque side of the show, which the general public will be most apt to appreciate; on the unfamiliar articles that are applied to the oddest and most unlikely purposes; on the curious specimens of arts that have flourished from time immemorial, often triumphs of patience, skill, and ingenuity, and especially profitable as studies for the Viennese, who are themselves celebrated for their ornamental and decorative manufactures. But perhaps we have said sufficient to indicate the value and purpose of the exhibition.

THE AUSTRALIAN MAIL SERVICE.

In a letter to The Times "An Australian Merchant," referring to some complimentary remarks made by a Victoria correspondent of that journal upon the efficiency of the P. and O. service, says:—"However much pleased Victoria may be with the excellent and regular conduct of her mail service, it is unfortunate that at the moment New South Wales correspondents have reason to be singularly dissatisfied with the P. and O. Company's performance this month. For instance, the mails from Sydney vid San Francisco (and carried by a colonial steamer belonging to the Australasian Steam Navigation Company) left Sydney on the 29th of August, and were delivered in London on the 17th of October, in forty-eight clear days. The mails vid Suez and Brindisi by the P. and O. Company, left Sydney on the 4th September, and a very small portion arrived in London on the 26th of October, in fifty-one clear days, or three days over the San Francisco time. But the great cause of complaint is, that although the Victoria and South Australian letters were delivered in London on the 26th of October, the bulk of the New South Wales mails marked vid Brindisi (and for which the extra postage had been paid) was only delivered this morning, November 2, say in fifty-eight days, having from some yet unexplained reason been carried to Southampton instead of being forwarded vid Brindisi. The inconvenience to the commercial community has been very great, as, had these letters been delivered on the 26th, in the usual course, they could have been replied to by the outward mail on Friday last, whereas now there will be a delay of some weeks.

This letter is answered by Mr. Bethune, the Company's secretary, who explains that since New South Wales discontinued contributing to the subsidy for the Suez service the Company's mail steamers have ceased running to Sydney, and the letters have been forwarded by a trading steamer between Sydney and Melbourne. "It would be scarcely reasonable," says Mr. Bethune, "to expect, as your correspondent seems to do, that letters conveyed in this way should be delivered as quickly as by the subsidised San Francisco route, yet on reference I find that it is so, the time from Sydney via Suez being fifty days, while hitherto the average via San Francisco has been fifty-four days, the delivery in forty-eight days, which has just been accomplished, being quite an exception." The second ground of complaint by "An Australian Merchant" is attributable, in Mr. Bethune's opinion, to the carelessness of the Post-office authorities at the Antipodes.

* Ordered home. † To proceed shortly.

Monetary and Commercial.

In reference to the discussion on the damaged tea brought over as ballast by the Gordon Castle from Lisbon, we have ascertained that the purchaser is bound by Messrs. Skinner and Co., the owners, not to dispose of it for consumption in the United Kingdom. It now lies at the Docks, awaiting ultimate disposal. It is to be regretted that the Dock Company and Customs did not prohibit the landing of this rubbish, and have ordered it to be condemned and destroyed; but it is so well looked after that there is no fear of its coming into consumption.

Tenders for £500,000 in bills on India were received on the 4th inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £441,800, average rate 1s. 10½d.; and to Bombay £58,200, average rate 1s. 10½d. Tenders on all Presidencies at 1s. 10½d. will receive about 21 per cent. These results show an increased demand for remittances to the East.

The directors of the Hong Kong and China Gas Company (Limited) have declared an interim dividend for the six months ending 30th June at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax.

On the 4th inst. the Marquis of Salisbury received a deputation, consisting of several leading Manchester merchants and others interested in the trade of India, who urged the repeal of duties on cotton yarns and goods imported into India from this country. After hearing the arguments of the deputation the Secretary of State for India admitted that theoretically the duties could not be justified, but as they brought in £800,000 a year, and as it was not possible to obtain that amount from other sources, they must be maintained for the present. His lordship stated, however, that it was hoped the impost would eventually be abolished, telling the deputation nevertheless that it was not the first on the list to be struck off, as reform was more urgently required in other quarters.

The Eastern Telegraph Company's traffic receipts for the month of October amounted to £32,853, against £29,229 in the corresponding period of 1873; and those of the Eastern Extension, Australasia, and China Telegraph Company (Limited) for the month amounted to £16,584, against £17,586 for the corresponding period of 1873. The Great Northern Company's traffic receipts for the month of October were—this year, f.438,817; last year, f.360,437.

The Bar Silver brought by the West India steamer was sold on the 30th ult. at 57 13-16d. per oz. standard, at which price there was a fair demand; subsequent arrivals of £99,315 slightly depressed the price, and these amounts were placed at 57⅞d. per oz., at which rate the market may be considered firm. Mexican Dollars by the French and West India steamers, amounting to about £200,000 in value, have been disposed of, at 56⅜d. per oz., for China.

The Bullion per P. and O. steamer Khedive, from Southampton, Nov. 5, was—in gold, to Galle, £2,000; in silver, to Penang, £45,300; to Singapore, £95,600; to Hong Kong, £48,490; to Shanghai, £2,000—total in silver, £191,390.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

Business generally has continued quiet, but no alteration of importance has occurred in prices except as regards Coffee, which has sustained a decline, and Tin, which, with a continuance of activity, has advanced.

TEA.

During the past few days the market has ruled extremely quiet, at no change in prices except for common red leafs at 11d. to 1s. 1d. per lb., which show good value, and must be losing at least 5 per cent. to importers. Medium to fine quality tea is running into small compass, and there is a very good prospect for these classes to admit of a material advance when buyers realise the small quantity to meet the requirements to next July; for though Indian leaf has been arriving freely of late, there is a marked scarcity of the kinds at 1s. 8d. to 1s. 11d., the bulk running into the value of 2s. to 2s. 3d. per lb. The following figures give details of supplies to 31st Dec. next, and it will be seen that during the next two months very heavy imports are due. After, however, deliveries will overtake supplies, and during the spring months the stock will be run down to an unusually low point. It is, therefore, clearly to the interest of importers not to force off their teas to a loss.

Stock 31st Oct., as per Customs returns	69,480,266
Arrived to 31st Oct., but not included in stock	3,000,000
Cargoes afloat to 1st Sept.	35,000,000
Steamers to leave China during Sept. and Oct., say four per month, of 1,500,000 lbs. each, and arrive before 31st Dec.	12,000,000
	119,480,266
Indian tea to arrive	5,000,000
	124,480,266
Less sailing vessels likely to make longer passages than 120 days	3,000,000
	121,480,266
Two months deliveries, at 15,000,000 per month	30,000,000
	91,480,266
Against last year, on 31st Dec.	97,000,000

SILK.

Messrs. Durant and Co.'s Circular says:—The past month commenced and ended with public sales, with large business in all classes of Silk in the intervening period—considerable speculative buying no doubt, but consumers also supplying themselves freely. During the whole month the course of prices was continually upward, culminating in an advance upon the lowest moment of August of 2s. upon the lowest classes, with 1s. to 1s. 6d. upon the medium and 6d. to 1s. upon the highest. The market during the last few days has been comparatively quiet, but we have no change of quotations. In Japan and Canton Silk the stocks are smaller than for the last three or four years.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw and Co. report that since the public sales last week the general market has become quieter, but without any alteration in prices. It is not surprising, however, that buyers should now pause after their large purchases of the last two months, continued as they have been uninterruptedly. Canton Silk is in demand at 12s. for No. 4 Tsatlees, but so little of this silk has arrived this season that business has been restricted in consequence; the arrivals of "curio" Loong Kongs, which have been especially good, have been readily taken at full rates. Japan Silk is quiet.

CASUALTIES.

GREENOCK, OCT. 30.—The Sourabaya, floating dock, is having her cargo discharged into lighters here, and will be taken to Paisley to be remasted and repaired.

The Tek Li, Petersen, from Hamburg for Shanghai, with a general cargo, was ashore at the South Foreland, but has been towed off, and is now at anchor in the Roads, but makes some water.

Advices from St. Helena, Oct. 10, state that the Island Belle, Camm, which vessel arrived there from Batavia, experienced a heavy gale from the N.E., Sept. 12, in lat. 36 S., lon. 29 E., during which she shipped a sea that stove bulwarks, two boats, and main hatch; she proceeded on Oct. 6 for Plymouth.—The Howden, Ditchburn, arrived here from Singapore, experienced a succession of heavy gales, during which she lost and split sails.—The Tennyson finished re-shipping her cargo Oct. 9; a survey was held on board, and she will probably get away to-morrow.

MALTA, NOV. 2.—Steamer off. No. 63,643, from Singapore, to London, has put in here with circulating air pumps broken; repairs will require about six days; no other damage; (63,643 is the official No. of the Lord of the Isles, from Singapore, to London, which arrived at Suez about Oct. 23).

A telegram from Shanghai, Nov. 2, states that an unsuccessful attempt had been made to float the Lucerne; she will probably be a total loss; hull completely under water. A later telegram, Nov. 3, announces that the Lucerne, with her cargo, has been advertised to be sold on the 10th.

Advices from New York, Oct. 22, report that the O'Thyen, Jordan, for Sourabaya, which put back Sept. 16, leaky and with sails split, &c., sailed for her destination yesterday, having finished her repairs.

A telegram from Shanghai, Nov. 3, announces that the Cawdor Castle (str.), and the St. Francois, from Freemantle, lying alongside the wharf, have been in collision; former vessel leaking, latter sunk; steam pumps have been rigged and set to work.

NOTICES TO MARINERS.

China—East Coast.—Intended Fixed Light on Shantung Promontory.—The Engineer-office at Chefoo has given notice that the erection of a lighthouse has been commenced on the Shantung Promontory, from which, when completed, a light will be exhibited. The light will be a fixed light showing white to seaward and red inshore to the southward and westward (the latter to warn vessels when they approach the coast). It will be elevated 200 feet above the sea, and in clear weather the white light should be seen from a distance of twenty-one miles. The illuminating apparatus will be dioptric or by lenses, of the first order. The tower will be round, 64 feet high, and built of stone. Position, lat. 37 deg. 24 min. N., lon. 122 deg. 42 min. E. Also that a temporary fixed white light of the sixth order is now exhibited near the above lighthouse, visible between the bearings N.N.E. ¾ E. round by west and south to S.S.E. ¾ E. The light is, from some positions, obscured by a point of the mainland and Alceste Island between S. by E. ¾ E. and S.S.E. ¾ E. It is elevated 160 feet above the sea, and in clear weather should be seen from a distance of eight miles.—Hydrographic-office, Admiralty, Oct., 1874.

Gulf of Siam.—Fixed Light, entrance of Bangkok River.—Information has been received from the Acting Consul-General in Siam, that a light is now exhibited from a screw-pile lighthouse recently erected inside the bar at the entrance of Bangkok River, Siam. The light is a fixed white light, elevated about forty-four feet above the level of high water, and in clear weather should be seen from a distance of about ten miles. The illuminating apparatus is of the third order. The lighthouse is situated on the edge of the bank in lat. 13 deg. 29 min. 26 sec. N., long 100 deg. 35 min. 20 sec. E.—Hydrographic-office, Admiralty, Oct., 1874

Sir SAMUEL BAKER,

In his work on the Sources of the Nile, says:—

"I ordered my dragoman Mahomet to inform the "Faky that I was a doctor, and that I had the best "medicines at the service of the sick, with advice "gratis. In a short time I had many applicants, to "whom I served out a quantity of Holloway's Pills. "These are most useful to an explorer, as, possessing "unmistakable purgative properties, they create an "undeniable effect upon the patient, which satisfies "him of their value."

This fine Medicine cures all disorders of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys and Bowels, is a Great PURIFIER of the BLOOD, and wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to Females—young or aged.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present French mail brings advices from this port to the 23rd Sept.; and by the Pacific mail we have six days later news, viz., to the 29th Sept.; the French mail from London, 31st July, arrived out on the 15th Sept., and the following P. and O. mail of August 7 was received on the 21st Sept. The following summary of news is from the Japan Mail:—

There is no news from China, and the suspense created by its non-arrival is trying. In Yedo there is much excitement, activity, and spirit, and those who have seen the drilling of the troops, who are every day mustering there in increasing numbers, speak with high praise of their appearance and soldierly bearing. If a call has to be made on the nation it will certainly be responded to by all classes with readiness and enthusiasm. The nobles have come forward to offer a part of their revenues, the samurai their swords, and the traders will have to do the same with their money; nor are we disposed to think they will do it unwillingly.

The following is a translation of the original official notice of the German Minister Resident, relative to the sentence passed on the murderer of Mr. Haber:—

The undersigned, the Minister Resident of the German Empire, herewith publishes the sentence of the Imperial Japanese Government upon the murderer of the Acting-Consul of the German Empire at Hakodate, the late Mr. Haber, and further notifies German subjects and those enjoying German protection, that the sentence has been forwarded to Hakodate with the object of being forthwith put into execution. To Takasaki Hiditchka, Shisoku of the Akita Ken:—"You, in your foolish and short-sighted view, have believed that the decay of the knowledge of the mother country, regarded by you with reverence, had its origin in the peaceable intercourse with foreign countries, and therefore you have cherished the one-sided view that it would be best to kill a foreigner. In order to realise your plan, you secretly left your home and went to Hakodadi. Arrived there, you met, in a part of the town called 'Yatchigashira,' the Acting Consul of the German Empire, the late Mr. Haber; you then forthwith drew your sword, pursued, and murdered him in a most brutal manner. This being a most atrocious deed, and considering that you have committed a highly dishonourable act, you herewith are, according to the criminal code, sentenced to be expelled from the Class of Soku, and afterwards to be beheaded."

NOTICE.—To the Colonial Department, the Fu's and Kens.—Whereas, according to the Notification No. 110 of the 11th month of the current year, the Shisoku of the Akita ken Takasaki Hiditchka, having been sued for wilful murder of the Acting Consul of the German Empire, and this trial having been concluded, he has been sentenced as above mentioned. The crime for which the murderer has been sentenced being a serious one, which is calculated to injure the peaceful relations with foreign countries, the head of the criminal would have to be exhibited according to the Criminal Code before its revision, but whereas the Code has been revised, the sentence is that of decapitation only. In bringing this to notice, it is herewith made known and ordered, as was done some time ago, that our subjects should be made to understand this notification well, so that in future such crimes shall not again be committed.

The meeting of the residents convened to take into consideration the insufficiently protected state of the settlement was held on the 21st Sept. at the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Wilkin was called to the chair, and explained the objects of the meeting. The following resolutions were then passed.—Proposed by Mr. Hooper and seconded by Mr. Strachan.

That the frequent burglaries now occurring are to be attributed to the inadequacy of the native police force for the protection of the foreign settlement.

Digitized by Google

Proposed by Mr. Wylie and seconded by Mr. North,

That it is desirable to continue to urge upon the Japanese Government, through the medium of the Board of Consuls, the necessity of an increase of the police force, and a thorough patrol of the foreign settlement, and special examination of suspicious characters crossing the bridges during the night. Carried.

Proposed by Mr. Cope and seconded by Mr. Pistorius,

That a committee of five be appointed, who shall place themselves in communication with the Board of Consuls, and act generally on behalf of the foreign community in this matter, reporting progress from time to time through the newspapers, and if necessary summoning a public meeting. Carried.

The committee was then elected :—Messrs. T. Walsh, P. E. Pistorius, A. Evers, A. J. Wilkin, and E. G. Vouillemont. The meeting, which was very thinly attended, then dissolved.

The remarks of the Chairman on the subject of the registration of servants deserve the consideration of the residents. He said the Governor had established an office for this purpose, that this office was under his own control, and that no fee was charged for registration. The Chairman believed that this new system was free from the objections which were justly raised against the old system, and thought that, if adopted by the residents, it might do much to stop the non-violent class of robberies. The old system had been abolished because it was so odious to foreigners, while the new one appeared to have the approval of the Consuls. The former was made the instrument of "squeezing"; the latter promises to be free from this very important objection.

An inquest has been held at the Camp of the Royal Marines upon the body of Corporal Curtis, who was found drowned close to the steps leading down to the Homura Creek, near the Iron Works of Messrs. Whitfield and Dowson. How Curtis came by his death it is impossible to say. One of the men of the Battalion was doing something to the boats slung opposite these steps when his attention was called by a Japanese to a body in the water close by. It proved to be that of Corporal Curtis, who was last seen alive at about nine o'clock near the Temple at the top of Homura. Curtis was a steady man, and a great favourite in the Battalion which has lost him. The sides of the Creek being unprotected by rails are on dark nights sources of danger, to guard against which there should be either lamps or rails erected.

Both the American and French Consuls have dealt some heavy and effective blows at the gambling-houses. The keeper of the Hôtel de l'Univers has been threatened with deportation in case his house is again used for public play, and General Van Buren has heavily fined Wm. Nuttall, a proprietor of one of these establishments, and stated his intention of doing all that lies in his power to protect the community against them.

The Japan Gazette publishes the following translation of a spirited address to the samurai by Watanabé, Vice-Governor of Osaka :—"It is not long since the Saga insurrection was ended. Then as now you were courageous in combating the enemy in the service of your country. Your fidelity to the State merits reward; I recall it and shall never forget it. The officers who were then in Osaka for the defence of the district, and to whom I have reported your noble conduct, and your fidelity to the country, have been highly approved. But before you could even start the insurrection was finished. To-day the country demands other services from you. The Formosan war has produced great complication between China and Japan. The hour has come for you to show your bravery and fidelity to the country. You have no desire to remain indifferent to this great affair, in which is bound the glory or the ruin of our empire. Courage, then! and may your example be quickly followed by thousands of your brothers. You will fight our new enemies. You will die for the country; but your name will be honoured by the nation, and all the world will speak of you with respect and admiration."

A meeting of the agents of the insurance companies has been held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, a large number of English offices being represented. The subject of the wooden cornices, with which many of the recently-built houses are surmounted, and the formation of a salvage company occupied the attention of the meeting.

We read in the Gazette that the Mikado held a review of the troops in garrison in Yedo on the 19th inst. at Itzusima. The manœuvres were very satisfactorily performed by the soldiers, and reflected much credit upon their instructors, the French Military Mission.

A meeting of the nobles was held on the 25th Sept., to consider the question of contributing a part of their revenues to assist the Government during the expected war with China.

His Majesty the Mikado has entertained the foreign representatives at breakfast at Hama-goten.

We learn that the newly-appointed American Minister to China will leave San Francisco by the next mail steamer.

A telegraph cable has been successfully laid across the Tsugar Straits between Awomori and Hakodadi.

The prospects of the rice harvest are excellent throughout the country.

CHINA.

PEKING.

The Peking Gazette of Sept. 11 contains the following announcement :—

A Decree.—We have respectfully received the benign mandate of their Majesties the Empress Dowager and the Empress Mother [as follows] :—The Emperor sent forth a decree yesterday in which the Prince of Kung was stripped of his Imperial Princedom with hereditary succession in the same grade for ever, and was reduced to the second degree, Tsai-ch'êng (his son) being at the same time stripped of his title as Beileh Kün Wang. As regards the shortcoming in decorum of the Prince of Kung on occasions when speechhas been held with him, it is true that a penalty has been incurred for this offence; but remembering how the Prince of Kung, from the time when his support began to be rendered in public affairs, has not been wanting in exertions so distinguished as to merit acknowledgment, let, as a special grace, his rank as Imperial Prince with hereditary succession in the same grade for ever be restored to him, and let the title Beileh Kün Wang be likewise restored to Tsai-ch'êng. It behoves the Prince to respond to the desire of his Sovereign to convey a salutary admonition, and for the future to be more and more diligent and careful, contributing largely toward relief from difficulty and embarrassment, to the end that his trust be worthily discharged.

The Peking Gazette translations also contain a singularly forcible and sensible attack on the abuses connected with the likin system, and on the growth of opium in China, by a member of the Censorate. The memorial shows that there are men in the Empire capable of appreciating the fearful shortcomings in its administration, and who recognise the need there is for reorganisation. It is beyond the power of words, says the Censor, to depict in full the malpractices connected with the collection of the likin tax, which imposes grievous hardships on the population, and throws difficulties in the way of trade in transitu.

A rumour has been current among both foreigners and natives that the Peking Government declined to enter into negotiations with the Japanese High Commissioner Okubo, and that his application to be admitted to an Imperial audience had met with a refusal. The rumour is unconfirmed, however; and it is improbable that the Ambassador would have gone on to Peking, after waiting at Tientsin for return advices by courier, if he were not assured of his reception.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 27th Sept.; no later mail from London had been received. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald :—

The present mail by the Amazone is the last which leaves under the time arrangement for the south-west monsoon, and consequently twelve days will elapse before the departure of the next English mail, which leaves on the 9th October. Severe weather on the coast ushers in the change. A heavy typhoon is reported to have occurred at Hong Kong on the 22nd, while Shanghai has already had to endure half a week's steady rain. Outdoor engagements and amusements have had to be put off in consequence; but enough rain has now fallen to hold out prospects of an early change to the settled fine weather which is so pleasantly characteristic of the Shanghai winter.

The Glenartney, which left Woosung on the 31st of May, and was the first steamer home with new teas, reached here again on the 24th September, and has therefore made the round voyage in 116 days, including all detentions, in port or en route, and a loss of some four days by the late heavy gales. She is, we believe, the first steamer which has to be credited with the achievement.

A case in which Messrs. Siemssen and Co. sue Messrs. S. C. Farnham and Co. for $13,000 damage and demurrage in consequence of the breaking of a shaft which the defendants put into the steamer Yangtsze was begun on the 26th Sept. at the U.S. Consulate-General, before G. F. Seward, Esq., Consul-General, and Associates, and has been concluded. Judgment was reserved.

On the 24th Sept., at H.B.M. Court, before R. A. Mowat, Esq., Mr. P. Loureiro sued Mr. Stripling, acting superintendent of police, to recover $99.75, the alleged value of six balls of opium, his property, said to have been seized and detained through the illegal action of the municipal police. Mr. Litchfield appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Stripling conducted his own case. The facts were that a coolie in the plaintiff's employ was stopped by a likin runner on the Garden-bridge, who found the six balls of opium in a sycee basket he was carrying. The runner endeavoured to seize him, but the coolie resisted, and a Chinese policeman, in the employ of the Municipal Council, coming up at the moment, the likin man appealed to him for aid, and all three went to the Hongkew station. Sergeant Skinner was on duty there, and the coolie saying he did not know where he was taking the opium, although he had plaintiff's printed certificate vouching, as was contended, for plaintiff's ownership of it in his possession, the sergeant sent the men and the drug to the Mixed Court. Plaintiff himself went to the station to demand the opium, but it was not there, and he sued Mr. Stripling for its detention and value. In reply to his hon[illegible], the sergeant said he acted under the general orders given to the police, and not under special orders from Mr. Stripling. His honour said he could not see how Mr. Stripling could be held responsible, and gave judgment against the plaintiff.

The C. N. Company's steamer Glengyle was laid up after the discharge of her last cargo from the river ports, and has since undergone painting and slight repairs. We hear that she has been chartered to carry Chinese troops to Formosa.

A contingent of thirty Chinese boys from the Government Preparatory School, with a numerous suite of friends and attendants, has left by the Oregonian for the United States. The youths appeared to accept their expatriation very resignedly.

The Chinese corvette Sen Sing Fah, the first of the vessels built at the Foochow Arsenal, has arrived from Foochow, and awaits orders. She is a vessel of 600 tons, and carries six guns (four 20-pounder smooth-bores and two 15-pounder Krupps), is of 150-horse power, and has a crew of 130 men.

The French barque Union, with her cargo, now lying stranded on the Block House spit, has been sold by public auction at the sale rooms of Messrs. Mackenzie and Co. They were knocked down to Mr. Beer for the sum of Tls. 8,800. Messrs. Olyphant and Co., agents for the Chinese Insurance Company (Limited), as underwriters on the cargo, protested against the sale, but the Chancelier of the French Consulate-General, who was present, stated that the protection of the French Government would be given to any purchaser.

The China Merchants' Steam Navigation Company have just had built for them, opposite the Hongkew Wharf, on Broadway, a large machine shop, where all the work connected with their steamers, wharves, and hulks is to be executed. They have also bought from Messrs. Farnham and Co. the wharf and godowns, &c., they had on lease from that firm. The price is stated to be Tls. 75,000. These they purpose connecting with their offices in Hankow-road by a telegraph wire.

A meeting of the Shanghai Volunteer band has been held at the Main Guard. The principal business was the appointment of a leader, the gentleman who formerly held that office having left Shanghai. This important post has been accepted by M. Remusat, whose experienced co-operation will, no doubt, be of the greatest service to the association. M. Remusat pointed out the necessity of securing the services of one or two professionals, in order to render the band thoroughly efficient. The funds that have accumulated during the summer recess will be devoted to this purpose, but as the amount in hand is very limited, the secretary reminded the members that it could not be expected to go far. It was, therefore, resolved to appeal to the members of the S.V.C. to supply the deficiency. All the preliminaries being settled, the order was given to "fall in," and under the direction of the new leader, the band had a most satisfactory practice. It was agreed to meet regularly once a week for the same purpose.

The trial of Thomas Fawcett, charged with the manslaughter of a Chinaman named Yuen-chong-chow, at the lighthouse works on the Shantung Promontory, on the 30th July last, took place at Chefoo on the 21st Sept., before Sir E. Hornby, Chief Judge, and a jury. A verdict of "Not Guilty" was returned.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 3rd October; the P. and O. mail from London Aug. 21 was received on the 27nd September. The following items of news are from the Hong Kong Daily Press:—

THE TYPHOON.

The particulars of the sad disaster of the 22nd and 23rd Sept. are gradually coming to light; but even up to the present time the full effects of the typhoon can only be surmised. It is certain that the estimate of the number who have been lost is considerably under the actual total, which cannot be less than eight thousand at Hong Kong and Macao together, even if that comes up to the fact. Vessels arriving at the present time report meeting with dead bodies a long distance before reaching the port, and corpses continue daily to be washed ashore in various parts of the island. The damage done to property also turns out to be much larger than was anticipated. Persons well able to judge estimate that in Hong Kong alone the property lost in the form of vessels, damage to houses, buildings destroyed and goods damaged, cannot be short of a million pounds. The steamers Albay and Leonor still lie in the harbour, the latter with thirty or forty dead passengers in her, and it is doubtful whether they can be raised; and, although efforts have been made to move the Pacific Mail steamer Alaska from her position ashore at Aberdeen, they were, we regret to say, unsuccessful.

After the typhoon great difficulty was experienced in removing the dead bodies which came ashore in all directions. The destruction of life in native craft vastly outnumbers anything that has occurred before. In ordinary typhoons the places of shelter which the Chinese, who have a marvellous instinct in foreseeing the advent of these terrible visitations, seek, are sufficient to protect the large bulk of the junks and sampans. The poor people had, in the present instance, relied upon the shelter which had afforded them protection on former occasions, but were utterly mistaken in their calculations, as their craft were driven from their places of refuge, and—in the words of an eye-witness, who himself had a narrow escape in his vessel—large junks broke up actually like match boxes. One of the officers who was on board the Pacific mail steamer Alaska says that he saw a batch of fully a hundred junks founder all at once. The misery which has been spread both in this colony and at Macao is something appalling. One of the saddest considerations is, that numberless junks have utterly gone to atoms with every soul on board, so that hundreds of people must be kept in lengthened suspense as to the fate of friends and relatives, of which no one lives to tell the tale.

In addition to the misery which has been spread by the loss of life and property on the water, many sad stories are told of the ruin which has been wrought through loss of propery ashore. Some have lost almost their all, and few owners of property have escaped without some loss. Some of the stories told of the anxiety gone through on the night of the typhoon are startling. One gentleman, whose wife was ill, had to carry her from room to room in his bungalow, the roof going off one after another, and finally he had to seek the friendly shelter of a neighbour's house; and others with families suffered worse suspense, some instances having occurred of children being ushered into the world amidst the uproar and turmoil, and while large portions of the roof of the houses in which they were born were being blown away. Many, we hear, were forced to leave their dwellings, and large numbers had to pass the night on the lowest floors or in cellars, in hourly fear that their houses would go.

After the typhoon efforts were made by the police to clear away the dead bodies, but considerable complaint, which certainly appears well justified, has been made by the public of the slowness and inadequacy of the measures adopted. For a whole day almost nothing was done, as the Chinese coolies refused to work, partly on account of a superstition which the Chinese have against handling dead bodies—their idea being that if they touch a body they will be injured by the spirit of the dead man if they do not perform the funeral rites at his grave—and partly, no doubt, from the more practical idea that by holding out they would get better pay. In the confusion a large number of bodies were taken to the Civil Hospital, and remained there until the effluvium was such as to become dangerous to the patients. This state of affairs being represented steps were taken for the removal of the bodies, and more vigorous efforts made to get on with the work. The prisoners in the gaol were called out, and more coolies were then obtained. Complaints are, however, made that no application for assistance was made to the military, with whose aid the work, which has not been accomplished in a week, might, probably have been got through in at most a couple of days. At the present moment there are, as above noticed, between thirty and forty bodies on board the steamer Leonor, which lies close to the Praya in the centre of the town. Had military aid been invoked at once attention might have been brought to bear in this direction. To remove the bodies, as will have to be done, in a state of terrible decomposition with a thermometer at 85 degs., cannot but be attended with very great danger.

SAVING OF A PORTION OF THE CREWS AND PASSENGERS ON BOARD THE STEAMERS "ALBAY" AND "LEONOR."

We have been able to obtain the following details with reference to the gallant conduct of the gentlemen who assisted in saving a portion of the crews and passengers of the Albay and of the crew of the Leonor during the typhoon. We take this opportunity of correcting an oversight in our previous notice of the matter, namely, that of mentioning the names of other gentlemen who assisted in company with E. and G. Taufer, of the engine-house. Messrs. A. P. Mac Ewen and C. W. Baird, of Messrs. Holiday, Wise and Co.'s, Lieut. Prior, of the 80th, and Mr. Lembke exerted themselves to the utmost, and contributed largely to saving the unfortunate men who were brought ashore. The particulars of the action were as follows:—They heard that a ship, which proved afterwards to be the Albay, had got ashore about twenty minutes past one o'clock, and upon ascertaining the state of affairs, the Messrs. Taufer, of the engine-house, went out with lamps, but the violence of the wind was such that they could not be kept lighted. They then made torches of turpentine and waste, and Mr. E. Taufer made the end fast while his brother threw it on board, by which means three men were landed. While Mr. E. Taufer was holding on to the rope a severe sea struck him and carried him away into the lane, his foot being at the same time hit by some object which had been washed up; and about the same time the lights on the ships went out, and total darkness ensued. After a little Mr. McEwen, Mr. Beard, Lieut. Prior, and Mr. Lembke took the ropes in hand and succeeded in picking up several men, and as they came off brought them into the engine house. Mr. McEwen then went to the police station, and reported to Captain Deane, who expressed his regret that on account of the severity of the weather he could not send out any of his men to assist. Mr. McEwen then returned to the scene of action. The captain, chief and second mates stayed at the engine house all night, being too exhausted to move, and the remainder were taken by the party who saved them up to the police station. This was effected only with great difficulty, and the only way they could get them on was by Mr. McEwen and the others leading the way and shouting out repeatedly to them, so that they might know in what direction to follow. In this manner they reached their destination, and on their arriving at the Police Station the men were taken in and attended to. At about three to half-past three o'clock the party again went out with lamps to see what further assistance could be rendered. There was no one within reach at the time; but shortly after a Chinaman came swimming ashore. On asking him who he was he said he was the fireman of the Leonor, which vessel had got ashore outside the Albay. They then enquired of him whether there were any men on board, and he replied that he did not know. While holding the lamps out they heard cries, and they then flashed the light outwards towards the ship's mast and found that there was a man hanging on among three masts which had got entangled. The sea having by this time to some extent subsided, the brothers Taufer launched a boat, and went out and took five off the foremast of the Leonor, two of them the second and third engineers, and the remaining three Chinese. On a subsequent journey they brought back five more Chinese, and on a third trip two more men. Mr. Cox and another gentleman, of Messrs. Lane, Crawford and Co.'s, helped to launch the boat, supplied them with rope, and rendered assistance to the unfortunate men.

MISCELLANEOUS PARTICULARS.

We are glad to hear that H. E. the Governor has addressed a letter of thanks to Mr. McLeod and the other gentlemen who assisted in putting out the fire in Bonham Strand on the night of the typhoon.

We regret to learn that the Hon W. H. Alexander, Registrar of the Supreme Court, received a rather serious wound on the front of the leg just above the foot, by the falling of a window during the typhoon. On account of a difficulty in procuring medical assistance the wound bled for some time, and Mr. Alexander is in consequence somewhat weakened.

Fifteen seamen of the Peruvian ship Macao No. 2 having been saved and returned to the colony in a sampan, presented themselves at the Magistracy, and (such is routine) were placed on the charge sheet charged with being destitutes. They said the Consul was at Macao, and no boarding house would take them in as they had lost all, and their keep was not guaranteed by the Consul. His Worship told them that he would commucicate with the Consul, but in the meantime they could stay in the gaol. A boarding house keeper in Court however consented to keep the men himself till Monday in his house, when it may be ascertained from the Consul what he will do with them.

On the 28th Sept., at high water, an attempt was made to haul the Alaska from her position on shore at Aberdeen. The Kiukiang, Fame, and Little Orphan were employed, but they tugged unfortunately to no avail. The Celestial hulk was lashed alongside for the purpose of lightening the steamer. The large 14-in. hawser used was snapped by the Kiukiang. The P.M.S.S. Company express themselves much indebted to the Commodore and the authorities at the Naval Yard for the supply of hawsers, &c., which they generously placed at their disposal. We are informed that further and more carefully prepared efforts will now be made to get the steamer afloat, and we trust sincerely that they will prove successful. By latest accounts there was no change in the position of the steamer. She was still tight and fast, and had not suffered in any way. We learn that it is hoped in the course of a few weeks to have her floated off, which is considered to be only a question of time and systematic operations.

The missing on board the British bark Malvern are Captain Myles and wife, chief mate, boatswain, carpenter, steward, cook, five able seamen, two ordinary seamen, and two apprentices. On board the Peruvian ship Macao No. 2, the mate, second mate, three seamen, and ten Chinese passengers perished in the breaking up of that vessel on an island near the Cap-sing-moon Pass. There is yet some hope that the Spanish bark Teresa will turn up again, as she was to have left the same afternoon as the French ship Radama, which vessel, set down as missing, returned to port again on Saturday. Several gangs of prisoners were out on Saturday in Taiping-shan and other places clearing away the wreck of houses, from under the debris of which many dead bodies were drawn out. The sailors at the Home were employed by the police to bury the dead found on land and water. The police on Saturday exerted themselves to assist, and some hundreds were interred at Lap-sap-wan, Stonecutter's Island, and Kowloon. The stench along the Praya from the dust-bin rubbish spread about, from putrid rice, fish, and such like Chinese merchandise, is dreadful, and had not the dead bodies been taken away this colony would assuredly have been visited by a plague.

Considerable damage has been sustained by the Camphor Works, East Point. The works are eight feet above high water mark, and the tide rose five feet in the building, thus showing that it was no less than thirteen feet above high water mark.

The ship Macao, has broken up on some rocks at the corner of Lantao Island, to which she drifted. She is now a complete wreck. The ship Everhard, wrecked close upon the Point, has also gone to pieces. The P. and O. cargo boat has also been found near the same spot, not much injured.

We hear that Inspector Youngson, of the police force, who is stationed at Sowkewan, has been performing wonders in meeting the difficulties resulting from the typhoon there, and has, in fact, acted almost as a hero, having single-handed taken matters in hand, had the dead buried, and so averted the consequences in the form of disease which must otherwise have accrued. Inspector Burns, of Yowmahtee, is also deserving of great credit. He was most active during the storm, and succeeded in saving twenty-six Chinese from a junk which had capsized. He went off in a sampam, and cut a hole in the bottom with a hatchet, and so took the men out.

A letter from Macao says :—

It is impossible to describe the complete desolation which reigns over this place, in consequence of the late typhoon. The mortality among the Chinese has been unprecedented, and the length of the beach in the whole of the inner and outer harbour is lined with corpses. No less than four hundred dead bodies have already been picked up, and they are coming ashore thick at each flow of the tide. The police and the soldiers are busily engaged gathering them together, and in order to avoid a pestilence, which it is considered will infallibly follow longer delay, the bodies will be burnt at Portado Ares, as it is impossible to obtain hands to bury them.

At Taipa and at Colowane the destruction and loss of life have also been enormous.

The National Battalion has been ordered out by the Government for the better protection of the city, as plundering is going on in all directions. The misery which has been caused is terrible and wide-spread, and the Governor has, with praiseworthy consideration, ordered that food shall be supplied to the poor Christians from the parish churches.

The French barque Chateaubriand left this for Newchang two days before the hurricane, and must have suffered severely.

We are glad to learn that Inspector Grimes and Sergeant Miller rendered signal service during the recent hurricane. When the storm was at its highest they assisted in landing the crew from the barque Lizzie and Rosa. They also, at great exertion and with no little danger, rescued about fifty seamen of all nationalities from drowning, and rendered valuable assistance at the fallen houses.

The British barque Lizzie and Rosa has been sold by auction by Mr. Armstrong, and realised $3,500.

SIAM.

—o—

BANGKOK.

Our advices extend to the 24th Sept. The following items are from the Siam Weekly Advertiser :—

Sept. 5, 1874, 5. P.M.—H.M. was present in the Throne Room Amarindr Winichai, and promoted T'au-kam-mul to the rank and title of P'ra-pra-tuma-wisate, Governor of the Province Kantarawichai. This region was formerly known as Ban-kan-t'ahng, and is now promoted to provincial privileges, under the jurisdiction of the Province Kalalasin. Instructions have been sent to T'au Pi-ah, the Government officials, and to all the people residing in the region Kantarawichai, in compliance with the directions of the governors of the neighbouring provinces.

Sept. 9th, 1874.— During the forenoon the Buddhist priests were fed and religious services relating to the relics (bones) of H. M. P'ra-putt'a-yautfah-chula-loke, the First King of the present dynasty, at the idol place. H.M. the Supreme King was not present at this ceremony, but one of H.M.'s younger brothers was present instead.

As a continuation of these ceremonies, in the afternoon H.M. the King visited the Lawn Sanáhmyàh a short time, thence went to the temple, where the priests went through the Buddhistic incantations, and the Priest Amaramohlee delivered a homily on the occasion.

Sept. 15th, 1874.—During the forenoon, ten priests were fed at the temple, and religious services were listened to in connection with the royal relics. These religious ceremonies relate to the demise of the past Kings of Siam. H.M. the King was not present at this ceremony, but directed Prince Chitr Charoen to be in attendance, listen, and serve the priests with the customary devotion and presents.

At night H.M. visited the place, listened to the Buddhistic incantations of the priests and their homilies, and subsequently made the customary presents to the ten priests.

The exciting and all absorbing events of the week have been extensive preparations and studied demonstrations to show the national respect and high appreciation of their young but remarkable King.

The people of other nationalities are deserving of great praise for their cordial co-operation in efforts to honour H.M. on the occasion.

The evening of the 19th was the commencement of display.

The banks of the river, the creeks, and the sides of the streets all over the city gave demonstrations of the busy activity and cheerful zeal of people living in locations covering extensive surfaces of many miles, displaying by lights, attractive devices indicative of loyalty, respect, and gladness.

The bands helped to contribute to the pleasures of the evening by playing choice airs. As they played the Siamese national, all eyes were directed to catch a glimpse of H.M., who made his appearance accompanied by H.R.H. Bhanurangse swang, wongs and other younger brothers, attended by the Royal Body Guards. As H. M passed each bowed and received from H.M. a gracious recognition. The King gracefully as well as graciously entered into conversation with the princes, nobles, foreign Consuls, and foreign residents, making the moments pass away charmingly.

On the evening of the 21st the residence and grounds of H. E. Chow Phya Bhanuwongse Maha Kosa Dhipoti, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, was beautifully ornamented, illuminated, and crowded with invited guests and spectators. A large band, having thorough command of the use of foreign instruments, enlivened the occasion with inspiriting music.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 12th October ; no later mail from London had arrived out. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times :—

In consequence of the plague having broken out at Jeddah, the following orders have been issued by the Governor in Council with respect to vessels arriving from that port :—

1. Every vessel arriving at any of the ports of the colony from Jeddah shall hoist the usual quarantine or yellow flag at the mainmast-head, and shall remain outside the limits of the port till visited by the Health Officer and admitted to communicate with the port.

2. On the arrival of every such vessel the Health Officer of the port or his deputy shall forthwith proceed on board, and shall examine into the state of health of the passengers and crew ; and if it shall appear to him after enquiry that no case of plague has occurred on board the vessel during the passage, he may, after twenty-four hours' observation, and subject to the control of the Governor, admit such vessel to free communication with the port and settlement.

Digitized by Google

If it shall appear that any case of plague has occurred on board any such vessel within twenty-one days the vessel shall be taken to the quarantine anchorage, and there detained without communication with the shore or with other vessels till twenty-one days after the latest case may have happened on board.

3. In all cases the Post-office packets and mails in any such vessels shall be forthwith delivered and subjected to such fumigation or other preventive process as the health officer of the port may direct.

4. Coals and cargo may be shipped on and landed from vessels immediately on their arrival in which no case of plague may have occurred within twenty-one days.

The E. and A. Mail Company's chartered steamer Jeddah, Capt. De Bar, from Melbourne 12th, Sydney 16th, Brisbane 19th, Keppel Bay 21st, Bowen 22nd, Townsville 23rd, and Somerset 26th September, had arrived at Tanjong Pagar Wharf. A boat with seven shipwrecked sailors arrived at Townsville on the 20th Sept., with the 2nd officer in charge, who reports that the ship Guinevere, of London, bound from Melbourne to Manila, was lost on the 4th Sept. on Pocklington reef, near New Guinea. Three boats containing all hands (twenty-five) left in company, but soon parted. One boat with five men arrived at Townsville on the 21st inst.; the third boat, with the captain, chief officer, and ten men, was still missing. They say none on board were aware that there was any settlement north of Port Denison, and were proceeding southward, when they discovered the lighthouse at Cape Bowling Green, landed there, and were directed to Townsville, and the Jeddah was requested to keep a look out for the missing boat. Up to the 26th September, the date of departure of the Jeddah, no further news had been received in Somerset regarding the boat.

Captain Thorburn, of the British barque Ida, arrived here from Manila by the Spanish steamer Paragua, and reports the total loss of his vessel on the 29th August, on a reef improperly marked in his chart, when entering the port of Cebu Philippines. The chart was a French one, dated 1863, and corrected up to 1869. After the vessel struck, bearings were taken, Cebu bearing N.N.W. ½ W., and S.E. end of Mactan N.E. by E. After getting aground, signals were made and guns fired to attract the attention of two Spanish men-of-war at anchor about three miles distant, but without effect. A boat belonging to the Swiftsure was, however, manned by a few English gentlemen, who put off to the stranded vessel, and rendered all the assistance in their power, but it was impossible to get the ship afloat, and she became a total loss. She was laden with a cargo of rice from Saigon, only a small portion of which, we learn, has been saved. The crew have, we understand, been sent to Hong Kong.

The Sarawak Gazette of the 1st Oct. contains the following items of interest:—

The British ship Annie Gray, of 726 tons register, Capt. R. More, from Hong Kong, August 18, anchored at Rejang on the 22nd ult. Her cargo consists of 3,130 bags salt, 100 bags rice, 5 boxes Chinese tobacco, $2,000 specie, and 18 packages merchandise. The greater portion of the salt will be transhipped to Kuching. The Annie Gray will load a full cargo of bilian timber for Hong Kong on account of Kong Shoon Lee.

The new Kongsi, Messrs. San Tai Long and Co., have also a load of timber ready for shipment, and they expect their vessel, the Charlie Palmer, at Rejang in twelve or fifteen days.

Notice is given to the shareholders in the Galena Mining Company, Limited, that, in accordance with the Articles of Association, a third call of $6 per share will be payable on or before the 10th Nov., after which date interest at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum will be charged on all unpaid calls.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

At a meeting of the Legislative Council, held on the 5th Oct., Mr. T. Scott gave notice of his intention to move, at the next meeting of Council, "That in the opinion of this Council it is inexpedient that the Acting Assistant Colonial Secretary shall also act as Clerk of Councils."

The Colonial Engineer laid upon the table the report of the Committee on the Penang Wharf scheme.

The third reading of the Bill for the Regulation of Passenger Ships was moved by the Acting Colonial Secretary and seconded by the Treasurer.

A resolution to the following effect was carried unanimously: "That this Council desires respectfully to submit to the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for the Colonies, that in the interests of the trade of these settlements and for protection of British subject, it is desirable that a British Consul be appointed at Jeddah."

The following amended resolution was also carried:—"That this Council view favourably the project for connecting the Indian Telegraph lines in British Burmah with Australia, via the Malay States and the Straits Settlements, in connection with a submarine cable to Australia and New Zealand. Provided that communication be established with the Dutch lines in Sumatra; and provided further, that the united contribution for this Colony and the protected Malay States—Johore, Salangore, and Perak—shall not exceed £16,000. And the Council further request that his Excellency the Governor will take such steps as may be necessary for giving effect to the resolution."

The Governor said he would direct that the papers relating to the seizure of Chin Hoon's steamer be laid upon the table.

THE ATCHIN WAR.

The following important intelligence from Atchin is published in a Penang Gazette Extra of 6th Oct.:—

We have received some rather important intelligence from Atchin, which confirms what we have already stated concerning the tactics of the present Commander-in-Chief. On the 28th September the Dutch troops took no less than eight stockades situated in the hostile Campongs Lankruk and Lampulu. They likewise captured eleven pieces of cannon, their loss actually amounting to merely two slightly wounded. The success has placed in the hands of the Dutch a strategical position of great importance, and we only hope we may soon hear of additional attacks of a similar nature. It is only by a quick succession of decisive victories that the Dutch may hope to bring the Atchinese to terms, and we certainly believe that the longer the struggle lasts, the more difficult does the task become, especially now the blockade of most of the Atchinese ports has been raised.

Several dependent States have lately acknowledged Netherland supremacy, the following being a recapitulation of all the places that have accepted the Dutch flag, and which are consequently opened for trade:—

On the West Coast: All the small States from Trumon to Weylah, including Tampat Tuan, Analaboo, Labuan-Hadjee, and Mukkie; likewise the ports Patty and Kluang.

On the North Coast: Gegeang, Aerleboo, Passangan, Teloksamoi, and Endjung.

On the East Coast: Edi Busar, Padawa Ketjil, Padawa Busar, Pasci, Kertie, Perlak, Tamiang, Sunghy Ijoe, and Sunghy Riah.

As far as our geographical knowledge of Atchin extends, we believe that we are correct in stating that the West Coast of Atchin is now under the Dutch flag, with the exception of the territory between Wylah and Patty, and from Patty to Kluang, Rigas being the only port of importance that has not yet submitted.

On the North Coast, Pedir, Merhoe, and Samalang are the only important States that have not yet acknowledged the supremacy, and on the East Coast Simpang Oolim still refuses to come to terms. Respecting Juloh we are informed that negotiations are still pending.

We join our wishes to those of the mercantile community of the place and trust that during the approaching favourable season (North-east monsoon) the Dutch may be enabled either by negotiations or by force of arms to bring the war to an end, and to sustain peace and order in the Kingdom of Atchin.

Commercial Report.

YOKOHAMA.—The market had been fairly active. A large business had been done in Cotton Yarn, the lower qualities of Nos. 16 to 24, and better qualities of Nos. 28 to 32, having attracted most attention. In Grey Shirtings sales had been limited, but a better feeling was apparent at the close. The business in Drills and 7 lb. T-Cloths for army purposes, continued; but the demand for Blankets had somewhat lessened. Cotton Sateens were more enquired for, whilst Velvets, Taffachelass, and Indigo Shirtings were steady. In Woollens and Mixtures generally the better feeling had continued, and fair transactions in Italian Cloth, Plain and Figured Orleans had taken place at improving rates. The demand for Camlet Cords had been sustained, and a fair business had been done in Mousselines-de-laine. There had been a speculative demand for Cloth at low rates. In Metals the business of the fortnight had been almost entirely in the hands of Chinese, who had imported from Hong Kong considerable quantities of Flat, Round, and Square Bar Iron.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—A fair amount of business had been done, and deliveries of many articles showed a comparative improvement. Prices generally had been well maintained, and for some Woollen fabrics an advance had been established. Cottons.—Yarns: The demand for these goods was moderate, and confined to the best chops, inferior makes being very difficult to move. Grey Shirtings: Settlements had again been considerable, including a large proportion of 7 lbs. cloth. Superior chops were scarce, and readily saleable at high quotations. T-Cloths: The demand appeared to be slowly on the increase. Turkey Reds: Fair inquiry for the lighter descriptions, and stocks of these limited. Black Velvets taken to a large extent at former rates, which were well maintained. Taffachelass: A good demand had been experienced, resulting in advanced quotations. Worsteds and Woollens.—Camlets had attracted somewhat more attention. Black Orleans continued saleable, and prices had further advanced, owing to the limited supply. Mousselines de Laine: The business done in the various descriptions of these goods had been considerable. Prices were a little higher for the lower qualities of Plain, but otherwise unchanged. A fair demand had existed for Lastings, Figured Orleans, Checked and Striped Lustres, and Italian Cloth, and prices generally had improved.

CHEFOO.—Messrs. Wilson, Cornabe, and Co.'s circular, dated Sept. 8, says:—Our last circular was issued on the 1st ult., and since that date a fair business has been done in Grey Shirtings and T-Cloths; but the rates accepted have been considerably under the equivalent of Shanghai values for a like class of goods. Drills have been dull of sale, but we look for a good demand as soon as they are generally more enquired after during the autumn months. In fancy cottons there has been very little done. Metals: Iron, both nail, rod, and bar, has continued in fair enquiry, but prices have, if anything, a downward tendency. Lead has been quite neglected.

SHANGHAI.—The market had continued very quiet, but there were signs of approaching improvement.

MANILA.—Messrs. Smith, Bell and Co.'s Circular says:—During the past fortnight the market for Plain Staples has continued very quiet, and the operations reported in same have been of a limited character, notwithstanding that prices exhibit a decided tendency in favour of buyers, which may be accounted for by the general dulness of trade for some time past in Piece Goods, and the somewhat large stocks of these at present held by most dealers, which they consider equal to meet the demand for some little time to come. Most classes of coloured goods are in much the same position, but importers are now holding their stocks of Ginghams and Cambayas at firmer rates. As, however, the rainy season, taking the past few years as a guide, is now drawing to a close, we hope soon to see a better demand set in, and a considerable advance established upon the prices which ruled during the last two or three months.

SAIGON.—The market had continued very dull.

EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—The market had been active, and an advance of $1.50 to $2 had been established. Settlements, from the 8th September to date, amounted to 10,200 piculs, the market continuing fairly supplied by arrivals. Prices closed firm. The P.M. steamer Colorado left on the 12th Sept., with 278,691 lbs. from this port; and the s.s. Vasco de Gama on the same date, with 371,082 lbs. The barque Bothwell Castle sailed on the 17th for San Francisco, with 509,230 lbs. for all destinations. The Ambassador had completed her cargo, and will have early despatch for New York. The New Republic, 580 tons, was on the berth for the same port, at £2 15s. per forty cubic feet. Quotations: Common, $27 to 29 per picul; Good Common, $31 to 34 per picul; Medium, $35 to 38 per picul; Good Medium, $39 to 41 per picul; Fine, $43 to 46 per picul; Finest, $48 to 51 per picul; Choice, $55 upwards per picul.

HIOGO-OASKA.—During the early part of the month business was brisk at about previous quotations, but as settlements increased the market had gradually hardened, and closed very firm at quotations, dealers evidently looking to obtain full rates by holding their present stocks. Purchases for the month aggregate 7,500 piculs; making total settlements for the season to date 35,950 piculs, against 15,875 piculs for the same period last year. Stocks were about 2,800 piculs, consisting principally of higher grades. Medium and good medium Teas were in small supply. Quotations: Common, $22 to 26; good common, $27 to 30; medium, $32 to 35; good medium, $37 to 38; fine, $40 to 44; finest, $44 to 49; choice, $50 to 56; choicest, nominal.

SHANGHAI.—There had been rather a quiet market during the week. In Congou there was only a small business reported, though actual settlements had exceeded the figures given below. Quotations were weak, but as yet unchanged for common grades, whilst Teamen were very firm in dealing with all the better parcels. Green Teas moved slowly, and quotations had a downward tendency. Judging from figures of stock, it would seem as though Teamen had endeavoured to support prices by keeping back supplies. The following settlements had been made:—Black, 7,883 chests at Tls. 15¾ to 24; stock, 10,600 chests. Green: Fychow and Moyune, 13,884 half-chests at Tls. 28 to 41½; Pingsueys, 4,496 half-chests at Tls. 14 to 36½. Export to date to Great Britain (exclusive of lost cargoes:)—

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Telegraphic advices of a better feeling in the Home markets had produced an active demand here, and prices had advanced $10 to 20 per picul. At this advance the quotations were maintained. Arrivals had not been large. Stocks of new Silk had been reduced, and offered but a poor assortment. Settlements, from July 1 to date, 2,700 bales, against corresponding period—season 1873-4, 3,500; do. 1872-3, 6,000; do. 1871-2, 4,500. Stock, 500 bales old and new Silk. Silkworms' Eggs: Total arrivals were about 800,000 cards, against 30,000 last year at the same date, and very large quantities were reported to be in stock at Yedo. The Japanese were anxious sellers, at from 40c. to 70c. for annual Green, ordinary to best; some choice parcels were held at 80c. About 160,000 cards had passed into foreigners' hands, but scarcely one-third had been settled at the above prices.

SHANGHAI.—The high prices demanded by Chinese had curtailed business, holders, as a rule, being very firm for a slight advance; re-reels especially had been settled at full rates. The following were some of the quotations:—Yah-kee Chop, No. 3, Tls. 395 per picul (on joint account); Clouded Dragon Chop, Nos. 2 and 3, Tls. 345 and 325 per picul; Black Lion Chop, No. 3, Tls. 330; Bird Chop Kin-ling, Tls. 305; Tungsen's Gna-ling, Tls. 275; Market No. 4 Tsatlees, Tls. 310 to 335; Common Tsatlees, Tls. 240 to 270; Pang-e-tai's Raw Hainings (barter), Tls. 310; Common Laeyang (Skeins), Tls. 205 to 215; Re-reeled Tsatlees, Tls. 300 to 360; do., Hainings, Tls., 310 to 420. Settlements were about 2,000 bales, including about 500 left over from last mail, making total to date 40,500 bales, against 30,000 bales to same date last year. Arrivals since the 19th Sept. amounted to about 2,500 bales, and the unsold stock had increased to 13,500 bales.

WE are glad to hear from the Japanese Legation that they have received official confirmation of the amicable settlement of the Formosa difficulty. We also learn that Mr. WOO YENO, late Vice Minister for Foreign Affairs at Yedo, is appointed Minister Plenipotentiary of Japan to this country, and will arrive here shortly. Mr. YOSHIDA KYONARI, who now fills the office of Under Minister of Finance, has been appointed the representative of Japan at Washington.

COMMERCIAL POSTSCRIPT.

TEA.—The sales announced for the week comprise over 17,000 packages, nearly all "without reserve." 2,872 packages, consisting of Ping Suey and Moyune green teas, were sold on Monday at very depressed rates, showing generally a decline of 1d. to 2d. on recent quotations. 6,000 packages passed on Tuesday, and in the case of green teas a still further depression was shown. Comparatively few congous have been sold, but these sold below private contract rates.

SUGAR.—The public sales have been small. Of Manila (Ilo Ilo) 200 tons are reported sold at 18s.; 3,400 bags Penang late at 17s. 6d. to 19s.; 250 tons cane Jagghery at 16s. 6d. to 16s. 9d.; and to arrive 300 tons cane and date Jagghery, now shipping, at 17s. per cwt.

COFFEE.—A rather quiet market, without alteration in prices. 241 casks 68 barrels and bags Plantation Ceylon sold—low middling to middling, 107s. to 111s. 6d.; bold, 114s.; small, 100s. to 105s.

TEA ADULTERATION.

On the 3rd inst. a meeting of the City Commission of Sewers was held at Guildhall, Mr. W. S. Gover, their chairman, presiding. A report was brought up from the Sanitary Committee upon a reference from the last Court to them, to inquire and report relative to the sale of teas at the London Commercial Salerooms on the 28th ult., and stated in the catalogue to have been analysed by the "Public Anaylist for the City of London, and pronounced fit for sale in this market." When this statement was read at the last meeting of the Commission of Sewers by Mr. Elias Davis, Dr. Sedgwick Saunders, the Medical Officer and Public Analyst for the City, was absent by illness, and he was afforded no opportunity of answering it before the Commission until this meeting, when the Sanitary Committee, who had in the meantime been directed to inquire into the matter, brought up their report. In that report they stated that, having heard Mr. Elias Davis and the medical officer of health at length, they found that the sample of tea laid by Mr. Davis on the table of the Court at their last meeting was not the same as that which was analysed by Dr. Saunders at the request of Messrs. Hawes and Hertz; that it was not the same as was subsequently analysed by Professor Wanklyn at Dr. Saunders' request; neither was it the same as that which was advertised in the circular of Messrs. Sillar and Co.; and having had laid before them a sample of that which was analysed by Dr. Saunders, at the request, as he stated, of Messrs. Hawes and Hertz, and which had been subsequently analysed by Professor Wanklyn, the committee was of opinion that such tea was fit for human food. Dr. Saunders, being in his place at the present meeting of the Commission, stated in effect that on the 19th of Sept. last he received an application from Messrs. Hawes and Hertz, of 14, Mincing-lane, requesting him to analyse some tea which had been accidentally wetted with Thames river water, and afterwards carefully redried in a kiln. Having ascertained that the brokers so applying were of the highest respectability, and believing it to be his duty in the interests of the public to determine whether the tea so sent to him was suitable for consumption as human food, he proceeded to make his analysis. Before, however, doing so he showed the sample of tea to an experienced tea buyer, who assured him that it was perfectly good and saleable, and that he could not detect anything the matter with it. The tea alluded to consisted to outward appearance of good black tea of rather large leaves, free from coarse stalks, sweet to the smell, and without the slightest taint of damp, or mildew, or decomposition. The result of his analysis showed that the tea was perfectly sound and fit for human food, its hygrometrical condition was the normal average, namely, 7 per cent.; that the per centage of ash—particularly the soluble portion of it—was equal to that found in ordinary commercial air-dried tea, but that the quantity of extractive matter was rather below that usually obtained from tea of the same character. Owing to this deficiency, he, for the better protection of the public, obtained an independent analysis of the same tea from Professor Wanklyn, and, finding that gentleman's results to agree with his own in every essential particular, and he having expressly stated in his report that the tea was perfectly fit for human food, he (Dr. Sedgwick Saunders) did not hesitate to certify accordingly. Dr. Saunders added that he gave no authority to Messrs. Hawes and Hertz to make any public use of his certificate, and had no knowledge of their having done so, until he saw the reference to the subject in the Money Article of The Times. Dr. Saunders produced a portion of the tea in question, which the Sanitary Committee reported as "serviceable and good," and which had not the slightest resemblance to the tea-dust laid upon the table by Mr. Elias Davis, and alleged by that gentleman to have been the tea examined by Dr Saunders. Mr. J. C. Davis, in bringing up the report of the Sanitary Committee, took occasion to say he had no doubt Mr. Elias Davis was duped into making the statement he did before the Commission at their last meeting, and that the medical officer should be very careful in giving certificates in such cases unless the whole bulk was examined, and not merely a sample. Mr. Elias Davis explained that, after calling the attention of the Commission to the statement in question in The Times, he referred to spurious tea in certain warehouses in the City, and laid a specimen on the table containing a large proportion of iron filings. He now believed that the medical officer had been made the dupe of other parties in an unguarded moment. Mr. Elias Davis now regretted the whole transaction from beginning to end. It had been a painful subject to him, but he took it up in the public interest and from a sense of duty, after reading the statement to which he had referred. This explanation of Mr. Davis was emphatically cheered by several members of the Commission. Mr. Ashby dwelt on the necessity of a public officer of the Commission being above all suspicion, and commended the promptitude with which the subject had been investigated by the Commission. Mr. Deputy Farrar remarked that Dr. Saunders had entirely disavowed all knowledge that the certificate he gave would be publicly used as it had been. The brokers were greatly to blame in having published that certificate. The most discreditable part of the matter to Deputy Farrar's mind was that Mr. Davis had put on the table a sample of the tea supposed to represent that which had been at the bottom of the Thames, and another sample of tea which had not been certified by the analyst. At the same time he believed Mr. Davis in doing what he did had acted from a high sense of public duty. That observation of Mr. Farrar was much cheered. Mr. Deputy Lowman Taylor thought Dr. Saunders had given a satisfactory explanation, and had given moreover an assurance that in future he would take care that any certificate he might give should not be used in public. The matter was then allowed to drop.

THE LOSS OF THE "CHUSAN."—The Board of Trade inquiry into the loss of the steamer Chusan at Ardrossan was resumed on the 9th. A portion of the day was spent in the examination of Mr. Pearce, one of the partners of the firm of John Elder and Co., Glasgow, the builders of the unfortunate vessel. Mr. Pearce stated that the vessel was not intended for seagoing purposes, although she was constructed so as to make her perfectly safe to go to China. His opinion on this point was strengthened by the fact that the vessel came through the storm without showing any signs of weakness or making any water. The Board of Trade surveyor gave it as his opinion that the Chusan was unfit for the voyage to China in the fall of the year, and that she broke up on the rock in consequence of a deficiency in deck strength.

MAILS FOR JAPAN AND CHINA.—Information has been received from the United States Post-office of a change which has been made in the days for despatching mails to Japan and China by the United States mail packets from San Francisco. The packets now sail from San Francisco on fixed days of the week—viz., on every alternate Saturday; the days appointed during the remainder of the present year being—Saturday, December 12; Saturday, December 26, and, thenceforward, every fourteen days. Correspondence intended to be forwarded by this route must be specially addressed "via San Francisco," and, in order to insure its arrival at San Francisco in time for the packet, should be posted about three weeks before the date fixed for sailing from that port.

THE Messageries Maritimes steamer Amazone, with the present inward mail, arrived at Marseilles on the 9th inst., at 8 A.M. She brings 112 passengers and a general cargo, including 548 bales of silk, 19,728 packages of tea, 215 packages of sundries; also specie, value £67,663, for London, which part of her cargo will be forwarded to its destination per Company's steamer Gange, due in London on or about the 23rd inst.

AT a meeting last week, at Winchester, in aid of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, the report stated that, through the munificence of two anonymous donors of £1,000 and £500 per annum, the Society has been able to extend its missions to the new and interesting fields of labour in China and Japan.

THE Russian Government has resolved to construct a line of railway connecting Russia with Siberia and China. As it is to take the southern route by way of Orenburg, and as the commercial classes are in favour of a northern route viâ Yekatherinenberg, great disappointment is felt, and some excitement is said to prevail. The Government is to be asked to reconsider its decision.

THE screw steamship Whampoa, Captain J. C. Jacques, has just arrived in London from Calcutta, having made the run from Suez to Dover of 13½ days, completing the voyage home in 32 days, including all stoppages.

LONDON: WEDNESDAY, NOV. 11, 1874.

THE CHINESE EMIGRATION CONSOLIDATION ORDINANCE, 1874.

THIS Ordinance, the purpose of which is to consolidate and amend the law relating to Chinese passenger ships, and the conveyance of Chinese emigrants, was read a first time by the Legislative Council of Hong Kong on August 31st, and, with a few verbal alterations, passed its second reading on Sept. 7th, as No. 5 of 1874. Its provisions are very definite and minute, and if it be carefully worked, we doubt not that it will adequately secure the comfort and safety of the Chinese for whose benefit it has been framed.

The measure before us consists of two main portions, the former providing "Regulations under the Chinese Passengers' Act," and the latter treating of "Emigration from Ports out of the Colony." In Part I. it is directed that notice of a vessel being laid on the berth as a Chinese passenger ship must be given to the Emigration Officer in writing, with full particulars as to her destination, &c., and that no such vessel shall proceed to sea without a licence from the Governor, who at the same time has the power of exempting vessels, provided that their Chinese passengers are "free emigrants and under no contract of service whatever." By Section 6 no one is allowed to act as an Emigration Passage Broker unless he shall, with two sufficient sureties, have entered into a bond (which must be renewed annually) for $5,000, and have obtained a licence "to let or sell passages," the fee for the same being $200. Each passenger is to receive a contract ticket, printed in a plain and legible type, and accompanied with a Chinese translation in plain and legible characters, and such ticket is to be delivered and explained to him before the Emigration Officer, after which no alteration is to be introduced. Offences under this section are punishable by fines varying from $50 to $400, or by terms of imprisonment varying from six weeks to six months. Section 7 provides carefully for the hospital accommodation and medical inspection of emigrants, and they will not be allowed to embark without a permit showing that they have undergone the required medical examination. Under this section a Chinese medical practitioner, if duly qualified, may be surgeon of a passenger ship. Section 8 makes modified regulations for voyages of not more than thirty days' duration, these being specified in Schedule F. The next Section orders that the owners or charterers of passenger ships shall, at their own expense, provide depots for the lodging of emigrants, and that they shall lodge there at least three clear days before embarkation, the depots being under the supervision of the Emigration Officer. By Section 10 it is enacted that all Orders in Council relating to the quantity of water to be carried by passenger ships, having a certain description of condensing apparatus, shall apply to Chinese passenger ships. By Section 11 only steamers are allowed to clear, between April and September, for ports west of the Cape of Good Hope, or for Australia, New Zealand, Oceania, and Tasmania. By Section 12 the Emigration Officer has the power to land any emigrants who are unwilling to leave the port, or who have been procured by fraud, and to send them back to their homes at the expense of the passage brokers. By Section 13 breaches of the provisions of this Ordinance are punishable by a fine not exceeding $500, or by imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding six months.
